"You who have been told it is necessary to have a third party to secure reforms—look in the statute books," Mr. Bennett urged. "There you will find we have enacted all the reforms you desire. These appeals to hatred, passion, prejudice and envy, are no good.

The Equal Chance

"Don't give way to [illegible] that all men may have an equal chance. Within our [illegible] country that may be achieved. Do you think you are helping Peterborough by signing yourselves with a party of two or three in the House of Commons, a small group without authority or power to do anything for you? Join the Conservative Party. Party which will have the majority and govern this country for the next five years."

TIME EXTENSION GIVEN MINISTER

Italian Delegate Will Be Expelled if He Does Not Leave

By James J. Mills
Copyright, 1935 by the Associated Press

Addis Ababa, Oct. 12—(AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie granted the Italian Minister, Luigi Vinci-Gigliucci, a time extension of 20 hours today within which to leave the country after the Minister defied the ruler's orders to quit the capital.

Haile Selassie extended his ultimatum from 11 A. M. today to 7 A.M., tomorrow but announced if the Italian Minister failed to leave then, he would be expelled.

The Minister and his military attache have barricaded themselves in the Italian Legation.

Mine Foreman Fined For "Omitting To Do"

Sudbury, Oct. 12—(CP)—Pleading guilty today to "omitting to do as act it was his duty to do" Thomas Gregory, Creighton Mine, was fined $50 and costs or two months by Magistrate McKessock.

Cain was in charge of operations on No. 5 shaft when Howard M. Ehlsmo was killed Sept. 8. At the inquest Cain admitted when rock was changed to a higher level in the shaft he did not notify the men under his charge to shorten their drop and the skip in descending the shaft, crashed through a timber-men's scaffolding on which Ehlsmo was standing, plunging him to his death.

TRADE AGREEMENTS

Again Speaks of Calling All Into Consultation After Election

Owen Sound, Ont. Oct. 13—(CP)—Canadians face the future "with high courage and great resources," Premier Mackenzie Bennett told an audience here last night before moving on to Smith's Falls and Belleville, where today he will continue his election campaign.

The Conservative leader said that in the course of a crisis "such as history has never known—a crisis which Liberals seem to think was confined to Canada and was brought on by Mr. Bennett"—Canada maintained a position, that was the envy of other nations.

In 1930 there was an advance trade balance of $105,000,000. In the past 12 months, that has been converted into a favorable balance of $150,000,000 he said.

STAND OF GOV'T GIVEN SUPPORT

Labor Leader Against Filthy Slandering in Abyssinia'

London, Oct. 13 (AP)—First opinions of sanctions by the League of Nations against Italy in an effort to end the East African war was received calmly today by the general public, even though British statesmen represented as seeing an increasing seriousness in the penalties voted.

With parliament called to reconvene Oct 22, a week early, to consider the situation and Great Britain's part in it, and with conferences, stirring declarations of support for the government's stand at Geneva continued to flow from public rostrums.

The morning newspapers offered little editorial comment on yesterday's events at Geneva but the speech of Anthony Eden, Minister for League Affairs, in which he urged, "we cannot delay, men are being killed," was widely reported.

Making the chief address of Leader of the opposition, C. R. Attlee, former Postmaster General, who pledged Labor's support of the sanctions policy, referring to "this filthy slandering in Abyssinia." Attlee asserted, "Labor believes economic sanctions should be applied may yet save the situation."

600 Teachers of Four Inspectorates Attend Meeting Here

ARTIFICIALITY SCORED

Regulations of Department Explained by Chief Inspector Greer

Recent regulations for obtaining standing in the teaching profession were explained to six hundred teachers at a joint session of the Trenton district institute of four counties by W. R. Greer, M.A., Chief Inspector of Public and Separate Schools, at the gathering in the Collegiate Auditorium. Prof. R. B. Liddy of the University of Western Ontario also addressed the gathering on "Roads that lead to Personality and Integration".

Dr. C. E. Stothers, Inspector of Prince Edward County acted as chairman and others on the platform were Public School Inspectors M. R. Reid, M.A., Lennox, & H. Mercitt, B.A., B. Pearl, Northumberland; H. J. Clarke, B.A., Hastings; retired Inspectors H. R. Fetherston, B.A., J. Corkill, B.A., Napanee, the guest speaker; P. J. MacLaurin, Principal of the, Collegiate, and A. Bateman, president of South Hastings Teachers' Institute and C. L. Frederick, secretary treasurer, Misses Mary Dunkley, Picton and Hattie Harrison, Napanee, who have completed over half a century in the teaching profession were also given places of honor on the platform.

Healthy Classroom

A more homelike and less artificial atmosphere in the classroom was suggested as a future ideal by Mr. MacLaurin, in his address to teachers. Mr. MacLaurin extended a welcome to the visitors and invited them at time permitted to inspect the classrooms of the building.

The importance of the teacher, Mr. MacLaurin said was to "stand and fall by the certificate," and four essential points in the teaching of children. The speaker pointed out that students should be provided with food for their minds, and this is amply done in the well looked and wonderful curriculum. Very careful supervision must be exercised over the pictures, books, movies, radio pages with which they come in contact so that they will possess clean minds.

Artificial Discipline

The atmosphere of classrooms had not been stressed sufficiently. There was too strained a relationship between the classroom and the lively vision which lay "ohlit" bey. Old Good pictures, magazines, books would help to make the classroom more homelike. Artificial methods of discipline of the schoolroom he hoped would in time give place to a less rigid method of approval Finally an exercise of the mind as well as the body, giving child a free afternoon a day to express himself.

Tribute to Chief Inspector

Sincere tribute to the Chief Inspector was paid by Mr. R. J. Clarke, B.A., who introduced Mr. Greer to the audience. Over twenty-five years ago, Mr. Greer had been his teacher in this inspectorate and had been officially his inspector. Mr. Clarke, as teacher, inspector and chief inspector, Mr. Greer commanded the respect and affection of his colleagues.

Mr. Greer gave a most interesting outline of the history of teacher training in the province of Ontario. In early days there were no trained teachers, he said, anyone, who "knew learning" at all being commandeered into the profession. The Provincial School Act of 1843 made the first move towards teacher training by providing county model schools. A few years later the first Normal School was established and by 1870 the teachers were getting a splendid training in the city. The speaker's service had seven Normal Schools and at present there are only two official training schools, similar to the old model schools.

A survey of education and teacher training shows that as further step should be taken in the way of profession to a higher standard and in June the announcement of new regulations was made.

Older Teachers Assured

Mr. Greer emphasized the fact that the Department did not with teachers of long experience who obtained the best standards of their day to feel disturbed over the new legislation. While all the present education was necessary, nothing could replace value of long and successful experience.

To enter the Normal School now a full Upper School standing must be obtained, and further regulations to take place particularly in regard to grammar, arithmetic, supplementary reading and English. The requirements for permanent second class certificates will be evidence of three years' successful teaching and other requirements to the first class course and the holding of the two grades certificates.

The teacher holding an interim second class certificate needs to pass only final Normal School examinations in Hygiene, English, Advanced English, Algebra and Geometry to receive Interim First Class certificate.

Examinations

For obtaining permanent first class certificate, besides reports by the Inspector of successful teaching the teacher must take one year of University work in English, an Upper School and an additional Summer School professional course are being planned.

The department plans to exercise more care in the selection of those who are admitted to the profession. Physical examinations will be required. School medical officers will report on the advisability of pupils' future teaching. In this way it is hoped that a higher type of teacher will be provided the province of Ontario.

Mr. T. A. Kelly, principal of Orillia Collegiate School, and Professor J. Tilley, Ph.D., L.L.D., under whom she had studied at Western University.

Personality Essential

Dr. Liddy gave a thoughtful discussion on the factors contributing to personality disintegration. The speaker defined personality as the sum total of what a person is at any given time, and personality disintegration as the breaking down of the unity of personality and gave a brief study of the roads leading to this condition.

The teacher must probe the cause of such a condition evident in a child. School might not be entirely to blame. Intellect, ability physical defects, organic disease, unfortunate home environment contribute to the unsatisfactory situation.

Evidences

He classified the road leading in this direction as certain ways of escape mechanism, such as overcompensation, day dreaming or general, the adaptation of childish way in attempting to solve some problem; regression, defense mechanism—rationalization or the projection of blame on something else, over compensation.

Summing up the remedial measures which teachers should apply, the speaker urged that when danger symptoms are evident a careful physical and psychological study should always be arranged for the pupil. The child should be taught to face, acknowledge mistakes, and face life as it is.

No Place for Fears

The teacher must be sympathetic and understanding. There is no place in the school for fears for no danger. Above all the teacher should give the girl or boy a happy creative life. Encouragement to the urge to create that it will dominate the things unworthy of and give a broad view readings by Miss Millard, Lloyd and Mary Hall; a vocal solo by Mr. Garnett Brooks of Niagara-on-the-Lake, and quartette under the direction of Miss Hardy, Northumberland. A vote of appreciation to Dr. Liddy concluded the joint session and to those who took part in the programme was moved by Mr. M. R. Reid and seconded by Mr. Mercitt.

HOME AND SCHOOL CLUB HOLDS FETE

The third annual banquet of the King George Home and School Club was held last night in the school auditorium was a marked success from every viewpoint, the largest in the club's history. The club was privileged to have as their honored guest Principal Bert Howard, whose last year's entrance class and their parents, the present members and members of the club were present.

A delicious supper, excellently appointed and served by lady members of the executive and industry of the club was a testimonial of the energy of W. J. Harrison, president of the club, and the efficiency and good heartily welcomed all present.

The following interesting toasts were proposed: Mr. Brown of Wellington proposed a toast to the King; the toast to the graduating class was proposed by Miss Mary Grant and responded to by Reta Jeffers and Lloydene Lemmon proposed the toast to the class teacher and Miss M. L. Kelly, in this junctture, a very clever and much enjoyed recitation was given by Miss Kelly.

Of special interest to the Home and School club members and parents is the fact that the club has been privileged to attend a study group under the leadership of Mrs. E. R. Logie was the chairman and Mrs. C. W. Bunker and Mrs. Charles Coleman, Mrs. Logie Honored.

Mrs. Bailey, president of the club paid tribute to the leadership and success in matters of her class helpful, vital and a pleasure to the members. On behalf of the group Mrs. Coleman presented Mrs. Logie with a handsome silver flower basket as a token of their appreciation of her kind endeavours in the club for 1934-35. The recipient thanked the group most graciously for their gift.

Graduation Diplomas

Mr. H. J. Cassidy, Public School Inspector presented the graduates with their diplomas and congratulated them on their splendid record of the class.

The guest soloist, Douglas Brown, rendered two beautiful numbers, Miss Dorothy Boyle accompanying at the piano.

Mr. L. A. Kells introduced the guest speaker, the Rev. Mr. Bert Howard, principal of Albert College who gave an interesting and educational travelogue on the Canadian Rockies. Mr. Howard illustrated his address with beautiful lantern slides of the picturesque western part of Canada, Calgary, Lake Louise, Indian Hot Springs and Banff were some of the places included in the speaker's itinerary. The stupendous colored slides bore evidence of the scenic splendour of such beautiful and enchanting places as Bow Valley, Castle Mountain, Pyramid Mountain, Emerald Lake and the Valley of Ten Peaks, Mr. Howard's vivid and scintillating description of the slides enhanced by his own delightful personality made the address of the evening one to live long in the memory of those present.

On behalf of the Club a very hearty vote of thanks to all who took part in the evening's program was moved by Mr. Kells and seconded by Miss Reta Thompson. The program was closed with the singing of "O Canada."

LATE GERTRUDE ANNE POULTER

Roslin, Oct. 12 (Special)—Many relatives, friends and neighbors attended the funeral of the late Gertrude Anne Coulter, which was held from her residence, Moneymore, on Friday afternoon. After a brief service in the home, the cortege proceeded to the Anglican Church where the pastor, Rev. D. C. Hill, conducted the funeral service, assisted by Rev. F. C. Nasser, Rector of the Anglican Church.

Rev. D. C. Hill spoke words of comfort and hope to the bereaved from the text, "Let not your heart be troubled."

The floral tributes were many and beautiful.

Cousins of the deceased acted as pall bearers, namely Messrs. Robert Gilmour, Douglas Aitkin, Frank Spence, Samuel Fargey, Earl Jones and Milton Fargey.

Interment was made in the Presbyterian Cemetery, Roslin.

WALTER GARDINER, (Deller.)

Walter Gardiner of Deller, Ont., died in the Bancroft Hospital on Friday, Oct. 11th, after an illness of two weeks' duration.

The late Mr. Gardiner was born in Belleville 57 years ago, his parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Gardiner. For many years he had resided in the Deller district and by all who knew him he was most highly esteemed. At one time he was engaged as a locomotive engineer. In religion he was a member of the United Church.

Surviving him are his widow, formerly Miss Beatrice Kelly; one daughter, Mrs. Bessie Rupert of Deller; five brothers, William Gardiner, Frank Gardiner, Clem Gardiner, Stillman Gardiner, all of Belleville, and Freeman Gardiner; four sisters, Mrs. Florence Frizzen, Belleville; Mrs. William Lees Belleville; Mrs. Maud Grant, Belleville, and Mrs. Melissa Reddick of Prince Edward County.

The late Mr. Gardiner will be greatly missed by many friends.

MONTROSE HERD MAKES UNIQUE DAIRY RECORD

Receives Government Health Certificate For 5th Successive Year

Mr. George E. Graham, proprietor of the Montrose Farm, Thamesford, has just received from the Dominion Department of Agriculture, Health of Animals branch, an unqualified certificate, certifying that his dairy herd is free from tuberculosis, and in perfect health. This makes the fifth year in succession that the Montrose Farm herd has received this testing health colors, not one reactor being found in the herd in any year. This constitutes a record the value of which will be appreciated by all who know anything about the dairy business.

Mr. Graham is naturally very proud of the showing of his herd which numbers approximately 100 head, Jersey and Ayrshire.

It is gratifying to note that the Montrose Farm herd was successfully passed all the required tests applied by Veterinary Inspectors of this Department, for entry as a Canadian Tuberculosis Accredited Herd." The certificate is signed by George Hilton, Veterinary General, and is dated September 17, 1935.

MANY MEETINGS CLOSE CAMPAIGNS

Conservative and Liberal parties in this district are now concentrating through the riding last evening with mass meetings, which will be held in this city, Massasaga and Trenton.

Conservative clubrooms were packed to the doors last night with party supporters, who completed the last details connected with voting day on Monday. Final arrangements are also completed for the appearance of the Rt. Hon. R. B. Bennett, who is scheduled to speak here this evening.

Mr. Chas. A. Cameron assisted by Geo. N. Gordon, Peterborough, former deputy-speaker in the House of Commons in the King administration, together with Colin Campbell, well known speakers, delivered a well received address in the Collegiate auditorium last night at Trenton. One of the highlights of the evening was the appearance on the stage of a specially decorated float drawn by two children and decorated with red paper. Inside the float, when the cover was lifted was revealed a little girl of four years, who held a large bouquet of flowers, afterwards presented to the Liberal candidate.

At Massasaga School another successful meeting was held in the interests of the Conservative candidate for Prince Edward-Lennox, Geo. F. Justin—at which Mr. J. Simpson, K. C., Napanee, Horace Colliver and Mr. Geo. Reid, South Hastings organizer delivered addresses.

POLICE BLOTTER

A transient giving his name as Hamish Mackinnon, 56 years of age, no address, was arrested by Constables Evans and Taylor on a charge of vagrancy last night. Following complaints relative to a man causing disturbances on the vicinity of the corner of Albert and Dundas Sts., local police later apprehended Mackinnon in front of a set of trying to panhandle a blanket and some foodstuffs from a resident of this section of the city. Interrogation was arranged before Magistrate Bailey today and remanded until Monday's court. Police allege the accused man had been drinking some, but only the charge of vagrancy was laid today.

The weary transient slumbered peacefully in the cell block at the police station last night, all being instructed to leave the city when liberated this morning.

TRUCE REJECTED, ILLINOIS 5 STRIKERS STILL DUMP MILK

Open rebellion by striking farmers against the Pure Milk Association in Chicago widened the breach in the milk war which has spread violence through half a dozen states. Rejection of the Chicago's milk supply an estimated 80 per cent in one week, Farmers from 14 counties met in Eight Ill., rejected Gov. Henry Horner's plea for a 30-day truce and began the establishment of a new bargaining agency to supplant the Pure Milk Association, official agency for 18,000 dairy farmers in Chicago milk area. Strikers have been trying to put up milk prices. ABOVE photo shows milk "dumped" at Bensen Grove in Pottawatomie County 40 miles from Chicago turning over a number of milk cans.

ELDORADO

spent on Tuesday evening October 8th. when a large number of friends and neighbors assembled at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Chambers to congratulate Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bush, Jr. on their recent marriage and to present them with a miscellaneous shower.

The first of the evening was spent in social intercourse. Then about ten o'clock Rev. Wm. G. Mason who acted as chairman for the evening called the gathering to order and after making a few remarks, opened the programme with a community singing. Miss Grace Rodgers gave a reading entitled, "Yes, My Dear." A solo was rendered by Mr. Vernon Strebe, Miss Annie Thorpe contributed a humorous reading which caused much merriment. A piano solo was given by Mrs. O. Empey. A reading "The Lady Minister of the House" by Miss Florence Wallace.

Mrs. Jack Empey was then called upon to read the following address:

Eldorado, October 8th. 1935.

Dear Eva and Kenneth,

We, your many friends, delight in having this opportunity of expressing to you, our high regards and best wishes for the happy adventure you are undertaking.

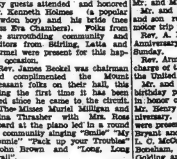
It is with regret, Eva, that we learn of your leaving Ontario and willingness to help in our Missionary Work. People's Society, and all community, activities, but we can't blame you for us. But we trust that you continue your helpfulness in the vicinity of Lake Manitoba, and that your talents are appreciated there as they have been here.

We congratulate you, Kenneth, on your choice of a life partner. Knowing you as a boy, willing helper in all friendly circles, we feel assured of your good success among friends wherever you reside and sincerity wish you success in the enterprise, of life.

In the new home you are about to establish, may God's richest blessing attend you, through health and prosperity.

May the gifts that we present Eva, from the minds of you both, through the years to come, be the pleasant memory of your friends.

Signed on behalf of your many friends and neighbors,



Cecil Robinson

Mrs. Empey.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Holmes both made fitting remarks and thanked all for the lovely gifts. After the gifts had all been opened a very delicious lunch was served and a social half hour enjoyed, singing "For they are jolly good fellows" all departed for their homes, feeling that a very pleasant time had been spent.

WORLD MARKETS SHOW STRENGTH

Arms Embargo Likelihood Shows Prices Upward on Exchanges

(By The Canadian Press)

As the League of Nations financial committee recommended enforcement of an arms embargo against Italy, world markets generally strengthened today.

Rumors the Suez Canal might be closed brought slackening of trade in its terms on Paris Bourse but the trend of that market was definitely upward.

London Stock Market was unaffected by the League recommendation, a strong tone prevailing. Base metals were generally higher.

New York market was swept forward on a strong buying wave, strength being attributed to excitement over potential inflation in the United States.

Stocks of so-called munitions metals were strong on Toronto industrial mart while certain Base Metal issues surged forward on a minor mining market.

Grain markets did not reflect any definite trend. Strength in Chicago was contrasted with an early weakening of prices in Winnipeg.

OUR DUTY TO VOTE

On Monday the duty of every citizen on the voters' lists is to exercise his and her franchise for the election of a member to the House of Commons at Ottawa.

The citizen who does not vote refrains from the performance of a duty. Nothing but ill health can excuse remissness in respect of voting.

In an address at the Anglican Provincial Synod here, a leading cleric made very clear the duty of every voter to vote. He remarked that practically any election which has been held could conceivably have had different result if all citizens had voted. This throws a heavy responsibility on those who abstain from voting. What Canada seeks is the entire vote of the people and with that there can be no complaint.

An uncast vote gives the vote that is recorded more than a unit of importance. If many people abstain it can usually be seen that it is very possible that it may mean a total vote which the people at heart do not seek.

Every one is vitally interested in the outcome of what will last for four or five years. So the call is to vote.

There never was a time when the leadership of the parties are more anxious for the direct and entire vote of the electorate. They want the people to express a mandate.

COLUMBUS DAY

Four hundred and forty three years ago today, Christopher Columbus discovered the New World. On October 12, 1492, the first question, Dreams have had the effect of discovery founded on the awakening or renaissance of thought and knowledge which came to a head at the close of the fifteenth century. While the world was slow to take on the importance of the immortal voyage of Columbus into unCharted seas, his courage and faith have enriched the whole course of history. Time has but to realize what the world is today and contrast this with what it was in the 15th century with its cramped geography which still existed and a very lack of knowledge about the physical universe.

How long it would have taken the world to have discovered America without Columbus is a question. Doubtless time had come for the discovery. It is said that the coast of America had been touched centuries before by Leif Ericson but no lasting settlement followed even if it were. Even Columbus' discovery in 1492 of San Salvador, now believed to be Watling Island, did not cause a rush of exploration. Though Columbus himself set out again the next year with 1500 men aboard his armadron and found the island of Dominica.

He found it to be the land he did not seek so great that he returned to Spain in 1496. It was in 1498 on his next voyage he reached the mainland. The year after he left the mouth of the river of King Ferdinand and was taken to Spain in chains released, he again made his way to America. In search of the riches of India in 1502. After exploring the Gulf of Mexico he returned to Spain where he died in none too prosperous circumstances in 1506.

The story of the voyages to control the Atlantic Ocean will always be a thrilling tale as it tells the birth of the New World. Columbus, a native of Genoa, Italy, had come to see before he was fifteen years of age and had sailed the seas from the eastern Mediterranean to Iceland. Wrecked on the shore of Portugal in 1476 he came there on a plank and settled in that country. As early in 1474 he had formed the idea of sailing westward to reach India. He had heard reports of seamen, driven abroad in Iceland and had pondered over the surmises of the ancients. He realized the spherical form of the earth but underestimated its circumference. He tried to induce the King of Portugal and King Henry II of England to support an enterprise of squadron to sail westward and finally made appeal to Queen Isabella of Spain, after seven years of persuasion he obtained the help he sought and in August of 1492 he set sail from the port of Palos with the Santa Maria, the Pinto, and the Nina. On his way over the Atlantic, there was trouble with the crews and the variations of the magnetic needle terrorized them. On October 12th he touched an island of the New World.

Columbus possessed the heroism and the inquiring mind of the born navigator, his heroism in the face of obstacles with his dautinous crew, who really had not his high inspiration and faith in the success of the enterprise must stand forever as a mark of the typical explorer.

Today the world hears of colonial expansion mostly as the process by which Ethiopia by Italy under pretence of civilization, but such a story of colonization cannot compare with that which faced men like Columbus and those doughty men whose names light the history pages of the modern world. Jacques Cartier, the Cabots, and others. Spain in those days was the supreme world power from which place she declined but not before she created a new world which remains in South America, Central America and Mexico and by the discovery of the continent opened the way for the modern United States and Canada in the development of which the British and French influences were however paramount.

True to the traditions of the explorer, Columbus was the pioneer, who did "not seek personal comfort. The quest was the all in all to him. And no greater quest in this world could be mentioned than that which led to the discovery of a hidden world. What would the world think today if a new continent were to be discovered? Of course that is impossible, but the question indicates what importance the finding of America occupies in the history of the world.

The name of Christopher Columbus will always be numbered with the most famous persons of history in that extremely select class of the supremely great.

JUST A NEWSPAPER MAN

PUBLIC LIFE IN CANADA IS FILLED WITH many lawyers, doctors, farmers, etc., with a sprinkling of business men. And that's just what keeps the hull blooming kettle from blowing up with an aggravated case of inflammatory and accumulative sentiments. To the newspaper man in public life in Canada with their highly developed sense of humor is due the continued sanity of administration which has always prevailed in Canada.

Belleville was visited this week by one of the best known newspapermen in Parliament, Senator George Perry Graham, who has been a newspaper man, whose office in the Brockville Recorder, overlooking the mighty St. Lawrence, is always regarded as a sanctuary and place of escape from the affairs of state at Ottawa and, put his feet on the editorial desk, say hello to the boys in the city room, and behold the network of various editorials showing "whither the country is drifting", or poking fun at some bigwigs in a nice way, for George P. always says it with a smile.

Born in Eganville, before the war, the son of a Methody minister, he chose newspaper work for a profession—just another minister's son going wrong—played the big time, then the small time, and finally settled down to make the name of the Brockville Recorder known throughout the land for its editorial humor and its knowledge of public affairs.

Then George P. mixed into politics and took his place in the Ontario Legislature for Brockville.

He wound up as Leader of the Opposition, but not long after Mr. Laurier became Premier he decided to go to Ottawa, and Graham as close to himself as possible, so he called him to Ottawa and made him Minister of Railways and Canals. Then began a close friendship which endured to the close of Sir Wilfred Laurier's life—no one was closer to Canada's Premier than the Hon. George P. Graham, and none more keenly mourned his death.

Very little separated Rt. Hon. G. P. Graham from being the choice of the conservative leadership when Rt. Hon. William Lyon Mackenzie King as leader of the Liberal party in Canada, and that little being a matter rather of the heart than the head.

From the House of Commons Rt. Hon. George P. Graham stepped into the Senate as the government found it necessary to inject some new blood into the Upper House rather than run the danger of decay from dry rot, or what have you.

Sitting in the Seats of the Mighty at Ottawa, or hobnobbing with the Great and Near Great in the Mother of Parliaments, George Perry Graham's mind would always hark back to that comparatively small community down by the river, Brockville, where he could put on his old clothes, walk down Main Street, and call every man he met by his first name, Dick — Bill, Charley or Mike or Pat, and most of the girls young and old also by their first names—climb the stairs to his news office and become again—just a newspaper man.

THE TUMULT AND THE SHOUTING DIES—and now little remains but to mark the ballot for the candidate whom you think will be the best for the nation and for you. There has been much public speaking, everybody has had a fair chance to express views pro and con—the decision rests with the ballot-box. One thing is sure whoever is elected will endeavor to do the best possible for the advancement of Canada, individual candidate, or party.

FIRE FORCES 16 OUT INTO COLD

In Village of Brookland, Man., Five Homes Are Destroyed

Brookland, Man., Oct. 36 (CP)—Fire of undetermined origin broke out in an unoccupied dwelling early today, destroyed five homes, a hotel and forced seven adults and nine children onto the chill, wind-swept street of his village on the outskirts of Winnipeg. None were injured.

The fire started in the dwelling of Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Jadzak, now in Kitchener, Ont., on a holiday. Other homes destroyed were occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Ross Cumming; Mr. and Mrs. Adolphe Buchele and two children; Harry Bowcott, and two children and Mr. and Mrs. Alex Kisel and four children.

The women and children sat huddled on the roadway, covering themselves with the little clothing and blankets they had been able to save.

A chill north wind was blowing across the open prairie and the temperature was around 25 above. Neighbors came to the assistance of the families and gave them lodging for the rest of the night.

Smoking in Jail Works Out Well

New regulations which provide smoking privileges for prisoners confined in Ontario jails at certain periods of the day mean extra work for guards and assistant turnkeys of the local staff, it was reported today by Head Governor G. H. Fraser, but the system is working out very satisfactorily, he was added.

"Most of the work is connected with the distribution of the tobacco and the furnishing of lights for the prisoners. The men are observing the regulations in the letter and spirit ever," commented the Governor.

At the present time the local jail is providing accommodation for a record number of prisoners. A total of 33 men and one woman is registered.

Quite a number of ladies from this line attended the W.M.S. sectional meeting held in Canniffon United Church on Thursday. All report the day well spent as each one brought home some very inspiring thoughts that were given by different addresses.

On Monday evening Mr. and Mrs. J. MacPherson entertained the members of John Street United Church Belleville Guild, about fifty being present. After the program the hostess served a very dainty lunch which all enjoyed also on Wednesday evening they also entertained at their home the members of the different schools in Belleville when about fifty again enjoyed a very pleasant time also being served lunch by the hostess and all agreed that Mr. and Mrs. MacPherson were ideal host and hostess.

A very happy time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. S. Lloyd on Saturday evening when birthday parties were given to Mr. Lloyd, his daughter, Mrs. Ross Dafoe and her sister, Mrs. M. Bailey of Stirling, as their birthdays all fell on October 7. During the evening four children of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Dafoe were entertained by Rev. H. Johnstone. A very sumptuous tea was served and all enjoyed a very pleasant time, it being a real surprise to ones who had a birthday.

On Wednesday evening Mr. and Mrs. S. Lloyd entertained Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Izzard and son Arthur and wife of Marlbrook and their daughter Ethel (Mrs. Shiral) of Iowa. Mr. and Mrs. Izzard lived on this line about 32 years ago and from here moved out west where they have since resided. They have been touring for the past month and visiting relatives and friends along the way.

A number from this line attended the sale of Mr. Geo. L. Ketchenon at Lingwick on Monday.

Filling silos is the order of the day, also the farmers are busy at their fall plowing and again the fields will be turned over and the harvest has passed for another season and all feel thankful to the Good Giver of all things that an abundance was given to all.

Mr. and Mrs. F. Harris spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. H. Pound.

Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin are attending normal school at Peterboro spent the week-end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. Wood.

Mr. W. Hobbs who has been quite ill is improving.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Holmes spent Sunday with relatives in Madoc.

Tug Florence Located by Diver

Smk about this time two years ago when a heavy storm opened her seams near Pelee Island in Lake Ontario, off Pribbs Edward County, the steam tug Florence was located by a diver yesterday as the first step toward salvaging material on the boat. The Kingston Tugs Salvage Prince and the Hilda are moored near the wreck while efforts are being made to remove the machinery and other effects from the tug. The boat is owned by the Dominion Tankers of Toronto and is 110 feet long and 27-foot beam.

SHOWER IS HELD FOR BRIDE-TO-BE

Miss Muriel Dixon and Mrs. Harold Mason were hostesses at a miscellaneous shower held at the latter's home in honor of Miss Dixon, whose Ruby Everson, bride-elect. The evening was spent in contests after which the bride and groom were presented with the following address, read by Miss Gordon Delaney.

Dear Ruby and Orland:—

We, your many friends, have gathered here this evening, not for the purpose of joining you in the jolly bonds of matrimony but to spend an evening of happiness with you before you leave our city.

Marriage has been compared to a voyage of unbravelled paths, so as you approach those paths may you do so with the spirit of hope. The success of their voyage depends entirely on your determination to succeed in accomplishing that which is worthwhile in life.

Ruby, you have been in our midst for many years and we have always found you a sincere friend and a willing helper at all times when needed. A happy hand and a friendly smile and we regret having to lose you.

To Orland, who is a stranger to many of us, we offer our heartiest congratulations, and we feel that with such a cheerful mate to guide you that you are sure of a joyous journey through life. We hope to see you more often in our midst, to this future, where you both will always be welcome.

As a token of our friendship we would ask you to accept these gifts with your promise that you will ever to you both our best wishes for a happy, married life.

These gifts were then opened and fitting replies were made by both Mrs. Dixon and Mrs. Ruby after which all sang, "For They Are Jolly Good Fellows." Lunch was then served, the tea being poured by Mrs. Dixon and assisted by Mrs. Delaney and Mrs. Standpoint.

Miss Rosalie Wallbridge was married very quietly and Trinity Church, Belleville, on Thursday afternoon, when Rev. Canon Bedford-Jones performed the ceremony. The bride was given in marriage by her father, Mr. Walter Wallbridge. Mr. Wallbridge was attended by Mr. Jack Wallbridge, brother of the bride, and Mr. Ellen Cameron, a cousin of the groom. The young couple left on their honeymoon trip to Toronto and Detroit, and on their return will reside in Belleville.

Mrs. Ernest Wilson, Bridge-st., entertained the members of the Tweed and District Golf Club at a luncheon on Thursday afternoon, when the ladies' fall competition was brought to a close. Mrs. Wilson was assisted by Mrs. Ernest Wilson, Mrs. Ernest Wilson, Mrs. Ernest Wilson,

CANADA'S STATUS ENVY OF NATIONS

Cancellation by the Province of Ontario of the Hydro-Electric contracts brought denunciation from the Prime Minister. Because the Ontario Legislature "repudiated the Hydro contracts", said the Conservative leader, the British investors have lost faith in Canada "until today you could not convert a Province bond, however sure we made on our promise, our credit is ruined in London; we cannot borrow a dollar there nor could any province in Canada."

Bad Government

Mr. Bennett defended the British agreements reached in 1923, declaring that in 1920 J. H. Thomas, Secretary of State for the Dominions, pronounced the reciprocal preference proposals "the best" but today there is no warmer supporter of these agreements" than Mr. Thomas.

Trade policies had increased Canada's share in the world's export trade by more than three and three quarters per cent in 1929 to twenty-two per cent in 1927.

"These facts may not sound like much to you," they mean, the difference between economic life and death in this country."

Dealing with labor, Mr. Bennett said the British people by his policy had increased the purchasing power of the pound. The Conservative convention at the 1923 Ottawa conference trade agreement he said: "I did my best for the purchasing power of exports in this country. Am I condemned for that? Could I honestly have done more at the time I was returned to power by a great majority."

Official Washington officials said Italy was "protesting vehemently against" the general arms embargo adopted by the general staff.

The head of the League information section, Rosika Schwimmer, said she had not reached the League but Italians there (Geneva) had informed her that Italy was protesting and the protest had been received at Geneva.

Italian Spokesman

An Italian spokesman, commenting on the lifting of the arms embargo from Ethiopia, said bitterly this meant the British empire could "Italians with rifles, machine guns and anti-aircraft guns furnished by Great Britain and Italy while powerless."

"It means also Italy will be obliged to withdraw from the League which may weaken her capacity to come to the aid of Europe if for example Russia should attack and Czechoslovakia would create a new war danger."

The sanctions sub-committee on finance began its secret session at 10:30 a.m. (5:30 p.m. Eastern Standard Time).

The financial experts of the league were armed with voluminous documents.

When the sub-committee reports to the general co-ordination committee late in the day, the final discussion on a general economic boycott against Italy may be held.

The burning question was whether the embargo should include prohibition of the export of coal and products which might be used in manufactures of armaments and munitions.

Canada sells a large quantity of nickel to Italy. Russia sells manganese and Russia, Rumania and Venezuela sell petrol to Italy.

Cotton, a big export from the United States, Egypt, India and Ceylon; Wool from Australia, Argentina and South Africa and rubber from the British Malay and Dutch India.

Italy buys iron and steel from the United States, France, Belgium and Switzerland and copper from the United States, Chile and Portuguese Africa.

Various figures, observers said, showed how much Italy lacked the essentials of self-defence and how much she depended on foreign nations for essential raw materials.

The excuse to barter created the British idea of centralizing an economic boycott of Italy instead of all purchases from Italy.

Several British officials have completed negotiations agreements with Italy apprehend that application of a policy nothing the British Empire would unite mutually dismember their economic strength.

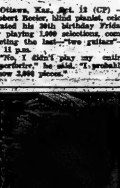
CONSTABLE G. C. HARRISON



Gunplay and murder claimed lives of four R.C.M.P. officers and three Doukhobor bandits in a wild chase from Saskatchewan-Manitoba boundary to Rosthern. Constable G. C. Harrison (ABOVE) of Banff, Alberta, was the first of four officers killed in gunfight with the bandits.

Further Destruction Caused by Quake

Moscow, Oct. 123 (AP)—Dispatches from Stalinabad, capital of the district of Kulyab, on the Afghan border of Afghanistan, said today that small shocks were felt there, which it was feared may have caused further destruction and loss of life in rural regions.

The number of deaths from Tuesday's quake in the Tertiduchsky region of the same district, remained at 1,000, it was said, while 15,000 natives were estimated at 300. Many villages were destroyed, it was reported the victims.

The earlier quake levelled the two villages of Moonak and Argankugh. Total of 620 buildings collapsed including mills and bakeries.

COLLEGIATE TEAM DEFEATS ALBERT

With a last quarter spurge the B.C.I.-V.S. football squad applied their superior strength to down the Albert College cricketers by the score of 9 to 3 in a regular Bay of Quinte senior interschedastic tilt played at the Exhibition Park yesterday. By virtue of the victory the local Collegiate squad moved into sole possession of first place in the Bay of Quinte senior group. Battling at even times for the majority of the pastime the Shiels-coached crew from B.C.I. applied a last period punch that resulted in the only major scoring of the game, when Dick Logie accepted a forward pass from the hands of "Red" Johnston and raced a touchdown, that assured the Collegiate of victory and the championship of the group. The pass sustained by the battling Beachcomed aggregation from Albert College drops them into second place in the group standing and on even terms with the St. Michael's squad, who downed the O.S.D. 11 to 11 yesterday.

The Albert College crew assumed the offensive during the first half with a centre serial attack, that proved most prolific despite the fact, that Fitzsimmons handled the ball consistently in the first quarter to give the B.C.I. the first scoring bounce. Johnston played inspired football for Albert at this time and repeatedly broke through the local B.C.I. attack. After a substantial gain of yards for Albert, Jones kicked well over the B.C.I. goal line and Burgess ravaged Johnston to loot the count in the end of the first quarter. Numerous injuries were in evidence in the second quarter including major injuries to Jones and Burton of Albert, who were removed from the game which mitigated their team's chances of victory. The only score to evidence this quarter came, when Johnston missed a placement shot but himself raced through to rouge Jones and put the B.C.I. in front by a score of 2 to 1. Bradford made a substantial gain of some 30 yards for B.C.I. as the third quarter whistle blew, however.

Tied Game Up

With their backs to the wall the Albert crew reached Albert College and threw caution to the winds, and tied the score in the first five minutes of the last period, when Jones kicked on a second down and Johnston who played his most spirited football all afternoon, rouged Derry to knot the count at 3 all.

Open football in mid-field featured the game the remainder of the period, Morley Logie in the last period by intercepting a B.C.I. forward pass, but on failing to play his team mate fumbled the ball and Johnston ran the length of the field for a comfortable gain of yardage. On a second down Baker kicked over the Albert goal line and a rouge he attempted to run the ball out. Jones was forced out of bounds which gave B.C.I. a point, the scoring now being 4 to 2 in the Collegiate. After Albert failed to boot out of the danger zone, Johnston made yards out on a subsequent sequence play Johnston threw a 30 yard forward to Dick Logie and the latter raced over Albert's goal line for the only major score of the game. The touchdown was converted by B.C.I. with a forward pass. Incidentally side-benchers were of the opinion that Albert College was officially when the sequence play was completed.

No further scoring was in evidence and the game terminated 9 to 3 for B.C.I. with which went the group leadership.

The line-ups—B.C.I.-V.S.: Fitzsimmons, centre; Johnston, Logie and Derry, quarter Mulligan, Baker, halves; Bradford, middle Hewgill, Hicks, wings; McGrath, Mclaughlin, Cooper, Foley, Evans, Porter and Reynolds.

Albert College—Irving quarter, Burton, halves Fox, Burgess, McCrie, quarter Jones, snap B. Jones, middles Weir, Clayton, middles Millner, Glover, outsides Chant, Hollingsworth, alternates. Referee, Donald, McIntosh, Hodden and G. Irving.

Referee, Townsend, Umpire, Pollwell, head linesman, Clarke.

LIBERAL LEADER ANSWERS CHARGES

Regards Charges.

Mr. Bennett had appointed Hon. W. D. Herridge as Minister to Washington for the sole reason that he was his own brother-in-law. The liberal leader in this connection referred to charges that Hon. Vincent Massey had been recalled from Washington by Mr. Bennett. He said minister held his post until his terms of credence were withdrawn and Mr. Massey's letters were not withdrawn until July, 1931, a year after Mr. Bennett took office.

"Any Prime Minister who will ignore the will of the people will ignore the wishes of his constituents," said Mr. King.

Mr. Bennett had held on to office after popular feeling against his government had been expressed in by-elections and provincial elections. Until this he ignored the will of the people.

His latest proposal was to invite all parties to the next general election in this within him. This was but preparing the way for him to hang on to office for a few months more, which he should secure a small following for the Ottawa House. Even now him as an excuse to postpone the calling of parliament indefinitely notwithstanding the majority would force him to surrender the seals.

Mr. King said he had too much regard for himself and for the Liberal party to become associated in any way by Mr. Bennett to unite all parties after election.

Speaks in French.

Surrounded by Liberal stalwarts from the Province of Quebec, Mr. King made his final appeal to the French Province by speaking chiefly in French and making his whole address in English.

Hon. Raoul Dandurand, Liberal leader in the Senate, was chairman of the meeting and Hon. Cyrille Vaillancourt, former Minister of Public Instruction, introduced Mr. King.

"If real very confident that on Monday next we will have a Liberal victory from coast to coast," said Mr. King, and some of the facts and information obtained from people everywhere led him to believe there was no doubt of the result of the election.

Everything with which a Liberal Government would have to deal in the next five years were so difficult that a large Liberal majority was needed, a good body of men in the party, thinking alike, on whom a government could count for support and who would see that the policies on which the government was elected were carried out. There was another reason why a great Liberal majority was desirable and arose from Mr. Bennett's Toronto speech, when he said he would call the Liberals to the bar of parliament to unite.

"Try to Hold Office Clean"

"The only conclusion one can draw," said Mr. King, "is that Mr. Bennett is prepared by the way to hold on to office for a while longer, whether he receives a majority or not.

"Mr. Bennett wants to hang on a bit longer before he calls parliament and forces the issue of responsibility. He may seek to hold on to office even should he come back with a very small following. Mr. Bennett's whole regime indicated his willingness to ignore sections 13; King said. He had taken away the powers of parliament and had held them in his own hands, when there was no parliament in existence and his five-year term of office had expired. All through the past year, Mr. King said, there were examples of the dictators of Europe being followed by examples of Dominion democracy in the past. However, he had ignored them. The people are expressed in by-elections and provincial elections.

"I say any Prime Minister who will ignore the will of the people will ignore the whole spirit of the act of 1867," said Mr. King. "Therefore I say to the people of Canada, please, make no mistake on Monday next, but see to it that the one party that is certain to have a majority along the way is returned to power by a great majority."

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

The amateur sport authorities are to consider a proposal by which an individual, who is a professional in one sport may be allowed to play as an amateur in some other line of sport, being interested in the welfare and uplift of sport in general, we consider this proposal one of the most timely suggestions brought forward by the amateur muggin throughout the Dominion. For instance, one who is a fine hockey player making his living from the earnings of that particular sport in the winter, the same as a merchant, dentist or labourer does in their line, has a popular reputation, that pro hockey players would have the same right as other partisans to engage in summer sports, such as baseball etc., in the same manner that they work or conscientiously believe, that Bill Cook, of the New York Rangers, or Gary Geyer of the St. Paul Saints' of professional hockey, should be forced to play amateur baseball or the skinner despite their affiliation with the managed rank in the minor months. Then again the possible would be retroactive with professional baseball players desirous of playing hockey for the love of the game rather than the cash. The proposition as above stated is today in force in the code of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada, and should receive every consideration at the hands of the sport bodies. An example of this suggestion is the manner in which amateur and professional intermingle in England, where it is an honor and a privilege for some to play. There's a great thing as understand methods practiced in Scotland by amateurism in that country.

With the hockey season practically knocking at our door there begin to be rumors of possible shifts in town in regards to the possibilities of hockey in the Belleville for the fast approaching season. It is a well known fact, that Belleville has lost interest in its senior hockey since since the ice was removed from the local rink, and indications are that it is being done to replenish these issues! It must be remembered that the first of May 15th (next Tuesday) is the deadline for the migration of pucksters, and that is the deadline for the O.H.A. It is understood that the Brockville Maroons will not attempt to return to the Ontario branch of the C.A.H.A. while both Peterboro and Belleville have been left in limit with impertinence while Kingston's status for the O.H.A. is very questionable as the Limestone City hockey moguls are contemplating the formation of a Kingston City Hockey League and paying little heed to the O.H.A. season. If this procedure will be adopted in Belleville towards the rejuvenation of O.H.A. hockey it will be a big thing, but unless considerable strength is procured the local hockey team might better look to the future as a county or township loop that is if they expect to obtain hockey prestige of some years ago.

Not until next Wednesday do the Kingston Ponies and the Odd Numbers clash in the third and final game for the group 4 O.H.A. championship and maybe at Peterboro. Following their indifferent playing and self-assurance victory in Kingston on Wednesday, when they succeeded in a 6 to 5 decision, it is to believe the Ponies will return to their former status and repeat their performance of one week ago. Clancy will naturally get the Kingston fighting spirit aroused should just about prove the difference between victory and defeat for the Ponies, as Clancy is doubtlessly the class of ballsters in this province and should carry the Ponies to the heights they have dreamed of for many a year in amateur baseball heyday, after his success on the mound last Wednesday, is the logical choice for drill in the coming duties.

Power plays in the last quarter gave the B.C.I. and V.S. senior football squad sole possession of first place in the senior section of the Bay of Quinte interscholastic football league yesterday when the latter crew downed the Albert College aggregation by the score of 9 to 3. The touchdown chase from Albert held their own with an aerial attack in the first half, but failed to capitalize on their advantage, when the Collegiate crew of that date added one from their details beyond the meagre information that when smoking on the streets the girls did not confine themselves to the puff and blow, but "smoked in broad daylight."

"At I intend to run for Mayor of Belleville next year I am anxious to reduce my stock as much as possible so as to leave me plenty of time to look properly after the affairs of the city." Mr. Dunnet had printer. His ads consisted of dress goods, suitings and yard goods.

The issue depended also upon clippings from other papers to fill out columns. In the same the following is reprinted an article from the North Hastings Review:

What Reporter Saw And Reported in 1883

Fifty-two years ago Mapanee's "swell girls" smoked openly on the streets of that town. So wrote a correspondent to the Napanee Weekly Intelligencer" in an almost forgotten issue of that publication dated August 30, 1883. The statement contained in a news item of a "local column" of that date added no further details beyond the meagre information that when smoking on the streets the girls did not confine themselves to the puff and blow, but "smoked in broad daylight."

Scanning other items contained in the same issue a large advertisement inserted by James W. Dunnet of the Glasgow Warehouse caught attention to a special sale that is to be held. "At I intend to run for Mayor of Belleville next year I am anxious to reduce my stock as much as possible so as to leave me plenty of time to look properly after the affairs of the city." Mr. Dunnet had printer. His ads consisted of dress goods, suitings and yard goods.

The issue depended also upon clippings from other papers to fill out columns. In the same the following is reprinted an article from the North Hastings Review:

"Last Friday a farmer came into this village and immediately got on a spree. Not getting him when expected, his wife despatched a son to look for him. The latter after his arrival in the village, also became overcome by too heavy libations of 'tanglefoot'. The two started home, but had not gotten far when they managed to upset the wagon, which caused the horses to run away. When found, the farmer had a broken collar bone. One of the horses carried a $150 had to be shot on account of a broken leg."

Editorial returns in those far off days were candid at times witty it is revealed by one other item. As an example of fearless journalism it is pointed out: "Our local contemporary (The Ontario) informs us that the Katie Eccles is barking 'popular wood'. We don't know what 'popular wood' is, but it certainly is not the kind of wood from which the Ontario's figure head was carved."

As two other specimens of outspoken reporting we find: "One of our most faithful duk hunters now in the marshes is a young married woman who is a dead shot, and who can knock the spots off any of the boys."

"Charlie Herrington was kicked in the stomach by a mule one day last week which doubled him up like a jack-knife."

Wide Open Game With O.S.D. Coming Fast at Times

Fielding a much improved squad St. Michael's academy turned back the O.S.D. senior rugby squad to the tune of 13-11 Thursday afternoon early lead, the Schreiber coached team had the pace and in the end brought they were hard-pressed in the third and fourth stanzas that followed. The game on the O.S.D. grounds on Friday afternoon under ideal weather conditions.

Early in the first O'Neill dropped one between the uprights for three points after his team had recovered from Hyland's fumbly on a partially blocked kick.

In the second S. Amo added five points to the scoring and a clever end run put the St. Michael's team in the lead. Fitzsimmons' try was not converted and the half ended with St. Mikes 8; O.S.D. 3.

From the kick-off Alexander, playing behalf for the O.S.D. squad, got the ball and raced the length of the field, through the entire St. Mike's team for a try. It was the most sensational run of the day. It was not converted. St. Mike's 8; O.S.D. 8.

The third period was fast back-and-forward affair, with neither team able to register. Ryan, of the O.S.D. squad, missed a placement shot in the opening moments of the game, with less than 3 minutes to play, the O.S.D. squad seemed to come to life. A forward pass, netted them 5 yards, a run completed forward, Maloche to Alexander, added another 35 and Hyland, on the next play, plunged at quarter took it over just as the whistle blew.

Doyle, O'Neill and Doran stood out for the visitors while Maloche, Alexander, Bostnart and Lavalle were the pick of the O.S.D. squad. Referee, Bowerman.

Britain, France, Italy, Belgium Divide Major Portion of North-East Africa

The Political Situation In North-East Africa: Ethiopia and European Interests Surrounding It.

In this contour map is clearly shown the neighborhood of the seat of trouble in northeast Africa. The varying tones of the map indicate the colonial possessions of the different powers. Egypt and the Anglo-Egyptian Soudan are seen lying between the Italian colony of Libya to the west and Eritrea and Abyssinia to the east. The life-blood of Egypt and the Soudan, the River Nile, is seen bisecting this territory, with the Blue Nile rising in Lake Tana. Most of mountains, gorges and plateaus; while Egypt and the Soudan are for the most part flat, with long stretches of desert. Libya, too, is a vast land of barren, waterless country. Further southward, in the north of French Equatorial Africa, we find similar conditions, but toward the Congo and Niger country we reach a land of equatorial forest. Italian Somaliland, to the southeast of Abyssinia, is again flat, with barren plains which are converted into almost impassable soft ground in the rainy season. Of considerable significance to Egypt is the barbed wire fence erected by the Italians along the Libyan frontier from the sea to Jarabub—a distance of miles. It is described as a fence with entanglements six feet in height and width, staked every few yards and pegged down on each side. At stakes are set in concrete. The fence is constantly patrolled and is designed to prevent the passage of Arabs into Egypt. South of Jarabub are shifting seas of sand-dunes which present an almost equally impassable barrier. Italy is said to be anxious about the attitude which local tribes in Cyrenaica may adopt if war breaks out with Abyssinia, and has, therefore, according to the Daily Telegraph, been steadily withdrawing local native troops from the Egyptian border of Libya, and replacing them with Somalis, who have no racial links with the inhabitants. The number of troops in Libya has been increased. (The map is reproduced by special arrangement with Central Press Canadian and the illustrated London News.)

In the backwoods of Buckingham, England, is a Canadian encampment where three young "Tarmans" have been living for the past six months. They are Paul,13; Kenneth, 10; and George, 9, sons of Mr.4 G. Mr. Thompson is a brother of the late great Tom Thompson, one of Canada's most renowned artists. Mr. J. Campbell who has been visiting relatives and friends here for the past two weeks returned to his home in Seattle on Tuesday.

Misses Lena and Clara Sullivan spent Wednesday afternoon in Belleville.

A number from Marmora attended Norwood Fair on Wednesday.

Miss Jennie Farley and brother Pat, are spending a few days in Ottawa.

Mr. Joseph Murray was in Toronto for a couple of days this week.

Mrs. C. A. DeWilliams and Gordon spent Wednesday afternoon in Belleville.

Mrs. H. Crawford spent Tuesday and Wednesday in Toronto.

Mr. E. Kitchen of Belleville was a visitor to the village on Thursday.

O'Connor—Fleuris

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in St. Alexander Church, Eganville, on Tuesday, October 8, by Rev. Father P. Fitzsh, when Mary Bernadette, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph G. Fleuris of Eganville, became the bride of Hugh F., son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard O'Connor of Marmora.

The bride looked charming in a blue crepe costume with accessories to match. She was attended by Miss Eva Grenier, who was attired in a rust crepe with black accessories. Mr. M. McGrath, cousin of the groom, performed the duties of best man. Miss Cecelia Jeffry presided at the organ with Mr. A. Tracy rendering "Ave Maria" during the signing of the register. Following a short honeymoon in Marmora and points west the happy couple will reside in Sudbury.

Miscellaneous Shower

On Wednesday evening about one hundred friends gathered at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. O'Connor, Marmora. The evening was spent in dancing and social intercourse. After lunch Mr. Hugh Brady, on behalf of those present, presented the young couple with a Dilbeard walnut writing desk, after which the following address was read by Miss Dorena Gehan:

Dear Betty and Hugh,—

We, your friends of Marmora and vicinity have gathered together this evening to extend to you our best wishes for happiness, health and prosperity, to give you God-speed on your new and beautiful way.

As for you, Hugh, you have grown up with us and we have spent our happy school days together, as well as many social events which we have so enjoyed.

We welcome you, Betty, to our midst, and extend to you our very best wishes for a happy wedded life. Although you come to us as a stranger, knowing Hugh as we do, we know he would choose for his life-mate, a person of kind, cheerful and loving disposition, and tonight we greet you with a glow of friendship and pleasure and a clasp of the hand, that seals our hours together, pledging our good will.

In your new home, in the coziness of that one dear place, which is of all the world you call your own, may there be food sufficient for your Marmora friends. We ask you to accept these tokens of remembrance with our best wishes for your future happiness and success.

Signed,

Young People's Society of United Church.

At a meeting of the Young People's Society of Marmora United Church held on Monday, October 7, was planned to make it a free city under league protection like Danzig. Lithuania seized the city by a surprise attack, forcing the French garrison to evacuate in 1923. Thereafter the powers gave Memel administrative power inside the state of Lithuania under the joint supervision of Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy. The popu- lation is 140,000. Kiwanis Carnival

The doors of the Belleville Arena will swing wide on October 15th when a tremendous crowd is expected to attend the opening of the Kiwanis Indoor Carnival and Circus. With many new and different features the Kiwanis Club Carnivals, Show in the history of the local Club has anything of this nature been produced on such a gigantic scale.

Nor, only is there to be every conceivable form of amusement and entertainments, but every man, woman and child has an equal chance to participate in prizes totalling $700. The Kiwanis are presenting each night a novel Circus Revue, under the direction of the Canadian Vaudeville Exchange of Toronto, which, to say the least, is a veritable "knock-out! It is something unusual in Circus entertainment—there isn't a "big-top", or lions and tigers which are usually associated with circuses, but there are most of the other circus acts such as clowns, aerialists, slack-wire artists, trapeze, all blended in with a band of a troupe of beautifully costumed dancing girls, singers, comedians, dancers and novelty acts—the whole presenting a fast-moving and specially-performances, and enhanced with special scenic and lighting effects, offers a happy combination of Circus, Revue, and Vaudeville.

The army of clowns are headed by those internationally known Carr Bros., late feature of Sells-Floto and Hagenbeck-Wallace Circuses. And then one could not miss those thrilling Arabian Tumblers. The Three Whirlwinds, one simply cannot write about this show without mentioning the 8 Continental Harpers, a group of beautiful girls in gorgeous costumes who present every conceivable aiss in the terpsichorean world, both individually and in ensemble.

After the stage performance, the Dance and sparkling Floor Show will be one of the highlights of the evening, featuring Radio and Film Club entertainers from the larger centres.

These are only a few of the outstanding attractions which, coupled with the many games of skill, are to be seen and enjoyed at the Arena on the 15-16-17th of October, when the Kiwanis Club stage their Mammoth Indoor Circus and Carnival.

An excellent program of entertainment will be presented at the Children's matinee at the Arena on Tuesday, October 15th at 4 p.m.

Space will not permit us to give details of the special kiddies' show, and the many other stage attractions to be presented at the Carnival but our hard-working Chairman of Publicity, Gordon Bray gives details galore daily for important attractions elsewhere in this paper. Watch announcements regarding the Kiwanis Circus and Carnival.

POTATOES SELL AT $1.15 PER BAG

Display of Fruit Equal to The Past Few Weeks

There were but few changes to note in prices by all accounts offered for sale on Saturday's market which was largely attended by both sellers and buyers.

The display of fruit was exceptionally fine, consisting of peaches, plums of various kinds, grapes and melons. Peaches ranged in price from 40c to 90c a basket; plums 50c and 60c; grapes 30c to 40c for five lbs and 20c for light colored per basket. Melons were from 5c to 10c each.

In the vegetable line the only change apparent was in the price of potatoes which retailed at $1.00 and $1.15 per bag.

Poultry, while quite plentiful, commanded a good price. Chickens sold from 60c to 80c each; Ducks 90c to $1.00 each; one turkey was offered at $5.00.

Eggs are apparently advancing in price, being quoted at 28c to 32c for No. 1 and 26c for pullets. The ruling price for butter was 29c lb.

Considerable home cooking was on display and quickly disposed of. Fish vendors were busy. White fish, lake salmon and muskeela were the principal products, selling at quotations listed below:

ADUWA ANNEXED BY ITALY SUNDAY WITH CEREMONIAL

Side by side with the trickier flew the white flags raised by the native population at the approach of the invading Italian forces.

The formal rites of annexation will be conducted by Lieutenant of Gen. Emilio De Bono, commander of the advancing Italian armies.

City Is Secondary

Aduwa, scene of an Italian defeat 40 years ago by the powerful Emperor Menelik, was completely submissive to Italian rule today.

The Abuna or Bishop of Aduwa Cathedral was last night busily engaged in preparing for a Coptic Mass of thanksgiving which De Bono himself will attend tomorrow.

Local Italian staff officers revelled at the news that Dedjasmatch (General) Haile Selassie Gugsa, governor of Makale province, had surrendered to the Italians with 18,000 men. Another leader also surrendered.

General De Bono was on his way to Aduwa today from his field headquarters. He cannot arrive until tomorrow because of the state of the roads.

General Travels on Mule

Officers said he would have to travel on mulback several miles. He will pass through the same territory he covered when a young lieutenant during the campaign of 1896 which ended in disaster at Aduwa.

"All are not equal in mental and physical equipment. Some must succeed and others fail. All we can do is afford every person an equal opportunity to exercise his talents. And if one succeeds are we to point the finger of scorn at him? Since when has it become a sin to succeed?

BODNER FREED ON MURDER CHARGE

Jury Deliberated For Six Hours Before Reaching a Verdict

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 11 (CP)—With the stern admonition of Mr. Justice Jeffery to change his way of life until retrial in his memory George Bodner was free today of a charge of murdering his wife.

The 34-year-old man who in more affluent days kept a string of racehorses, was acquitted of murder by a jury here last night. At the end of a three-day trial the jury deliberated for six hours before bringing in its verdict.

LOOSE GRAVEL IS ACCIDENT CAUSE

Three Pinned Under Car, But None Are Injured

Frankford, Oct. 12.—Striking loose gravel while rounding a turn in the road a mile and a half west of Warkworth on the Hastings Road this morning overturned the car of a car owned by Murney Foster, bailiff of Frankford, overturned.

Foster's wife and daughter Edith, the other occupant of the car, escaped with bruises, however, some time but were released by a passing motorist, Mrs. Simpson, lady driver of Warkworth.

They were rushed to Dr. C. McCutcheon's office in Frankford for treatment were found to be not as bad as at first thought although both were badly bruised and suffering from shock.

Church Sheds Used For Harvest Suppers

In one rural United Church apparatus far from this city the horse as a means of locomotion to the church on Sunday is still very much in evidence.

Recently members of the parish engaged in their annual clean-up grounds and hitching shed clean-up in preparation for chicken suppers and harvest festivals ahead. Owing to the popularity of the horse sheds in the past, the matter was put to it and then made a decision.

A sign now hangs on the shed door:

"Notice
"Horses not allowed to drive in the sheds.
By order, Board of Managers."

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Biggar and Crawford by Jack Wills, branch manager.

Everyone seems to have reached the same conclusion, namely, that all bull markets will terminate in this country immediately after the federal election. Ironically, few of the main parties obtains a clear majority. It is to be hoped that in the event prices fail to rise shortly after Monday's results, it will not bring about a change of disappointed selling. When the public, as a group, forecasts the market trend, it can usually be taken for granted the stocks will do the opposite.

Without a doubt business has been held back the past few months pending the outcome of the election. Many industries in this area adopted a conservatived waiting attitude. In many of the manufacturing parties obtain sufficient votes next Monday to hold the balance of power, confidence in the industrial field will react favorably to the confidence felt by the citizens of this country.

The buoyancy in New York the past few days is slowly encouraging Canadian stocks, although the firmness has not, as yet, been accompanied by any substantial volume. Indications are not lacking that the market is at a stage where a profound advance could develop on very little provocation. The technical position of the market is excellent, the better grade stocks being comparatively scarce around current quotations.

The strength in Shawinigan yesterday is in line with the statement made by Arthur Bevrier that this year's earnings should approximate $1.25 a share on the common, about 2½ times dividend requirements. Shawinigan's subsidiary, Shawinigan Chemicals, Ltd., is understood to be doing extremely well and the outlook for the newsprint industry is also much improved.

Holders of the alcohol stocks are wondering why the market has so far failed to reflect the expected improvement in their sales in the final quarter of the year. The final two months are already the busiest for these companies.

The fiscal year of the Dominion Bridge Company Limited will come to a close at the end of this month. There is no doubt that information available as to what the report will reveal but the last three quarters that the document will be much similar in character to the previous nine months which it will be recalled that a deficit of $1,-964,975 was shown before the dividend payments of $1,571,902 were made.
The Dominion Bridge Company Limited is in very strong position financially with working capital in excess of $7,212,197. Earnings should improve quickly once the heavy trade becomes more active again.

The author of this article has conversed with outstanding statesmen and business men of England and informed representatives of other countries in connection of their judgment is:
Sanctions will be applied very cautiously and gradually by the League of Nations.
Military measures will not be taken unless precipitated by some untoward incident for a long time.
If force is eventually applied to Italy by England and the League all Europe may be involved. Hence, Canada will derive a little material benefit from a localized war.
A wide war would not result here in the immediate extreme of depression and prosperity of the last war.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, Oct. 12 (CP)—There was no sharp trend in the industrial share market in the closing session of the week, but evidently to the New York market approaching of the approaching of the Federal election Monday.
Nickel closed down a narrow fraction while Consolidated Smelters held firm at 17½. Distillers closed down at 14 and 14.60 but up about ¼. In the beer group Canada Malting firmed ¼ and Brewing Corporation common closed around 1.80 for a minor advance.
Lobbar A took a minor gain and Fanny Farmer and Canada Cement off. Oils held practically unchanged, banks were slow and steady while in the utilities the feature was g. chg. and strength in the power issues on small turnovers. Gains elsewhere included a point for Goodyear, ¼ for Page Hersey and ¼ for Gypsum.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, Oct. 12.—Wholesale potato prices advanced five cents per bag here yesterday. Outside announcement that the 1935 Canadian potato crop will be 27 per cent under the 1934 production, and light offerings, affected the market. Prices became 80-85 cents for No. 1 New Brunswick Mountains. Quebec for No. 1 Quebec Mountains and 55-65 cents for No. 2 Quebec Gobblers, per 75 lbs. bags. A car of one dollar per bag within a month or two was being predicted in some offices.
The butter market continued at 34 cents per lb. here in carlots or 1cl. lots. Receipts, 4,289 boxes, including 1,000 boxes for export. Small lots to the retail trade were quoted by jobbers at 25 cents for solids and 26 cents for prints.
The cheese market was 13 cents to 13¾ cents for No. 1 Ontario white; 13¾ cents to 13¾ cents for No. 1 Quebec white, and 13¼ to 13¾ cents for No. 1 Quebec colored. Receipts, 5,008 boxes.
The egg market was firm, with graded shipments arriving in carlots or 1cl. lots quoted 30-35 cents for A-large, 32-33 cents for A-medium, 27-28 cents for A-pullets, 25 cents for B, and 21-24 cents for C. Many consumers were obtained for strictly fresh stock. Receipts, 1,683 cases.

"Installment Marriage"

by

Janet Doran

ENGAGEMENT

CHAPTER I

"I think I'd make a grand husband!" Michael's eye begged Judy to agree with him; to not laugh at this, the most serious moment of all his 26 years.

"Of course, Mike darling." Judy shivered slightly, wondering if all her life were to be just this—for this man she loved. "Of course you would! But, Mike, what could we be anything but just that on? Just a husband and wife!"

Judy's gray eyes searched Michael's tender gaze intently, and her soft, full little mouth pressed firmly together, as if with the very intensity of her thoughts; and the soft, swirly little bangs across her forehead seemed heavily childish, absurdly little-girlish, in the monumentousness of the instant. She was never seemed more slight, more tiny and fragile and helpless, in spite of her sweetness.

"Well, but, Judy," Michael began very carefully, very methodically, as if he had rehearsed it a thousand times and knew just which words to use, and how to emphasize each one, "there's my job. I don't make such a young fortune, to be sure. But I manage to get along. And with you to share things, I'd get along a heap better. I'd never want much out of a marriage.

"But just a job, Michael," Judy said rapidly, thumped as the chill that lurks in the pit of her stomach: the sort of dentist's-chair lump that's always there, under fear. "What would we do if anything happened?"

He stared at her so intently that Judy melted. Her soft lips quivered, and with a little sob she buried her face against his shoulder and clung to him with shaking hands.

"Michael", she whispered, "Michael, darling—but, don't look at me like that! Don't! I can't bear it! I'd love you, Michael! Because I love you so that I'm so afraid! Afraid of what marriage without any money can do to you! Make you burdened and old before your time! Make the flavor—and the soul gravel, and, too quiet, too gray! Michael, I'm so afraid! It's because I love you so that I'm so afraid!"

"But we'd have each other, Judy, sweet," he said in a humble, strangely candid murmur. "We'd have each other. Love can make up for a lot of lacks! And all the weeks and months and years wouldn't be wasted! I'm sure you I'm afraid you, Judy, that I don't want to wait. I'm afraid you'll get discouraged and lose faith in me, if we drift into one of those too-long, too-drawn-out engagements! If we wait too long, Judy, we won't marry at all! We'll just spend our youth, our dreams, and have nothing but old age, and ashes of love!"

"Michael," Judy began again carefully, writing her lower lip with a cold frightened little tongue, "Michael anything should happen! As long as we both worked, we'd make a go of it. But . . . supposing something happened?"

"Judy," Michael said solemnly, "exactly how many times have you been to a doctor in the past year?"

"Why . . . not at all, Mike!" Judy began, and hope began to flame into a glow in her face. "Not for—two years, Michael, she said in a stronger, more confident tone. "I'm disgustingly healthy!" She grinned up at him, her eyes narrowed with crinkles of laughter. "Oh, Michael, if only I dared believe—believe!"

"Look" Michael said in a tone that said plainly it was his final convincing argument, "I figured it all out! We can buy our furniture at Hazen's, and if we can't replace low-priced enough, we'll almost save our budget trying to see what we can economize on, getting our own meals. I mean breakfasts and dinners. I'll help, Judy, I'll get breakfast, because I don't have to go at any set hour, and I'll help get dinner. It'll be a lark, sweet, honestly!"

"I . . . don't . . . like . . . going out, Michael," Judy said, "I've stayed on here at my rooms until we can save enough to buy our furnishings and I'd like that. I've worn a heavy burden of worried frown, as she looked up at the tall, earnest young man confronting her, "there's really no reason why we shouldn't!"

"That's out, Judy," Michael said shortly. "I'm not moving in on you like a—like a trained, pet gigolo! I'm getting in a place of my own!"

"Our own, that is . . . going on saving as her boyfriend, in sudden embarrassment over the implied sentiment of the word, "our own, that sounds better you so why, I'll rent a little harder and just pay 'em all up according to you, honey. Gosh, sweet, don't look as if we were going to the poor house! Marriage doesn't change things any! You'll still be Judy, you'll keep your job in a downtown contractor's office, only outside working hours you'll have all you to you, sort of . . . uh help on."

He grinned, and when his arms said walked over to the big blue cloth chair and sat down, holding her close in his embrace, close to his own big, even thumps of his heart. His lean, long fingers caressed her soft hair, tugged gently at her small ears, and ran gently along her jaw, and over her lips, before he kissed her, very tenderly.

ried, and 'heaps happier than we are apart, like this. We'll have something to build on, something to work for, together. And two are five cheaper than one. Take food, for instance—buy in larger quantities, and save. And heat. It costs only half as much, having only one set of rooms to heat. And other things, too. You'd be surprised how much money people throw away. It would all be saved if they were married, and had a reason to be economical . . . saving."

Judy knew the truth of this. She knew Michael bought 40-cent cigars when 15-cent ones would do as well! They took taxis when it was sunny or they were tired, and the subway was full, if it pleased him to take longer. And Michael was always buying her things, a gardenia, An orchid. A vanity case. Things he said reminded him of her. It troubled her because she knew the money should really go into his savings account.

He was quite cheerful about it, too. Quite gay. "Cosh spelling my tom, sweet," he'd say. "If I get a break out of it, I'll please me to make you happy, why be mercenary?" Love only comes once in a lifetime!"

But it wasn't mercenary to be 24 years old and what a back account! It wasn't mercenary to figure the difference between the cost of an orchid and a bunch of sweet peas, a vanity case or a hot-dog sandwich, a subway transfer and a fifteen and five!

"Michael," Judy's voice was soft and slightly blurred and indistinct, coming from away down inside his heart, and he tightened his arms about her, ". . . slightly. . . . he heard Michael, I'm not such a good housekeeper. . . . I can't cook very well, and . . . I've never had time to learn, I've been so busy getting ahead with my business career."

"What's a little thing like that!" Michael scoffed jollily. "Every woman has to learn how to cook! Believe! he added quickly, "I can cook some myself. "Scramble eggs, and make steak, and baked potatoes, and corn cake. We'll get along fine! You'll see. We can eat out a little at first, until we get the hang of things. Everybody else does it."

"We . . . we won't be able to afford a honeymoon, Michael," she began uncertainly. "We'll have to use the money for our furniture . . ."

Michael chuckled. He pulled her face to his heart and held her tight, and chuckled indulgently.

"Silly, sweet!" he teased. "As if will you quit worrying about finances! Anybody'd think you were the man, for this house, with the cares, instead of me! Now, listen, honeymoon, my darling. Honeymoon not much of a one, but still . . . a honeymoon! We have our reputations, and they're precious. Well? Will you go to Maine or wherever you'd like. It wouldn't be real without a honeymoon, sweet!"

"But, Michael, what will we use for our down payment on the furniture, then?" Judy persisted, her gray eyes chill with apprehension.

"Why, I consult our magic formula," he said with a flourish, taking out the little book in which he had figured his entire plan for the financial end of their marriage. "Items for honeymoon; extra commission on the Emerson sale for engagement ring; savings for sinking fund in case of fire . . . and her about a little item on account, Mrs. Michael Swayne? On account of I you and I are supposed to register love for a future husband with a smile and not a frown!"

Judy forgot, in the rapture of that line, the tangled mass of worries and anxieties that had beset her ever since Michael had begun talking marriage. She did love him so much! His chill fled. She threw her arms around his neck, brought his head down through the office to the president's rooms that day almost a year ago!

"Oh, Michael, I do love you," she whispered, her soft lips trembling, her face suddenly wet with tears she could not hold back. "I love you so much, terribly nothing else seems to matter!"

"That's the way I feel," Michael whispered huskily. "I knew you did! And you'll see we can manage, and be just grand! Why . . . with you to work for me, I would even be willing to cook and hold back cookies! When will you marry me, Judy? Soon?"

"Any time, Michael," she whispered, her head on his shoulder. "Any time! But, oh, my dear, it seems right! I can't bear our happiness to be tarnished!"

WEDDING RING

Judy did not notice Michael even though he was in the room. Her eyes were closed. The thing farthest from her mind was Michael. Michael was a memory, a star, and as for Michael having one—! Judy got to her feet and shook herself, gently, "when you can walk right by me within three feet of my nose, and not even see me, I should feel sorry for you, Michael Swayne!" Her heart, and tell me how you like it." Judy got to her feet and shook the roadster reared into life. It was old, very shabby, but it was a famous make one and the old shoes looked new, and the motor still sounded like wealth, power, pride and comfort all rolled into one purry little hat-as-Michael stepped on the gas, leapt from her mind once more.

"Listen," Michael said solemnly, grabbing Judy's faint fingers in his big gloved fist and hold tight, as if suddenly afraid he couldn't control them, "tonight we're celebrating. I've ordered a table at Croydon Roof, on the Drive, and we're going there in style, darling! Say you're glad!"

Judy's smile was uncertain at first, but the golden, dancing lights in Michael's amber eyes, his pleading, wistful grin banished the anxiety, and she fell in with his mood, unwillingly.

From the closed rumble seat Michael produced a tall, cubic box of glossy white, and Judy's heart filled at the breathless loveliness of the three chaste gardenias buttried under soft, pale green tissue.

"Michael Swayne" she gasped, are you absolutely insane? Those flowers cost you a week's pay!"

His face fell, and his brown eyes were hurt and stricken. His lean fingers twisted a button on Judy's topcoat and something queer hurt her throat, too. Darling, that beats deep down in her heart, and reached way up to her throat, her eyes.

"I sort of thought you'd like 'em enough," he said humbly, to forget about the flowers, Michael, they're lovely, lovely, lovely! And I'm sorry I mentioned the cost. It was only that I worry so about you spending money you need yourself, that you shouldn't spend on me!"

"Look" Michael said proudly, and threw his tiny bones in his hands. "I got the rings today, too. It was so clearly delirious with happiness. It's a wonder I didn't lose the penthouse on the Empire State!"

The tiny rose-shaded light glowed softly, but Judy's gray eyes were twin stars, lighting the magic path of starlight and moonbeams between herself and Michael. For once in her life, she did not even think of cost, of expense, of money. Her heart was too full of its strange, throbbing ecstasy, this indefinable pride this almost suffocating tide of emotion that began with belonging to Michael, and ended—somewhere—in the future, when Michael had had its origin back in her girlhood, when she had dreamed of Prince Charming—of meeting and marrying the one man in all the world destined for her.

Here she paused, listening to the services being conducted within the great chamber, waiting for the cue that would bring them to a point when all within the room, except the high priestess, would be prostrated with their faces pressed against the floor.

Michael put the wedding ring into his waistcoat pocket, and grinned at her indulgently, as she twisted and turned the engagement ring on her slim finger to catch the glowing light from the lamp, and kindle new fires in its green depths.

"I'll show you," he promised her soulfully. "Just give me time, and I'll show you how much, darling! Right this minute I could go and buy out the town, to bring home to you!"

"Oh, don't Michael," Judy said hastily; so hastily that Michael shouted with appreciative laughter, "You scare me half out of my wits when you talk like that!"

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Slowly the old priest descended the ladder, muttering to himself, after he had cast a few bones into the shaft leading to the lions' cell.

"Are you quite sure you can trust him, La?" demanded Tarzan.

"Absolutely," replied the girl.

"Darzu would die for me."

The two Tarzan and La, had to descend while its was still light, as the natives among the inhabitants of the city were congregated at sundown, there performing the age-old rite of speeding the Flaming God to his night of rest.

Without interruption, the descended to the base of, the tower, crossed the courtyard and entered the temple. Here, through devious and roundabout passages, La led the way to a small doorway that opened into the throne room, at the back of the dais which held the throne, alone.

QUEENSBORO

Anniversary services at Queensboro United Church were held on Sunday, October 6. Splendid addresses were delivered by Rev. J. D. Iverson of Plainfield, a former minister. Large congregations were present at both morning and evening services.

On Wednesday evening a fowl supper and concert were given. The tables were loaded with an abundance of chicken, pies and cakes and everything that goes to make up a successful supper. Ample justice was done by the large crowd.

The church was filled and all those present enjoyed the splendid program given by the male quartet from Bolphilo and the Thompson brothers from Tweed assisted by local talent and an address by Rev. Kennedy of Madoc.

Mr. Graham, Grand Orange Organiser for Eastern Ontario, visited Queensboro L.O.L. and L.O.B.A. on Monday evening, October 7 and lectured at an open meeting on the activities of the order. A banquet was provided by the Queensboro Lodge and Mr. W. H. Cottrell, County Master, presided. A meeting on the open Bible which with Mr. Graham's address were very instructive and much appreciated by the audience.

Mrs. H. Goodmurphy of Consecon is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Ernest Orvis.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lynn and baby of Clyde Forks, Ont., have been spending their holidays at the home of Mrs. John Lynn and other relatives.

The funeral of the late Thomas Quinn of Actinolite was held at St. Mary's Church, Queensboro, on Tuesday morning. Interment was made in St. Joseph Cemetery at Queensboro.

Mrs. Will Rollins of Cooper, and Mrs. Geo. Nicholson of Madoc were Monday guests of Mrs. Thomas Lossing.

Mrs. W. Kernahan of Madoc has been visiting her grandmother, Mrs. M. Surtis.

Mrs. Fred Wilson, Pine View, spent Monday with Mrs. Hulda Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos Belcher, Madoc, were callers in town on Monday.

Rev. J. C. Lowrie spent Sunday on the Plainfield circuit taking charge of the anniversary services at the Bethel church.

A number from here attended the missionary rally in Madoc United church on Tuesday evening.

Mr. Percy Groves spent a few days this week with Mr. and Mrs. Allan McCoy at Remington.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE REGENT

The Cosmopolitan comedy-romance "Page Miss Glory", with Marion Davies in the stellar role and a supporting cast composed of more than a score of Hollywood stars and featured players, will be presented by Warner Bros. at the Regent Theatre today and Monday, matinee daily.

Based on the sensational Broadway stage hit by Joseph Schrank and Philip Dunning, "Page Miss Glory" was assigned to Warner Bros. star director Mervyn LeRoy, who selected such stars as Dick Powell, Pat O'Brien, Patsy Kelly, Frank McHugh, Lyle Talbot, Mary Astor, Barton MacLane, Allen Jenkins and Hobart Cavanaugh in the leading roles.

"Page Miss Glory" is said to be the finest of Miss Davies' stellar vehicles, and the charming star herself is declared to have risen to even greater heights in her portrayal of the naive country hotel chambermaid who becomes "Page Glory", America's outstanding beauty.

The picture is hilariously funny, but a charming romance lies beneath the humor.

AT THE REGENT

"Zane Grey's Newest and Greatest Story of Outdoor Adventure."

Zane Grey's newest and greatest story of rip-roaring outdoor adventure, "Thunder Mountain" is announced as the second feature attraction on the same program and brings George O'Brien back to the screen as a fast-riding, fast-fighting hero of the lawless west.

Adapted from the new best selling novel by the Honour of American Plains, "Thunder Mountain" is an engrossing story of the Idaho gold rush, of a man who gambled on a woman's love and lost, but who would not be downed.

His misfortunes serve a purpose, however, for it reveals the true nature of feminine wiles. Frances Grant portrays Barbara Fell-Christie for the love of George O'Brien. In her role of a dance hall entertainer in the wild and lawless mining camps Miss Grant has opportunity to show her dance talents as well as her dramatic ability.

Two complete shows will be presented, tonight (Saturday), the first complete performance starting at 6.30, the second performance at 9.15.

On Monday evening the Dominion election returns will be announced at the Regent.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Goose and the Gander" Glorious Kay Francis Shows Her to Wear Gowns and Jewels.

Tonight is the last opportunity for "Lazy Pills" fans to see her in hilarious and laziest comedy riot. If you can imagine the fluttering saddest comedienne thwarting a mob of gangsters just see her in "She Gets Her Man" at the Capitol this evening. How she converts a hardboiled group of bank robbers is alone worth the price of admission. But there is also an added attraction, a feature, on the Capitol screen tonight. It is the dashing, hard-riding Ken Maynard in a stirring melodrama of the west called "Between Fighting Men", a story of the bitterfend between cattlemen and sheep herders.

As history will recall there were many bitter battles fought for grazing lands, when the sheep herders were given permission by the government to share the land with the cattle-raisers. The resentment led to bloodshed and intense hatred. Maynard is ably supported by a great cast that includes the pretty Ruth Hall, Josephine Dunn, Wallace MacDonald and Walter Law. Maynard's wonder-horse "Tarzan" provides a number of thrills and other spectacular feats during the unfolding of this story.

The Goose and the Gander"

On Monday the Capitol management is happy to announce the presentation of the glamorous and fascinating Kay Francis' latest feature picture. It is named "The Goose and the Gander" and brings to the screen three of the most popular and handsome leading men in support of Miss Francis. They are George Brent, Ralph Forbes and John Eldredge.

"The Goose and the Gander" is a gay comedy drama of marital mixups involving one of the heart of hearts but of priceless jewels as well. The plot centres about the attempt Kay, in the role of the first wife of a millionaire business man to get revenge on the second wife who has stolen her husband's heart.

Through the connivance of a service station operator, Kay contrives to have the flirtatious wife, Genevieve Tobin, and her lover tracked to her lodge so that they will meet the husband and all will be shown up in their true colors.

But a couple of jewel thieves mess up the trap when they are found in flinching the gems. The dress clothed thieves are also attracted by the service station operator and all are assembled under the same roof where a series of complications lead up to an amazing climax.

"Top Gun" Goes to Beat

Besides the feature, the program will include a most amusing short entitled, "Top Gun on the Beat" in which those inimitable comics, "The Three Mooses", appear, also the amazing musical in which the popular radio favorite will be seen in person "Barney Rapp's Band." A pepper pot short called "Kings of the Turf" adds to the entertainment of this excellent bill.

The each lady patron attending the Monday and Tuesday performances the Capitol will present a handsome piece of Dalharty ite dinnerware.

MADOC

Madoc—About fifty of the old friends and neighbors met at the pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Tumelty on Wednesday, Oct. 9.30 have a pleasant evening with them before they moved to Madoc village to live.

The evening was spent in playing cards and very jolly games into which all entered heartily. About midnight a delicious lunch was served and a toast to the bride and groom was proposed by Mrs. Field Allen. Mr. William McMechan presented them with a beautiful electric floor lamp and Mrs. Thos. Winfield presented an electric iron. Mr. Tom Allen and Mr. Tumelty responded and Mr. Arthur Pitts and Mr. John Smith sang a trio entitled "Three Little Fishes" which the jolly couple were held.

A very fine lunch was served and all left for home with each and all expressing their regrets at the closing of the family home in the district branches of work carried on and then followed with a plan of new work to be taken up. The business meeting followed and many good reports were given. Rev. Mr. Rowe for gave a very fine address on his work as a Missionary in Spiritual Guiana. Mrs. (Dr.) Comfort and Mrs. O'Hara took the part of the Spirit of Missions and related the different

HEAVY POLLING REPORTED THROUGHOUT DOMINION

EMPEROR RIVAL TO LION OF JUDAH IS UNLIKELY YET

French Officials Deny Reports Italy Sounding Out Paris

NEGUS AGAINST NEGUS

Rival Emperor Would Not Change League Status of Ethiopia

Paris, Oct. 14 (AP) — French officials said today there was little possibility of Mussolini setting up Ras Hailu Belasie Gugsa as a rival to Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia until Italy took more territory.

The officials denied reports published aboard Italy had sounded out Paris as to its attitude toward a coronation of Ras Gugsa, similar to that for the Emperor of Manchukuo, sponsored by Japan.

A suggestion the Italians might try to "pit one negus against another—a king of Tigre against the present emperor," was made, however, by Pierre Dominique, writing in La Republique.

Military Sanctions Dropped

Dominique argued any objection from Emperor Haile Selassie would carry little weight since he would be unable to speak for the powerful feudal chiefs and was only "one prince among several."

This writer added substitution of Ras Gugsa, who never went to the Italian side last week, for the present Emperor would not change Ethiopia's status as a member of the League of Nations.

Virginio Gayda, editor of Great Britain subsidies in the French press today after Premier Laval's attempts to reassure the Fascists the idea of military sanctions had been definitely "dropped."

The newspaper Petit Parisien, in an appeal to "see English friends against Prime Minister Baldwin or Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare," said "even the Socialists" are having a similar stomach.

ITALIAN SHIPS DENIED ENTRANCE

Harbor Protected by Boom Swung Across Mouth

Valetta, Malta, Oct. 14 (AP) — Unconfirmed reports circulated today that two Italian vessels were denied entrance yesterday to Malta's harbor, protected by a boom swung across the mouth of the harbor by British naval authorities.

Although the reports the ships were not allowed to enter port could not be confirmed immediately, it was known the Italian ship Quirinale laid off and on the harbor as it was scheduled to do.

Instead the second boat for this British naval base off Sicily in the Mediterranean passed within a few miles out from the Garibaldi which plies on the Naples-Malta-Tripoli route.

In substantiation of reports of evacuation of women and families of British naval officers, the wives and relatives of three officers announced they would leave tomorrow.

Malta authorities refused any statement of outstanding debts before the departures of any such families in order to avoid a hubbub was at sea.

The authorities made a low charge for those departing.

Takes Possession

General Emilio de Bono, high commissioner of Eritrea, and Italian Somaliland and commander-in-chief of the Italian forces in East Africa, formally took possession of the land wrested from Ethiopia at the hands of King Victor Emmanuel.

General de Bono with General Maravigna, commander of the army corps which captured Adowa last Sunday, and Italian Consul Prandoni, representing the Ethiopian government, attended the ceremony.

Later Italian forces took the Ethiopian sacred city of Aksum without firing a shot, the Degiac or governor-general there and making his submission to General Maravigna of the Fascist northern forces.

The Governor Aksum, accompanied by clergy of the Ethiopian city, travelled 30 miles to surrender formally to the Italian authorities. All warriors who had been holding the sacred city evacuated.

The entire civilian population immediately made submission to General Emilio de Bono, high commissioner of Eritrea and Italian Somaliland, and commander in chief of the Italian forces in East Africa.

BENNETT VOTES LATE

Liberal Chieftain Goes to Poll Guarded by His Terrier Pet

(By The Canadian Press)

Canada voted today in the most brilliant weather of autumn, but indications were that heaviest balloting in the general election would take place during the afternoon. The morning vote was not generally as heavy as had been anticipated.

Every Prime Minister Bennett deferred casting his ballot at Ottawa until afternoon. He is Conservative candidate in Calgary West. The Liberal Leader, Mackenzie King and the Reconstruction Leader, H. H. Stevens, went to the polls in Ottawa in mid-morning. Mr. King is a candidate in Prince Albert and Mr. Stevens in Kootenay East.

A near-record vote was predicted in some Eastern centres. Voting was heavy from the start in Toronto's constituencies and the volume picked up swiftly at noon in Nova Scotia.

Approximately 39 per cent of the vote had been cast as Stratford up to one o'clock. This is slightly lower than last election though about 80 per cent voted.

Woodstock voters turned out briskly after noon and nearly included practically a 50 per cent. vote had been polled during the morning hours. Estimates of the total vote in Mid Hastings, Ont., ranged from 55 to 60 per cent.

Recording Officer Topples Over Dead As Polls Opened

Montreal, Oct. 14 (CP)—J. F. Rinne, 70, arrived at his post today as Recording Officer in poll No. 2 of the polling booths in Montreal St. Lawrence-St. George. But he took no part in the voting. He died from a heart seizure as the polls opened.

VOTE SPEEDS UP AFTER 1 O'CLOCK

Rural Reports Indicate Feverish Activity in Polling

Voting progressed slowly in Belleville this morning. Despite ideal weather conditions voters seemed unwilling to procrastinate until later hours in the day. At two polls heard from at the noon hour less than 30 percent of the vote had been recorded, although there was a steady increase shortly after the noon hour, however. Reports from the rural parts of South Hastings indicated there would be the largest rural vote ever polled during a federal election.

At 1 o'clock there are about 8,—(10) eligible voters while in the settlire electorate of South Hastings it is estimated that there are 20,000 voters in all. Election workers are hopefully predicting that over 80 percent of those eligible to vote will have cast their ballots before the polls closed at 5:00 p.m.

All three candidates motored to the municipal hall and had their forces of assistants out in full force this afternoon as motorcars were being hurried to transport voters. There seems to be a difference also as to the manner in which the voters cast their ballots, and for whom. When returning from the various polling booths and when confronted by curious citizens it was quite apparent the voters were silent and that the purpose of the day had greeted questions relative to 'how did you vote?' was met with a smile.

EVERYONE SEEMS TO WORK IN RUSSIA

Here are two new photos from Russia which would seem to indicate that everyone in the country can find some kind of a job for everyone. At top is seen two women bookcarriers ascending the roof of the Moscovriet hotel where most visitors will reside during their stay in Moscow. From this point the highest point in the city a magnificent panorama unfolds. The hotel is expected to be completed shortly. Below, an auto driveway has been laid out for pedal cars in the main parkway of Moscow. This enterprising miss is being trained to act as a "traffic cop" and is taking instruction from one of the regulars.

Reluctant Nations Will Be Forced to Enforce Sanctions

DUCE MORE TRACTABLE

Italians Are Asked Not to Bomb Addis Ababa

Despite constitutional difficulties in various countries Geneva experts ed before nightfall a pretty general approval of the project of the committee of 18 to impose a financial blockade on Italy. The committee today approved the project which would in effect prevent Italy or Italians from obtaining credit.

With the capture of the Ethiopian Holy City of Aksum the Italian Ja is in Northern Ethiopia was extended about 90 miles, stretching from Adigrat through Aduwa, to Aksum. Adowa has now been formally annexed in the name of General Emilio De Bono, High Commissioner of Eritrea and Italian Somaliland.

Reports from Addis Ababa described the march of 160,000 Ethiopian warriors across southwestern Ogaden Province toward what may be the first major engagement of Ethiopian operations.

Mussolini More Tractable

At Rome Mussolini was said to be indicating a willingness to overlook those "injustices" and talk about peace with a League mandate over Ethiopia and some territory for Italy. Addis Ababa and Addis Alem Halle Selassie declared again for territorial integrity.

In his temporary and forced quarters in Italian Somaliland at Addis Ababa, Lagt Vinci Gigliucci was closely guarded for fear of native attack.

British and other governments in Addis Ababa were urged yesterday to bomb Addis Ababa because the Italian bombers of foreigners resident there.

Geneva, Oct. 14 (CP-Havas)— The committee of 18 to coordinate complete financial embargo against Italy was approved here today by the financial and economic sanctions committee of 53 nations.

Any financial transactions of any sort with the Italian Government or with any firm or individual established in Italian territory are forbidden by the resolution voted at noon by the committee of 18 and approved today by the complete co-ordinating committee.

An embargo on raw materials and other commodities necessary to Italy for the conduct of war as well as a ban on Italian exports were taken under consideration today by the committee of 18 as soon as it had disposed of the financial sanctions. A sub-committee to study the new embargo was appointed to begin work at once.

ODDITY SEEN IN POTATO GROWTH

Mr. George Clarke, who resides with his daughter, Mrs. M. Kellaway, 1 Everett Street, brought to the Ontario Intelligencer on Saturday an old potato bottle of which five small potatoes had sprouted. Mr. Clarke says he is eighty-three years of age and never saw anything so startling of this nature before. He had also small potatoes sprout from the eyebrow of an eye. This unusual potato was among others in the cellar of his home.

CONVICTED PAIR TAKEN TO PRISON

Steve and Mike Rodell, Toronto robbers and gunmen sentenced to four years in Portsmouth penitentiary by Magistrate H. J. Boller, K.C. in a local police court had been taken from the institution to that institution on Saturday afternoon. Sheriff J. D. O'Flynn accompanied Chief Clarke French and Turnbey Sherman, escorted the pair to Portsmouth. James Leiber, the third member of the convicted trio, remained in the Belleville gaol awaiting charges from Western Ontario, which he intimated today he would plead guilty to. The Rodells waived their right of appeal early Saturday morning and were on their way, transported to the penitentiary.

HUGE POTATOES GROWN IN RAWDON

German potatoes planted on the seventh of July and dug on the first of this age in the garden plot of Mr. Jos. Waddell, Warbass Street, are a cheering example. One crop on a plot 61 by 33 feet was at the rate of 300 bushels to the acre. Each hill contained an average of good sized potatoes.

On this same plot in the early season Mr. Waddell picked strawberries at the rate of 200 to the acre. The plot of course is about a fortieth of an acre.

YOUTHS FRUSTRATED IN THEFT ATTEMPT

Three youthful would-be robbers were frustrated in their attempts to steal tires from a parked automobile on Sunday afternoon. The miscreants were arrested at 4:30 o'clock at the rear of Vermilyea's shoe store by Sgear Vermilyea, local lieutenant of the Salvation Army. After walking the youths' futile attempt to remove a perfectly good tire from a parked car Mr. Vermilyea, the shoe store manager, came upon the three lads who awaited him and beat a hasty retreat across the Bridge Street bridge. Mr. Vermilyea notified the police of the incident with the result that enforcement investigations by Plainclothes Officer Fred Beard resulted in three hops of the keen eye behind caught loitering on the west hill and subsequently to appear in Police Kidd for questioning after school hours today.

DISTRICT REPORTS THEFT OF CARS

An additional of stolen cars was reported in Eastern Ontario over the week end, when three automobiles were taken from different parts of the district, Chief Smith, Deseronto, reported that Herb. Ford of a blue colored Pontiac sedan, stolen from the streets of Deseronto on Saturday night. Provincial Constable Police number W588, from the same time Picton police reported that Herb. Ford of a Plymouth sedan, licensed AJ-676, three of the three stolen vehicles were seen in Belleville, local authorities announced today.

FOUR INJURED IN TWO ACCIDENTS

Accidents Happen at Different Parts of Traffic Patrol

Two motor accidents that resulted in serious injuries simultaneously being laid, happened on highway No 2 over the week end, both being investigated by Motorcycle Patrolmen Sam Parker.

Early Saturday evening four miles west of Deseronto, an automobile driven by Mrs. Ethel Hall, Harold Webster, Toronto, crashed into a car operated by Constable Kenneth Cole, Trenton, hurting Mr. Cole and his vehicle into the north ditch. Mr. Webster suffered an undisplaced right leg and injured right shoulder, while Webster's face and arms were badly cut by flying glass, the windshield in the Webster car breaking during the impact. Both men were rushed to the Belleville Hospital for emergency treatment. Drs. Blackwell and Boyce attended.

Cole had stopped at intersection on the side of the road to repair a punctured tire, when the Webster auto crashed into it from the rear. Charges of reckless driving were laid against Webster by Patrolman Irvine announced today.

At 1:20 a.m. on Sunday a motor car driven by Robt. Wood, Halloway collided with a west-bound motor car at the intersection of No. 2 and the Lane and highway No.2. The Halloway car overturned, and both the highway was owned and driven by Arnold Armstrong, 19 St. Charles St. The car driven by Wood was coming out of the O.S.D. lane onto the highway, when it collided with the Armstrong vehicle. Miss Mary Parish and a passenger in the Armstrong car sustained facial injuries, when her head apparently struck the windshield panel of the car. The injured girl were rushed to the office of Dr. J. Robertson, of Belleville, where her wounds received medical attention.

The radiator and front of the Wood car were badly damaged as was the running board and side of Armstrong's car. A charge of reckless driving will be preferred against Wood. Motorcycle Patrolman Irvine stated today.

FORMER PASTOR AT ANNIVERSARY

Rev. H. B. Neal Conducts Services at Holloway Church

At the United Churches in Belleville assisted Holloway Street United church last evening, when a joint congregation of the two United Churches assembled at Holloway Street Church for the last service. The anniversary services were held in the morning, again in the afternoon with the final service of the day a vast union anniversary celebration. The service with the Rev. Harold S. Neal of Campbellford, former pastor of Holloway Street church in charge of all the services. Special autumn decorations adorned the church while a special augmented choir and soloist added much to the enjoyment of the anniversary services.

At the morning service the Rev. Mr. Neal chose a topic fitting to the day's service "The Presence of God and Fellowship" for his text. Mr. Neal opened his message by assuring the congregation, that the era of today's great problems to face all Christians was "how can we keep the presence of God". In a few chosen words the speaker reviewed the past condemnation of certain well known atheists who had failed. "The second and form of atheism is gone but today there is a more supple atheism which is undoubtedly in Christian countries and is all due to our overcrowding sense of God to a proper stage of irreligion and unrest. We think we can do without God in this age," declared Mr. Neal, "when we have so much, we think we are independent of God. Another phase is that of materialism, which draws us away from the higher things in life so that we sometimes forget the need of God altogether. We are polishing and we like many material things, that assist in drawing us from God," Mr. Neal referred to our knowledge of the great universe, the rush and fever-ish activity of life, the fact that we live they have not time to attend church on Sunday. People today are on edge, their nervous systems are upset, and finally through these they have not the sense and peace of God in their homes and hearts. We do believe in remote ne hungry and yearning for because there is nothing in comparison with His satisfying presence, which is revealed in the Bible and in Christ. Prayer and meditation also are paramount, but above all the greatest joy we possess, if you expect to find God's presence, through prayer. "Prayer changes is only found", concluded Mr. Neal. The speaker took his text from the 4th verse of the 17 chapter of the Acts of the Apostles.

POLICE BLOTTER

A number of minor complaints kept the local police department on the jump at top time over the week end, fortunately no serious crime was reported. A few minor motor accidents happened on local streets during the congestion of traffic on the week end, the result, however, that three informations were laid on charges of speeding and reckless driving respectively.

Twenty three transients were afforded lodging at the police station over the week end, the night and seven on the Sabbath eve.

A rather mysterious motor accident happened on Sunday afternoon on Sunday afternoon when a driverless car, proceeding down the hill, turned west onto Moira St. after making the turn, however, the car left the road and struck the left curb turning over and rolling down a slight embankment, fronting on Moira River. The license plate number of the vehicle was taken and the matter will be more fully investigated.

WOMAN VICTIM HURLED TO 12 FEET

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 14 (CP)—Miss Edith M. Dumond, 33, died in hospital today from injuries received when she was struck by a motor automobile. The accident happened Saturday as Miss Dumond was leaving a street car. An inquest will be held at a date yet to be declared upon.

Hurled 12 feet, the middle-aged woman had both legs fractured, her wrist broken and suffered concussion and possible fracture of the skull.

CEMETERY CROSS ARE BLESSED

St. James Cemetery Scene of Great Concourse For Religious Service

At three o'clock on Sunday afternoon in the presence of a great concourse of people the Cross of St. James Cemetery, took place. The ceremony was performed by Rt. Rev. C. P. Richardson, V.G., assisted by Rev. C. E. Baker and Rev. J. J. Collins.

The ceremony followed the ruling rites prescribed by the ritual of the Roman Catholic church, when the wooden cross was blessed and placed in the midst of the cemetery.

On Sunday evening Monsignor Nicholson spoke on the significance of the ceremony held during the afternoon pointing out that the church believed her benediction on the dead took place upon the day of her worship. It is an instinct of the human heart to reverently care for the last resting place of the departed. The term "cemetery" is derived from the Greek word meaning "resting place" and we regard it as the symbol of immortality.

Death is not the end but only the beginning of life and those who truly believe that those who sleep in the peace of Christ will rise again on the last day, and their bodies which were the temples of the Holy Ghost will share in their glory.

The speaker referred to the words of St. Paul to the Corinthians, stressing this doctrine.

The cross stands in the cemetery by ancient custom and as the sign of man's salvation extending its arms over those who await the resurrection.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Kansas City, Oct. 14 (CP) — Liquor By Billboards, U.S. Marshal tells of a friend "who seeded" his highway markers designated the "whisky trail"—on No. 40, he drove 40 miles from Kansas City to Lawrence, but by he speed up to 71 miles an hour, and when he reached No. 108, he told him to let me out!"

Los Angeles, Oct. 14 (AP) — A 28,000,000-pound portion of a 14-mile concrete lining of the Los Angeles aqueduct was slashed from the concrete inside the tunnel here yesterday.

The massive section of brick, steel and concrete being moved is the front part of the Commercial Canyon tunnel. The 28,000,000 pound section was slashed from the concrete lining as workmen are being rejoined together again. A street widening project made the change necessary.

Steel beams supported the structure while the three-eighths of an inch with each turn of the screw jacks.

Jack Miner, naturalist of Kingsville, Ont., tied tags to the legs of Canada geese this fall, year before they migrated northward. He also sent a shipment of Bible pictures to missionaries in the distant north. Hunters who shot the geese sent back the tags to the missionaries and got pictures in return. Miner says he expects a check for the migration of the birds.

North Bay, Ont., Oct. 14 (CP) —Five lumber camps employing a total of about 250 men have been opened in the district of Presteign, Callander, Widdifield and Richardson, bringing the number of camps now operating to 23, with 1,550 men at work.

No Question of War

"What about the Italian navy?" the reporter asked.

"What about them?" He returned. "They have one or two modern ships. But if it's a question of war," he said suddenly, "it is not a question of dealing with them. It won't last.

"Do you believe that there will be no war with Italy?" the reporter insisted.

"I speak as a private individual," Admiral Boyle said. "I've been retired for three years now. One may lose touch with friends in that time. Now I'm not in touch. I don't have always been friends with Italy, but I don't think that we'll have a war with her now."

"But in the event of war, would you be called back to service?"

Admiral Boyle considered the question, grave.

"If they thought that I'd be any use to them—they'd call me."

He landed off the Dardanelles in command of a battleship off Gallipoli. The Turks had the Dardanelles blocked with a minefield. Behind it they thought they were safe. They transported their troops from Constantinople to Gallipoli in troopships.

We stopped that," Admiral Boyle admitted, "I took my ship under the mine field from the Mediterranean. The rest trip I got a troopship with 2,000 soldiers, Turks and Germans. All of them drowned—poor brutes!"

Admiral Boyle said nothing about the horrible hours spent in his ship of the nervous tension as he crept along the bottom of the channel, grasping the chains to which the mines above were anchored, expecting every instant to set one of them off.

"But I'm not going to bother you longer," he continued. "Got shins altogether,—most of them later on sinking other battleships. I took the Turkish troops. But we stopped the Turks from sending reinforcements by water. They could send them in 24 hours by ship, Overland it took them eight days."

But his own exploit came up only in connection. He dealt with it by an off-hand manner, without boasting, without minimizing.

Present Navy

What he was really interested in was the reporter's question about Britain's present navy and its fitness to meet the storm of possible war in the Mediterranean.

"The navy has not been kept up as in past times," he admitted.

"How long has it not been kept up?" the reporter asked.

"For at least 15 years," he went on by the way, even when he drops it confidentially, is a genial roar. People, 20 feet away, suddenly jump and look when he speaks. If he really should try to speak softly—

"But the navy we have now is quite adequate to deal with anything it might have to," he announced with the confidence. "We must remember that no other navy is at the level we used to be.

"Before the war," he continued, "we were building against Germany. We also had a two power standard. We were prepared to fight on our own coasts, put our Empire and our trade routes.

"Ships then cost but a tenth of what they cost now. As a result we never have much larger capital ships —but fewer of them."

FINAL ELECTION APPEAL BY KING MADE AT OTTAWA

Says Bennett Sees "Handwriting on The Wall"

AGAINST UNION

Urges Electors to Vote For Official Liberal Candidates

(By C. F. Hall Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 14 (CP)—Another period of Bennett rule is in store for Canadians unless they give the Liberal Party a working majority in today's election, Liberal Leader Mackenzie King believes. Making his final election appeal here Saturday night he warned that Prime Minister Bennett's proposal to ask all parties to unite after the election might be used as an excuse for his continuing office in defiance of the will of the people.

"Mr. Bennett sees the handwriting on the wall," said Mr. King. "He never has power as no other man who ever lived loved power and he is determined by hook or by power 'not if he fails to get a majority.'"

For this reason, Mr. King urged all electors opposed to the Bennett Government to vote only for the Liberal party candidates. Votes cast for Independent Liberals, C.C.F., Reconstruction Party candidates or representatives of the Social Credit movement would only serve to weaken the strength of the only party which could form a Government and give Mr. Bennett no excuse for postponing the summoning of Parliament and hanging on to power.

An alliance of parties which had been bitterly opposed one another could never provide good government, said Mr. King. The Liberal Party, in contrast to Mr. Bennett and the varied following he proposes to enlist, was a great united force. It was composed of men and women who thought alike, had confidence in one another and were committed to a common policy.

King Asks Question

Only selfish motives could induce elected Members of Parliament to abandon their differences on Mr. Bennett's invitation. They would be held in line by offers of jobs and other favors as Mr. Bennett's followers in the last Parliament had been. When the end of Parliament's term arrived the faithful were rewarded with Senatorships, Lieutenant-Governorships, Judgeships and high posts in the Civil Service in defiance of the merit system. All these posts had been purposely held vacant as baits to keep Conservative members in line with the Government.

"There was a time," said Mr. King, "when a man went to Parliament to serve the people, not himself. But Mr. Bennett has changed all that. I say this silencing of Members of Parliament is a sure way to a fatal end for our Parliamentary institutions."

At the end of his campaign Mr. King returned to the same point on which he opened it, the question "whither." The election, he said, would decide the issue between a tendency in the direction of dictatorship after the Bennett fashion and a return to the British principles of responsible governments. Elections did not themselves "Whither are we drifting?"

To understand how far Mr. Bennett had drawn Canada away from true Democratic principles, he was only necessary to consider the power he held in his hands now after Parliament's term had lapsed. He had a blank cheque to take any money he wished for relief purposes out of the Public Treasury. He had power to legislate in the name of peace, order and good government in Canada under the Marketing Act, he had the power to prohibit the importation or exportation of any commodities into or out of the country.

MICHIGAN TOURIST HAS NECK BROKEN

Accident Occurs One Mile West of Madoc on Saturday

Madoc, Oct. 14 (Special)—Losing control of the car, which she was driving, on the Belleville highway, Mrs. Jack Johnson of Battle Creek, Michigan, sustained a broken neck and fractured ribs, while her daughter, Miss Dorothy Yates, sustained a broken vertebrae of the neck and is now in Belleville City hospital suffering from concussion. The accident occurred one mile west of Madoc early yesterday afternoon when the car, a new Terraplane, was completely demolished in the accident.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Johnson with Tom Johnson a brother were travelling east on Hwy. No. 2 in their wheel. The car went out of control and turned over a number of times in the ditch. Mr. Eagleson of Madoc went to the scene and has Mrs. Johnson, Dorothy and Tom Johnson, Mrs. Russell Lewis in Madoc, where she will be nursed for some time. The brother-in-law was removed to Belleville hospital where he is now being called in attendance.

Provincial Constable John Kelly, Provincial Policeman Mr. Ervine and Chief Hayes of Tweed investigated the accident and have had been held at a late hour today.

Los Angeles, Oct. 14 (CP)—William F. Fletcher had time on his stomach as well as on his hands and knees.

He was held in jail on suspicion of having robbed Mrs. Mildred Ferguson of her watch. Police Captain Clyde Dagger said Fletcher swallowed the thing — and watch as the officer approached to arrest him.

An X-ray photograph, taken at police hospital, disclosed the timepiece in Fletcher's stomach, Dagger said.

THOUSANDS PACK HASTINGS ARENA TO HEAR BENNETT

Premier in Fighting Trim as He Winds Up Campaign

CROWD GOOD-NATURED

Shortest of Political Meetings Lasts Little Over Hour

Seven thousand persons at least were within the Arena when Premier R. B. Bennett, Belleville and Canada's one friend through the presence of the Prime Minister as the speaker at the last meeting of the campaign, and through the agency of telephone and radio on Saturday night.

Perfect organization handled the tax crowds which began to arrive about 7 o'clock and which threaded their way through the streets to the Arena.

The meeting was the latest political gathering on record to open, because of the radio hook-up across the Dominion. It was seventeen minutes to nine before Mr. Bennett entered and it was a few minutes before the hour when the program opened with band numbers, highland music and dancing, and the introduction by Mr. Charles A. Payne, chairman, of the candidates of the Conservative party, Dr. A. T. Embury of Bancroft, seeking re-election in Hastings-Peterborough, and W. B. Hannon, the South Hastings candidate.

Mr. Bennett arrived shortly after seven o'clock in the city and was escorted in a motor cavalcade through the main streets to the Arena through cheering crowds. After eight o'clock he delivered a telephone talk to Oshawa to be heard by the Oshawa club.

Like a huge wave suddenly rising, rose the vast audience of its many thousands after a sudden hushing of a cheer, which grew and grew in magnitude, announced to the faithful only because by radio the power the Premier had entered. He came in through the left side entrance half way down the arena and led by Piper James Clark was followed by the chairman, Mr. Payne, the candidates and Mr. R. D. Arnott. It was long after the cheer had quieted that under the Marketing Act, he had the power to prohibit the importation or exportation of any commodities into or out of the country.

The Payne call to chairman was to guide the time so closely that Mr. Bennett would speak exactly at the moment of nine so as to swing in on 360 hookup across the Dominion. Balcony of long platform, the radio phone men stood on guard at their microphones. Every Party catchy amplifying apparatus was serving the audience through the loud speakers on the floor of the arena. Suddenly as the cheer finally subsided, the audience was slowly regarded and Mr. Thomson had just finished the task of introduction to the Premier when Clark and a network of Canadian stations opened up on "Bonnie Dundee," picking up the long distance telephone.

Enthusiastic Cheering

It was minutes before the audience on the galleries, the floor and the platform, many hundreds of whom gathers, the head and organism of the Conservative party in the local campaign, had quieted down as Mr. Bennett began.

In Happy Mood

Mr. Bennett opened in happy mood and the call of the broadcast necessarily was accompanied by ment of the welcome brief, and the delivery of his speech speed up, so that his might conclude in the time allotted to him by the radio officials.

If disturbers were in the audience, they were overlooked. Only two questions naturally were asked and it would take a dictatorial police to carry across thousands of heads and through the vast spaces of the Arena to the point of control where the Premier stood fortified by the amplifying apparatus to make his voice reach the farthest heights of the gallery and to reach the last man in the back seat near the entrance as he sat on the plank supported by the wooden piers in the island. If there was a disturber he was never heard, the building's spaces and the peace and harmony of the night which had come to hear, Ottawa conveniently placed about the building caused no humorous hearing of Peel interruptions.

It was a brief meeting once it started. The radio had changed the usual character of a public meeting. Radio dominated. All Canada heard the Premier's voice, while the sound arrangements made reception perfect within and without the building, ideal.

"Song of Victory"

Early in his address the Premier spoke of a Tory song of victory. His speech moved along that line and closed on that theme and his words were not ambition, not honour for himself but to serve the people. "I have worked harder for you than I have ever worked for myself," he said.

The Prime Minister looked in the "pink" of condition. Never did he appear more fortified. At times he broke out into the broadest smile. He seemed to enjoy the public address. He did not complain of the strenuous character of the campaign and of the last day though it was a most busy one with at least four addresses.

Three Bands

The Conservative Girls' Trumpet Band was an innovation in this campaign and this musical unit was heard. Then the Belleville Salvation Band played. Piper Jamie Clark brought a lilt and a swing into the meeting which it never lost. He played some stirring airs and even Wee Heland lass danced. Harmony was the spirit of the meeting.

The seating arrangements on the floor was excellent. In the front rows chairs were used to support planks and at the rear planks supported planks on the sand.

The whole countryside was represented in the audience.

Indian Receives Head Injuries, Which Result in Death

Cornwall, Ont., Oct. 14—(CP)—Struck by an automobile driven by Donald R. Walker of Ottawa, Saturday night on New York State highway 31, near Hogansburg, five miles from here, George Cairnow, 32-year-old Indian of St. Regis, N.Y. Reservation, received head and spinal injuries, which resulted in his death, one-half hour later. A Coroner's inquiry at Fort Covington, N.Y., yesterday decided death was accidental and cleared Walker of all responsibility for the accident. He was given permission to return to Ottawa.

EXPLOSION OF DYNAMITE KILLS THREE IN CANOE

Bodies Recovered in Flame Lake Shortly After Accident

By The Canadian Press

Weekend accidents in Ontario claimed five lives and the death toll mounted to eight, when two persons died from previous injuries and one committed suicide.

Three men, Cecil Vanns, Phillip Martin and Anthony Boyer, met death in Flame Lake, 47 miles south of Chapleau in Northern Ontario, when their canoe was wrecked by explosion of dynamite as men were carrying. The bodies were recovered from the lake waters after bits of the demolished canoe were found.

Wilfred Lamon, of Carson, was killed on the Carson-Pembroke road when struck by a motor car. The driver did not stop. Lamon's body was found by Nick Drakula, of Sudbury, which car was alongside when the car, the form on the road, Drakula's car was damaged, when he stopped suddenly and a following car crashed into the rear of Drakula's machine.

Keith Fraser, of Hamilton, died in a Sarnia hospital from injuries received, when his auto and one driven by Harry Blowes sideswiped on a bridge near Camlachie. Plowes suffered only slight bruises. Both drivers were thrown from the cars.

Douglas Maynard, 60, of Leamington died in an Essex hospital from injuries received last Wednesday in a level crossing accident in which his wife was instantly killed.

Mrs. Raymond Young died from burns received in the fire in her Hunterstone home. Her husband and 14 hours after a can of gasoline exploded while he was starting a stove. Dr.

Harold V. Farrell, 24, leaped from the lower bridge at Niagara Falls while walking with two companions. A search was begun for his body.

CHEESE SCORES AT FALL FAIRS

A request for rural fair boards of this district to forward lists of winners of the cheese competitions in connection with their fairs was made recently by the Secretary of the Belleville Cheese Board, Fred Mallory. The competition was sponsored by the Belleville Cheese Board for cheesemakers of this district, with a list of prizes of $10.

Up to the present results of only four fairs have been posted, the following is the list of winners of these fairs:

Bennett is Confident Tells Belleville Crowd

"I Have Worked For You as I Have Never Worked For Myself"

LAST OF CAMPAIGN

"Everywhere the last few weeks there has been the song of victory" declared Premier Bennett as he was after of wave of cheers burst from thousands in the Belleville Arena on Saturday night before 6500 persons. He spoke of the Liberals seeing victory snatched from them.

"Now I am speaking to men and women in every part of the Dominion from British Columbia to Nova Scotia and I advise you that on Monday you are voting on National issues."

Mr. Bennett told how an Ottawa newspaperman who had accompanied Mr. King reported his findings in the West — sparking of enthusiasm and Liberal seats in jeopardy. "I come tonight to bring you glad tidings of great joy" the Premier added.

Dr. A. T. Embury candidate for Hastings — Peterboro bowed his acknowledgement to the cheers of the crowd as he was introduced by the chairman. An ocean of ashes met W. E. Tummon as he stepped forward. He spoke but a few words in thanking the Premier for coming and Liberal seats in jeopardy. "I come tonight to bring you glad tidings of great joy" the Premier added.

Dr. A. T. Embury candidate for Hastings — Peterboro bowed his acknowledgement to the cheers of the crowd as he was introduced by the chairman. An ocean of ashes met W. E. Tummon as he stepped forward. He spoke but a few words in thanking the Premier for coming and Liberal seats in jeopardy. "There are times in the lives of nations when men are needed" said Mr. Tummon. "Certain criats through which the country has passed and the like of which we had never before faced the country in the depression called for great men of the class of the Premier, As Mr. Bennett rose there were cheers and cheers and it was some time before the band could play and the people quiet. "My Country."

Massey Case

The Vincent Massey case led the premier to remark that "it is not a pleasant thing for one public man to attack another public man and say his words are untrue. "He said he had asked Mr. King to apologize for saying that Mr. Bennett had dismissed Mr. Massey. Mr. Bennett read letters in this regard one from Mr. Massey tendering his resignation; the letter to King, that you tell the people that you were dismissed."

Mr. Bennett declared that no government had had a term of office kept its pledges as has the Government of which I am the head. "I have given the leader spoke of the protection of the consumer from exploitation, and that the average cost of living per family in Canada in 1930 was $1,230 and in 1934 $16. 15. "Go to your Chamber of Commerce and see if that is not true. Ask how it has been seen." he urged.

The Premier had been pledged to development of agriculture and then he asked "Did you ever have a market for your wheat as you now have," "No" answered some. "How much higher was the price in fair competition abroad"? asked Mr. Bennett.

"Yes"

"We have given agriculture a far better start than ever before. Liberals have the handhood to ask what has been lost? "Who lost them?"

"We got them back."

The Premier made the audience laugh as he defined Mr. King's attitude when he wanted to provoke the people of the United State by retaliatory tariff measures.

Banks Firm

"What about the banks." Did they ever fail you one day? In the United States there were days when every bank closed.

Summing up on the tariff issue Mr. Bennett declared "We got trade." while the thousands cheered.

"We maintained your credit higher than it had ever been." The Premier then declared that a Conservative republication which he said meant loss of faith.

A picture of Canadian ships going in and out of foreign ports in countries was drawn by the Prime Minister under favored Empire treaty and the audience cheered.

"We have kept our promises to the West. We have treated Liberal Premiers as we treat Conservatives and have had no difficulty. We have kept the pledge of responsibility."

Here a lone voice was heard in the left gallery saying "30" and cents a day. Give a living wage" But the voice did not reach the Tory Ohieftain.

Then the leader turned on Mr. King. "Show me a letter written by Mr. King offering a trade agreement with the United States in his Bennett stood to speak.

"I have been in office," he remarked, to say that the Conservative Government had opened negotiations,

DYNAMITE IN CANOE EXPLODES, KILLS THREE

HEAVY VOTING IN CANADA EXPECTED AS CAMPAIGN ENDS

Weather Ideal Practically Over The Entire Dominion

BASIC LISTS

Maritime Results Known Before Polls Close in The West

(By The Canadian Press)

Reports of heavy voting in the Federal election campaign were current across Canada today as the final day dawned that will see the end of the campaign, and when he has something to say about the government of the country.

Weather reports were favorable for the most part, especially in the Maritimes, Southern Quebec and Southern Ontario. Scattered showers were predicted for the Prairies, British Columbia and Northern Quebec and Northern Ontario.

There were many indications of a record turnout of voters. In the first place, there are 861 candidates fighting for 245 House seats, a record for Canada. Secondly, there are four national parties in the field and a fifth, Social Creditors, covering many provincial ridings.

Three National leaders, Premier Bennett, Liberal Leader King and Reconstruction Party Leader Manion, were in Ottawa today where they will receive election returns tonight. The fourth, J. S. Woodsworth, leader of the C.C.F., was at his Winnipeg home.

Polls opened at 8 a.m. and will remain open until 6 p.m. under the Dominion Election Act, ballots must be marked by a single X, no system like proportional representation or the transferable vote being recognized as among the options.

It was the first election in which a basic Voters' List was used. The purpose was to discourage telegraphing, impersonation and other illegal electoral practices, the list being revised yearly. Use of a basic list also expedites an election, permitting one to be held on six weeks' notice. The number of almost 6,000,000 voters were on the list.

18th Since Confederation

It was the 18th election since Confederation and the first since Premier Bennett's sweeping victory in 1930. When parliament was dissolved on July 15 the standing of the parties in the House was as follows: Conservatives, 134; Liberals, 91; United Farmers, nine; Liberal-Progressive, three; Labor, three; two; Independent Labor, one and vacant, 94.

Three of the four National parties claim to be contenders. Under the field to gain a House majority, Liberals, Conservatives and Reconstructionists hope the C.C.F. party is close to the mathematical line. The 861 candidates include representatives of the parties as follows: Liberals, 242; Conservatives, 233; Reconstructionists, 176; C.C.F., 118; Social Credit, 87; others, 5.

For each of the first elections in years, there were no acclamations. Campaigning covering the length of the campaign and the fight extending across the country.

Despite the number of candidates, the issues were few and the intensity of the campaign, there has been no clear-cut question to divide the country as sectionally in 1911 or conscription during the war.

The man on the street comes into his own today. For the past six weeks or two months, the party leaders and candidates have made an appeal after appeal in his direction. Into their arguments before him. Today, they sit back and he gives his answer.

But it will be a busy day for thousands of people. Party candidates will be directing local armies marshalling the votes, checking lists and keeping a watchful eye on all opponents.

Difference in Time

A thick-set French-Canadian in Ottawa, Jules Castonguay will be attending returning officers in all parts of the country in his capacity of chief electoral officer. For weeks and months, Castonguay has been building up the election machinery, instructing returning officers in their duties, settling local disputes and overseeing the vast, complicated mechanism necessary for the man on the street to register his vote.

Because of the vast extent of the country, Maritime results will be known before polls close in the far West. The Maritimes are an hour ahead of Ontario and Quebec, two hours ahead of Winnipeg and the Central time region. Prince Rupert and the Mountain time region, which extends to Field, B.C. and four hours ahead of the rest of British Columbia, including Vancouver.

GERMANY MAY SEEK COLONIES' RETURN

Britain and France grabbed the lion's share.

Says Bennett Sees "Handwriting on The Wall"

AGAINST UNION

Urges Electors to Vote For Official Liberal Candidates

(By C. P. Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Oct. 13.—Another period of Bennett rule is in store for Canadians unless they give the Liberal Party a working majority in today's election, Liberal Leader Mackenzie King declared in his last final election appeal here Saturday night. He warned that Prime Minister Bennett's proposal to ask all parties to unite after the election might be used as an excuse for his returning office in defiance of the will of the people.

"Mr. Bennett sees the handwriting on the wall," said Mr. King, "and he lows power as no other man who ever lived loved power and he is determined to hang on to power even if he fails to get a majority."

For this reason, Mr. King urged all electors opposed to the Bennett Government to vote only for Liberal candidates. Votes cast for Independent Liberals, C.C.F., Liberal-Reconstruction Party candidates or representatives of the Social Credit movement would only serve to weaken the strength of the only party which could form a Government and give full Bennett excuse for postponing the summoning of Parliament and hanging on to power.

An alliance of parties, which had been hitherto fatal, was another could never provide good government, said Mr. King, a Liberal Party, in contrast to Mr. Bennett and the varied following he proposed to enlist, was a great united force. It was composed of men and women who thought alike, had confidence in one another and were committed to a common policy.

King Asks Question

Only selfish motives could induce elected Members of Parliament to abandon their differences on Mr. Bennett's invitation, they would be held in line by offers of jobs and other favors as Mr. Bennett's followers in the last Parliament had been. When the end of Parliament's term arrived the Liberals were rewarded with Senatorships, Lieutenant-Governorships, Judgeships and high posts in the Civil Service in defiance of the merit system. All these jobs had been purposely held vacant as baits to keep Conservative members in line with the Government.

"There was a time," said Mr. King, "when a man went to Parliament to serve the people, not himself. But Mr. Bennett has changed all that. I say this silencing of Members of Parliament is a sure way to a fatal end for our Parliamentary institutions."

At the end of his campaign Mr. King returned to the same point on which he opened it, the question "whither." The election, he said, would decide the issue between a tendency in the direction of dictatorship or the European democracies, or a return to the British principles of responsible governments. Election would ask themselves, "Whither are we drifting?"

"To understand how far Mr. Bennett had drawn Canada away from true Democratic principles, it was only necessary to consider the speech he held in us hands now after Parliament's term had lapsed. He had a blank cheque to take any money he wished for relief purposes out of the Public Treasury. He had power to legislate in the name of peace, order and good government, but under the Marketing Act, he had the power to prohibit the importation or exportation of any commodities into or out of the country.

He was held in jail on suspicion of having robbed Mrs. Mildred Ferguson of her watch. Police Captain Clyde Dagger said Fletcher swallowed the lady's wrist watch as the officer approached to arrest him.

THOUSANDS PACK HASTINGS ARENA TO HEAR BENNETT

Premier in Fighting Trim as He Winds Up Campaign

CROWD GOOD-NATURED

Shortest of Political Meetings Lasts Little Over an Hour

Seven thousand persons at least were within the Arena when Premier R. B. Bennett, Belleville and Canada, was ushered through the presence of the Prime Minister as the speaker of the last meeting of the campaign, and through the agency of telephone and radio on Saturday night.

Perfect organization handled the vast crowds which began to arrive about six o'clock and which threaded their way through the streets to the Arena.

The meeting was the latest political gathering on record to open, because of the radio hook-up across the Dominion. It was seventeen minutes to nine before Mr. Bennett entered and it was a few minutes after the hour when the program opened with band numbers, highland music and dancing, and the introduction by Mr. Charles A. Payne, chairman, of the candidates of the Conservative party, Dr. A. T. Embury of Bancroft, seeking re-election, Dr. Hastings-Peterboro, and W. J. Tramman, for South Hastings candidate.

Mr. Bennett arrived shortly after seven o'clock in the city and was escorted by a motor cavalcade through the main streets to the Arena, through cheering crowds. After eight o'clock, he received a telephone talk to Oshawa to be heard by the Canadian Radio.

Like Tidal Wave

Like a huge wave suddenly rising, rose the vast audience of its many thousands after a sudden bursting of cheer, which grew and grew in magnitude, announced to the faithful gathered in the building that the Premier had entered. He came in through the left side entrance half way down the arena and led by Piper James Clark was followed by Chairman Payne, his candidate, Chairman and Mr. R. D. Arnott. It was long after the Premier reached the platform before the uproar sat down, so great was the ovation.

The problem of the chairman was, to guide the time so closely that Mr. Bennett would enter the radio at the moment of nine so as to swing in on the hookup across the Dominion. Mastery of the situation by the telephone men stood on guard at their instruments, and by a skilful switch amplifying apparatus was serving the audience through the loud speakers in the arena and the radio hookup, as were closely regarded and Mr. Tramman had just finished the words of introduction to the Premier when CKCT and a network of Canadian stations opened up, the announcer picking up the long distance telephone.

Enthusiastic Cheering

It was minutes before the audience, the galleries, the floor and the platform where Premier Bennett sat, could be hushed and organized by the Conservative party in the local campaign, for his address as Mr.

In Happy Mood

Mr. Bennett opened in happy mood and the call of the broadcast accessed him to make his acknowledgment of the welcome brief, and the delivery of his speech speed up, so that he might conclude his message in the hour given to the radio hookup. He was in fine form.

If disturbers were in the audience, they were overlooked. Only two questions naturally were asked but it would take a stentorian voice to carry across those thousands of heads and through the vast spaces of the arena to reach the ears of those the Premier stood fortified by his amplifying mechanism to make his voice reach the farthest heights of the gallery or the farthest man in the back seat near the entrance as he sat on the plank supported by the boxes on the floor in the land. If there was a disturber he was not by the building's spaces and the peace and harmony of the meeting. He had come to hear, and his conveniently placed about the building assured a harmonious hearing free from interruption.

It was a brief meeting once it started. The radio had changed the usual character of a public meeting. Radio dominated. All Canada heard the Premier's voice, while the sound arrangements made receptions perfect within and without the building, ideal.

"Song of Victory"

Early in his address the Premier spoke of a "Tory song of victory. His speech moved along that line and closed on that theme and his motive which was not ambition, not honour for himself but to serve the people. "I have worked harder for you than I have ever worked for myself," he said.

The Prime Minister looked in the "pink" of condition. Never did he appear more buoyant. At times he broke out into the broadest smile. He seemed to enjoy the public address. He did not complain of the strenuous character of the campaign and of the last day though it was a most busy one with at least four addresses.

Three Bands

The Conservative Girls' Trumpet Band was an innovation in this campaign and this musical unit with Piper James Clark, Belleville Legion Band and the Tweed-Stirling Band played. Piper James Clark brought a lilt and a swing into the meeting which it never lost. He played some stirring airs, and as we Ireland lass danced. Harmony was the spirit of the meeting.

The seating arrangement on the floor was excellent. In the front, facing the platform were the press planks and at the rear planks supported planks on the sand.

The whole countryside was represented in the audience.

DRIVER CLEARED OF ALL CHARGES

Indian Receives Head Injuries, Which Result in Death

Cornwall, Ont., Oct. 14—(CP)—Struck by an automobile driven by Donald R. Walker of Ottawa, Salinger Day of Ottawa, Salinger Day, 39 new Hogansburg, five miles from here, George Garrow, 35-year-old Indian of St. Regis, N.Y. Reservation, received head and spinal injuries, which resulted in his death, one-half hour later. A Coroner's inquiry at Fort Covington, N.Y., yesterday decided death was accidental and cleared Walker of all responsibility for the accident. He was given permission to return to Ottawa.

EXPLOSION OF DYNAMITE KILLS THREE IN CANOE

Bodies Recovered in Flame Lake Shortly After Accident

By The Canadian Press

Weekend accidents in Ontario claimed five lives and the death toll mounted to eight, when two persons died from previous injuries and one committed suicide.

Three men, Cecil Vazina, Phillip Martin and Anthony Moyer, met death in Flame Lake, 47 miles south of Chapleau in Northern Ontario, when their canoe was wrecked by explosion of dynamite they were carrying. The bodies were recovered from the lake waters after bits of the demolished canoe were found.

Wilfred Lamon, of Carson, was killed on the Chapleau road when struck by a motor car. The driver did not stop. Lamon's body was found by Nick Drakula, of Sudbury, when his car headlights revealed the form on the road. Drakula's car was damaged, when he stopped suddenly and a telephone car crashed into the rear of Drakula's machine.

Keith Fraser, of Sinclaichie died in a Sarnia hospital from injuries received, when his auto and one driven by Harry Bowen sideslipped on a bridge near Osnalachie. Flowers suffered cuts and bruises. Both drivers were thrown from the cars.

Douglas Maynard, 60, of Leamington died in Dunbarton Road from injuries received last Wednesday in a level crossing mishap in which his wife was instantly killed.

Mrs. Raymond Young died from burns received a week ago in her Humberstone home. Her husband died 36 hours after a can of gasoline exploded while he was starting stove fire.

Harold V. Farrell, 34, leaped from the lower bridge at Niagara Falls after walking with companions. A search was begun for his body.

CHEESE SCORES AT FALL FAIRS

A request for rural fair boards, of this district to forward lists of winners of the cheese competitions in connection with their fairs was made this week by Secretary Ketcheson of the Belleville Cheese Board, Fred Mallory, the competition is now conducted by the Belleville Cheese Board for cheesemakers of this district, with a first prize of $10.

Up to the present results of only five fairs have been posted, The following is the list of winners of these fairs:

Fair	Factory	Score
Madoc, R. Brown Maple Leaf		986
Marmora,	R. Brown Maple Leaf	963
	R. Brown Maple Leaf	957
Stirling,	R. Brown Maple Leaf	958
Belleville,	R. Finnegan Marmora	945

"The competition has been remarkably successful and has been keenly contested this year," declared Secretary Mallory in commenting upon it. "Every cheesemaker has been enthusiastic about it. I believe that next year we will be able to increase the prize money and offer also other prizes for second and third scoring place."

"Cheesemakers have seen the value of this advertising and are supporting it whole-heartedly."

Bennett is Confident Tells Belleville Crowd

"I Have Worked For You as I Have Never Worked For Myself"

LAST OF CAMPAIGN

"Everywhere the last few weeks there has been the song of victory" declared Premier Bennett as he was after of wave of cheers burst from thousands in the Belleville Arena on Saturday night before 6500 persons. He spoke of the Liberals seeing victory snatched from them.

"Now I am speaking to men and women in every part of the Dominion, from British Columbia to Nova Scotia and I advise you that on Monday you are voting on Nationalism."

Mr. Bennett told how an Ottawa newspaperman who had accompanied Mr. King reported his findings in the West — the departing of crowds, and Liberal seats in jeopardy. "I come tonight to bring you glad tidings of great joy" the Premier added.

Dr. A. T. Embury candidate for Hastings — Peterboro bowed his acknowledgment to the cheers of the crowd as he was introduced by Chairman Payne. An ocean of salvos met W. R. Tramman as he stepped forward. He spoke but a few words to introduce the Prime Minister.

"There are times in the lives of nations when more than men are needed" said Mr. Tramman. The crisis through which the country has passed and the era of which had never before faced the country in the depression called for great men of the class of the Premier.

As Mr. Bennett rose there were cheers and cheers and it was some time before the band could play and the people quiet down.

Massey Case

The Vincent Massey case led the premier to remark that "it is not a pleasant thing for one public man to attack another public man and say his words are untrue. "He said he has asked Mr. King to apologise for saying that Mr Bennett had dismissed Mr. Massey. Mr. Bennett read letters in this regard one from Mr. Massey tendering his resignation. He told Mr. King that you tell the people that you were misquoted.

Mr. Bennett declared that no government had in the term of office kept its pledges as has the Government of which I am the leader. "Canada's foreign leader spoke of the protection of the commercial interests abroad, that the average cost of living per family per year in 1914 was $730 and in 1934 $16. 13. "Go to your Chamber of Commerce and see if that has not been borne out. It has been seen" he urged.

The Government had been pledged to development of agriculture and then he asked "Did you ever have a market for your wheat as now have," "No" answered some. "Did you ever get from your farm competition abroad"? asked Mr. Bennett.

"Yes."

"We have given agriculture a far better tariff than ever the Liberals have the hardihood to say that I have. Did the Liberals back here lost? "Who lost them?"

Voices—"We did."

The Premier made the audience laugh as he defined Mr. King's policy. He declared "We give the people of the United States by retaliatory tariff measures.

Banks Firm

"What about the banks." Did they ever fail you one day? In the United States there were days when every bank was closed.

Summing up on the tariff issue Mr. Bennett declared "We give trade." while the thousands cheered.

"We maintained your credit higher than it had ever been." The premier at attacked what he called repudiation which he said meant loss of faith.

A picture of Canadian ships loaded with products from other countries was drawn by the Prime Minister under favored Empire treaty agreements, he declared.

"We have kept our promises to the West. We have treated Liberal Premiers as we treat Conservatives and there is no difficulty. We have kept the pledge of employment.

Here a lone voice was heard in the rear gallery asking about 10 cents a day. Give a living wage" But the voice did not reach the Tory Chieftain.

Then the leader turned on Mr. King. "Show me a letter written by Mr. King offering a trade agreement with the United States in his Bennett stood to speak.

"Since in office," he remarked, to say that Canada-United Kingdom agreement had opened negotiations, sounded out the United States on reciprocal trade relations. That was referred to the Liberal Backpostly this dart.

Senate Reform

"Senate Reform, the old standby", overwhelmed the Premier. "Conservative Senators die, their places to be filled by Liberals. That is Senate reform as I see it" he said. Applause from the audience greeted his dart.

"We could not maintain our standards of living" he said at the conclusion of his speech "separate treaty,

Then the Hon. Charles A. Dunning came in for fire? Why did Dunning not call the B.O.G. call went out? The voice was not the voice of the west. It was Charley Vokes of Prince Albert.

Then the Premier summarized "I have done my best to show that the Conservative candidate is a vote for the Ottawa agreements.

"We have been playing politics down at Ottawa. We have been doing things. After October 14th" again deal with the Provinces as we have done. I have never had trouble with the Liberal Premiers. Men and women cheered this argument in favor of victory in this election.

I ask you, in nine years did Mr. King do anything with the social problems?"

"I have deliberately left prosperity alone, I thought you might see how our trade has developed."

Liberal For Canada.

"You have been so kind to me. It is a privilege to have served Canada. I have tried to live up to the words of Sir Wilfred Laurier. "I have tried to serve Canada as I have served the state with a singleness of purpose and devotion. I have given to the best of my ability.

"What I say is not for personal ambition or office. In it else to swap horses crossing a stream?

"I have worked for you as I have never worked for myself. I leave to you my fellow Canadians to pass judgment on the record of your Government only pointing out what has been done for you in the five years in the worst depression the world has known and thus you will be able to measure what these years in the worst depression the world has known and thus you will be able to measure what these years

FOOT AMPUTATED AFTER ACCIDENT

Two Students From O.S.D. Attempting to Board Train

Trenton, Oct. 14—(Special)—Maddie Graiano, aged 18, a student at the Ontario School for the Deaf at Belleville, had his left foot amputated early Sunday afternoon, when he fell under the wheels of a freight train, that he was attempting to board. He was accompanied by Gordon Evans, also of the School for the Deaf. It is alleged, that the two had left the school and were bound for Sault, Ste. Marie, were the parents of the injured lad live side.

The accident happened shortly after one o'clock just west of the C. P. R. station, Dr. Johnston of Trenton was called and rendered medical attention before the boy was taken to the Belleville General Hospital by Chief Bain of the Trenton force and Constable Jack Pewlington of the O.P.R. police.

HOSPITALITY

Hospitality is always appreciated and a name for hospitality ought to be and generally is one of the proudest possessions of individual, church organization, society, or community.

Last week's meeting of the Anglican Synod of the Ecclesiastical Province of Ontario brought to Belleville and the two local Church of England parishes men high in the church, archbishops, bishops, and clergy as well as leading layman. They were as individuals and as a synod body high in praise of the hospitality of their hosts and hostesses, of the church organizations, and the people of Belleville in general.

The Synod honoured the city with its presence and it is pleasing to realize that they were very appreciative of the entertainment they received.

GREATNESS OF LONDON

London, England, to many has always been the greatest city in the world. Lord Hewart, Lord Chief Justice, at a luncheon in Stationers' Hall recently, reaffirmed this opinion. He called it the Modern Athens, recalling the glory of that ancient city in Greece which produced Pericles, one of the wisest of rulers in the history of the world. Pericles' description of the city of Athens exactly fits the London of today the Lord Chief Justice said.

"Today London is the keystone of the world more than ever in its history. London has always occupied a great place in the modern world and it looks as if she will maintain that lead.

What makes London so great is the multitude of points on which she is supremely great. In trade, in size, in being the centre of the movements which mark the British Empire, in literature, art, and in so many other factors, she is great. New York, great as it is, in size particularly and in other interests, does not take a stand with London. London's voice is a universally heard voice, New York with all its greatness, remains less universal.

Those who want figures may have them. London County is inhabited by 4,396,821 persons, while the population of Greater London was numbered at 8,202,818 in 1931.

It is the centre of patriotism of the British race. It is the centre from which emanate so many worldwide movements. Its very trade is worldwide, which leads to a universality of attitude. And yet it remains characteristically English and British.

Size is not all, yet when it goes with greatness it is of great importance.

Its progress goes on year by year and age by age. It cannot cease, for its breath is the very breath of advance and development. Other cities have limits. London seems born to expand like the expanding universe without losing its greatness and its solidarity.

GOODWILL IN ELECTION

A clean fight has been brought to a close, one which has pleased the people because it is what they have wanted. It is a tribute to the leaders and to the candidates and to the level-headedness of the electorate that such has marked the federal election campaign. Personalities have not been indulged in for the candidates have attended to issues and to the stand of the various parties with a result that the campaign has been unusually satisfying. Winner and loser have upheld the best standards of political life, and of public speaking.

GROWING IN GREATNESS

Canada's importance as a nation cannot but be realized by the people who serher electorate numbered by many millions. Every election seems a greater number qualified to exercise the franchise. And so it will be, for Canada is a growing country which has to fill her vacant spaces. Elections will always be important in that they guide the destiny of this land which has yet to be inhabited by many tens of millions. Every voting is a patriotic and sacred duty, for it has something to do with the building up of that national structure which is never complete. Particularly so is this true in a young country like Canada. Particularly is it true that a young land with vast possibilities have a sane electorate which will weigh problems in the light of experience and with sound judgment. Particularly is it necessary that appeal be made to the people be made on the basis of fact, not on phantasmagoria.

Every day we live, every time we vote, we are taking a decisive step to create that national entity which will make our country play its part among the nations. Canadians have a fairly good notion what they want their country to be in the immediate future and in the far-off days to come. They have their national ideals. But they must strengthen them without ceasing for all government is change, either development or retrogression. Some lands do recede from greatness, others go forward. The forward look is Canada's.

The spirit of a people is a living spirit as much as the spirit of the individual is living for a nation has a soul.

Here's to October—that rollicking elf,
Capering madly—in love with himself.

Shaking the bells on his harlequin suit,
Gathering nuts for the squirrels to loot;

Velling the hills with a violet haze,
Stealing an hour from the glorious days;

Staring above till the crystalline sky
Mirrors and catches the blue of his eye;

Touching the leaves with the gold and the red,
Left where the rainbow dissolved overhead.

Hey for October—the mischievous elf
Who loves the bright world and his gay, laughing self!

WELL, WE'VE ALL HAD A LOT OF FUN OUT OF THE ELECTION CAMPAIGN—fun, entertainment and education—the newspapers, the public platform, radio—all have contributed an amazing amount of information and entertainment as to the issues of the campaign. It's a good thing Sunday happened between the campaign and voting day—time to think over everything said and done affecting the next parliament and clear away the cobwebs of conflicting statements in time to vote with a clear brain and high purpose.

A WOMAN HAS CONFESSED TO POISONING HER GENTLEMAN FRIEND'S WIFE, also admitting a family poisoning some fifteen years ago in which she caused the death of her crippled brother, and two elderly relatives. She was tried for murder in the first instance, but was acquitted. Her sin found her out, however, and in her confession she states that she tried to bury her past mistakes in oblivion but the villain in the case, who knew her hectic past, threatened to reveal her criminal history to her children and friends if she did not help him get rid of his wife so he could marry the poisoner's fifteen-year-old daughter, with whom he was having an affair. Folks who believe that "Murder will out" may take some satisfaction from this case where a woman confesses to a crime of fifteen years ago, of which she was acquitted, and also the same manner of crime committed recently in the New York City suburban area.

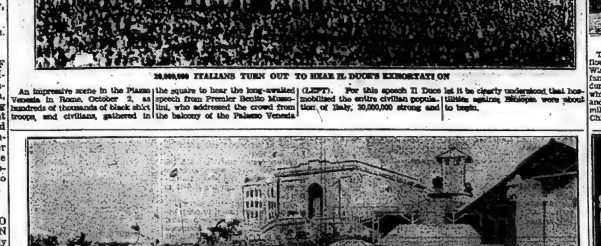
WORLD'S WORST RAILWAY WRECKS

SERIOUS RAILWAY WRECKS OF HISTORY are recalled by a member of the Sidelight Family who sends in a review of that terrible accident at Lagny, France, on Christmas Eve in 1933 when the Paris-Strasbourg express crashed at a mile a minute into the rear of another passenger train, killing 200 and injuring 300. The accident occurred in a fog while the train was hitting 55 miles an hour and no signals could be seen—approaching Paris—Lagny 15 miles from the capital. The engineer and fireman peering from the windows saw nothing in the fog until suddenly the rear lights of a local passenger train ahead loomed out of the fog. Crash into the local express equipped with wooden cars carrying Christmas shoppers and merry-makers. The through express with all-steel coaches suffered little in loss of life but the casualties in the local express were appalling.



But there have been worse wrecks. Take the one at Gretna Green in Scotland in war time—May 22, 1915, when five trains were scrambled up in a horrible, blazing tangle. A train of Scotch soldiers was switched on the up track by the lowerman in a hurry to get away, his duty hours being up, forgetting the train already running on that line toward the troop train. Then he also let the London-Glasgow express on the same line in response to a telephone request. His terrible mistake came home to him with all it horrible significance with the crash of the troop train into the local express. That made him think of the Glasgow express with double-header locomotives—he rushed to the signal but was too late, and while the living were working at the wreck to try and rescue those injured and pinned by wreckage, along came the great fast-flying express and plunged into the wreckage, the dead, the dying and the rescuers. Fire broke out in the wooden sleeping cars and Dante's Inferno was reproduced in even more horrible fashion than the author ever dared dream of the legendery hell. Killed 722, injured 250.

Another horrible wreck in which over five hundred French soldiers were killed, occurred on the night of December 12,1917, details of which were suppressed by the French government at the time. The soldiers were coming home on leave and a heavily loaded troop train got beyond control on a steep grade, ran awfy, gaining speed with every foot rushing down the mountain—to crash on a curve, leave the rails and pile up against the supports of a bridge.

SOCIAL PLANNING FOR CANADA compiled and written by the Research Committee of the League for Social Reconstruction has just been issued from the Nelson press. Whether or not you concur with the conclusion which the book reaches it can well be hailed as the most outstanding Canadian work to appear this season and likely for many years past. It is the results of a cooperative effort of a representative group of Canadians, university professors, economists and men in public life and includes such names as Frank H. Underhill, J. King Gordon, the son of Ralph Connor, Fr. R. Scott and Graham Spry.

It is a large book of over 500 pages but not a dry presentation of facts and figures. It should prove intensely interesting to everyone aware of the issues of the day. The first part of the volumes proceeds to show how the capitalist system has broken down and to prove the necessity for the setting up of a socialistic state as the only cure for our present economic difficulties and their resultant unemployment and distress. The second section is devoted to an exposition of the means by which industry, transportation and all vital activities may be socialized over an extended period of time with the least disturbance to our economic stability, if one is generous enough to consider such a state exists at present. A plan is presented for the immediate action of a socialist government to alleviate as far as possible the most urgent distress, and another plan to be carried out over a more extended period for the socialization of all activities vital to the wellbeing of the public.

Facts and figures from generally accepted reliable sources are presented throughout with due reference to their source in footnotes. The Price Spreads Report and Evidence are widely used to show the aggressive and exploitive methods of big business, monopolies and large corporations, the means they use to exploit the wage earner and consumer and their profitual domination of the countries natural resources.

The book is a plan for the setting up in Canada of a cooperative commonwealth either by constitutional means and at such time as a socialist government shall have the necessary majority in the House of Commons to accomplish it. It can hardly be accused of being political propaganda though the plan does to a large extent follow the policies, ideals and aims outline the policies, ideals and aims outline the policies, ideals and aims outline of the C.C.F. party. S. Woodsworth of the C.C.F. leader who contributes the foreword compares it with the Regina Manifesto and remarks: 'there is room for considerable difference of opinion with regard to some of the proposals set forth'. As the authors have remarked, "It is not to be looked upon as ephemeral political propaganda issued on the eve of a general election. The effect and influence of the book will not be felt within a few weeks or months. But as it is read and assimilated over a period of years it will reach the proportion of materially affecting the public opinion in the federal election five years hence."

Whatever your view of socialism it is a book to be read by every thinking Canadian, to be studied and discussed, accepted or refuted.

Fashion Flashes

A holdover each year, no matter what the millinery styles may be, is the lovely tricorne. This year the tricorne appears for day as well as informal dinner wear. A nice model is of brown velours banded low at the back with a twist of wards the back with a twist of light green velvet ribbon.

All the way from the Austrian Tyrol comes one of the smartest young-er-generation coats of the season. This is a fitted coat of heavy grey flannel with bindings sealing the collar, the very wide, high-necked revers, the cuffs and the pocket flaps. The bindings are of heavy flannel in green. The six of heavy flannel in green. The six buttons marking the double-breasted closing are of natural horn.

Russian dressing is liked this year. One girl has selected a Cossack coat, a Cossack hat and a muffall of handsome grey Persian lamb. The coat is belted with silver suede.

Good marks in smartness will be accorded the college girl who wears a pleated skirt in brown woolen with a pullover of clay-colored velveteen with a tuck-in front of brown velveteen. Leather-and-gilt watch-fob is part of the ensemble.

Not all is darkness for Autumn. There are many suits in beige or dark tanning with light furs. A suit of camel hair and tan woolen has a large collar and revers of natural lynx.

Be wise when selecting a coat for you will want plenty of wear from it. A useful coat is in black fine woolen with dolman sleeves and shaped, belted collar of Russian caracul. The coat has a modified flare and closes at the side of the waist.

Correct Manners
By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

TO EAT OR NOT TO EAT

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A friend of mine has made it a habit when at dinner parties in restaurants with groups of friends to refuse to order soup, even when the meal is table d'hote. Her friends have suggested that she at least order a cup of consomme, in order not to embarrass them when they desire the soup course. Do you think she's right in refusing to take the soup course, or do you recommend that she "go through the motions"?

Interested Reader

There's something to be said for both sides of this question. First, there is no reason in the world why a group of friends ordering a table d'hote meal or an a la carte one either for that matter, should feel the slightest embarrassment when one of the group doesn't order one of the courses. They should be perfectly casual about it, and she can be perfectly casual about it. If she doesn't like soup—and some people have no interest in it—there doesn't seem much point of her ordering it.

However, if the fact that her not ordering it does cause any embarrassment or inconvenience, then her manners should quickly come to the fore and she should do what manners always urge us to do—adapt oneself to what pleases people with whom we are, what makes them comfortable and at ease. Ordering a cup of consomme and eating some of it certainly is an easy way of adapting herself to the happiness of the group!

These comments apply only to eating in restaurants. When we are dining in a home as a guest we serve ourselves to food details as they are passed to us, even if we only "toy" with the foods, so that our hostess will not feel that we are not enjoying the menu that she has provided for our hospitality.

MONEY SHOWER

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Recently a friend of mine was married. We are planning a shower for her. However, this young lady already has a very large amount of linens and so forth, and she has taken a furnished apartment where space is limited. Therefore we don't care to just have any sort of shower for her. We wondered if it would be possible to have some kind of shower where we would each contribute any amount of money we wish and in order to make it a large amount from the entire group?

We are very sure she would prefer this plan, and we are all very good friends. However, we are at a loss as to how to word these invitations so we would appreciate it very much if you will write us a little invitation and give us a hint?

S.

I agree with this wise plan. Since you are all good friends who thoroughly understand her special situation, this would be a sensible kind of shower for you to give. But only your group of close friends should be invited. Also I think that you should decide on a definite amount that each should give—this would only be fair, for obvious reasons. Also I hope you think of some attractive way of enclosing the money—perhaps in a white purse.

When your note of invitation might read:

Dear Dorothy,

I am planning to have a shower for Mary, at my home, on Friday, the first of November, inviting only our little group of friends. You know, Mary and Jack have just taken a furnished apartment, and as wedding presents they had quantities of household equipment. So I thought it might be a wise plan to have a Money Shower—each of us bringing a crisp new dollar bill. In the meantime I'll get a white purse, and we can enclose the bills in that, so they won't look too "commercial". I'd like to let you know what you think of this plan. And do tell me if you see any objections.

And do say that you will come, and please come about three o'clock so that we may perhaps have some brides after the showers festivities.

Dearest love to you.

Affectionately.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

If there is something wrong with your body, it is easy, relatively speaking, to ask your mind to watch over the affected part and take care of it. But when there is something wrong with your thought processes, it requires a little practice and patience to be able to get outside of yourself and observe yourself in perspective.

Perhaps this explains why psychology was rather slow in developing, but really big strides have been made in this subject only within the last ten or twenty years.

And what did the big advance encompass? The big advance in psychology has been the interest centred upon the causes of our thoughts in contrast to the older studies which concerned themselves primarily with the results of mental processes.

Nowadays the mental specialist is always asking why and how. He wants to know why an individual thinks and behaves in one way rather than another, and how it happens that he developed in one way rather than another.

Although it takes experience and training to analyze a man thoroughly, one can, with practice, learn to observe one's own reactions, thereby learning how to correct one's faulty thought mechanisms. For instance, it often takes a long time—years, in fact—before some people realize that they are losing their grip. Months may pass before people discover that their thoughts and actions are in any way unusual. People go on day in and day out without ever knowing that they are not maintaining their normal standard of efficiency.

To be sure, there are persons who watch themselves continually and are ever on the alert for abnormalities or thinking and behavior. Being excessively introspective, they are likely to develop introspective enough.

Overwhelming evidence would not be likely to produce evil results when it contradicts and bases upon psychological premises. The difficulty is that the more laymen think about themselves the more bewildered, as a rule, they become. In the wake of confusion come fear and mental distress!

People are apt to wait altogether too long before they seek advice and help. Were early manifestations, during the beginning, duly treated in time, more actual cures could be effected. Hopeless cases would soon become a rarity.

The very earliest suggestive signs should receive attention, even when they are noticeable in childhood. It is always easy early to practice the right kind of self-analysis. It is never too early to begin a study of the inner self.

Although nature's workings are not always perfect, they nevertheless have a marvelous self-protective quality. For nature tries to heal itself. If an infection enters the body, the whole organism tries to fight the disease, and the whole organism combats it with every means available.

The brain and nervous system are very tough—perhaps the toughest kind of living tissue. What the human mind can stand is the way of worry, despair and thwarted desires is almost incredible. Nevertheless, there is a breaking point. And when that breaking point is reached, the toughest organ in the body is also the most difficult to mend.

The recovery from nervous and mental disease takes longer than the recovery from other organic maladies.

Therefore, be on the alert. Watch yourself and your reactions. Catch it at trouble in time.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Expectant mothers should stress foods that contain calcium. Plenty of greens and fresh fruit should also be eaten daily. It is a mistake to believe that the expectant mother should eat more than usual. This only tends to prevent proper elimination and may even put an extra burden upon the system.

Mr. Daniel O'Connell of Peterboro with a degree team from that city were present at the last meeting of the Knights of Columbus here and exemplified the third degree to a class of fifty candidates.

On the evening of the 13th. inst. the opening of the Domestic Science Course sent to Belleville by the Government through the Women's Institute was opened by Miss Gertrude Gray, the instructor. About seventy ladies were present.

A very enjoyable time was spent by the boys of the Bridge Street Church "Ever Readies" Club accompanied by their lady friends at the home of Mrs. Ketchabaw at the corner of John and Alexander streets. The fire grates glowed with satisfaction as they were banked with corn and marshmallows which were in abundance. Music was not lacking and all were merry. A vote of thanks moved by Mr. Wendell Osborne and seconded by Mr. Clayton Maslin was tendered to Mrs. Ketcheson. Dr. H. A. Yeomans is the teacher of the club.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper Uncle Albit was on the front steps smoking one of pop's cigars, and pop said to me, why dont better steel a march on Albit and repeat the movies before he proposed another game of 7 handed bridge with non-stop editorial remarks in that piercing grating sour rusty voice of his. I believe there's a real good movie in town for a change. It's a Western with a real stampede of wild horses. It's at the New Gallery, pop said.

O glory, I shant you were going to say The Little Angel at Marcissa, they claim little Bobbie Jordan is marvelous at it, ma said. She's almost 7 years old now and people generally quite be getting too old to act, but I hear she was never so good as she is in this picture, ma said, and pop said, if she's outer that, why in her last movie you don't think I could stand it. I'll tell you what, we'll leave it to Albit after all he's an expert. unfortunately, I'm sure he'll choose the Western because I saw him put freckels on the back of his hands for nothing, pop said.

Albit is really very sentimental, he's bound to vote for The Little Angel, ma said. You have no ideer how soft hearted he is. This morning he didn't have any business to attend to, so he went marketing with me, and he saw a box of lemons hot house strawberries and he didn't care what they cost, he insisted on buying them for lunch because they reminded him of pleasing wild berries in the woods when he and Fanny were engaged. He didn't happen to have any change, but I swear then anyway, he looked so pathetic, but that gives you an ideer how sentiment has feral place with him before money or anything else, ma said.

With just then Uncle Albit came up and they asked him which picture, and he said, Never mind the pictures, we'll say home instead and I'll tell you a story of one of my adventures in camp during the war, it takes exactly as long as a picture to tell.

And he started to tell it and I wait to bed on account of having recovered from the effects of all he went through during that dreadful visitation.

Weddings

MOFFAT—HARPELL

A pretty wedding took place in St. Paul's United Church, Toronto, on Saturday evening, when Miss Margaret Harpell, daughter of Mrs. Alberta D. Harper, became the bride of John G. Moffat, son of Mrs. J. Gordon Moffat and the late Mr. Moffat, formerly of Belleville. Palms and autumn flowers decorated the church for the ceremony, which was conducted by the Rev. Dr. Harold Young. Miss Frieda Badgley played the wedding music. Miss Harpell was escorted into the church by her uncle, Mr. Ross Richardson, and was given in marriage by her mother. She wore a gown of champagne moire lace in Queen Anne style and veil trimmed with ostrich plumes. Her flowers were Richmond roses and lily-of-the-valley. Miss Genevieve Harpell was her sister's bridesmaid, frocked in dyed green velvet with matching hat and carrying Joanna Hill roses and lily-of-the-valley. Mr. William Moffat, brother of the groom, was groomsman. The bride's mother was gowned in panny purple velvet with hat to match and wore a corsage of orchids. The groom's mother had chosen a gown of midnight blue velvet with matching hat and wore gardenias.

"The Goose and the Gander"

Kay Francis and George Brent

Ernst in Gay Comedy Drama

At The Capitol

One of the gayest and yet most exciting comedy dramas, involving both the theft of hearts and of costly jewels, made its initial appearance today at the Capitol.

Kay Francis and George Brent, who made such a hit in "Living on Velvet" are teamed in the new romantic leads. They make an excellent pair and the former adds and carry out their characterization with great artistry.

Miss Francis, stately and beautiful, plays the part of an ex-wife whose millionaire husband had fallen for the beautiful wife of a pretty blonde, married to a struggling artist. He chooses a gown for the wife of his friend which is persuaded by the blonde wife to take her to a mountain resort. He arrives there convincingly even when put in most embarrassing situations. Genevieve Tobin gives an excellent characterization of the vamping blonde, who having won a husband from another woman, turns around and flirts with his friend. Ralph Bellamy gives a fine performance as the philandering husband. Bellamy tries to flirt himself but flies into a terrific rage when he finds his wife doing the same thing.

In the role of a gentlemanly burglar-cop "moll" Claire Dodd again sees as the cold, calculating jewel-thief who handles her part with great skill. John Eldredge, does a fine bit of work as the burglar as does Gene Morgan as the canny aunt of Miss Francis who eventually exposes the robbers.

"The Goose The Ease!"

A varied and highly entertaining program of short subjects is also to be seen. They include a comedy called "Boy Goes The Ease!" in which Gene Sterling mirthprovokers, the Three Stooges are shown at their best. A musical short wherein Barney Rapp's Band disposes some excellent harmony and rhythm. "King of the Turf" is a subject that portrays the leading equines of the racing season.

An attractive piece of DuBarry dinnerware is being given to each lady attending the performance of today and also Tuesday.

Midnite Matinee

With the engagement of Broadway Folies at the Capitol next week, Wednesday and Thursday, October 23rd and 24th, the Capitol will conduct a Midnite Matinee to usher in Thanksgiving Day. A feature picture, other than the regular one shown during the day will augment the Midnite Show.

AT THE BELLE

Charlie Chan in Shanghai

In Comedy

Charlie Chan has never been so perilously close to death, nor so served or amiable a Chinese detective as Warner Oland makes him seem in the new film based on the Oriental sleuth's adventures, "Charlie Chan in Shanghai," scheduled for exhibition at the Belle tomorrow and Wednesday, matinee and evening.

Again playing an enemy of crime whose barbed epigrams and Oriental wile outwits the cruder strategy of the foes, Warner Oland proves the nemesis of a band of opium smugglers who have defied the secret service of many lands.

Oland's exciting adventures begin almost from the moment he sets foot in Shanghai. His first problem is to find the murderer of the English secret service man who had sent for him.

Miss Thelma Hervey, the Englishman's niece, he receives clues that lead him on the trail of the smugglers. Then Russell Hicks, who purports to be an American federal agent, joins Oland in the pursuit.

In the course of the film Chan's life is often attempted. Circumstantial evidence points to Charles Locher, Miss Hervey's fiance, as the criminal, and he is imprisoned but escapes with Miss Hervey's aid.

Finally Oland and Russell Hicks venture into the lair of the smugglers to make a capture.

The malefactors are caught after a thrilling battle, but the sure-prize climax is reserved until after the capture, when Keye Luke, playing Chan's son, arrives with information that changes the complexion of the entire affair.

The romantic problems of Charles Locher and Irene Hervey afford a pleasant contrast to Oland's pursuit of criminals. While in the supporting cast, Russell Hicks is suave and effective, Keye Luke plays the part of younger Chan with understanding and Frederick Vogeding is a convincing menace.

Board Room Gossip

As Supplied to Biggar and Crawford By Financial Service

The Federal elections are taking place today and October 14th, 1935, may mark a milestone in this country's history. No matter which Party comes into power, many problems will have to be cleared up, the most important of which will be unemployment. The balancing of the budget, the railway problem, our export trade, the housing situation are all very vital problems to be considered. By November we can certainly overhanging the business picture, namely the elections, will be out of the way.

The strength in the local market that developed towards the close of last week is believed to be a reflection of the general sentiment favoring the election of one or the other of the main Parties, namely Conservative or Liberal. Both of these Parties boast an ample background and while their policies on many subjects differ, nevertheless it is felt that both have the statesmen to lead the ship of state to better times.

BRITISH DOCTOR HELD FOR MURDER

Identification of One Made After Assembling 30 Pieces of Flesh

Lancaster, Eng., Oct. 14—(AP)—A stately-nerved surgeon, called twice a special court to account for the dismemberment of the bodies of two women in a Scottish ravine, was charged today with the wilful murder of one of them and remanded to the custody of the police. The case will come up again for hearing Oct. 28.

A growing fear England may be harboring a modern "Jack The Ripper" swept through police circles as the surgeon faced the court.

Circumstantial telling for the hearing of charges against Dr. Buck Ruxton, prominent Lancaster physician, that he murdered May Jane Rogerson, 20-year-old Lancashire girl, contained all the elements of a mystery writer's pot-boiler.

The bodies of the women, assembled from 30 separate parcels of human flesh, were found last month in a deep ravine known as "Jaw Devil's Beefbath."

That in itself would have been enough to give the police sleepless nights but the fact the sleuths considered the fifth in a series of torso murders in England in the last 18 months had its case in the toe-tags of the gruesomely fantastic.

Missing Days Before Discovery

The Rogerson girl had been missing since a few days before the discovery of the expertly dissected bodies Dec. Moffat, Scotland.

Missing also was the wife of the doctor, mother of three young children, for about the same period. Experts who examined the remains said they were almost certain one of the two bodies was that of the Rogerson girl, who had been a nurse-maid in the Ruxton children.

H. J. Vann, Chief Constable of Lancaster who arrested Ruxton at dawn after hours of questioning at the police station, said "definite identification has been established linking the body of the young female found at Moffat to Mrs. Rogerson."

Dr. Ruxton attended to his regular practice as though nothing out of the ordinary had affected the even tenor of his life after he was grilled for the first time Saturday by police. He was at his medical surgery in an office directly across a public park from a police station. It was in this office, police believe, he dissected the body of the young Rogerson girl and cut it to fragments where he tossed it from a bridge into the ravine.

FEAR FOUL PLAY AS SOLDIER DIES

Police Believe Man Found Dead in Bed Hit by Blunt Object

London, Ont., Oct. 14—(CP)— Believing foul play to have been the cause of foul play, George R. Beaton, O.B.E., of the Royal Canadian Regiment, was found dead in bed at Wolseley Barracks today.

A coroner's inquest was held and Bennett was found to have received head injuries believed caused by some blunt instrument.

It was learned Mr. Bennett was found by a servant girl about the last night and an hour later was found on the ground by two soldiers.

They carried him to his room. He was found dead this morning.

Vienna, Oct. 14 (CP-Havas)— Sanctions may lead to war, Italian Foreign Minister, Baron Egon Berger-Waldenegg, declared at Koetzach, Styria, in a speech which caused much comment today.

Saying Austria has been faithful both to her friends and to the League he added "in the attempt to attain European solidarity we should not risk the peace of Europe by any position to be compromised by a colonial war."

TORONTO INDUSTRIAL STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 14—Speculative sentiment in the leadership of the Toronto section of Toronto Stock Exchange today with heavy trading appearing in Massey Harris and Union Gas, both at fractional gains. New York buyers were reported to be taking Massey Harris. Other industrials were quiet, quiet issues the board gains and losses were about even this afternoon.

Consolidated Smelters and International Nickel held firm to strong, closing above the morning sessions. Base metals were depressed slightly by lower metal prices but some of the secondary golds took a upside of the silvers were active at higher prices.

Pickle Crow moved up to 1.26 $3 and Central Patricia to 1.18 while God's Lake, Macassa and Sturgeon ruled steady.

Eldorado featured the silvers as it advanced up 10 for a net gain of 15 cents and Bear at 73 cents up 3 cents. Noranda was about the only weak spot in the Hudson Bay group.

Senior golds remained about steady with Hollinger and Teck Hughes showing fractional volume and the other issues slow.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Oct. 14 (AP)— The rails steadied after displaying a heavy tone this morning. Vicissitude today's stock market session and other groups showed an up trend strength at the beginning of the final hour.

New highs for the last year or longer were recorded by Radio preferred, St. L. & and Chicago, General Electric up about a point each, Hudson Motors, Radio Corporation, Owens-Illinois and Budd Mfg. preferred pushed ahead a point. Westinghouse, Auburn, General Motors, and American Telephone & Telegraph, included in a fractional higher. Union Pacific paced an early rise of 2 points.

American Ride and Leather issues augred. The steels and utilities did little.

The late tone was steady to firm. Transfers approximated 1,200,000 shares.

YALE YIELDED COURAGE PALM

Come From Behind to Defeat Pennsylvania 31-20

New York, Oct. 14 (AP)— Better football may have been played on United States gridiron Saturday but for flaming spirit and crowd-pleasing qualities the palm unquestionably went to the boys of Yale.

With 62,000 paroxysmic in Gaffney Yale roared from the locker room for the second half with the score 20-13 against them and scored on a heavier Pennsylvania team in such fashion when the final whistle blew the scoreboard read: Yale 31, Pennsylvania 20.

The Rose Bowl opponents of last year, Alabama and Stanford, both drew beaten; Alabama by Mississippi State 20-7 and Stanford by the University of California at Los Angeles 7-6.

The Army charged through Gettysburg 54-0 while Brown, beaten by Rhode Island State, went down again, this time before the Gymnasts of Springfield 20-0, Dartmouth whaled Bates 46-7 while Cornell lost to Syracuse 21-14.

The largest score was hung up by Ohio State which defeated Drake 59-7. It resulted from 13 touchdowns and seven extra points.

OSHAWA SCORES 14-3 VICTORY

Defeat Peterboro O.R.F.U. Squad And Remain Undefeated

Oshawa, Ont., Oct. 14 (CP)—Oshawa Blue Devils defeated Peterboro "Orions" 14 to 3 in the first home game of the Central Ontario O.R.F.U. intermediate grouping before a good-sized crowd on Saturday. The game was closely fought for the first half, but in the latter part Oshawa had a distinct edge.

Oshawa's first score came in the second quarter when Fred Hoke and Richardson was downed by Keith Gallbraith behind the Peterboro goal line for a safety-touch. Oshawa added three more points in the third quarter when Hoke, following kicked a field goal from placement. Oshawa completed two forward passes, Mare to Daniels, the second moving them into a scoring position in the last quarter. Pollis finally plunged for a touchdown after Farley passed laterally on a nicely timed play. Pollis converted.

Dodd put Peterboro into a scoring position late in the period. Dinneson kicking a field goal from placement. Farley intercepted Peterboro's only forward pass, paving the way for Pollis to score Oshawa's final three points when he kicked from placement.

With two straight wins, Oshawa now holds undisputed leadership of the group.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

There seems to have been a slight misunderstanding in the junior intermediate group of the Bay of Quinte football conference relative to the schedule. Originally the Trenton Juniors were scheduled to play in Belleville last Friday, but owing to two senior football games the game was advanced to Thursday, but the Trenton squad apparently was not notified. At any rate the differences have been amicably ironed out and the local Juniors now will get under way possibly Thursday of this week with the R.C.I. and V.S. squad going to Trenton for the opening game. Incidentally the senior group in the Bay of Quinte loop is dishing up some real classy football this season as has been well proven during the four games played between R.C.I., O.S.S., Albert College and St. Michael's. The senior group hold sway with a twin bill each Friday afternoon and when 400 will turn out go an interscholastic game, as was the case Friday when the Collegiate nosed out Albert, the game is fast gaining public favor.

If all plans for Friday night's wrestling show are successfully completed by the promoters, the fans are to witness one of the best cards of the season. Johnnie Gyrotty and Joe Kleinman have returned from a successful tour of Western Canada and have been signed, Gyrotty is to meet Chief Lynx, while Kaleinach takes on Walter Farrell. Both bouts will carry a main bout setting. Added attractions, in the appearance of Ali Hassen, the Terrible Turk strongman, are also being presented Friday. Hassen besides meeting Jack Pearl in the preliminary bout, will perform feats of strength in the ring, such as breaking an iron chain by the expansion of his chest. Also he will tear a pack of playing cards with his two hands. If the promoters can arrange matters, the winner of the two wrestlers next Friday will eventually meet later.

George Gay, manager of the Belleville Arena, made one wish last Saturday night. "All I ask for is to have one crowd like this at a wrestling show, bewailed George as he gazed at the five or six thousand persons who jammed their way into the Arena on Saturday night. "Yes, George, it would be nice at that."

Four local boxers are scheduled to appear in the Maple Leaf Gardens tomorrow night. Stable-manager Bill Crawford and Promoter Cleo Allman are taking the famed Palmer brothers (Tiger and Dynamite at 55 pounds) to open the big show at the Gardens. Howard Wheeler, local featherweight, meets the fast-moving Jackie Roberts in the main bout, while Freddie Fisher, local lightweight, tangles with Abe Deerborough, silver glove winner at the last Dominion amateur fight finals. Incidentally the Toronto press is featuring the Belleville scrappers as the headliners on the card and Matchmaker Cleo Allen is returning to Belleville with another belter being card featuring in the main bout Mel Gilmore, versus Bill Humphries, ex-Dominion featherweight titleholder.

Due to the fact, that both the Kingston Ponies and the Galt Terriers refused to play their third and final game, for the senior O. B. A. championship at Toronto on Saturday last, the final bill will be played on Wednesday of this week and it was announced today that the game would be played in Toronto. Saturday's weather was ideal for baseball and maybe the clubs concerned will regret the fact they did not take advantage of the weather conditions. Incidentally it is the policy to gamble on baseball weather late in October. Although no official announcements have been made by President Max Swanfort as yet, the annual meeting and election of officers of the C.O.B.L. will be held early in November at Peterboro or Belleville. Doubtlessly Napanee Gibbards and maybe Picton will be represented at the meeting. It would be a good suggestion to include Cobourg also thereby completing a six teamed loop.

A number of local football fans took in the Varsity at Queens game on Saturday and returned home firm in their opinion that fumbles were costly. The score of 2 to 2 shows the defensive strength of both squads, however. The Varsity backfield is fast afoot, but Queens has a rugged, fighting team and its return game should feature in the interscholastic Union this year.

ARGONAUTS WIN

Defeat Hamilton 7-1 And Remain Only Undefeated Team

By ELMER DOLMAGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ted Reeve's astonishing defenders of Queen's football tradition and the machine-like Toronto Argonauts of Lou Eisman had the Dan's grid-iron blood-pressure a few points higher than usual today although both face the heavy end of the schedule and not very much had been yet decided.

Because they packed an overabundance of fundamentals, a defensive soundness, that is rare in these days of the forward pass, Queen's held a favored University of Toronto team to a 2-2 tie Saturday at Kingston. That was the day's most dramatic struggle and its most surprising.

Argos altogether too well-balanced, turned back Hamilton Tigers 7-1 before a crowd of 15,000 at Toronto on the strength of two place-kicks by Tommy Burns. The win, fourth straight for Hayman's team, left the Scullers two games in front of Tigers and Ottawa Rough-riders in the Big Four race.

Ottawa's 18-9 win over the strife-riddled Montreal Wheelers; McGill's masterful 31-7 conquest of Western Mustangs and Sarnia's decisive 21-6 win over Hamilton Cubs were without a surprise element.

Only 4,000 or so watched the spectacle of Toronto's colorful backfield, regarded as one of the strongest in the country, fail to smash down the Reeve defences at Kingston.

In the second period the Blue Hivaders reached Queen's two yard line for a first down only to have the trichior wall stiffen and turn back the assault. There was no pulls in the team Reeve coached, just as there never was guile in the makeup of the Mann-jawed newspaper columnist, when he played middle wing for the belter Balmy Beach teams.

After Bob Isbister had punted the blues into a 2-0 lead early in the second stanza, the tricolor gang got tough.

Missed Placements

They conceded little after that. Johnny Munro kicked a single before half-time and the Reeve line almost pulled in front in the third period, when Johnny Wong and Ed Barnabe blocked Munro's kick, but failed but Barnabe's kick went to touchdown. On the 31st of the month Matchmaker Cleo Allen is returning to Belleville with another belter being card featuring in the main bout Mel Gilmore, versus Bill Humphries, ex-Dominion featherweight titleholder.

Due to the fact, that both the Kingston Ponies and the Galt Terriers refused to play their third and final game, for the senior O. B. Galt, Kingston to Play in Toronto

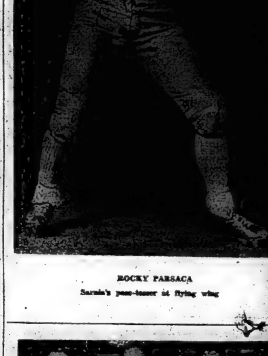
At a meeting of the O.B.A.A. sub-committee on Saturday, it was decided to hold the third and final game of the Ontario senior championship series, between Kingston Ponies and Galt Terriers, at Maple Leaf Stadium on Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock.



Kingston won the opening game of the series at Galt 9 to 0 but Galt evened the series by taking the second game which was played at Kingston, 2 to 1. Fred Walsh, and Joe Spring, of Toronto, will be the umpires for the final game.

The sub-committee also threw out a protest by the Huntsville team which was beaten out of the intermediate 'B' title by Sunderland. Sunderland won the game 6 to 5 and Huntsville protested on the grounds that the umpires were incompetent. The sub-committee ruled that Huntsville was entirely to blame.

"Installment Marriage"

by

Janet Doran

"Still afraid I'm operating on marital, sweet?" he teased gently. "Still scared they'll come and get me if I don't anything big enough in this man-made world to chew off my arm for you, Judy? Is cousin certain its age? It'll go up for sterilized cream! You're so jewee, Judy! I love you so!"

They danced slowly around the limited little dance square, and then returned to finish their drinks and. It was almost midnight when they started back to town.

"With the car," Michael said, as they skimmed along the deserted road, homeward, "we'll save lots on our honeymoon. Train fares are high. Besides, it'll be twice as much fun stopping at tourist camps, eating what we want, when we want it. Glad you're getting married, Mrs. Sawyer!"

"So happy," Judy said softly, dreamily. "And I can't believe it's true!" The emerald ring was a warm fire on her left hand, basking out the chill winds of worry, the bleak stretches of anxiety. "I feel like a girl in a fairy story book!"

"Tomorrow," Michael planned, "we'll go house-hunting. Maybe it will be too late if we wait until we get back. The good ones will be taken."

Judy went to sleep, finally, that night, her left hand tucked under her cheek, her lips parted softly in a tender smile. Her hoped lovely could find an apartment that wouldn't be too difficult, too expensive in furnishing it. Perhaps in their budget!

On the way to work next morning she bought a budget book, a famous plan for allotting incomes into household money, savings, lights, dentist, incidentals, and it gave her a strangely witty feeling to see it tucked in the back of her big desk drawer, all day.

At 3.30 Michael waited in the new second-hand roadster, in front of Judy's office building. He tooted the horn gaily, and when Judy got in, greeted herself to a shiny cocktail and chromium affair at his left.

"Some horn, huh, Judy? Crazy over these French toothies! Got it for a song over at the garage." He blew a few more musical blasts on the fittings, and Judy did not let him have much it had cost—she knew! It was expensive just by the look of it. And Michael would always laugh at her.

"And by the way" to the room said change, before we start house-hunting," he explained, dropping Judy off at her apartment, "you'll be back in a jiffy. Lend my ears on an open fountain pen, and I'll be back across out of gray cream!"

He drove off in a brilliant flash of speed, of gaily tooled horn and squealing brakes, as he rounded the corner.

Three hours later he had not got in an appearance to take Judy apartment hunting. Unable to endure the agony, the suspense of beautiful dire misfortune, calamity, Judy took off her hat and coat, and called his room.

"Hello," a strange voice answered her finally, while a burst of revelry exploded over the wire from the room around him. "Yes, this is Mike's place. Sure he's here—I'll go find him. We're having a celebration..... Old bachelor club. Old Mike's getting married. Wak.... Will ... ...call him."

"Hey, Mike!" he yelled. "Mike, you bum, sober up! A girl wants you."

Chapter 3

BACHELOR PARTY

"But, Judy," Michael repeated for the fourth time, in a patient, matter-of-fact tone, "what else could I do? There was nothing the whole crowd of them, waiting to serenade me. And I'd be evil to desert my chums—the line was busy."

"So you got drunk and had a party with your bachelor dinner, and left me waiting four hours, to find out for myself that you didn't keep your engagement to hunt apartments with me!" Judy said.

Michael ran harassed, tense fingers through his bristling hair, and appeared even more disheveled than before as he stared at her, across the long, narrow floor of crimson roses he had brought as a peace offering.

"Please don't be mad, Judy," he pleaded. "I tell you I was honestly getting ready to come over, when my—my—my—

Sprayed Death to Announce War

As minister of press and propaganda.

By Central Press Canadian

When the history of the Italo-Ethiopian war is written, the name of Count Galeazzo Ciano will figure in bold letters for he was who announced the beginning of the conflict.

Leads in Bombing

It was not much after dawn on Thursday, Oct. 3, when Count Ciano led his squadron of 15 bombing aeroplanes back over the Ethiopian border to his air base at Asmara. He had just bombed Adowi and Adigrat. He had returned with the fuselage of his own aeroplane riddled with bullet holes.

"Some natives started at us as if we were their own aeroplanes," he said. "I released bombs directly in their midst. They ran helter-skelter. Other aeroplanes dropped bombs. We then climbed down to about 100 metres from the ground and gave them the machine guns.

"Several shots were fired at us."

Thus, almost cavalierly, Count Galeazzo Ciano di Cortellazzo, his full name, and a proud name in Italy—announced the beginning of war.

Count Ciano son-in-law of Mussolini the married Edda Mussolini the premier's oldest daughter) minister of press and propaganda. He is known as one of Italy's best dressed men, and it was reported that he bought $1,000 worth of pyjamas and shirts just before his marriage.

Suave, debonair, almost boyish in appearance, beneath the outer artifice is a man of steel strength and temper, it is said, to Mussolini himself. And he is believed to be his choice to succeed the dictator.

COMMITTEE OF 18 VOTE SANCTIONS

Project Now For Financial Blockade Of Italy

By Wade Werner
Copyright, 1935, by the Associated Press

Geneva, Oct. 14—(CP)—The League of Nations committee of 18 for immediate sanctions' appointed today a project for a financial blockade of Italy.

Only minor alterations were made in the text of the blockade resolution as submitted by the league's financial sanctions committee.

The proposal went to the general staff from sanctions, comprising representatives of the league states except Italy and Hungary, and it was anticipated, generally the financial blockade would be voted finally tonight.

British and French delegates decided to put off final agreement on drastic economic sanctions by the League of Nations until other, milder measures at least have been tried to cut short Italy's warfare in Ethiopia.

With no arms embargo against Italy already voted, the league committee of 18 took up recommendations by the financial sanctions committee to make Mussolini uncomfortable financially.

There had been pressure for sharper economic sanctions but delegates of smaller states, such as Greece and Rumania were reluctant to deal with these measures without a compensation arrangement which would reimburse them in some form for loss of Italian markets.

The French presented a view such economic projects as Britain's "Buy nothing from Italy" proposals should be postponed for a trial of less serious measures.

The British accepted postponement of a decision on this matter until later in the week, with the understanding the committee of 18 would discuss an imports embargo project and a plan for export bans on certain products, without attempting to decide immediate plan should be tried first.

The less severe financial sanctions, as distinguished from bank economic measures, were approved by the league sanctions committee yesterday, submitted to the committee of 18 today and then they go to the general staff of all league states but Italy and Ethiopia for approval.

Stirling and District

Stirling, Oct. 14.—On Friday afternoon the Stirling High school rugby team showed supremacy of the Maroons team in game that was particularly interesting for the Stirling fans. It was the first game of the season and the boys have settled into their stride yet, and every kind of play was attempted by both teams. Finding the Stirling line hole-proof in the first quarter, the Maroons boys set up an aerial attack in the second quarter and finally got over for 5 points with R. O'Neil carrying to score their only five points in the game. On the day's play O'Neil was worthy of more points being a standout for his team, in fine plays and runs. The Marmora team tried four or five forward passes and only completed two, the Stirling boys completed three, with one resulting in a touchdown near the end of the second quarter McDonald took a long pass from R. Bailey and went over the line. In the final quarter the Stirling boys played a real game smashing through the Marmora line time after time for yards. All the game efforts on the part of the visitors were futile and the game was in the bag when Mumby went over in the second touch and the game 12-5 for Stirling. R. O'Neil was the star for the visitors; Rowland, McDonald, Mumby and Brooks were the standouts for the local team. It was a thrill to the local fans to see the old pigskin in action again. The line-ups: Marmora—Snap, S. Gray; insides, Bertrum and Hyman; Middles, C. O'Neil and McCall; Outsides, Bonner and Shannon; Halves, McKown, Tonelase, Hart and Reid; Quarterback, J. Burridge; Subs, R. O'Neill, Stirling—Snap, R. Richardson; Insides, D. Bedford, Earl Mathison; Middles, W. Brooks, H. Bailey; Ends, R. Scott, G. Faulkner; Halves, Rowland, Reid, Campbell and Mumby; Quarterback, A. McDonald; Subs, Lumsden and Stanley.

BOY LOSES EYE

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 14—(CP)—Clifford Cornwall, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Cornwall of Harrowsmith, is in Kingston General Hospital suffering serious injuries as a result of dynamite exploding in his hands.

The accident occurred late Sunday afternoon at Murvale, about five miles from Harrowsmith, when the boy picked up some dynamite near a crusher, used on road construction work, and it exploded. He suffered loss of several fingers and is expected to also lose the sight of one eye.

BRITISH LOWER DECK NETS TO STOP ITALIAN SUBMARINES.

NET BEING LOWERED AT GIBRALTAR

While Italy and Ethiopia clash on the African continent, Great Britain continues to strengthen her position at Gibraltar. British warships lie at anchor as steel nets are lowered each evening to prevent submarines from passing the narrow neck of water between Africa and Spain. Note the watchship in the background. This is an unusual move for a nation not at war.

TIDAL WAVE OF LIBERALISM SWEEPS CANADA

12 Ministers Go Down to Defeat; Stevens Alone of His Party Elected

Maritimes, Quebec and Ontario Sweep Bennett Gov't Out of Power; Tory Strongholds Fall in Ontario

Social Credit Carries Thirteen Seats in The Western Provinces

KING'S HUGE MAJORITY

Strength Shown by Liberals in Central Ontario Ridings

Ottawa, Oct. 15.—The Bennett Government which has ruled Canada for the last five years was wiped out in yesterday's voting. It was not an election; it was a massacre.

Nine members of the Cabinet and many giants of the Conservative Administration were among the slain. The historic party of Macdonald and Borden was all but annihilated, as Prime Minister Bennett with only five of his eighteen Ministers slapped from the field of battle.

Cabinet Minister who were defeated were Hon. William Ernst; Hon. R. B. Hanson, Hon. Samuel Gobeil, Hon. Cosme Dagnon, Hon. Lucien Gendron, Hon. Donat Subtelenel, Hon. Wesley Gordon, Hon. Hug. Geary, Hon. H. J. Manion; Hon. Maurice Dupre, Hon. T. G. Murphy, and Hon. Robert Weir.

The anti-government sweep started with the East Maritime in the Maritimes and jumped westward with the cheers of the Liberals took every seat in Prince Edward Island. They took every seat in Nova Scotia, with three defeats, New Brunswick's 11 seats. Only a handful of 32 seats in the West, Edmonton excepted, Royal prevented the Liberals from taking every Maritime riding.

SELASSIE CALLS FOR HOLY WAR

Fall of Sacred City Spurs Emperor to Seek Recapture

By JAMES A. MILLS
Copyright 1935, by the Associated Press.

Addis Ababa, Oct. 15.—An official Ethiopian communique said today two Italian planes bombed Aksum, near Adowa, and another bombed Ethiopian troops at Makale, 62 miles south of Adowa on the northern front. Both air attacks failed to inflict casualties.

Emperor Haile Selassie called for the greatest army ever organized in Ethiopia's wars today war cry and recapture of the sacred city of Aksum from the Italians.

Weeping openly at news of the fall yesterday of Aksum to the Fascist forces on the northern front, he personally instructed the Abuna, or bishop, of the empire the holy war must be proclaimed.

The Abuna, holding the emperor in tears, promised to spread word of Aksum's fall throughout the land, urging the Coptic Christian churchmen to rouse the nation.

Aksum, ancient capital of the empire, is to Ethiopians what Mecca is to Mohammedans.

Strengthening organization of the defence of his empire, Haile Selassie switched the headquarters for his entire army to Dessie, about 1,000,000 men, to Addis Ababa.

SKELETON FOUND ON WESTERN FARM

Railway Man Searching For Mushrooms Discovers Body

London, Oct., Oct. 15 (CP)—OPP police today resumed their efforts to identify the skeleton found on the farm of George Graven, northwest of Komoka.

Investigation was centred on the possibility that the remains might be those of R. S. Rowe of the Barrie district, a patient at the Ontario Hospital here, who has been missing for four months.

Horace Woodcock, a Canadian National Railways section hand, searching for mushrooms during his lunch hour yesterday, came upon the skeleton, fully clothed, and nearly overgrown by grass. Beside it was a bottle that contained carbolic acid, and a cup.

ETHIOPIAN REVOLT REPORTED

Adowa, Ethiopia, Oct. 15.—(CP-Reuters)—Reports reached Italian military headquarters today a revolt has broken out in Gojjam Province of Ethiopia.

The uprising was reported to be directed against Ras Imru, Governor of the Province, who was said to be regarded as an usurper of the throne from Ras Haile, believed to be held a prisoner on an island in Lake Tana, south of Addis Ababa.

Ethiopian deserters brought word Gojjam residents hoped the Italian forces would come to their aid and release Haile.

Count Calosso Ciano, son-in-law of Mussolini, and two other pilots of his "death or glory" squadron were reported flying south of Makale to the Amale Koilloctc district (on maps) where they dropped ammunition dump and bombed an army fife fire from Ethiopian

TRADE AGREEMENT REVISION SEEN BY PREMIER-ELECT

'High Privilege to Have Served' Says Premier Bennett

'REFORM' SAYS STEVENS

People Opposed to Planning And Restriction, King States

Ottawa, Oct. 15. (CP)—Verdict for early revision of the Ottawa Trade Agreements, a reciprocal pact with the United States and restoration of trade with Japan were seen by Premier-elect Mackenzie King in the sweeping Liberal victory on all fronts.

"It was a deliverance of the people from the present government, from mistaken policies and from autocratic leadership" and "emphatic condemnation of the unworthy means sought to effect a so-called national co-operation."

Premier Bennett and Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstruction leader, issued statements last night confident with Mr. King. In less than 12 months, the latter predicted the Liberal Party will; the result was decisive. "Although the electors have expressed their dissatisfaction with the services I have been able to render to Canada, I still regard it as a high privilege to have given my best to the Dominion during the past five years." He hoped Mr. King would derive as much satisfaction from serving the country.

Mr. Stevens said: "I congratulate Mr. King and his party on securing a government that will introduce wholesome measures of reform." Mr. Stevens said: While he was surprised with the result, the Reconstructionist vote was evidence of a "very powerful body of opinion."

Streets Blocked as 'Ont-Intell' Give Up-to-Minute Results; 3,000 Phone Calls Answered

Through the courtesy and co-operation of the Bell Telephone Company and the Stewart-Warner Alemite Company's Athletic Club, the Ontario Intelligencer was enabled last night to convey to the Electors of Belleville and South Hastings the detailed results of the federal election as rapidly as those returns came in, with the staff at the Ontario Intelligencer.

Four loud speakers, placed at the respective polls carried the results to the downtown area. The broadcasting system installed at the Ontario Intelligencer through the courtesy of the Stewart-Warner Alemite Company, the equipment being manufactured and assembled at their plant in Belleville. All results were quite audible and heard by over 3,000 interested citizens, who jammed the area from Bridge Street to far below the City Hall.

Starting at 6.00 p.m. the telephones in the editorial rooms of the Ontario Intelligencer continually rang and flagged in unison as the operators endeavoured to give the returned information of the election results as quickly as possible. Through poor co-operation of party workers in the city, however, the results of the election of Mr. Cameron's victory were rather slow and meagre, but fortunately resulted in the final results being broadcast to the many listeners on the main street. From shortly after six p.m. until midnight hundreds of interested citizens lined the streets eagerly awaiting the final results.

To the Bell Telephone Company and the Stewart-Warner Alemite Company the Ontario Intelligencer is highly indebted for their co-operation and assistance in helping to convey the election news to the public.

C. A. Cameron Wrests South Hastings Riding From Conservative Fold

BIG CITY VOTE CAST

Lewis, Third Candidate Does Best Polling in Belleville

South Hastings, a Conservative stronghold for many years was thrown into the Liberal column by the result of Monday's voting and Charles A. Cameron, resident of this city and prominent lawyer was elected to the Dominion House of Commons in one of the stiffest contested by a majority of 428 that has been waged in the riding in many years. W. E. Tummon, Conservative, represented this riding from 1925 being elected in that year over the late Charles E. Hanna, who the year previous had defeated the late E. Guss Porter K.C. in a by-election. In 1926, Ernie Tummon defeated Col. Roscoe Sandwerdater D.S.O., V.D., and in 1930 the late Charles E. Hanna again contested the riding and was defeated by Mr. Tummon. In 1934 the riding was then known as West Hastings but in the general election of 1925, the riding was redistributed and was named South Hastings and under this name, the election of yesterday was conducted. The contest, was a three cornered one, Lewis, Lewis entering the field as a Independent candidate. Some of the second candidates gave a substantial majority but their adopted son, while in Trenton, another substantial majority was run up, the southern part of the riding supported Mr. Cameron with the exception of Sidney Township and Thurlow Township, while in the northern and eastern part, Huntingtaga Township and Rungerford Township gave majorities for Cameron with practically all the villages and towns showing strength for Mr. Tummon but not sufficient to overcome majorities lined up by the Liberal candidate. Laurie Lewis was always trailing in the voting never having a majority in a single poll in the riding. The contest developed into a straight fight between the two major parties, Conservative and Liberals.

The city gave a majority for Cameron of 378, the main strength being in Ontario Ward, Bleecker Ward and Baldwin Ward, Bleecker Ward being directly a labor centre and in this part of the city Mr. Cameron was given his support. At the Trenton Airport, Mr. Cameron had a majority, while in Trenton his plurality was 340, in the front riding of Sidney, Mr. Tummon came out with a majority of 48, while his plurality in Thurlow Township was 316. In the Tyendinaga village, Mr. Tummon received a majority of 94 and in Hungerford Mr. Laurie Lewis polled his heaviest vote in Trenton and Belleville, the counting 131 and 360 respectively.

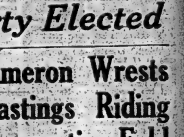
CHARLES A. CAMERON

Mr. Charles A. Cameron, who was elected Member of the House of Commons for the riding of South Hastings on Monday's election, being asked today by the press for a statement issued the following: "To the Electors of South Hastings:

"I desire to express my very sincere gratitude to the voters of the riding of South Hastings for the confidence shown in me by the returns of yesterday. It will be my desire to look after the interests of the entire riding at all times.



"Personally I wish to thank the splendid band of Liberal workers that came to our assistance and to the assistance of the Liberal party.

"The results show conclusively that the electors have endorsed the principles for which the Liberal Party has been contending.

"My sincere thanks and gratitude to Mr. Tummon who has given ten years of good service to this riding, and to Mr. L. Lewis and to their

Word has been received from Adelaide, South Australia, that a memorial to the late Dr. Seymour was unveiled there on August 4th. TARTANS OF 46 SCOTTISH CLANS

A window display—colorful and interesting, in the fashion section of the store of W. J. Thompson, Front Street, is attracting pleasant attention, particularly from citizens of Scotch ancestry—for it depicts the complete of forty-five tartans of Scottish clans, showing all the most prominent of the Scotland clans which have made history in the last two hundred years. Many of the tartans are reminiscent of the days which have the stamp of the might and in which the Scotch regiments made undying history, parcelmates among the fighting tartans being that of the Black Watch. One so called shepherd's plaid of Scotland is known to have a very remote antiquity among the clan tartans of the world. These plaids were in great favor in the Highlands of Scotland, where each clan wore a particular kind as its distinctive dress.

Paying tribute to his fellow-townsman, Manager Cameron, and their local support, Charles Cameron, newly elected member of Parliament for South Hastings, made a complete tour of his constituency and profoundly impressed the people for their faith in him immediately following his election. Making the tour through his vast territory, he was received by large crowds of his supporters at the Bonnett's Bridge, Tweed, Madoc, Eldorado, Foxboro, Belleville and Trenton meetings, and at all points he was given the ovation of confidence. Mr. Cameron paid tribute to the loyalty of the citizens of Belleville, and throughout the entire election.

Tuesday, twenty days after the election, Mr. Cameron addressed a monster meeting in the Drill Hall, Front Street, Belleville, and in Tweed Thursday night, and in Trenton Friday night, and in Madoc and Eldorado Saturday afternoon and evening, and in Foxboro Monday night, and in Tweed Tuesday night, and in Belleville Wednesday night, October 9th, when he appeared before the largest audience of the campaign, and was given a rousing welcome by the people of South Hastings under the proposed King Edward Hotel.

Following his speech of appreciation at the committee rooms, Mr. Cameron was again 'shouldered' and carried to the waiting automobile that was headed by two bands again paraded the main streets before proceeding to Trenton, Frankford, Stirling and Tweed where he again addressed the electors of South Hastings under the flash in him at the polls yesterday. In all centres Mr. Cameron has afforded an ovation fitting his victory. The party returned to the city at four-thirty this morning.

CARNIVAL TIME

CARNIVAL TIME IS HERE AGAIN—For several years until last year the Kiwanis Carnival has been looked forward to as the outstanding entertainment feature of the year in Belleville, and now after the lapse of a year it is with pleasure we announce "Better—Than Ever"—and this is not an idle boast for on the committee rooms here, and there, street and with his voice from the platform, Kiwanian Ken Farrell is hard and hectic campaign, Mr. Cameron has secured the services of fellow-workers for their untiring efforts, and with the hearty co-operation of the whole of the citizens and the result of the campaign, Mr. Cameron is confident he will be returned to the House of Commons by a handsome majority.

"I am glad to say the entire campaign has been the cleanest I have ever undertaken and I wish to thank my two opponents for the manner in which they conducted their campaign," concluded Mr. Cameron as he urged his followers to remember the responsibility he now shouldered as the newly elected representative for South Hastings under the proposed King Edward Hotel.

Following his speech of appreciation at the committee rooms, Mr. Cameron was again 'shouldered' and carried to the waiting automobile that was headed by two bands again paraded the main streets before proceeding to Trenton, Frankford, Stirling and Tweed where he again addressed the electors of South Hastings under the flash in him at the polls yesterday. In all centres Mr. Cameron has afforded an ovation fitting his victory. The party returned to the city at four-thirty this morning.

MRS. R. S. ARMSTRONG,

Mrs. R. S. Armstrong, wife of the city clerk of Peterboro, died in that city on Monday, October 14th. The late Mrs. Armstrong, prior to her marriage was Miss Gertrude Richards of Belleville, her parents being the late Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Richards, who resided on Dundas street. For some years she was employed as a teacher in the Belleville public schools. Mr. Armstrong was at one time on the editorial staff of the Daily Intelligencer.

Old friends in Belleville of Mrs. Armstrong will regret to learn of her death.

DAVID A. GIBSON (Wanted)

David Andrew Gibson, a former resident of Belleville, died suddenly after a brief illness at the Misericordia Hospital in Winnipeg on Wednesday, Oct. 2nd. While a patient in the hospital he received the first birthday greetings in Belleville and district will regret to learn of his death. During his residence in this city he was popular with many friends and was highly regarded by all who knew him.

The late Mr. Gibson was born in Adamsboro (Vermilion Bay, Prince Edward County. When a youth he came to Belleville and took employment in a grocery store conducted by the late Andrew Knox. Later he became head salesman with Messrs. Haines and Jones for some years and remained in their employ for some years. Being offered the position of manager and buyer in the shoe department of Hudson's Bay Co., he moved to Winnipeg, he went to that city and successfully filled the position for a considerable period of time. Eventually he went into the shoe business on his own account at Portage La Prairie. After some years he retired and returned to Winnipeg to make his home.

In the year 1904 Mr. Gibson married Miss Alice Booth, daughter of the late James Booth of Belleville. Who died in 1905. His second wife was Miss Bessie Sulberland of Winnipeg, also died twelve years ago.

Besides mourning to mourn his loss are three sons, Sherlock Gibson, Lawrence Gibson, and Reginald Gibson, and one daughter, Mrs. D. E. McPherson, all of Winnipeg; two brothers, Mrs. D. J. Gibson and Mr. M. C. Adams, and one brother, Mr. Gilbson, all of Belleville.

The funeral service was conducted by Rev. Dr. Bird, of Manitoba College, burial being made in the family plot in Elmwood Cemetery.

The bearers were the Hon. E. A. Dubuc, William Hope, W. H. Tilcmpson, W. J. Dawley, Sheriff Thomas and J. C. Culbert of Portage La Prairie.

WILLIAM PRINGLE (Madoc)

The funeral of the late William Pringle of Madoc, who died in Belleville General Hospital, aged 78 years, on Thursday, was held on Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock from late residence on the Queenboro Road to St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc. The rector, Rev. W. G. Hepe Swayne, officiated.

Pamillie hymns, "Nearer My God To Thee," "Rock of Ages" and "A Few More Years Shall Roll," were sung, with the Nunc Dimitis as the recessional. A most earnest and comforting sermon was preached by the rector, from the text, Ipi Cor. 15: 54, "Awake to righteousness and sin not."

The pall-bearers were old neighbors of the deceased: Messrs. Wm. McMechan, Herb. Bailey, J. McCaffrey, W. Rosebrugh, Wm. Bell and R. Woods.

Beautiful floral tributes testified to the sympathy of friends and neighbors.

He leaves a sorrowing wife, besides other relatives.

MRS. AMELIA E. MOORMAN

(Tweed)

Mrs. Amelia Evelyn Moorman, widow of Henry Moorman, passed away Monday evening at the home of her son, Mr. Orson Moorman, on the 2nd Concession of Thurlow, she had been in failing health for some time.

The late Mrs. Moorman was in her 86th year and was born in Thurlow Township where she resided all her life. Her parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. John Deacon. She was a member of the United Church at Carmel and was held in high esteem by all who knew her. Surviving her are two sons, Mr. Harry Moorman of Belleville and Mr. George Moorman of Thurlow Township.

POLICE BLOTTER

At least ten persons did not exercise their voting powers at the Dominion election yesterday, as ten automobiles were reported to the police station for a night's lodging last night. All of whom lived on the tramp yesterday. Local police spent a busy night last evening endeavoring to trace the Ford V8 traffic that was in evidence on Front St., no major accidents being reported.

Yesterday afternoon Plainclothes Officer Fred Izard was called to a Hillside St. residence where youthful miscreants had broken into a Packard car during the hours. They were apprehended by the officer and taken to the police station for questioning. While in the house with the residents absent, the youths caused considerable damage by ransacking the entire house. Nothing of value was taken, however.

MACKENZIE KING RE-ELECTED IN PRINCE ALBERT

Social Credit Carries Alberta as it Did Previously

MRS. BLACK ELECTED

Liberal Victory in Manitoba Clear With Seven Gains From Tories

Winnipeg, Oct. 15.—(CP)—Western Canada's four party leaders back to Parliament in Monday's Federal elections today with their reelection today is predominantly Liberal.

Liberals won thirty of the seventy-one seats in Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia final computations may give them more.

The new Social Credit Party, which recently was elected to power in Alberta, is sure of eleven seats and Conservatives have nine, while co-operative Commonwealth Federation has seven. The Reconstruction Party elected one. Liberal victories gives two and Independents one.

Liberal Leader Mackenzie King was elected again in Prince Albert Seat. Prime Minister Bennett, whose Conservative Government was defeated, was returned in Calgary West. J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F. leader, was re-elected in Winnipeg North Centre and Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstruction Party Leader, was returned in Kootenay West.

The West also send the second woman member to the House of Commons with the election of Mrs. George Black in the only constituency in the Yukon. She succeeds her husband, former Speaker of the House, who retired because of illness.

Liberals Carry Manitoba

The Liberals took command of the balloting in Manitoba almost from the start. They captured seven of the 11 seats the Conservatives held in the last House and retained their own two.

Conservative members were elected in Brandon and Souris. In Brandon, strongly Conservative, W. J. Rosebush, Liberal, won by only 198 votes, in a riding he captured by 3,205 votes in 1930. Dr. Thomas Langrell, Liberal, won by only 298 votes, in a riding he captured by 2,205 votes in 1930.

Conservative Incumbents in Portage la Prairie and Neepawa, Hon. C. G. Murphy, Minister of the Interior, fell before F. D. Mackenzie, the Liberal leader in 1930.

Another Conservative stalwart fell in Marquette, where Dr. Thomas Sole Scott, Centre, W. W. Kennedy, who assumed the chairmanship of the Manitoba Conservative party following the resignation of Hon. H. H. Stevens, was defeated by 1,581 votes.

King at Prince Albert

With 16 Liberals, two Social Credit candidates, and one Conservative, the C.C.F. candidate elected to the House of Commons from Saskatchewan, standard in the Liberal landslide that swept over the dying-dog battle being waged by the Conservatives, Premier Mackenzie King, former Liberal member and Rev. T. C. Douglas, C.C.F.

Conservatives elected their only member in Alberta, Grant Dorey, while Perley was given a majority. M. J. Coldwell, Provincial C.C.F. leader, was elected member of his party to be elected, winning in Rosetown-Biggar constituency.

Liberal victories were made in the province from the Conservatives and lost one to the Reconstruction Party. The Social Creditors gained another seat from the Progressives.

Alberta Results

A hectic season of counting votes in Alberta left four seats in doubt early today, with the Social Credit candidates who already had elected 11 members, were in the lead.

The elected list for Alberta included one Conservative, Prime Minister Bennett, and one Liberal, J. A. MacKinnon, Edmonton East. Mr. Bennett was elected with a substantial majority in Calgary West.

The Social Credit candidates, making their first appearance in a Federal campaign, swept the rural ridings, and four urban constituencies.

The famous "ginger group" of Progressive first elected in 1921 with their leader, Robert Gardiner, was defeated. These U.F.A. C.C.F. representatives fell prey to the Social Credit avalanche.

With only one seat in doubt, British Columbia had elected five Conservatives, four Liberals, and one co-operative Commonwealth Federation members, one Reconstructionist and one Independent.

In the doubtful seat, Cariboo, J. C. Turgeon, Liberal, was leading with a majority of about 500 over J. McInnis, C.C.F., and J. A. Fraser, Conservative, incumbent of the last House, was running third.

Stevens in East Kootenay

Hon. H. H. Stevens, Reconstruction Party leader, was elected in East Kootenay which he represented in the last House as a Conservative. He defeated Hon. A. M. Manson, Conservative lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia.

Hon. Grote Stirling, Minister of National Defence, was successful in Yale.

The fight which had Vancouver gripped in the throes of a three-cornered battle was won by Ian Mackenzie, former Liberal member and Rev. Arthur Roebuck, C.C.F. candidate, who defeated J. W. McCreer. The advantage of battle swayed back and forth and was anybody's narrow.

Hon. Ian Mackenzie, former Liberal member, was elected in Vancouver Centre.

A. W. Neill, independent representative of Comox-Alberni since 1925, was retained his seat. He also retained Fraser Valley for the Conservatives. Grant Dorey took the new constituency of Kamloops for the Liberals.

MARITIMES QUEBEC AND ONTARIO

Quebec Almost Solid

Quebec returned to almost a solid Liberal bloc with 55 Liberal and four Independent Liberals to back Premier King in the House where it received only five of the 24 seats they held in 1930 with one still doubtful.

Ontario did two things to Premier Bennett. It made his downfall decisive and gave him his first nucleus of his house following. In 1930 he won 59 seats in Ontario. Today he won 26 with the Liberals jumping from 22 to 80. The whole story of the election was written in Ontario figures.

The anti-government sweep was almost as marked in the west as it was in the east. In Manitoba the province was divided, Alberta, for instance, went Social Credit while in British Columbia the C.C.F. elected its first four C.C.F. members, the party's biggest group numerically.

Although official figures were not available, it was apparent the new record had been established in voting power. Almost 6,000,000 names were on the last lists, and preliminary figures showed a big proportion had marked ballots.

Respect Trust

Election Flashes

The first seat elected were two Liberals in Halifax, R. H. Finn and Gordon F. Isnor, Halifax, a two-member riding. Conservative Conservatives in the last House, so the result was a gain of two for the Liberals.

Finlay MacDonald was the first member of the last Parliament to be defeated, as Liberal C. Conservative in Cape Breton South, N.S., he lost out to Dr. J. E. Hetherington, Liberal. Mr. MacDonald was first elected in 1925.

William Duff, one of the picturesque members of the House, known as the "Admiral", retained his seat of Antigonish-Guysborough. He is a Liberal and has been a consistent Parliamentarian for most of the last eighteen years.

R. C. St. Pere, sports editor and home-town boy, won the first candidate elected in Quebec. He represents Montreal-Hochelaga, and has held the seat since 1921. He is a Liberal.

J. D. Macdougall went down to defeat in Inverness-Richmond in the second member of the last Parliament to be defeated. He is a Conservative, and lost his seat to a Liberal, Donald McLennan.

William H. Moore, veteran Liberal, is the first candidate to be elected in the Province of Ontario. Mr. Moore was elected in Ontario County. A former Chairman of the Tariff Board, he resigned his post to contest Ontario in the 1930 election. He was one of the few Liberals to capture a former Conservative seat in the 1930 election.

A Conservative stronghold fell into the Liberal fold when J. J. Dorion entered Parliament for the first time second, among others, a prominent French-Canadian leader in the C.C.F. movement, Dr. Lorna Cotton Thomas.

First member of the former Liberal Government to win his seat in the last parliament was Hon. W. D. Euler, Liberal candidate in Waterloo North. Mr. Euler was Minister of National Revenue in the former King Administration.

Minister of Fisheries W. G. Ernst, youngest member of the Dominion Cabinet, was defeated in his home constituency of Kent-Essex-Lambton, Nova Scotia, by J. J. Kinley, Liberal. The Minister's defeat was one of the surprises in the 1-2 hours after the close of polling, when he was trailing his opponent by more than 1,000 votes.

Hon. P. J. A. Cardin, former Minister of Marine elected in Richelieu-Verchres by a majority of more than 8,000 over Ignace Archambault, his only opponent. He became the second former Liberal Cabinet Minister to obtain re-election in Quebec Province, Hon. Fernand Rinfret, former Secretary of State, being the other.

"Liberals took the only two-member seats in the country, Halifax, in Nova Scotia, and Quebec, in Prince Edward Island. It meant a net gain of four seats from the Conservatives.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, former Minister of Marine and chief lieutenant in Quebec Province of Mackenzie King was elected in Quebec East by a large margin in a two-party fight. Mr. Lapointe has been a member of Parliament since 1904.

Hon. Hugh Stewart, Minister of Public Works, was the first member of the Bennett Cabinet to win his seat. Mr. Stewart was among the early conquests in Ontario and kept Leeds in the Conservative column.

Fred G. Sanderson, Ontario Liberal Whip, was elected in Perth as early returns from Western Ontario began to come in.

Pierre Casgrain, Chief Liberal Whip, retained his Quebec riding of Charlevoix-Saguenay. He was opposed by a Conservative and a Reconstructionist. His ban been a member of the House since 1917.

Dean of Canadian Parliamentarians, R. S. White last night had the satisfaction of being the first Conservative declared elected in Montreal. Mr. White was re-elected Montreal St. Antoine-Westmount; His Parliamentary experience spans half a century, as before he entered Parliament in 1888 he was a reporter. He is in the House Gallery as Vice-President of the Gallery in 1878, Mr. White's service has not been continuous, as he held the post of Collector of Customs in Montreal from 1896 to 1911, when he returned into the House of Commons was in 1925.

Early returns from Winnipeg North showed Tim Buck, fiery Communist, out in front. J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F., the former member, and two other candidates.

Lionel Chevrier, who captured the constituency of Stormont for the Liberal Party, will be one of the youngest members of the House of Parliament. He was called to the Bar only seven years ago.

Mayor Herbert A. Wilton, of Hamilton, famous for his controversies with Mayor James Simpson of Toronto, won a seat in the House of Commons. He was elected as a Conservative in Hamilton West.

Two Mitchells ran for Parliament in Hamilton East, but neither was elected. One was a Labor candidate, who ran as an Independent with the C.C.F., and the other was a C.C.F. candidate. Albert Edward Brown, Conservative, was the winner, and Dorothy Mitchell, Labor, and John Mitchell, C.C.F., were among the also-rans.

Two Michelenas ran for Parliament in Hamilton East, but neither was elected. One was a Labor candidate, who ran as an Independent with the C.C.F., and the other was a C.C.F. candidate. Albert Edward Brown, Conservative, was the winner, and Dorothy Mitchell, Labor, and John Mitchell, C.C.F., were among the also-rans.

Was Premier from 1921 to 1930 and made then Leader of the Opposition made a bid to return to the House of People to respect their trust.

The principal plank in the platform of the people will, in the realm of economic policy, be the restoration of the people's right to buy in the cheapest market and sell in the dearest.

In the usual course, it will be 10 days after election day before the writs of office after selecting his cabinet. One of his first actions will be to call the Dominion Parliament in conference to seek cooperation in the solution of the unemployment problem.

Premier Bennett, also in a statement, declared that he would seek the decisiveness of the anti-government sweep but also that many candidates of the Conservative party would be in the House.

"The Liberal Party", Mr. Bennett declared, "will be faced squarely with the responsibility of governing Canada. I ask them very earnestly that the electors have given overwhelming dissatisfaction with the services I have rendered as Premier to render Canada I still regard it as a high privilege to have been called to lead the Dominion during the past five years".

Mr. Stevens said he was "naturally disappointed at the results, but not discouraged. He saw the Liberal sweep a "mandate by the people for "substantial measures of reform".

Two Women Elected

The following Cabinet ministers, successful yesterday, will form the nucleus of the anti-government bloc in the House: Premier-Incumbent, Sir George Perley, Hon. C. H. Cahan, Hon. Earl Rowe, Hon. Hugh Stewart, Hon. E. J. Lawson and Hon. Grote Stirling.

Two women were elected yesterday, Agnes MacPhail, a member since 1921, and Mrs. George Black, in the Yukon. Miss MacPhail, a C.C.F. member, was elected in Grey-Bruce as a U.F.O.-Labor candidate. Mrs. Black succeeds as fourth Speaker winning her husband's old seat of the Yukon as an Independent Conservative. Two former women were defeated in various parts of the country.

Speaker James Bowman lost his riding of Dauphin to Liberal Ian Mair and Deputy Speaker Morand went down to defeat in Essex East to Liberal Pierre Gaboury.

The Old Parliamentary "Ginger Group", the Progressive Party, progressives and Laborites who formed the C.C.F. as a Federal Party, was routed. The Social Credit Party in Alberta sent down to defeat Robert Gardiner, who once led the United Farmers of Alberta; H. E. Spencer, E. J. Garland, W. T. Lucas, Geo. Coote, Alfred Speakman and William Irvine. They ran

Of the four Laborites in the last House, also running as C.C.F. candidates, three keep their seats. Mr. Woodsworth, J. S., (Winnipeg North); and Angus MacInnis (Vancouver South). The only Laborite from the east, Humphrey Mitchell (Hamilton East) lost his seat to a Conservative.

CENTRAL ONTARIO GOES LIBERAL

Prince Edward - Lennox Alone Remains Conservative

Charles A. Cameron, barrister, of Belleville, Liberal, carried the riding of South Hastings, defeating W. E. Tummon, Conservative, and member of the House for the past two Parliaments, and Leslie Frost, Reconstruction candidate, in Monday's federal election, the defeat of Mr. Tummon and the accession of the Riding of South Hastings to the Liberal ranks makes this portion of Ontario almost solidly Liberal.

In Northumberland-W. A. Fraser, Liberal, was re-elected with a majority of about 1,000 over Major Bell-ford. In Peterborough West, J. J. Duffus, Liberal, carried the seat by 567 votes, defeating City Controller Prof. Norman Rogers, Liberal, Frontenac-Addington elected Dr. Campbell, Liberal. In Hastings-Peterborough, the seat which has been held by Dr. C. F. Embury of Bancroft, Conservative, fell to Rorke Ferguson, Liberal, Victoria, Haliburton and Judson Gunter, Reconstructionist.

Prince Edward-Lennox remains the only Conservative seat in this section of the Province with George J. Tustin elected over Clark, the Mr. White's service has not been continuous, as he held the post of Collector of Customs in Montreal from 1896 to 1911, when he returned into the House of Commons was in 1925.

Early returns from Winnipeg North showed Tim Buck, fiery Communist, out in front. J. S. Woodsworth, C.C.F., the former member, and two other candidates.

Lionel Chevrier, who captured the constituency of Stormont for the Liberal Party, will be one of the youngest members of the House of Parliament. He was called to the Bar only seven years ago.

Mayor Herbert A. Wilton, of Hamilton, famous for his controversies with Mayor James Simpson of Toronto, won a seat in the House of Commons. He was elected as a Conservative in Hamilton West.

GUTHRIE CHARM FAILS TO HOLD

R. W. Gladstone Elected in Wellington After 35 Years Conservative

Guelph, Oct. 15 (CP)—For the first time in thirty-five years the constituency of Wellington South will be represented in Parliament by a Liberal, when R. W. Gladstone, defeated Hon. Dr. Guthrie, Minister without portfolio in the last Bennett Administration and is now Minister of Pensions and Chief Commissioners. He entered Parliament as a Liberal, became a Conservative in the first session and five after the war.

In the last century Hon. Hugh Guthrie's father held the seat for time and the Conservative candidate is the third of the line to fight an election there.

187 CANDIDATES MINUS DEPOSITS

Of This Total, 65 in The Province of Ontario Shares

Toronto, Oct. 15 (CP)—Failure to poll one-half of the vote cast for the elected member cost at least 187 candidates and four Provinces a total of $37,400 in lost deposits in the Dominion election yesterday. At two o'clock this morning incomplete returns showed candidates who had forfeited their $200 as follows:

Nova Scotia	13
New Brunswick	15
Quebec	43
Ontario	116
Total	187

Candidates in 65 of Ontario's 82 ridings lost a total of $23,200.

A total of 100 of those candidates represented two parties, the Liberal and the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation, and 80 of the Reconstruction Party.

Five Communists lost their deposits, four Conservatives, one anti-Communist, and one Liberal. Independent and Independent-Liberal, two each.

The two Liberals were William Ainslie, in Hamilton West, and Thomas Wilks in Hamilton Beach-forth. The Conservatives who lost their deposits were Hon. Georges Pelletier, Prescott; C. C. Hahn, Waterloo North, and H. E. Spence, York North.

Among the 118 were four women: Alice J. White, C.C.F., Essex West; Lucy Woodcock, Liberal, Hastings-Peterborough West; Dr. Minerva Reid, Reconstructionist, Toronto High Park, and Mrs. Rose Henderson, C.C.F. Toronto Parkdale.

JAPAN REFUSES PARLEY IN NAVAL PARLEYS

Tokyo, Oct. 15 (CP-Havas)—Japan will refuse to take part in naval conversations in London on the basis of Britain's recent invitation when the reply is handed to London this week, the navy officer spokesman indicated to Havas. Diplomatic circles "limited in advance", it was said.

LIBERALS CARRY ONTARIO FIRST TIME SINCE 1874

ELECT 55 MEMBERS

Four of Seven Cabinet Ministers Wiped Out

Toronto, Oct. 15 (CP)—Two political parties have something to thank Ontario for today.

Liberals and Conservatives; their first victory in Ontario since Alexander Mackenzie carried the province in 1874 and Conservatives indebted to their old stronghold for sending them the makings of a strong opposition in the next House of Commons, a group of 30 members, including many experienced parliamentarians and skilled debaters.

"Tory Toronto" formed the rallying point for the shattered battalions of Prime Minister Bennett's party. Only seven of the 26 members of Ontario fell in line to send 55 Conservatives to Ottawa.

The decision of the two old parties in Ontario was almost exactly reversed as compared with the 1930 election, and new parties, apart from Miss Agnes Macphail, the sole survivor of the United Farmers of Ontario, were left out in the cold.

In 1930 the Conservatives elected 58 members. Yesterday the Liberals elected 80. The Labor party elected 22. Yesterday Conservatives elected 26.

Memory Goes Back

A few old time Liberals, who still like to call their party the "Reform Party" did a mental stunt. They go back more than half a century are today telling their grandsons of the really Grand Old Victory of 1874, when Mackenzie defeated the redoubtable Sir John A. Macdonald with a following from Ontario.

Now comes 1935 when the Liberal fortunes risen so high in Ontario as to Conservatives, between 1874 and 1874 was the only time since Confederation when Liberals carried such a large share of the Ontario seats as they did yesterday. In that year the Liberal following from Ontario numbered 64 and the Conservatives 32.

Four of the seven Conservative cabinet ministers holding portfolios were defeated, when Hon. Ian Mainico, often mentioned as a prospective leader of the Conservative party, lost out in Port William.

Hon. C. H. Cahan, Minister of Justice, lost in Toronto-Trinity, while Hon. Earl Rowe, Minister of Pensions, and Hon. Hugh Stewart, Minister of Public Works and Mines, were defeated in Dufferin-Simcoe and Leeds respectively.

Labor Loses Seat

Ontario's two veterans of the previous House of Labor, lost their seats when them safely.

Samuel Factor, who surprised all Canada by his record majority for the Liberals in 1930 was re-elected in Spadina with more than 4,000 majority. The new acclamation to Liberal ranks from Toronto is Hugh Plaxton, K.C., hockey star.

Ontario did not respond as enthusiastically to the Liberal appeal as it did in the overwhelming defeat of 1930 when Premier Mitchell Hepburn led the Liberals to victory. Several who held an Ontario seat in the last parliament was Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Mines, although the Conservatives scored a gain from Labor in Hamilton East.

50 VOTE MARGIN IN SOME SEATS

Dozen or More Contests Seen With Very Close Finishes

Toronto, Oct. 15 (CP)—Alignment of the Canadian electorate as apparently developed a dozen or more contests which may be close that a recount over 50 votes or less would have to be made as a result of yesterday's polling. Several recounts will doubtless be demanded.

Closest contest of the whole 240 appeared to be in Champlain where Hervé Lacroix, Liberal, defeated the sitting Conservative member, J. Arthur Bourque, by 50 votes. Perth West, in Ontario, where Peter I. Brown, Conservative, won by eleven from the Liberal candidate, W. L. Breight.

Other close finishes in Quebec occurred in Dorchester and Stanstead. In the former case Lacroix before the campaign of Leonard Tremblay, while John T. Hackett was beaten in Stanstead by R. J. Davidson.

3996 Vote Cut

Waterloo South returned A. M. Edwards, Conservative by a margin reduced from 9,000 in 1930 to 3,996. Wentworth was another close one, with Hon. Ian Mackenzie, who conceded victory before final polls gave Dr. Ellis a lead of 113. In Timiskaming North the lead went back and forth between Hon. W. A. Gordon, Liberal, and Lard and W. A. Little, Liberal. The final count last night, with some polls missing, showed Mr. Little in front by 252.

The Atlantic and Pacific coasts each provided a near-stalemate. A. L. Beaubien, Liberal, was elected in the Atlantic provinces, polled 33 votes more than his next opponent, a Liberal. H. C. Green, Conservative, had 94 votes more than Lionel A. M. Mansour in Vancouver South.

Clash on Prairies

On the Prairies the sharpest clash developed in Weyburn, one of the veteran Liberal R. V. Young was leading Rev. T. C. Douglas, C.C.F., by only 27 votes with 17 polls still counting ceased last night. In Springfield, 43 out of 50 polls gave Liberal John Turner a 51-vote edge over Conservative Hon. R. W. Churchill.

MISSED SWEEP BY 34 BALLOTS

Halifax, Oct. 15.—(CP)—By just 34 ballots Liberal Leader Mackenzie King give Liberal Leader Mackenzie King the support of every one of the 26 members it sends to the House of Commons.

The three provinces of the coastal region elected a solid Liberal delegation balloting, and it was only in the traditionally Conservative New Brunswick county of Royal that the Conservatives managed to squeeze a man in. J. A. Hutchinson, by a majority of 33 over the Liberal three years ago, was returned.

But all the way through the rest of New Brunswick and the other provinces the Liberal tide overwhelmed of Bellois ran for the Liberals, and Prince Edward Island turned to the Liberal party to send four seats to the Commons.

In the three parties, it was a sweeping turnover. In Nova Scotia, the Liberals captured the seats from the government party. They gained six in New Brunswick and the Island, and one each in the other provinces.

Results more pronounced than its declaration against the Conservatives was the Province's flat rejection of Reconstruction candidates. None were elected; and the Reconstruction party leader, who footed the poll all nine in New Brunswick lost their deposits; ten of them had theirs in Nova Scotia, and two did in Prince Edward Island.

Two Conservative ministers fell at the Liberal landslide swept across the Atlantic provinces. Hon. G. Stirling, Minister of National Defence, was defeated in Yale, while Hon. Grote Stirling, Minister of Trade and Commerce, was the loser by 156 votes in York-Sunbury.

MONTREAL BLOC REMAINS TORY

Quebec Almost Solidly Liberal From Ontario Border to Sea

Montreal, Oct. 14 (CP)—Liberalism today was rampant in the Province of Quebec from the Ontario border to the sea where it elected all but one of a block of five seats in the Montreal district.

A reflection to the days of the last decade when the Liberal Party held practically every seat in the province yesterday resulted in the election of 55 official Liberals and 5 Liberals who stood without party backing and five Conservatives in 24 Quebec seats. The fifth seat, Pontiac, is still in doubt with Conservative Arthur Lemieux leading Liberal Rt. Hon. Fernand Rinfret.

Probably the most striking result from a fight in Montreal when a Conservative was defeated. Many of the election generally was one of the quietest in history. Police reported a minimum of disorder with no charges of causing disturbance or impersonation. The majority was arraigned and released on bail, pending a regular vote against Hon. Fernand Rinfret.

The Reconstruction party which nominated 43 candidates, met the same fate in Quebec, as in the other provinces, not electing a single member, or in most cases forfeiting deposits. In the Liberal ranks, certain gains were unconcerned, the C.C.F., Verdun Party and Communist candidates all being almost ignored.

The only woman candidate in the province, Emma Gendron in Montreal St. James, an independent, polled a negligible vote against Hon. Fernand Rinfret.

THE ELECTION

Canadians at the polls on Monday in the most interesting general election for many years showed by their ballots that they gave a definite mandate to the new Premier-elect, the Right Honorable William Lyon Mackenzie King to form a Government. The Liberal leader, who for five years has been in Opposition, was given an overwhelming support.

Canada has definitely shown again that she believes in the two-party government plan as the best means of securing the will of the people in legislation. The defeat of the entire Stevens' Reconstructionist group of some one hundred and seventy men who had rallied to the cause of the Hon. H. H. Stevens as candidates indicates that the voters took no chance on sending back a Government without ample strength to carry out the will of the country. Mr. Stevens himself alone of that large number of candidates who fought under his banner survives. His survival itself may be due not so much to the fact that he was running as Reconstructionist as that he was a well-known public figure, always certain of support.

Alberta in its second voting opportunity in recent weeks gave endorsation to the Social Credit idea. The C.C.F. group is small.

In the strength of support granted Mr. King there is no possibility that the groups outside of the Opposition party can bring pressure to force the new government to any measures, except to do what the incoming Liberal regime considers in the best interests of the Dominion.

The Maritime Provinces and Eastern Canada, including that traditionally Conservative Province, Ontario, went almost solidly Liberal. It was a landslide.

These are days of wide swings of feeling. Five years ago it was a Conservative Government that was returned which was able to carry through to dissolution with ample majority, 113 seats against the Liberals eight-eight. Today the Liberals have 165 seats or more with the Conservatives numbering in the forties.

Such was the result of the ballots.

In South Hastings riding, the successful candidate, Dr. Charles A. Cameron, is a citizen who is wellknown and is held in high repute everywhere. He is popular in all walks of life. He defeated another well known Hastings County man, Mr. W. E. Timmon, ex-M.P., who has enjoyed the confidence of the people. Also in the field was a man who some years ago came to this city, Mr. Laurie Lewis, who ran as the third party candidate. The three men have the knowledge that they fought a clean fight, from start to finish. In them the people had three men of fine character as candidates.

Mr. Cameron in the vote of the people becomes representative. He is a man of very many gifts and of great promise and his career as a member of the House of Commons will be closely followed by those whom he will serve.

HYDRO ANNIVERSARY EDITION

On Friday last on the twenty-fifth anniversary of the opening of the Niagara Power Transmission through Western Ontario which took place at Kitchener (then Berlin) on October 11th, 1910, Kitchener Daily Record published a special edition of unusual merit. One section of twelve pages is given over to special features and pictures of Hydro growth in the western part of the province.

"The Dream that Came True" the front page editorial of the second section of the Daily News is impressive with illustrations which emphasize the greatness of electrical energy in industry. Written by Edward F. Donohoe, this article is a tribute to the late Premier Sir James Whitney, and Sir Adam Beck, Father of Hydro. "Like the blood coursing from a great heart the white energy of its waters pour-ed itself through generator and dynamo, to give life and verve and development to Ontario industry and to add comfort, convenience and happiness to Ontario homes", says the article.

One of the articles points out how a $45 investment in one dollar and two dollar donations to meet expenses in connection with the initial steps taken to secure a report on the plan has grown to a $341,000,000 enterprise in 32 years.

The News issue tells the early steps in detail with the names of the men who led the public towards Ontario's great public utility, which serves the people at cost. D. B. Detweiler, according to the News facts did ridicule to push Hydro and saw his dream realized.

Sir Adam Beck occupies no small place in this special anniversary number. His life is traced from Baden, where he was born in 1857, to the time of his death in August 1925. In October 1910 Sir James Whitney took Beck's hand as a tribute when he turned on the power energy which has since energized Western Ontario.

The men who fought side by side with Beck and the other Hydro supporters are given due credit for their efforts which have reaped so great results.

The anniversary issue is a noteworthy tribute to the great enterprise and the men who brought it into being.

A FALLEN TREE

Perchance the victim of some Autumn gale,
Prostrate, decayed, forsaken thou dost lie;
That Spring comes here doth nought for thee avail
And Autumn's panoply will pass thee by.

Though once thou wast a monarch of the wood,
By birds regaled at morning and at eve,
There is a gap now made where thou hast stood.
And not a shoot behind thee thou dust leave.

Glad hast thou been to make a hearth-stone bright,
Or warm the freezing hands of some tired swain;
But now I view thee in a sorry plight,
While ferns and ants take thee as their domain;

Thou still hast use, for Nature's alchemy
Will make rich soil from that which once was thee.

GENERAL LEW WALLACE WROTE "THE PRINCE OF INDIA" in which the principal character is depicted as the man who spat on Jesus Christ as He carried the cross up the hill to the place of execution. "Tarry thou till I come", the punishment imposed upon him by Jesus is taken as meaning that the man would never die until the Saviour came again and released him from what must become an intolerable existence. In the story the man went through the world inciting wars and setting nation against nation trying to get killed himself, which he was never able to accomplish on account of the curse hanging over him. He continued on his way tormenting wars and striving to embroil the whole world in a horrible armageddon—making all in all a very interesting story. Eugene Sue used the same character in his "Wandering Jew" an old book but still interesting. "Tarry Thou Till I Come" by Croly is still another presentation of the same character, the mysterious character who could not die but forever stirred up trouble and wars. Those who have read the book referred to wonder if the "Mystery Man of Europe", the super-salesman of munitions, who is said to control the making of war weapons and supplies in England, France, Germany and other countries, might not have some relation to the legendery character doomed to eternal life on earth. "The Mystery Man of Europe" is Basil Zaharoff, who appears as "a shadowy figure, both heroic and diabolic, aged, rich, silent upon his role in international politics," as one writer puts it. Honors were bestowed upon this man by both England and France but parliamentary enquiries as to the why and how of this man's life were ignored. Lord Beaverbrook in his

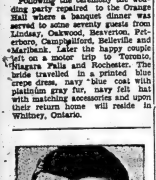
BERTRAND—EVERSON



Plainfield, Oct. 15.—A wedding of considerable interest took place at high noon today at the United Church when Ruby Mae, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Everson became the bride of Orland Joseph Bertrand, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Bertrand of Campbellford, the ceremony, which took place under a beautiful wedding bell suspended from an arch of evergreens trimmed with asters was performed by the Rev. Dr. Symon, father of the bride, assisted by the Rev. Dr. James Allan of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, pastor of the bride and President of the Bay of Quinte Conference.

The bride was attired in white silk georgette trimmed with brilliants and chiffon over silk cut on princess lines and embroidered silk net veil caught in a cornet of orange blossoms and carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses, baby mums and maiden hair fern.

Mrs. Harold Mason, sister of the bride, was bridesmaid. She wore a frock of royal blue crepe with white trimming and carried American Beauty roses, baby mums and maiden hair fern. The groom was attended by Mr. Harold Mason, brother-in-law of the bride. Little June Mason and Master Jack Disco, niece and nephew of the bride, acted as ring-bearers.

Wedding music was played by Mrs. Douglas Knight of Warkworth. During the signing of the register Mr. Percy Reese of Lindsay sang, "I Love You Truly." Mr. Carl Morrow of Oakwood and Mr. Douglas Knight of Warkworth were the ushers.

Following the ceremony the wedding party repaired to the Orange Hall where a banquet dinner was served to some seventy guests from Lindsay, Oakwood, Reaverton, Peterboro, Campbellford, Belleville and Marlbank. Later the happy couple left on a motor trip to Toronto, Niagara Falls and Rochester. The bride travelled in a printed blue crepe dress, navy "blue coat with platinum gray fur, navy felt hat with matching accessories and upon their return home will reside in Whitney, Ontario.

"Charlie Chan in Shanghai"

Fine and Hollywood Hill Chase in Only Star for Charlie Chan Role

Who else could portray Charlie Chan, if not Warner Oland?

In all the detective tales of Earl Derr Biggers, the author first brought Charlie Chan to life, there is no coincidence as strange as the similarity between his famed fictional Chinese detective, and Swedish actor who brings him to life on the screen.

Oland himself, is a big man with the same tendency to corpulence that Chan is supposed to have possessed, the same straight black hair, all he does to put himself in character is to comb his moustache down, his eyebrows up, and he is Charlie Chan brought to life.

For the ninth time in Chan's variegated motion picture career, Oland brings him to the screen in "Charlie Chan in Shanghai" which comes today to the Belle theatre, for two days, matinee daily.

In this picture Oland returns to his native China to do battle with a band of Chinese opium smugglers.

Before Oland launched into the Chan characterization, he had already gained a theatrical reputation for his playing of Oriental roles, often villians.

When Fox Films began to cast around for a man to fill the role of Charlie Chan, a number of Oriental prospectives were rejected in favor of Oland. The studio was in search of his previous reputation as a villian might be injurious to the character-ization. But added to this reputation Oland because he so perfectly fitted the role.

Irene Hervey, Charles Locher, Russell Hicks and Keye Luke assist Oland in his latest series of Chan adventures, directed by James Flood.

"Bad Boy" Clever Comedy

James Dunn and Marsha Hunt Dorothy Wilson are featured in the laugh packed romantic comedy, "Bad Boy" announced as the second feature attraction at the Belle theatre program, which also boasts the screen's ace coincidence Lodie Fasenda in an Mighty Lambert role.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Goose and The Gander"

Kay Francis in a Merry Tale of Love and Laughter

"The Goose and the Gander" a comedy drama involving an unique love angle is now showing at the Capitol Theatre, Kay Francis and George Brent in the leading roles.

The plot involves both the theft of hearts and of jewels, is set in the gayest of atmospheres and carries most exciting situations. The story evolves about the plot of a divorced wife to get even with the pretty blonde who stole her husband's heart.

The manoeuvers the second wife and her ex-, with whom she is planning a trip to the mountains while her husband is away on business, into her lodge, where they are compelled to spend the night. At the same time she invited the ex-husband to visit her.

With all under one roof, and a robber and his "moll" who have run out of gas, thrown in for good measure, there is every luring, exciting and embarrassing situation which culminate in a surprising climax.

Miss Francis, who is recognized as one of the most beautiful screen women, displays a number of clothes that are stunning. Genevieve Tobin and Claire Dodd also wear specially designed gowns and Helen Jerome Eddy, in the role of the elderly aunt of Miss Francis, demonstrates some smart wear for elderly women.

In the all-star cast with Miss Francis, George Brent, Genevieve Tobin, John Eldredge, Claire Dodd, Ralph Forbes and Spencer Charters.

An excellent program of short subjects enhance the feature considerably. It embraces a side-splitting comedy-novelty, "Hollywood on a Yacht" in which the 3 Stooges regale us with their antics. Everyone laughs An interesting short for lovers of race horses is called, "Kings of the Turf." "Trees and Shrubs" is a clever and amusing satire on Nature's broadcasting. And Sergei Rapp's group of clever musicians dispense pleasing harmony.

Starting with the end of the week in which the management will present the first of the attractive Du Barry pattern.

Both Wednesday and Thursday of October 23rd, and Thanksgiving Day, the 24th, the Capitol will present the second of Chaic Sale pictures. It is called "Broadway Follies" and features the usual if not more entertaining qualities that the Henry Sandrey stage show provided here recently.

SOLDIER'S DEATH IS DUE TO FALL

London, Oct. 15. (CP)—Reports that George R. Bennett, Company Quartermaster Sergeant of the Royal Canadian Regiment, who, it was murdered were in dazed today after police investigation led authorities to conclude he fell from a brisk wall at Wolseley barracks, and there incurred fatal head injuries.

Bennett was found dead in his bed at the barracks yesterday, and the injuries to his head created a belief that he might have met with foul play Despite the statement of police that his death was an accident, an inquest will be held Oct. 29.

Free Samples of Vicks Aids to Better Control of Colds Offered by Local Druggists

Trial Packages Contain Vicks Va-tro-nol, Vicks VapoRub and a Home Guide to Fewer and Shorter Colds

—Druggists Also Have Free Samples of Vicks Medicated Cough Drops

Thousands of Canadian families have already gained greater freedom from colds—with the help of the Vicks Plan for Better Control of Colds.

Developed by the makers of Vicks VapoRub, the home guide to fewer and shorter colds is commonsense and medically sound. It is based on 30 years of practical experience and research by Vicks Chemists, including the study of 21,000 colds. Its worth has been demonstrated not only in everyday use, but also in extensive clinical tests under medical supervision.

And now — to introduce Vicks Plan to more families in this section — local druggists are distributing free trial packages containing complete directions for the Plan and samples of the Vick Colds-Control Aids.

Aid in Preventing Many Colds

Discovery of Vicks Va-tro-nol, unique aid in preventing colds, made Vicks Plan possible. Used especially designed for the nose and upper throat — where most colds start—Va-tro-nol aids and stimulates Nature's own functions to prevent many colds, and to throw off best colds in the early stages.

Va-tro-nol is easy and convenient to use—any time or place. Just a few drops in each nostril at the first nasal irritation, sniffle or sneeze. Used in time, it helps to avoid many colds.

Family Standby for Relieving Colds

If a cold has developed, or strikes without warning, Vicks VapoRub—the family standby for relieving colds — helps you find quicker relief. Simply rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, VapoRub acts two ways at once: (1) By stimulating throughthe skin, like a poultice or plaster; (2) By inhalation of its penetrating medicated vapors direct to inflamed bronchial tubes.

Through the night, this combined vapor-poultice action loosens phlegm, soothes irritated membranes, helps break congestion. Often by morning, the worst of the cold is over.

Never since the introduction of VapoRub, millions of people have found it so easy would a cough drop by melting a little on the tongue. Now, in Vicks Medicated Cough Drops, the throat-soothing ingredients of VapoRub are available in convenient candy form, each piece medicated and distinctive cough drop.

Get Your Free Samples Today

Don't forget—your druggist has a few free trial packages of drops Vick Aids to Better Control of Colds. See him today, before they're all gone.

The free packages contain all the information you need for following Vicks Plan. That the samples are there proves what Vicks Plan can do for you and your family. You'll find it easy to follow in your own home.

Stirling and District

Stirling—A large congregation gathered in St. John's Anglican Church on Sunday evening for a special man's service under the direction of St. John's Men's Club An interesting message was delivered by Rev. Harry V. R. Kidd, M.A., M.C., of Kingston (chaplain of the 21st, Batt., C.E.F.), who was the special speaker for the occasion. Many former Comrades of the Colours, who were in the great war, were present to hear his message and renew his acquaintance, at the short social gathering held after the service at the home of Rev. and Mrs. A. B. McConnell. The influence of this unusual man on the men of his regiment during his association with them in Flanders was permanently established, and the large number of men who have him over there, and who gathered once again was a testimony to esteem in which he was held by members of every rank in the regiment. The offering at this particular service was to enable the Men's Club of the church to reach their objective set at the close of the fall term for the payment of one light in the new lighting system of the church, which was installed in the 75th Anniversary services held early in the summer.

Speaking at the Stirling congregation for the first time, Rev. Kidd in his own inimitable manner held on the theme, "Christ's Desire For His Church". Beginning his address with the words of Christ's sayings in the 16th chapter of St. Matthew, "And I say unto thee Thou art Peter, and, "upon this rock I will build my church and the gates of Hell shall not prevail against it). This particular passage of scripture has ever been held in the source of great discussion down through the ages, the true meaning of it had been used in various ways. Here the speaker of Christ was the confession of faith made by Peter, Faith in Him, and upon the confession of Peter, Christ built the building goes forward.

Christ's determination, and the confession of Faith is the foundation of our church today. Church has always overcome obstacles from the difficulties which confronted the Christian Church to outlive all the Modern "isms" that come into existence. Today the Christian Church of Canada is facing upon all men to take their stand. We are the hands of Christ in the great building of His Church. We are part of the present Empire in the world, and her greatness comes from living close to God. England's greatness in the past centuries of the day is influenced by the Christ never failing desire. Greatness comes for this impressive service was rendered by Mr. Percy Morrow and Mr. Ernest Durand. During the Offertory, interest was added with the singing of the solo entitled "Abide With Me" by Mrs. H. F. Mills, Mrs. H. F. Mills presided at the organ for the entire service. The Men's Club of St. John's Church are to be congratulated in the manner in which this, the first service was arranged was carried through.

Gip's Alibi

By WILBUR CRIPE

"They got me!" Slick Sarrett stumbled into the tiny walk-up apartment on Eighth Avenue where he was hiding out with his pal, Gip Gerard. His face was ghastly.

Gip had rushed to the window at the sound of shots, and now whirled now a run of a man, but bread of shoulder, and powerful for his size. As Slick disappeared, he fired but he tried to dutch him, but too late.

"Joe Ramelli—Slick whispered the name of his assassin and Gip knelt to listen. Then turned on him in his face. Then, with frantic concern:

"Let me get a doctor."

"No use," Slick's slender hands reached up to hold him. "I'm done for." A grayish pallor crept into his cheeks. "See'r . . . you can find Johnny—"

"Sure I'll find Johnny. Now don't you worry about Johnny. And" his voice grew husky with threat "I'll take care of Joe Ramelli, too."

Slick closed his eyes.

Gip had a sentimental streak about funerals. He gave Slick Sarrett a showy send-off. A riot of color clothing in a riot of grief. With the police taking part and so many shots being fired, there was no way to determine who did kill Joe Ramelli.

Gip went to the hospital with a bullet in his hip. Before he recovered, a clever dick framed a frame-up job to his door. Enough to send him to the big house for a year.

Gip did not mind that. He was free again, and not the kind of free he'd say no to. He still had his coupe with bullet-proof glass, in his engine, and with new ideas in his head, he started for Indiana. He knew that Johnny was practically his own boy, to support and care for, brought up and paternal feeling to his heart, again, there was deep satisfaction in fulfilling a trust to Slick.

Johnny Sarrett was a likable and clever lad. The years of his fifteen years had been spent in bed. Gip stared at the silky, light brown hair, and shrewd blue eyes, his full and tender as a girl's. The resemblance of father and son reclaimed him. Careful questioning netted the information that Johnny's aging might be made good as ever, with an expensive operation.

Gip placed a hand on his shoulder. "Leave it to me, I'll see if these days I'll have lots of jack."

"You've already done too much," Johnny waived the operation with a smile and a hopeless gesture of his thin hands." Then, observing that thanks were distasteful to his benefactor, he changed the subject with canny tact:

"Tell me about father."

Gip's association with Slick Sarrett had been almost brotherly. He had a great many things to tell which made Johnny's eyes glow.

Gip departed with hearty promises to return in about a week, but he was no more than five miles away when an armed posse in a fleet car headed him off.

The officers laughed at his ignorance of a local bank stick-up, a half hour earlier. Certain their captive knew all about it, they made a dryly humorous explanation. A short, broad man had driven up to the bank in a coupe. He had invited the cashier to open the vault, and the latter had done so with a nasty looking pistol jabbing his ribs. After cramming eleven thousand dollars in a brown leather bag the bandit got away. Bullet-proof glass had protected him from a fusil of lead, fired by vigilantes.

Gip sneered. "I haven't the money. You've got the wrong man." A search of his car proved the truth of his first statement. But unfortunately for Gip, it led to the discovery of the bullet-proof glass and a wicked looking rod in

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

ARE WIDOWS UNFAIR IN HUNT FOR HUSBANDS?

Everyone remembers the older Weller's advice to his son Sam: "Beware of the widows." And a good many girls who write to this column seem to share old man Weller's suspicions.

Girls who have lost fiances, husbands and sweethearts often write me under the impression that widows are "no code" that women who have been married once feel no longer any obligation to play fair in courting men.

Is there a battle royal, sometheless violent because it is unacknowledged, going on between unmarried girls and widows, in which the latter seize all the advantages? These suspicions and questions, I assure you, are not of my framing. Piles of letters coming to this column suggest this battle.

The unscrupulous man-devouring widow doesn't happen to become under my own personal observation. But I may be glad she exists. A surprising number of women who write to me feel sure of it.

We all know, of course, that most widows and widowers wish to re-marry; which is, by the way, an extremely flattering testimony to the desirability of the wedded state. And it's quite likely that a lonely young widow, encountering a man whom she could love, has more courage and initiative in pulling across her idea than a young and inexperienced girl could have.

The fact that she has been one man's chosen mate gives her confidence. Her experience in marriage has convinced her that she knows all about men. She's less flighty—less given to misjudgments, misunderstandings, having her feelings hurt, getting mad — than a young girl who takes every passing emotion seriously.

About the best advice I can give to young girls who complain that good-looking widows are spoiling their fun, stealing their men and introducing an element of unfairness into their social life, is this:

Don't boycott the widow. Don't start a feud. Be nice to her. Don't let the boys see that you resent the fact that she's there. If you want to shut her out of things: On the contrary, be as nice to her as you can. Bring yourself to be friendly with her. Study what makes her attractive. Is it her taste in clothes that fascinates yours? Does she dress more carefully? Is she clever at organizing good times?

It is even possible, you see, that instead of boycotting the widow and being catty about her, you may learn valuable pointers from that lady.

Favoritism Has Tragic Result

Miss Grenelle Tells How Parents Might Avoid Complexes

By LISA GRENELLE

ALFRED was everything the family wanted, from grandma to Aunt Em—tall, blond, shy, generous and appropriately manly.

Walter was. He was a disappointment, possessing neither looks nor manner. Ugly and sensitive, he appeared at disadvantages always, whether strangers were present or when he was alone with the family.

Walter fed nobody's pride. Not one member of the family liked or understood him, except his brother Alfred.

No one—with the exception of Alfred—knew that Walter had rare and delightful qualities: imagination, tenderness, even brilliance of a kind. No one took the trouble to know Walter, to find out what he was. Alfred was enough; Alfred, as son, grandson, or nephew, satisfied the family vanity.

So one and all favored Alfred often not consciously, never, certainly with the intention of hurting Walter either.

Both brothers were aware of the family attitude. You can never keep children about that sort of thing.

Alfred Was Favorite

It was obvious to both that Alfred was the favorite. He was given the best of everything, the biggest helping of everything, the first love to be lavished.

At first, Alfred enjoyed being the favorite, in fact, he took it as part of, and everyone lives to feel superior.

But then there was a visit to Aunt Em's, an experience which changed, in neither was Walter included.

Walter aroused Alfred's sense of justice. He had a genuine affection for his brother. He knew more and sympathized with Walter's hurt and disappointment.

Now, for the brother's sake, he turned upon his adoring family.

And they, naturally, took sides, were, for the first time, very unpleasant to Alfred. Grandma, who went on grandpa's next expedition, Alfred began to suffer the family's slight by his brother.

He knew, too, the heartbreaking importance of finding that through the family attitude Walter had become a jealous, bitter boy, to feel so inferior, that Alfred could never forgive him.

This showing of favoritism always has tragic consequences: the breaking up of two lives ruined—the breaking up of a happy, helpful relationship, and, further, the natural being what it is, if you allow yourself to feel favoritism, sooner or later you will show it.

Glad can you truly feeling it?

I think you can train yourself not to. After all, Walter had nothing a good deal, to offer. So has every child, if you have the patience and will to find it. Search and look for it. You will find that no child comes empty handed. Each one of them has some lovable, admirable quality.

DISPLAY BRONZE 4,000 YEARS OLD

London, Oct. 15 (CP)—Priceless possessions never before out of China are being privately and almost reverently unpacked at the Royal Academy for the International Exhibition of Chinese Art opening in November. There are 96 boxes of sealed treasures and the article was encased in a silk-lined container.

Only a few famous connoisseurs were permitted to watch the unpacking. The first case opened contained magnificent Shang Yin bronzes 4000 years old. One of the articles was a bell which first rang in the ears of the illustrious ancestors of China 3,00 years ago and now stands within tip sound of the motor horns of modern Piccadilly. It first belonged to the Duke of Jul, a contemporary of Confucius in the fifth century B.C.

Beautiful jade and carved stones were among the treasures later revealed. "There is a lovely silver figure of a great Chinese sage, Chang Ch-lan sitting on a tree trunk which he is using as a rest, his playful blowing in the wind. This figure was wrought in 1361.

Just a Reminder of a springtime custom

There is a great host of people,
From coast to coast of this great country,
Who join in saying
"I always use Dr. Chase's Nerve Food in the spring."
At this season more than any other
The blood is thin and watery
And the nerves seem to be on the ragged edge.
You find yourself nervous and tired and irritable.
Appetite is fickle and digestion falls,
Because the nerve force required for digestion
Is wasted in cares and worries.
This is just a reminder
Of what this nerve food has done for you in the past,
And of what it will do for you to-day.
By making the blood rich and red,
It instills new energy and pep into the system;
And lifts you out of the valley
Of fatigue and weakness and low spirits.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

Leukemia is a curious and very serious disease. In this disease there is an increase of the white blood corpuscles, with changes taking place in the marrow of the bone and the spleen.

The disease is not uncommon in the United States, may attack the very young or the aged. However, most of the cases occur in middle life. Men seem more prone to it than women.

Leukemia usually begins very slowly and gradually, and the patient is unsuspecting. Although quite patiently may look well, anemia and an emaciated appearance are usual accompaniments.

Dropsy may be the first sign which attracts the person's attention. In such cases the abdomen gradually increases in size, and there may be fever. Usually at this time repeated bleeding from the nose is an early symptom. Sometimes there are repeated attacks of digestive trouble.

Early diagnosis of this disease is essential, so that the very best treatment may be given the patient. Regularity is this true of leukemia, as of cancer, if it is discovered early it should be hoped for. In fact, the chances are very good in this different individuals, and improvement may often result for months or even years. The early symptoms of this condition is always made by examination of the blood. In this the disease advances, however, the blood changes become more and more noticeable.

As far as treatment goes, real to conserve the strength of the patient is the most important factor. The use of X-ray has proved helpful to the large number of white corpuscles in the blood, and the number of the red corpuscles.

In a cubic millimeter of normal blood, there are approximately five million red corpuscles and seven thousand white corpuscles. The blood corpuscles possess an unusual property to clot. They can also spontaneously by so-called "anoxemia" movement. This is accomplished by pushing out a part of the cell, like a foot. The rest of the cell is then drawn fully pulled to fill the foot, thus advancing the cell to a new position.

In circulating blood, the red cells have been to be in the middle of the stream while the white ones have come to the walls of the blood vessels.

White cells increase in number when they bring infection in the blood. Indeed, they actually kill germs and are powerful produced one of the body.

Leukemia, however, there are too many of them. Furthermore, the spleen is diseased, and it is the spleen which is supposed to give rise to new red corpuscles.

Diet is also important in the treatment. Whatever the doctor prescribes should be strictly followed.

X-rays and radium have been employed in the treatment of this baffling disease.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Not only must the greatest care be exercised in getting the proper milk formulas for baby, but from rough cleansing and sterilization of the bottles and nipples by boiling it is absolutely necessary. Further more, the bottles containing the several feedings must be kept in the refrigerator, away from dust, flies and insects.

MORE THAN a touch of scarlet enlivens some of the new suits. An ensemble-length cocktail suit of black broadcloth has a blouse of scarlet crepe romaine. A scarlet chiffon handkerchief shows from the slit pocket on the hipline. There is also a belt of scarlet suede with a crystal buckle.

A LIFE SAVER for a simple coat or dress is a knee-length cape of black velveteen. The cape opens down the back and is worn with a yellow muff of the fur.

FIRST PRIZE is awarded the collection of a famous French designer for her daytime suit of vivid green cloth. The jacket has a collar tied in a self bow with long ends. The collar is lined with a little leopard muff for each hand.

BRACHET ACCENTS appear on many frocks. An afternoon frock of smooth black silk crepe has a buckle at the waist and collar of bright royal blue sequins.

HAVE A CAPE when it comes to picking a hat. The cone-crowned hats appear on some of the smartest heads. A cone crown of black velvet is set off by a rolled edge of twisted red, white and black velvet ribbon, the twist sitting rather far back on the head.

ON ITS WAY here from Paris is a very new cape, knee-length model of black baby lamb with a bright collar and facings of white ermine.

Obituary

LATE SAMUEL GOOD
(Thomasburg)

Thomasburg's oldest resident, Samuel Good, which occurred on Thursday, October 24th, at the residence of this community has lost a prominent man and highly esteemed resident. He had been in failing health for some time but had only been confined to his bed a few weeks.

The late Mr. Good was in his 86th year and had followed the occupation of farming.

The deceased was the last veteran living of the Red River Rebellion and in politics a staunch Conservative.

In religion he was a devoted member of the early Methodist Church, later of the United Church, having for many years been a steward and also a member of the Official Board of Thomasburg United Church. Fraternally he was a member of Thomasburg L.O.O.F. Lodge, No. 382.

The late Mr. Good's wife, who prior to her marriage, was Miss Mary Anne Adams, predeceased him twelve years ago. He is survived by one son, Edward of home, also four granddaughters, namely, Mrs. Lindsay Pollock of Moira; Mrs. Ernest Mayhew of Crookston; Mrs. Angus Mumby, of Marmora and Mrs. Thomas Emerson of Thomasburg.

The funeral service was very largely attended by friends and relatives on Sunday afternoon. At 2 o'clock a brief service was conducted at his late home by his pastor, Rev. R. B. Hamilton after which the cortege proceeded to Thomasburg United Church where service was conducted by Rev. R. B. Hamilton, assisted by Rev. F. C. Hawkins, pastor of Ameliasburg Church. Rev. Mr. Herrington delivered a most comforting message to the bereaved ones. The hymns rendered during the service were "Go Labor On" and "Crown Him With Many Crowns," while the choir sang "Rock of Ages" and "Nearer My Home."

Interment was made in the Thomasburg cemetery, the burial service being conducted by the Rev. Mr. Herrington and Rev. Mr. Hawkins and the I.O.O.F. rites were performed by the Thomasburg Grand and Chaplain of the local lodge.

The bearers were Messrs. Harry Tucker, Harry Hermon, Percy Tucker, Frederick Porter, Christie Carleton and Percy McTaggart.

100 Years to Conquer Ethiopia, Limit Set by Russian General

Washington, Oct. 15 (AP)—Wladimere Levandowsky, Lieutenant-General in the army of Czar Nicholas II, predicted it would take Italy "more than 100 years" to subjugate Ethiopia.

ion definitely favoring reform."

"The results make clear that the people of Canada are opposed to planning for scarcity by the restriction of production, of trade, and of employment, and that they are not satisfied with the Ottawa Trade Agreements and welcome the prospect of their early revision," Mr. King stated. Mr. Bennett had said everywhere the verdict would be for or against the Empire trade policy; and there could no longer be any mistake as to what the people thought of these agreements and Mr. Bennett's methods of their negotiation.

Liberalism, Declares King

"The election is an unmistakable mandate in favor of the liberalism of external and internal trade; of a reciprocal agreement with the United States; and the restoration of trade with Japan upon a basis beneficial in the case of each of these countries".

"The victory was a victory for democracy, Mr. King added. "It disclosed that the people may be relied upon to sterilize their political sincerity, in spite of innumerable and unscrupulous efforts to divert the electorate from the real issues before them. It constitutes a great deliverance from the domination of the people from one-man government, from dictatorial politics and from autocratic leadership. It is a triumph for broad principles as against promises and pledges recklessly and extravagantly made for the purpose of winning an election". It made clear the people had had enough of "planning" methods and of the "iron heel".

"The result was unmistakable. The formulas of the unworthy means sought to effect a so-called nationalist government in Canada, in addition, it made clear the people had had enough of "planning" methods and of the "iron heel".

CANDIDATES SAY 'THANK YOU'

respective organizations for the clean manner in which the campaign has been fought. It has been entirely devoid of personalities, so far as I am aware and for this my thanks are due to all those who have been associated with our politics. I were able to make the campaign in such a clean manner. The campaign was conducted with fairness and in a spirit of good sportsmanship throughout.

"With sports and hearty thanks to everyone in the riding and hoping that I may be able to show that my confidence imposed in me has not been misplaced."

Mr. Tummon

Mr. W. E. Tummon, ex-M.P., who has served in Ottawa for ten years, expressed himself in these words: To the Electors of South Hastings,—

I wish to express to my many friends, supporters and workers in the riding of South Hastings, my sincere appreciation and thanks for the splendid fight waged against great odds I am sorry for not able more than for my own that we were not successful.

The past five years have been years of difficulties such perhaps we shall never see again. The skies, however, are brightening and Canada is well on the way to recovery. Let us hope that the recovery may continue under the new government.

I congratulate Mr. Cameron and wish him a successful term and pay tribute to both him and Mr. Lewis for the waging of a campaign devoid of personalities and bitterness. Again with thanks to all, I am yours sincerely, W. E. Tummon.

LAURIE LEWIS

Mr. Laurie Lewis today in answer to a query expressed himself:

To the electors of South Hastings:

"It took the French 75 years to subjugate Algeria; it took us (the British) 100 years to conquer Canada and Spain never did get the best of Morocco. It vanished as colonies." Levanlowsky said.

My best wishes go with Chas. Cameron to Ottawa. May his efforts prove a great benefit to South Hastings and those of his party to this Dominion.

Wishing but good sportsmanship on both sides to my opponents, Mr. Cameron and Mr. Tummon, has characterized this campaign. To those of my supporters who gave so freely of their time and efforts in the cause of the Liberal Reconstruction Party, I express my thanks.

We shall return to the fray!

Laurie Lewis.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 15 (CP)—Industrial shares dipped following a strong opening today but were coming back in active trading by early afternoon. Ford A was a feature, rising 2½ points on a split in heavy turnover. The oils stiffened up, led by Canadian Oil preferred shares, particularly. Consolidated Smelters, mixed higher despite lower metal prices in London.

Bank shares were cheered by the Canadian Bank Note deal, group shows gains up to five points while golds held to fractional gains. Base metals were pointless, evidently forestalling any definite rallies in the wake of the central institution. Foods, liquors, utilities and consumer issues were ruled higher.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 15 (AP)—Selective buying in the industrial, communications and specialties kept stock prices firm in today's stock market. The list weathered heavy profit taking in the first hour with gains ranging from fractions to several points.

Rails held to fractionally higher price range was maintained by such leaders as Atchison, Santa Fe, Intyre, Canadian Pacific and International Nickel. On the Curb, Aluminum Co. of America Shows improved moderately. Dominion Bonds were irregular. Foreign Exchange Commerce 44 advancing 1 3-8 points. Canadian Pacific rose 7-32 of a point higher at 26 3-4 cents.

Standard Oil of New Jersey gained 2 points. Air Reduction got up 6. Lowe's was up about 2. Chrysler forged ahead 3 points. Radio, along with Auburn and Electric Auto-Lite, financial departments was registered by Radio preferred which jumped 5 points. Westinghouse, Dupont, Johns-Manville, Sears Roebuck and Montgomery-Ward.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Oct. 15.—(AP)—After absorbing considerable profit taking in early dealings stocks resumed their upward course today. Many issues advanced 1 to 3 or more points to new highs for the year or longer.

Among the more active gainers were Western Union, American Telephone, Air Reduction, U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, Chrysler, General Motors, Auburn, Case Johns-Manville, Westinghouse, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Eastman Kodak, Owens Illinois, Spiegel-May-Stern, National Dairy Products and National Distillers Alcohol. The late close was strong. Transfers approximated 2,350,000 shares.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Oct. 15.—(CP)—The mining list displayed strength with all metal groups sharing in the improving feeling. Some also expanded, particularly in the base metals and golds were up fractions to a full point on rather small turnover.

Noranda was among the only profitable of the base metal group, rising 3-4 to 41 1-4 and in the silvers mixed gains were recorded for Beaver and Eldorado on fair volume.

A dozen of the secondary golds were inclined to do better. At early afternoon gains of 3 to 3 cents were running for Sladen Central Patricia, Pickle Crow and McKenzie.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, Oct. 15.—Another advance of one cent per pound in butter prices, for small lots, as quoted to the retail trade, was announced yesterday by wholesale dealers. Quotations today for No. 1 pr. while prints were 30c per lb. The wholesale level for cheese or 1c. lots remained at 20c per lb., but there was talk that this might be raised this week. Receipts, 2350

EXPORTS OF BUTTER HEAVIEST IN YEARS

Montreal Fort Shipments Reach Highest Total Seen Since 1931

Exports of butter from the port of Montreal were heavy last week, totalling 412,815 pounds, compared with 28,311 boxes in the preceding week and 20 boxes in the corresponding week last year. The substantial shipments bring the total butter exports to date to 81,380 boxes, which is the largest total seen since 1931. Butter exports last year were negligible, only three boxes; in 1933 they totalled 68,246 boxes; in 1932 they were 53,562 boxes, and in 1931 they were 152,878 boxes. There were also exported last week 27,467 boxes of cheese at 1.01½ cases of eggs.

Receipts for the week at Montreal, with comparisons, were announced Saturday at the Board of Trade as follows:

	Eggs	Butter	Cheese
	Cases	Boxes	Boxes
Last week	8,925	15,696	23,889
Week ago	11,758	42,815	27,361
Year ago	8,564	2,302	33,129
Total receipts for the season were higher last week. Cheese and poultry ruled about steady.

The better market advanced to 26c per lb for No. 1 in cartola or Lislaw, while small lots of the same grade were 25c for solids and 26c for prints. The latter may be advanced to today.

The cheese market was 13c to 13 3-4c for No. 1 Ontarios and 13 3-4c to 17 3-4c for No. 1 Quebec.

The egg market was firm, the graded shipments arriving in cartola or Lsl. lots quoted 34-35c for A-large, 31-33c for A-medium, 27-29c for A-pullets, 25c for B and 21-21 1-2 for C.

"Installment Marriage"

by

Janet Doran

"Listen, Honey," Michael pleaded quickly, alarmed at the bright, the near-tearful look in Judy's eyes. "I know I'm not going to buy these things overnight, exactly, but we haven't got to live even in a better apartment, many quite of housekeeping, all about half. If we buy these now we save tremendously. It's just a matter of a hundred or so away for our old age! And we'll never miss the extra payments, right now. And just think of a little harder, and make up the difference. Is that worth while we're young and lucky, Judy-mine?"

"But, Michael, we simply don't pay for all this now! We simply should happen, we'd owe everything and then where'd we be? Oh, Michael, as we show you how very we can fix up a place, on only a fraction of the cost of this."

Michael followed the salesman toward a huge, leather-upholstered davenport chair, and Judy trotted after them, panic mounting in her heart at every step.

"This used to be called a Morris chair," the salesman was explaining, "but we now include it with the radio and table lamps, all about half what it originally sold for. When times are better we'll have to separate the group and sell most pieces at about the same price the group is listed for now."

"It will pay for itself in a little while," Michael said, grinning at Judy, sincerely. "As it keeps us at home as much as I think it will!"

"We've had a great deal of difficulty getting enough help," the sales manager continued. "I shouldn't be surprised this week if we don't see we had all the great rate."

"I'll take it," Michael decided quickly, and Judy turned away from the price tag, unable to bear considering the amount it must be to the total already crowding everything from her mind.

"Of course, you and your wife both have to sign the agreement," the salesman explained, and Michael grinned delightedly, winking at Judy, ignoring her frantic look of fear that had turned her throat tight in an ache.

"We're getting married tomorrow afternoon," he explained, throwing an affectionate arm about Judy's tense, taut shoulder. "We'll drop in here before we leave our honeymoon to sign all those documents. After all, it'll be months before we can't afford to let the bargain get away from us—eh, Judy?"

Judy tried one last desperate attempt to dissuade Michael from his extravagant plan as they rode upstairs in her mother in the roadster. Michael laughed and kissed her lightly.

"I've never had a real home, Judy," he said stubbornly. "My life has been a dreary succession of boardinghouse junk furnished rooms. But this knew, too, a different kind. My ambition of 'pride of ownership' was beginning to believe that it did not belong in Michael's dictionary. That pride of title, ownership, was not related to pride of possession.

"Now you'll, Sweet," he added, leaping out of the car, to open the door for her, which proved the poor new clothing."

Judy's troubled gray eyes veiled before the humble pleading of Michael's tender smile, and she closed her out lips firmly on the objections that had raged through her mind all the way home from town.

"……It's all so brain-taking, Michael," she evaded uneasily. "I guess I'll have to get used to it first!"

"Bill Cummings is moving out of his flat in Park," he offered, "and if you'd like it, we could save a lot of running around looking for a place. It's in a good neighborhood, too."

"How much is it a month, Michael?" Judy demanded directly, not daring to wait for the high-pressure salesmanship that invariably succeed away her reasoning. "We've got to begin to accomplish something in this plan, or I'll have plaid hair trying to keep the figures straight in my mind!"

"Listen, Judy," Michael insisted "I'm quite well able to support you in the manner to which you're accustomed." He stopped short at her disarmingly, and—then chuckled—"Well until you see the place," he promised.

"I absolutely refuse to look at it, Judy insisted stubbornly, "until you tell me how much the rent is, Michael!"

"Sixty a month," Michael confessed. "But that's only fifteen a week, Judy, and it's worth a hundred! View of the river; grand neighborhood. You'll be crazy about it!"

Judy pondered, as she packed her modest trousseau that night, and stored the rest of her things for moving, when they got back. Michael's words weren't more prophetic than he realized. At least she was nearly crazy with fear as she tried to budget sixty dollars a month—five a month payments on the furniture, living expenses, clothing, incidentals and insurance.

She picked up the thin, flat little budget book, and held it against her heart, her gray eyes dark with misgiving as she realized that there was no possible manner in which the Government statistics could ever be brought to balance with the program Michael was gaily, insensately running into.

A cooling ray of late autumn sunshine crept truculently through the stained-glass window and fell softly across Judy's shining dark waves of chestnut hair. The gardenias pinned to her traveling suit sent a faintly cloying fragrance of heavy scent into her nostrils, and the words, solemn, beautiful, and simple, brought a lump into her throat.

"I, Judy Ellis, take Michael Reed," straight, very tall and handsome and debonair in his new brand new English tweed suit. His amber eyes were lighted with glowing tenderness and excitement, and his fingers, warm and reassuring, had closed over Judy's instantly cold as he gripped her tightly, possessively.

The tiny platinum ring felt cold as Michael slipped it down Judy's finger, but her heart was colder as she tried to banish the terrible sense of fears, and failed miserably before the forbidding logic of the budget book, and its stern disagreement with their financial program.

"I'm being silly and foolish," she tried to force herself out of the mood, into the gay, flirting excitement that was Michael's. "Probably he sold Mr. Lawless that policy, and all this anxiety is senseless!"

She determined to ask him as Michael turned out of the boulevard on their way to Maine, and the two weeks honeymoon.

"Something old" she had solved by not buying the smart wardrobe she might had planned all summer, yet, in case they did marry immediately. The car and luggage, borrowed from the cleaner's frasher and very serviceable, and she hoped Michael wouldn't notice.

"Something new" was the pigskin purse Michael had brought her that morning, after signing the lease on Hill's place. "Something borrowed" was her office-girl friend's frantic from handkerchief. And "something blue" the violets Michael had had put in the car seat, in their box, to pin on after the ceremony. "Because," he had pointed out, "you'll probably want to keep those gardenias!"

Michael's smart new luggage, his new tweed suit and topcoat added to the overall appearance of a success costly old roadster. They ran well for the little chunky car, a bad fit of rice, and tiptoe to look for the old shoes they had planned to track down, before they got away.

"Happy, Mrs. Michael Swayne?" he asked softly, releasing her limp fingers in his big fist. "Glad we're catching up with that honeymoon? He lifted her hand and kissed her gloved fingers, and the ice melted, the fear died down in Judy's heart.

"Michael," she whispered thickly, "Michael, I am happy! So happy I can't think!"

They drove on, into the purple dusk, and reached Old Orchard before eight. That is, they reached a point five miles south of Old Orchard. A blow-out halted them, and after a first hasty examination, Michael sat down on the running board to think.

"It would have to happen right off the bat……on the very first day of our honeymoon!" he said disgustedly.

"But haven't you a spare, Michael?" Judy asked practically, and he shook his head.

"Of course not," he said. "How could there be a spare at the price I got this tub for? Nothing for it but to telephone for help," he concluded. "Darned old junk! Wish I had bought that new Packard I wouldn't have been much more a month!"

Judy did not answer—did not speak. She was beyond asking new about the policy Mr. Lawless was to have signed for. She was beyond asking how much Michael still owed on the car she had thought he paid cash for. She sat down weakly, and watched him crawl into the road, and raise his arms to signal an approaching motorist.

CHAPTER V.

HONEYMOON

The car swished sharply, bumped wildly along the extreme shoulder of the road, and then picked up speed and roared away into the night. Michael sat grimly, the winking rear light, hands on hips, face grim.

"Broken motorists!" he growled savagely. "Fraternity of the road!" He turned the third to a moment in the same fashion, with variations of a shouted, angry abuse, yells of fright and excitement, and shot on up.

"They're afraid, Michael," she pointed out. "They think we're holding up banditry. We're in the middle of a lonely spot, and the papers are full of robbery tricks."

"Well," Michael declared disgustedly, "there's no alternative other than hiking to the nearest telephone. You stay in the car, Judy, and I'll be back as soon as I can find help."

Judy stood watching him stride off down the road, his broad shoulders rigid with disgust, even the tilt of his head proud of his anger. The shadowy firs loomed dark, purple and mysterious all around her. Even the sound of his heels ringing down the hard asphalt dwindled to nothingness.

"Wait, Michael!" she cried, shudering in sudden, nameless dread. "Wait! I'm coming too! I……I'm afraid!"

Michael did not hear her until she was almost up to him. He was too disgusted to hear anything but the marching tramp of his angry thoughts. Hicks! Bunch of hayseed farmers, thinking he was a stick-up. Crazy, cowardly nincies!

"Michael!" Judy gasped on a long, terrified, sobbing breath. "Michael, I can't stay there alone! I……I'd rather walk with you!"

Michael stopped and stared down at her pale, tense face, and the ghost of a grin tugged at his mouth.

"Don't blame you, Sweet," he said frostily. "I wouldn't exactly enjoy it myself. A couple of city dumbbells, hey? He did not voice his fear about the car and the luggage. It was a chance he'd have to gamble on, as he had no key to the roadster. It was made before the days of locking door handles and ignition.

Michael tucked her hand inside his big gloved fist and they tramped on. Stars winked gravely through the soft curtain of darkness, and wind sighed gently through the towering cathedral spires of firs.

Judy's feet hurt, and she stumbled and wrenched off a slipper heel. With the aid of Michael's cigarette lighter, they tried to pull it back on again, but without success.

Three miles down the empty country road they saw a light in a farmhouse, and stumbling and hobbling on her heelless slipper, they walked up through the tilled yard and knocked on the door.

"No telephone," the farmer said sourly. "Nearest one is a mile down the road."

"Can my wife stay here with you while I go on and telephone?" Michael inquired, and the farmer did not relax his attitude of bristling suspicion.

"For a dollar, I'll drive the two of you!" he offered, and Michael assented.

"It's worth it. I wouldn't walk another mile with that God-forsaken road for five, if I didn't have to!" he said fervently.

They called the garage, paid the farmer for his driver trip, and then began walking slowly back toward their disabled roadster.

It was almost 6am when they finally paid the garage man for the new tire, the new tube, and started looking for the tourist camp he recommended.

No longer needing a guide, and realizing that the priests were overtaking them, being fleeter of foot than he, he swept the girl into his arms and sped through the chambers of the temple toward the inner wall. Through that, across the courtyard and through the outer wall they passed.

Still the priests pursued, urged on by the screaming Oak. Out across the deserted valley they fled; and now the priests were losing ground, for though Le to the ground, but as he did so her arm encircled his neck and she pressed close, her cheek against his breast, and burnt into tears.

Suddenly darkness was upon them, and the sounds of pursuit ceased. The men of Spar have no love for darkness. Then Tarzan paused and lowered short crooked legs could not compete with the speed of Tarzan's clean-limbed stride, even though he was burdened by the weight of Le.

"Make for the outer walls by the shortest route, Le," directed Tarzan, and the girl sped on winged feet, heading him through the labyrinthine corridors of the ruins, until they suddenly broke into the chamber of the seven pillars of gold, and then Tarzan knew the way.

"Wait! I'm coming too! I……I'm afraid, Michael!"

Michael did not hear her until she was almost up to him. He was too disgusted to hear anything but the marching tramp of his angry thoughts. Hicks! Bunch of hayseed farmers, thinking he was a stick-up. Crazy, cowardly ninnies!

It was almost 6am when they finally paid the garage man for the new tire, the new tube, and started looking for the tourist camp he recommended.

"Twenty-two dollars for a tire and tube, Michael," Judy wailed softly, "and eleven dollars tow charges!"

"Never mind, Sweet. We'll make it up somewhere, else. Blowouts aren't a daily occurrence, you know." He went in to register, and Judy looked around the attractive little camp.

Over one cottage was an electric sign: "Rooms—Hot and cold running," she thought. "Hell never know!"

Another cottage was "Tourists—Meals on one end, and "Showers—Women" on the other.

"Michael," Judy whispered, when he came out from signing the register, "let's see if we can buy some candy bars and bread and eggs and make a light lunch. There's a kitchenette."

"Bless Michael said firmly. "Nothing doing! I'm famished, Judy. I want a good thick steak with French fries, and hot coffee! The wilderness gives a man an appetite. No, milk-and-toast invalid diet for mine!"

Judy sighed, and climbed in after him, the vision of saving a dollar fifty vanishing into thin air ahead of Michael's virtuous indignation.

"I'll have to make it up on lunch, then," she said to herself, "and cornetto," and adjusting this was finished. "Tourists—Meals"

Centre Hastings Teachers Hold Convention at Tweed

Tweed—The Ambulo Convention of the teachers of Centre Hastings was held in the United Church at Tweed on Thursday and Friday, October 10th and 11th, with an attendance of 150 teachers. Sessions were held in the morning and the afternoon of each day. The opening exercises were conducted on Thursday morning by Rev. R. Somerville Johnson and on Friday morning by Rev. W. G. Hope Swayne.

The address was presided over by Miss Isabelle Handley, principal of Deloro Public School, who gave a splendid presidential address in child training, emphasizing especially the value of the teacher's personality.

Mr. Harold Mott, principal of Moira Public School, and delegate to the O.S.A. gave a comprehensive report of the proceedings of the Easter Convention of Ontario teachers held in Toronto.

Mr. A. W. McCuaig, B. A., LL.B., addressed the teachers with reference to their work. He emphasized the importance of proper classification of all children in order that they may be able to grasp readily the knowledge imparted to them. Thoroughness of preparation and the presentation of lessons by the teacher are most essential elements of successful teaching. Mr. McCuaig offered many valuable suggestions which will prove useful to hereafter mentioned and experienced teachers alike.

In the afternoon session a lesson in writing was taught to a class of girls by Mr. R. Bird, principal of Tweed Consolidated School. Mr. Geo. Orwell, inspector of public university regulations for permanent certificates as now required by the Department of Education.

Dr. W. A. Paul, Tweed, was the guest speaker on Thursday evening. The subject of his splendid address was "Closing the Gates to Infection." Dr. Charles Mayo," stated Dr. Paul, "has said that the greatest step in preventive medicine would come from the discovery of a solid date or specific per cent of all deaths are due to infection, then over seventy per cent of all infection enters the body above the collar (the mouth, nose, throat and eyes) and that sixty per cent at least of this infection enters through the mouth."

"Much of this infection is now located around the teeth, which furnish an ideal location for the development of infection. The importance of proper care of the teeth is thus shown; not only that if one tooth is removed, the use of four other teeth is greatly impaired, but the importance of health in children is a work in which the teacher can do a great deal. She can interest the children under her charge in the right mode surrounding the care of the teeth, and the correct diet for producing sound, healthy teeth. Teeth should be brushed with a rotary motion.

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Grandview, France, Oct. 16—(CP)—Pierre Jacquet, 70, has just begun learning to read and write. He was born deaf and dumb, and his parents decided he was unable to learn. But Pierre, who is now a grandfather, has been taught by a nephew with a full length beard.

Bel Ombre, Seychelle Islands—Joseph Desiles, 38, an ex-jail bird, has made a new start in life. He was released from jail after serving a period of less than six months' sentence for shooting a woman, and is now driving the full length of the main thoroughfare at 75 miles an hour, passing seven cars on the left hand side, struck two other machines and escaped a department of justice squad and the attendance of a judge, without action he crushed into a passing fence.

Webster, Mass., Oct. 6 (AP)—A squirrel scampered into the five o'clock Saturday night rush hour shopping current off 7th St. here, and before he was run down by a motor car driven by Mrs. William C. Freer, was called to the Freer apartment. Mrs. Freer opened the door to find the squirrel in a state of panic, cowering in a small pool of water, and fled, calling for help.

York, Pa., Oct. 16 (CP)—Dizzy Dean's pitching arm was not the greatest part produced by a girl baseball player, it was revealed by Miss Lucy Rose, 18, who said: "I'm a better pitcher than Dizzy Dean ever was. I'm not bragging, but he never signed me because I wouldn't let him."

Chatham, Oct. 16 (CP)—With the thermometer registering 90 degrees in the shade, Lieut.-Col. W. H. Smith, officer commanding the 109th Regiment, Essex Fusiliers, ordered the men to parade in their "blues", clothes they wore during the South African war which had not yet been issued.

Washington, Oct. 16 (CP)—Caught on a hidden microphone in the Nimrod River here, Arsene Vallieres, 72, of Victoriaville, was fatally injured yesterday when struck by a Canadian National Railways passenger train. He died a younger man than Vallieres, managed to reach safety.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 16 (CP)—A new complaint against civic officials was filed yesterday against Welfare Administrator Frank G. Hays by A.M. Thomas Hayward.

Ald. Hayward charged that Mr. Hays has public funds in connection with the Public Welfare Committee. He said he would prefer Mr. Hays to tell the committee about it than that they had any business interfering in welfare matters.

Calgary, Oct. 16 (CP)—Calgary's first hockey game on artificial ice was played last night. Two squads of major and minor professional players met last night.

Toumsock Favorite Until Revealed Suffering From Heel Bug

Newmarket, England, Oct. 16 — (CP Cable)—Sir Alfred Butt's three-year-old Near Relation won the 97th renewal of the Cesarewitch Stakes, here today over the two and one quarter miles stretch. The French entry, Mahmoud, a three-year-old owned by Princess De Faucigny-Lucinge, was second and Hoplite, Captain Lionel Montagu's four-year-old, finished third.

Near Relation, which stole the race from such favorites as Sir Abe Bailey's Toumsock, a 3 brown, belonging to Sir Ian Lavi ted, of Yoxford and carried 107 pounds, Captain, a brown colt by Flagstone out of Neptune, carried 106 pounds; Hoplite, a three-year-old by Windsor out of Hegemony, bear 99 weight of 112 pounds.

Toumsock's Toumsock had ruled strong favorite up until this morning, when it was revealed he suffered from a heel bug. His odds, formerly 13-2 lowered to 5-1 and finally, The Cesarewitch which with the Cambridgeshire run over the same distance, is the last of the great, double of the English fall racing programme was first run in 1839. It was won last year by Marshall Field's Bletchley.

EXECUTION DATE NOW INDEFINITE

Hauptmann's Attorney Al leges Flaws In Constitution al Rights Violated

Trenton, N.J., Oct. 16.—(AP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann's execution was stayed indefinitely today when the Court of Errors and Appeals granted him an opportunity to appeal his conviction in the Lindbergh kidnap-murder case to the United States Supreme Court.

Six days ago the Court of Errors and Appeals, in a unanimous opinion, upheld Hauptmann's conviction. The State applied last Friday for the order which was stayed today.

Should the Supreme Court refuse to review Hauptmann's appeal, the new electrocution date would be fixed for some time late in December or January.

The Court gave Robert Rosecrans, one of the defence attorneys, 20 days in which to ask the Supreme Court to review legations Hauptmann's constitutional rights were violated in the trial.

Great Britain, France Urge Restriction Move On League Non-Members

Conciliation Prospect Bad, State Tha Offic

STRENGTHEN PACT

France Denies Britain Asked to Withdraw Fleet

(By Richard G. Massock)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Oct. 16 (AP)—Officials disclosed today France and Great Britain were asking Washington if the United States is willing to restrict its imports from Italy in case such a sanction against Premier Mussolini's nation is applied by the League of Nations.

These same authorities also stated another question is being asked of other powers, including Germany, Japan and Brazil which are not members of the League.

It was stated the exploration is being conducted through the Ambassadors of those nations.

The attitudes of the non-member countries is sought because of the fact Yugoslavia, Austria, Spain and certain other countries including the Scandinavian are regarded as opposed to the plan for a restriction on purchases from Italy.

Strengthen Pact

France and Great Britain were reported unofficially to be considered strengthening the pact of Locarno as the tenth anniversary of its signing found Europe anxious over the question of sanctions against Italy.

A gloomy outlook for Premier Laval's previous efforts toward a peaceful settlement of the East African conflict was reported in official circles.

"The prospect for conciliation is bad," said one official, indicating Premier Laval failed to receive any encouragement in his talks this week with the Italian and British ambassadors to Paris.

A report Britain was inclining toward a process of automatic aid for France under the Locarno agreement without awaiting a League of Nations decision if an unprovoked case France was attacked by Germany, was published in the newspaper L'Oeuvre.

France has long been trying to obtain such an agreement under the series of diplomatic instruments for peace and arbitration, drawn up at Locarno in 1925, whereby Germany, Belgium, France, Great Britain and Italy mutually guaranteed peace in Western Europe and Germany undertook to arbitrate about disputes with France, Belgium, Poland and Czechoslovakia.

Reference indicated these efforts might have been helped by Germany's withdrawal from the League.

Deny Report

L'Echo de Paris was the only French newspaper to publish a report that Premier Laval earlier in the diplomatic negotiations asked Britain to take her fleet out of the Mediterranean to relax tension with Italy—a report, which officials denied.

Another plan, reported to have been advanced by Italy, for settlement of the Ethiopian crisis, is considered in authoritative French quarters to be inacceptable similar to the League of Nations or to Ethiopia.

$20,000 DAMAGE AT HAMILTON

Blaze Confined to One Building And Loss is Covered

Hamilton, Oct. 16—(CP)—Fire starting in the basement caused heavy loss to the stock and plant of the E. R. Parkhill Company here early today. The damage about $20,000, is fully covered by insurance.

The blaze occurred in a brick building located next door to the plant of the E. R. Hobbes Lumber Mill and firemen strove successfully to keep the flames within the Spice Company premises. They were successful in their efforts.

Dominion-Provincial Conference in Offing

Quebec, Oct. 16 (CP)—A Dominion-Provincial Conference will be called early in November, Premier Taschereau was advised today in a telegram from Premier-elect King.

The message requested Mr. Taschereau to arrange his engagements to leave clear the early part of the month. The definite date will be decided later, the telegram indicated, but Mr. Taschereau said it was definite the conference would be early next month.

TRADE SANCTION IS NOT YET SET AGAINST ITALY

Italian Planes Batter Ethiopian Villages, Kill Villagers

ETHIOPIANS ENTRENCH

Italians Admit Aim is Conquest Even at Risk of European War

(By The Canadian Press)

No action to impose sanctions today on the proposition to the Economic Sanctions Committee of the League of Nations that League states should buy nothing from Italy, yet Anthony Eden, British Minister for League affairs, emerged from the meeting of the committee in high good humor.

In Paris officials said France and Great Britain were asking non-member countries whether they would be prepared to restrict imports from Italy.

Comment as Case of World War

A government spokesman at Rome today said the Italian Government was well aware of Laval's attitude but added Italy was determined to end the Ethiopian conflict at the cost of "a European war."

Italian planes pounded Dessie, important road and rail junction and big operating base in Ogaden Province, Ethiopia, today, reaching Diredawa, bombing two villages.

An exchange telegraph dispatch from the headquarters of the Italian forces in Eritrea declared Italians had encircled the army of Ras Seyoum, Ethiopian northern commander, apparently planned to make a stand along a line running from Adi Ti Sabota, more than 100 miles south of Adigrat.

Ethiopians Retreat

Rome, Oct. 16 (AP)—A Government spokesman stated today Italy was well aware of Premier Laval's efforts for a peaceful settlement of the Ethiopian conflict and doubted the French statesman had success.

Italian officials were in agreement with Premier Mussolini's determination to conquer Ethiopia no matter what happens.

In the fierce campaign in East Africa it went ahead while authoritative Italian sources declared a train from bombing Addis Ababa, the capital, depended entirely upon the weather.

No Italian Peace Move

The Italian government today said Italy was not a party to any peace negotiations and that no Italian government offers to anyone. He declared Italy was in a much better position than at the end of the military successes in Ethiopia than at the time of the Italo-Austrian negotiations in Paris last month with Premier Laval and Pierre Flandin.

In any case, it was officially explained, no settlement would be considered which did not carry Italy's three demands; Expansion, control of the Red Sea coast and complete disarmament of Ethiopia.

Italians Admit Aim

An official source stated the Ethiopian people must be disarmed what he called their practice of painting Red Crosses at random on the roofs of houses in the hope of forestalling bombardments.

It was declared when the Italian troops entered Aduwa practically every dwelling was decorated with the Red Cross Society emblem and Italy protested against this practice to the League of Nations.

British Cabinet Favors Sanctions Of Economic Type

London, Oct. 16 (AP)—The Star asserted today Premier Laval of France was in an unsafe political position and that his Cabinet of Ministers was only a matter of a few days or weeks.

London, Oct. 16 (CP-Havas)—The British Cabinet today was reported to have drawn up legislation to be proposed to the House of Commons when it meets October 23, calling for immediate application by Great Britain of financial and economic penalties against Italy as proposed by the League of Nations.

The Cabinet meeting was devoted exclusively to foreign affairs with particular attention to questions of penalties to be imposed against Italy.

HUGE BRIDGE NEARING COMPLETION

Yerba Buena Island, in the middle of San Francisco Bay, has now been tied to San Francisco with two miles of steel twisted wire rope to hold horizontally for bridge workers to walk upon. The $77,000,000 bridge, San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge is rapidly taking shape. In the foreground is a 474-foot steel tower rising nearly 50 feet above the top of Yerba Buena Island, where the bridge anchorages are being built.

War at a Glance

(By The Associated Press)

ATTACK ROME

Italians continued to bomb Mohagolan Military points.

An Italian reconnaissance flight disclosed Ras Seyoum, Ethiopian Northern Commander, has dug in to make a stand more than 100 miles north of Aduwa as Fascist drive toward Makale.

Addis Ababa rejoiced in the belief Italians would fall into a natural trap of Ravines and Mountains, fashioned by the prepared southward. Fear was felt for the safety of Haile Selassie, Emperor of Ethiopia".

DIPLOMATIC MOVES:

Official circles in Paris regarded Premier Laval's efforts to bring peace as virtually useless.

The League of Nations sanctions committee was urged to endorse a "buy nothing from Italy" campaign.

No action was taken.

Rome officialdom asserted nothing could alter Italy's course.

In London, unconfirmed reports said Premier Stanley Baldwin refused to meet Premier Mussolini's envoy.

Washington, N.S. Oct. 1.—(AP)—Prime Minister George W. Forbes announced in Parliament today the New Zealand Cruiser Dionede, has been detailed for service under the British Admiralty as Great Britain's request.

He expressed the conviction Parliament members of all shades of opinion would endorse the Government's decision adding he regretted departure of the Dionede would be for purely temporary measure".

Port Said, Egypt, Oct. 16.—(AP) —Prince Ismail Daoud, nephew of King Fuad, left with three Egyptian doctors for Djibouti, French Somaliland today to organize hospital service for Ethiopia. An initial consignment of medical supplies, valued at several hundred pounds, already is en route from Cairo.

Dessye, Ethiopia, Oct. 16.—(CP)—Ethiopian American' aviator has done most of the air reconnoitering so far undertaken by the Ethiopian army, it was learned today.

The flyer, John Robinson of Chicago, has had several narrow escapes from Italian anti-aircraft batteries in his outdated plane.

Addis Ababa, Oct. 16.—(CP-Havas)—Bringing with him 120 pounds of platinum valued at 1,000,000 francs (pre-war gold) an Italian engineer named Bisotti, his wife and three children arrived in this war capital today. He brought his valuable metal on the back of a mule after 15 days' journey in the interior.

Geneva, Oct. 16.—(CP-Havas)—Three of the world's largest oil companies, one of them the Standard Oil Company, are discussing the possibility of jointly cutting off all their shipments of fuel to Italy, according to reports. The Journal De Geneve commented on them. The Royal Dutch and the Anglo-Persian Oil Companies are the other two concerns involved in the discussions.

Gibraltar, Oct. 16.—(AP)—The British battle cruiser Renown, was arrested in the Admiralty Harbor, preparatory to her departure for Alexandria, Egypt, where she will join other capitals in the Mediterranean with other ships of the British fleet stationed here.

The Renown was refloated with the assistance of tugs.

HERRIDGE TENDERS HIS RESIGNATION AT WASHINGTON

Resignation Will Take Effect When Accepted by Government

HISTORY OF OFFICE

Ambassadorial Posts Have Not Been Considered Political

Ottawa, Oct. 16 (CP)—Hon. W. D. Herridge has tendered his resignation as Canadian Minister to Washington, it was officially announced today. The resignation is to take effect upon its acceptance by the new government.

Mr. Herridge will proceed at once winding up his activities in the Canadian legation in Washington.

While the resignation of Hon. C. Howard Ferguson as Canadian High Commissioner in London, has been forecast, there was no announcement about it. Mr. Ferguson is busily engaged in Geneva at the League of Nations meetings.

The policy of Canadian ministers at Washington and other foreign countries have not been regarded as political appointments. When the Conservative Government came into power, the Hon. Vincent Massey had resigned from the Washington legation and had been appointed to be High Commissioner in London. Premier Bennett at that time announced that the retiring Canadian High Commissioner in London should be a man of the same political views as the Government. Mr. Massey retired and Mr. Ferguson was appointed.

However, Sir Herbert Marler, retiring from the service of the Government to Tokyo and Hon. Vincent Massey to Paris, resigned in their positions. Mr. Herridge was appointed to the vacant Washington post by the Liberal Government. His appointment was criticized by Mr. Bing during the campaign.

Recheck of Votes Gives Liberal Lead

Winnipeg, Oct. 16 (CP)—A recheck of votes in Souris give George MacDonald, Liberal candidate, an apparent margin of six votes over R. F. Willis, Conservative, when election returns were announced yesterday, the returning officer for the constituency said.

He was not able, however, to give the revised complete figures and Mr. Willis does not concede Mr. MacDonald's election. Figures for the Conservative Pioneer Party gave Willis 4,507 and MacDonald 4,501 with a recount is considered certain in any event.

STEEL PIONEER DIES

Hamilton, Oct. 16 (CP)—Wm. A. Otis, Pioneer Pioneer in steel industry in Canada, died at his home here last night after a long illness.

BANQUET HELD AT VICTORIA AVE. CHURCH

The Sunday School room of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church was the scene last night of the first of a series of monthly banquets to be held by the Anti Card Young Men's Class throughout the season. There was a good attendance present and enthusiasm was keen for a splendid fellowship and good program for the coming year.

SCHOOL PUPILS ENJOY CARNIVAL

School children of the city were guests of the Kiwanis Club yesterday afternoon at a special performance of the Kiwanis Karnival program in the Arena yesterday afternoon. Many of the children marched in a merry procession headed by clowns that led the way to the Arena doors. The vaudeville artists found in the children a highly appreciative audience, each item being rewarded with insistent cheers. Kiwanian thoughtfulness in playing host to the children was more than repaid by the enjoyment the small guests found in the entertainment.

UNABLE TO PAY FINE YOUTH GOES "ON HILL"

Charged with removing and destroying Ontario Highway Traffic signs a Thurlow youth yesterday appeared in local police court and was found guilty by Magistrate J. J. Butler. At the time the young man was given a week in which to raise the imposed fine. Failing to do so, however, the youth gave himself up to the Provincial Police and this morning and was lodged in the county jail, a ten day sentence having been previously imposed in default of the payment of the fine.

Fred Hubbell, Trenton youth, appeared before P. S. Deacon, Justice of the Peace, yesterday charged with fraud. Hubbell, who was arrested by Provincial Police, was not asked to plead, but remanded in custody until October 24. He was arrested on a warrant issued at Tweed and alleged to have fraudulently obtained a sum of money in that town.

WINS FIRST LIBERAL VOTE IN 39 YEARS

An elector, who has resided in the township of Thurlow for the past 39 years on Monday last won his first Liberal vote in over 39 years. Naturally the time was long, but as the electors say, "it was worth waiting for." The cause of this is that the elector was a resident of the riding of East Hastings both Provincially and Provincially. The distribution in 1929 brought Thurlow into the new riding of North Hastings.

Election Bets Are Paid With Much Merriment

Two election bets were paid in full yesterday afternoon in Belleville, much to the merriment of the personal populace. One local citizen, who had lost his wager, was forced to wheel the victor in a wheelbarrow from the corner of Bridge and Front streets, to the Upper Bridge, the loser being called upon to "set 'em up" as the party arrived at certain beverage rooms. Another term of the bet was that the victor was to go extra good to every time the loser set the barrow down during the trip.

A student from the Belleville Collegiate caused considerable excitement when he paid his election bet after school hours. With his trousers rolled far past the knees he had to kick a potato in front of him, along the sidewalk of Front street from Bridge street to Campbell street. The student said his bet was then "abandoned" by his sorrow.

POLICE BLOTTER

Last night's sudden drop in the temperature drove eleven transients to the police station where they sought warm sleeping quarters for the night.

Brockville police reported the theft of a black colored Chevrolet coupe, 1928 model, last night. The vehicle was not seen entering Belleville, however.

Thos. H. Smith, 31 Bellas Street, reported a slight accident early last evening. Mr. Smith informed the authorities he was driving his automobile east on Pine Street, when a little boy, aged eight years, ran out from behind a parked car and ran directly into the fender of Mr. Smith's car. The little fellow was knocked down, but fortunately unhurt. It was later discovered.

THREE ARRESTED IN CHARGE OF CAR

Will be Charged in Local Court With Theft of Car

After allegedly stealing an automobile in Belleville and later breaking and entering a gasoline station in Havelock three in charge of car were arrested early today by Provincial Constable David Sylvester near Percy Corners following a wild chase over the north county roads. The car had allegedly stolen Arthur Shaw's automobile, which had been parked in front of his home, 216 Church Street last evening. The matter was reported to local police, who immediately broadcast the theft to outlying districts. The police gave their names as George Decker and Fred Legault of Windsor and Harry Sherman of Toronto.

Mr. Shaw's car a 1930 model Chevrolet coach licensed W-4098 was recovered when the trio were taken into custody by Constable Sylvester. Informations were sworn out against the three men and warrants issued for their arrest charging them with the theft of Mr. Shaw's motor car, Chief Kidd announced today. The trio will also face charges of breaking, entering and theft at the Havelock gasoline station. The trio will be brought to Belleville tomorrow.

Experimental Work of Belleville Police Officer Considered Highly Important —Loud Speaker Carried on Cycle—Wave For Local Use May Be Secured.

Although it is still in its experimental stages, Motorcycle Patrolman Bert Delaney, of the Ontario Provincial Police, is appearing on his detail with his motorcycle equipped for police radio reception. Securely fixed between the handlebars is a loud speaker, while the chassis of the receiving set is mounted at the rear of the machine.

Originally the system was to have been, and is yet expected to be, purely local with a broadcasting unit and transmitter at the Belleville Police Station. The idea of police broadcast was first suggested by City Police Sergeant Arthur Booth, who takes a marked interest in the building of radio receiving and transmitting sets. At present Sergeant Booth has a small low frequency portable transmitting set, that he has successfully broadcast through, from his home to a neighbor's receiving set.

The suggestion of police radio in Belleville was first brought to light some months ago, when Sergeant Booth commenced operations in building his transmitter. Although there has been no actual conversation between Sergeant Booth at the police station broadcasting unit and Traffic Officer Delaney while on his detail, it has been definitely established by these two that contact can be established, but before contact they must first procure a low frequency wave from the Federal Government.

When the wave length is set, and the experiment is successful it will be the first police radio broadcast in the Province of Ontario. Sergeant Booth expects to equip the Belleville police car with a receiving set through which contact between the police car, while patrolling and the police station may always be established. In the meantime Patrolman Delaney is able to pick up outside broadcasting broadcasts as well as the conventional programs.

REARMAMENT, REFORM ISSUE

British Electors Will Have Whirlwind Election Campaign

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 16—(CP Cable)—Great Britain faces a whirlwind election campaign on the twin program of rearmament and social reform. The stage is set, Parliament reassembles Tuesday. Both Premier Baldwin and Foreign Secretary Sir Samuel Hoare will participate in the opening debate on foreign policy. From then on the parliamentary mill will grind out the remaining routine and a swift dissolution will follow.

All that remains to be determined, apparently, is the election date. On this political doctors differ. Prophecies vary from Nov. 11 to Nov. 21.

Parties Organized

In the constituencies the parties are beginning their ground work. The government expects to contest all but 20 of 615 seats. The Nationalist (followers of Sir John Simon) Liberals and the National Labor candidates have been backing the local Conservative associations.

Former Premier Ramsay MacDonald who has not been making any public speeches since Mr. Baldwin took the Premiership, told his constituents at Murren last night "In the present state of the world we have to make provision for war. If there were a European war if the disciplined agression against us — what would you say if a flight of airplanes passed clear them off?"

Protection by Armament

"We must be able to protect you from such kind of barbarian warfare," continued Mr. MacDonald. "We are going to make our defenses good so that when the aggressor appears, if he does appear, he will be kept at arms length—the proper place for an aggressor."

Labor before election subcommittee met today to consider the situation. A bulletin issued by the party thus defines the issues from Labor's point of view, "the election will be fought by the Tories on the traditional flags lines, with this difference—they will use the League of Nations as a screen for jingoism".

Arms in Name of Security

"The piling up of armaments will be demanded in the name of security," continues the bulletin.

THIS DEER IS INSEPARABLE FROM EQUINE FRIEND

About six weeks ago this deer, a stray one, appeared on a farm at Greyrigg, Westmoreland, England. It was lame and promptly attached itself to an old mare. They are inseparable now, although the deer is quite well again. The deer runs away at the approach of humans, and this photo was obtained only with the aid of a telephoto lens.

4,000 TRIBESMEN CAPTURE TOWN

Report Advance of 45 Miles into Italian Somaliland

Djibouti, French Somaliland, 8.30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 15.—(Delayed in transmission) —(AP)— Four thousand Ethiopian tribesmen, led by Colonel Siwiank, Dutch veteran of the Boer war, have invaded Italian Somaliland and reported today an advance of 45 miles.

Colonel Siwiank reported he and his men went into the Italian colony at Dolo near the Kenya frontier and had captured the town of Lugh.

It was Dolo that the Italians claimed to have captured ten days ago.

Stirling and District

Stirling—The annual Convention of the Religious Education Council, which embraces Stirling, Rawdon and Marmora townships, was held in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, Stirling, on the afternoon and evening of Tuesday, Oct. 15th., when representatives were present from the fifteen Sabbath Schools in the district. A most capable staff of officers which have directed the activities of the organization for the past twelve months are as follows: Hon. President, Mr. J. F. Baker of St. Mark's Anglican Church, Marmora, who is also county representative of the organization; Mr. W. J. Johnston of Harold, has very successfully acted in the office of President during the absence and departure from this district of Mr. Gerald Green, who was elected President at the last Conference. Vice President, Mr. W. J. Cottrell, of Trinity Anglican Church, Stirling; Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. Hiram Mumby, Springbrook.

Department Superintendents

Children's Work, Miss K. McCoomb, of Roseglen.

Boy's Work, Mr. William Jack, Stirling.

Girl's Work—Miss Lois Johnston of Stirling.

Young Peoples' Work, Mrs. Thos. McMullen, Stirling, R. R. 1.

Dept. of Home Religion, Mrs. W. G. Swayne, Bonarlaw.

Teacher's Training, Rev. J. A. Koffend of Stirling.

Missionary, Mrs. W. J. Sharpe, Stirling, R. R. 2.

Temperance, Mr. Ernest Searles, Harold R. R. 1.

The afternoon session was opened at two p.m. with a short devotional period, conducted by Rev. E. W. Rowland of St. Paul's United Church, Stirling. Mr. Robt. Hudson Sunday School Supt. of St. Andrew's Church, welcomed the many guests on behalf of all the governing bodies of the church and particularly the Sabbath School teaching staff. Mr. W. J. Johnston, in the president's address expressed his great pleasure at seeing such a large representation on hand. The next number on the program was a detailed report of the achievements of the various department superintendents in the past year. Pleasing reports were given by the following officers—

Children's Work—Miss McCoomb.

Young People's Work—Mrs. Thos. McMullen.

Missionary—Mrs. W. J. Sharpe.

Temperance—Mr. E. Searles.

Reports on the work done in the Depts. of Girls' Work; Adult Division; and Home Religion were read by the secretary in the absence of the Superintendents. The report of the Secretary-Training Division was the only one that was incomplete. Rev. Arthur Dunnett then favoured the gathering with a tenor solo "Abide With Me" (by Ashley), with Mrs. J. Koffend at the organ. Following the offering was a very interesting Round Table Conference which was led by Rev. Paul Hulin, Stirling. The questions were answered by the various Dept. leaders under the direction of Rev. R. B. Elliott of South Cayuga, Provincial representative of the Church Religious Education Council for Toronto.

The afternoon session was brought to a close by Rev. H. E. Leckie and the gathering retired to the church parlours for the splendid supper arranged by the ladies of St. Andrew's Church and some of the senior members of the Sunday School.

The Evening Session

Promptly at 8 p.m. the evening session with a devotional period conducted by Rev. R. S. McCausland of St. John's Anglican Church of Stirling. The report of the nominating Committee which was composed of the Sunday school superintendents and ministers of the various churches represented was followed by the election of the following officers for the coming year:

Hon. President—Mr. J. F. Baker of Bonarlaw.

President—Mr. W. J. Johnston, Harold.

Vice —Mr. W. J. Cottrell, Marmora.

Secretary-Treasurer—Mrs. Hiram Mumby, Springbrook.

Department Superintendents

Children's Work,— Mrs. S. J. Elliott.

Boy's Work—Rev. H. H. Lackie.

Girl's Work—Miss Lois Johnston.

Young People's Work— Mrs. T. McMullen.

Adult Division—Rev. H. W. Foley.

Dept. of Home Religion—Mrs. W. G. Swayne.

Teacher's Training—Rev. J. A. Koffend.

Missionary—Mr. L. Maddojohn.

Temperance—Mr. E. Searles.

The very impressive ceremony of the installation of officers was performed by Rev. G. W. Holmes-worth, after which Mr. Arthur Dunnett offered as a solo "I Heard the Voice" (by Gounod). Mr. J. F. Baker was then called upon to present the Association Banner to the school gaining the greatest number of points in the general proficiency test. St. Paul's Sunday school was the winner for the second year and Supt. F. T. Hulin received the Banner. The gathering then officially accepted an invitation to hold the 1936 Conference at Ryneltons. Mr. Ben Capel sang in a very pleasing manner at this point in the program "I Remember Calvary." Mr. Capel, who is well known throughout the Rawdon township, possesses great talent as a vocalist. Following a few minor matters of business, the President introduced the speaker of the evening, Rev. R. N. Elliott of South Cayuga, Provincial Secretary of the Ontario Religious Education Council, who delivered a fine address on this branch of church work. "Our branch of this great work is today meeting with the greatest opposition it ever did because our system of teaching is being copied and adopted in other religions. Leaders in Buddhism and other creeds are ordered to take courses in Christianity, not to become Christian, but merely to study the system. In our own large centres schools are teaching children how to go to God schools—Bibles are being taught upon the same system we use but in the opposite direction. The communism gains headway in the next few years in Canada—if the latter question gets beyond control—If the exploitation of the worker continues to increase—If we are thrown into another world conflict which will claim the flower of our manhood—It will only be because we have not taken the right steps and such evils we see the harm in all these evils which, even include the white slave traffic. But we sit idly by and let them gain momentum. We are not to blame for the moral womanhood of the nation we must take the blame for our responsibility," said Mr. Elliott.

Rev. Ralph Joblin, son of the former pastor of the Stirling circuit of the United Church and former pupil of the Stirling Collegiate Institute was very interesting meeting and the 1935 Conference. The Rawdon and Marmora Township Religious Education Council with Rev. Joblin as President.

Following the offering was a duet by Mrs. Fred Hulin and Mrs. J. Koffend, Stirling. This was a very interesting Round Table Conference held with the children's department, conducted in the working of the various Dept. leaders under the direction of Rev. R. B. Elliott of South Cayuga, Provincial representative of the Church Religious Education Council for Toronto.

The afternoon session was brought to a close by Rev. H. E. Leckie and the gathering retired to the church parlours for the splendid supper arranged by the ladies of St. Andrew's Church and some of the senior members of the Sunday School.

The Evening Session

Promptly at 8 p.m. the evening session of the Conference was opened with a devotional period conducted by Rev. R. S. McCausland of St. John's Anglican Church of Stirling. Rev. L. S. Wight, former minister of St. Paul's Church, Stirling and now of Belleville, visited friends in Stirling district on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. George Shemill, Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Shemill and Mrs. E. A. Shemill all of Belleville, were Sunday guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Shemill on the 7th.

Mr. and Mrs. Snowden and family left for Pembroke on Tuesday, where they will make their home in the future. Mr. Snowden was principal of the Stirling Public school until poor health forced him to resign his position early this summer. His many friends hope that the rest from active service will restore him to good health and that he will be able to carry on his profession in the near future. With the departure of the Snowden family Stirling loses two valued citizens. Mrs. Snowden will be greatly missed from the women's organization and the boys by their admirers mates with whom they were popular.

The many friends of Mr. R. G. Lawlor, principal of Stirling High School as well as the students of that institution are sorry to hear of his sudden illness and hope that his absence from duty will not be for a long period.

Flight Record For Seaplanes Claimed by U.S.

Alameda, Calif., Oct. 16 (AP) — A word distance record for seaplanes was claimed today by six United States navy fliers after a 1,307-mile non-stop flight from Panama in a newly designed ship.

The twin-motored craft, commanded by the navy's distance flyer, Lieut. Com. Ernest McGinnis, glided to a landing here at 3:21:16 p.m. yesterday (6:21:16 p.m. E.S.T.) 24 hours and 51 minutes from Panama.

Commander McGinnis said he believed the flight from Panama would better the seaplane distance record held by Mario Spofanni, Italian Ger Spofani's mark in 1,083 miles, made in a flight last July from Mafalconn, Italy, to Berbera, British Somaliland.

To be considered a record, the flight must better Italian's record by 100 miles.

The seaplane is an experimental craft which utilizes new principles in design. It has pontoons which form wing tips while in flight and are dropped into landing position when it alights. This reduces wind resistance.

A whale-like tail is constructed to avoid damage in rough water landings. The body is below the wing and a navigator sat in an open cockpit for observation.

Officials said the navy was purchasing 60 planes similar to this one.

ELECTION IS OVER

"The shouting and the fighting dies", a political warfare and victory and "the captains and the kings depart". But new kings are taking the stage of the Dominion's capital, Ottawa, as they start out on their five year regime. "Still stands thine ancient sacrifice, an humble and a contrite heart" is true in the statesman's arena at Ottawa. It is sacrifice that must be the members motive. Outgoing political captains and kings feel this as well as the incoming monarchs of the nation's destiny for the next term.

The election which has closed can well be looked upon as just the overture to the drama of national development. The nation's problems are not dealt with at the polls. From now on the M.P.'s-elect will throw upon the stage of the nation's business the pressing problems and the solutions they are offering.

IN NEW YORK PULPITS

The young fi all countries are marching towards spiritual disillusionment and cynicism because they are accepting with idolacarat enthusiasm ideals which have never before been tried and which are destined to disappoint them, declared Rev. Dr. Harold Hough in St. Paul's Chapel, in Columbia University, New York. Proclaiming for the moment to analyze the present order with great intellectual honesty, while characterizing youth as "Utopian."

"That experience of being betrayed by our ideals is a characteristic of modern life" said the preacher. "There are more men unemployed in earnest volunteer than disillusionment at the present has ever been since the days of the Renaissance." He said Italian youth had failed in its causes, but that was not to say that this fascist regime is not good enough or strong enough to bear the weight of this new exploit. Nazism is, he believes, going to betray German youth, and Russia in Soviet mass feel that they have found Messianic power and think they have come upon a new day. He sees but disappointment and betrayal in the near future of Russian youth, as he contends, the regime is not powerful enough and good enough to bear the weight.

The 125th anniversary of Christian denominations was made Sunday morning by the Rev. H. L. Willett of Chicago at the 125 anniversary of the founding of the Central Church of the Disciples of Christ, New York. Christian influences and principles and the influences of the church, he felt, should be prime factors in social, economic and political life. The weakness of a divided Christian Church he called a scandal. He was happy to say that he saw evidences of a trend to unity.

He noted that there is a growing recognition of the social, economic and political implications of Christianity. "The Kingdom of God is involved in every phase of conduct and the violation of Christian principles can no more be condoned in business and political affairs, than it can be in the home and private life". The church the minister called the oldest of surviving institutions and the one most influential on mankind. Its influence has been long and far reaching. He mentioned grave errors. Among these errors he mentioned "the passion for superficial and unscholarly evangelism," the accumulation of large churches with small budgets for missionary that are not in accord with strict business ethics.

The Bible is seen as dangerous and perilous because it reveals that men are sinners and makes them confront facts. "There is something more precious than printer's ink stamped on every copy of the Bible. Invisible to the eye, too real, the seal of heroic blood is there. Complacency receives a heavy blow from the Bible because men do not like to be told they are sinners. But it is quite another matter when religion begins to speak straight home in unmistakable accents to a man's own shortcomings and to his personal neglect and direct demand. "The Bible is a book that confronts man with themselves. It overtakes them, hails them, and makes them look at facts."

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick at Riverside Church, asserted that the world's spiritual culture has lagged behind mankind's development of the material for good living. We have been contemptuous of "dress and amorous of devices, he said, quoting G. Lowes Dickinson, so that today we have "hands full of amazing devices, but as confused, bewildered, and unhappy as mankind has been in centuries. The fact must be faced, he said, that a vocational civilization, managed by barbarous cultures means suicide.

GAL'S PEERAGE.

Gals have a long ancestry. They have just dug up the skull of a flesh-eating animal, the size of a modern cat, in Wyoming, aged about 90 million years. If this was a cat, it is no wonder her descendants act in so royal a manner in the home and take the comforts which usually are reserved for the head of the household.

SIDELIGHTS
THE HOME FORUM

Gleaning the events of the day, from press and general notes the same is presented by the home forum—Sidelights—Editorial Comment—and Looking Back—Supervised by The Lamplighter.

"ALL I KNOW IS WHAT I READ IN THE PAPERS", was the favorite saying of Will Rogers, and he prefaced most his homely talks with this protective statement. Hence when one of the Sidelight Family sends in a column-full, condensed from the highlights of the news in English papers and not seen in Canadian papers, we very gladly surrender the space to him, as bringing something new and decidedly interesting to these little family chats on this that and the other things. Here Tis:

To Britishers from England, Scotland or Ireland who like to keep in closer touch with the homeland I would recommend The Times Weekly Edition as being crammed, jammed full of interesting news and editorial comment. The Times may not be "The Thunderer" it once was but it is sane, sound, and reliable.

The Royal Marines from Portsmouth have concluded their London visit during which they stood guard duty at the Royal Palaces. Before leaving for Portsmouth the Marines exercised their ancient perogative, originating in the seventeenth century, a privilege shared with the Grenadiers, the Buffs, the Royal Fusiliers and a few other regiments, of marching through the city with colours flying, bayonets fixed. The ancient ceremony was preceded with, the Marines being met by the City Marshal, who in his scarlet and gold and plumed hat rode into the middle of the road. "Who comes there?" he challenged, to which the Colonel of the battalion replied: "Royal Marines, exercising their ancient privilege and right to enter the City with drums with Colours flying, drums beating and bayonets fixed." The City Marshall replied according to ritual and turning led the way to the Mansion House where the Lord Mayor and other dignitaries received the officers and men of the battalion with appropriate ceremony.

The Wisconsin innkeeper who has retired to bed for the winter having a call for the first of April, interests The Times editorially, and the comment is made that if this habit were made expensive it would soon find many devotees, says the Times:

"If it only could be made much more expensive, staying in bed would have many devotees, for instance the Worshipful Company of Bedstead Makers and the no less worshipful Stuffers of Mattresses are alone in a world full of angry authors who expect this winter to be their richest. Film fat works, and cinema magnates, and parlor game inventors, all of whom have calculated on a dressed and watchful public, rather bored and ready for occupation, are in for a bad all winter thing is all right, but what about leaving a call for Christmas and New Years. Many people to whom Christmas is more or less of a nuisance would like to, however, especially the Old Scrooges—but not the Tiny Tims—God bless us every one.

British Foreign Office prevented radio broadcast by F. W. Rickett on the Abyssinian oil concession, negotiated by him, and cancelled as the result of interference by other governments. "Not in the public interest", says the Foreign Office, and that's all there is about it—Selah! Selassie!

What is the British army in India doing—always something doing in the Far East, fierce tribesmen, fanatics, and plotters of one kind or other. Press despatch tells that "The Mohmand Force attained its objective last week when British and Indian troops began to filter through the Nahakki Pass into the plains of Kamali. There was no opposition from the tribesmen, who vanished before the advancing troops." The despatch told of the main operation which included climbing 3,000 feet heights in the dark and occupying positions by dawn formerly held by tribesmen.

Much more of interest is reported including the arrival of the Crown Prince of Egypt, King Fuad's only son, 15 years old, to attend the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich. He was accompanied by a retinue of Egyptian servants.

The death in Sierra Leone, Africa, of Mr. William Rainy Lumpkin, otherwise known as "Alimamy Gungie", the "sympathetic undertaker", widely known for his ability to inject humor into sitvertisements of undertaking in all its branches.

And that's all the room we have for the Overseas Broadcast today, although the writer has far from exhausted his subjects and unless there is too much objection registered by The Sidelight Family the broadcast will be continued and concluded in tomorrow's column. So, if you like it, tell us—if you don't like it—well tell us anyway—we can take it.

TO BECOME P UPPET KING?

Haile Selassie's Cousin (pictured with his wife who has given birth) is said to have deserted to the Italian side with another important Ethiopian chieftain, Ras Kassa. The first-named deserter is most important because of the similarity in his name bears to that of the emperor. Gugsa is supposed to be Rim-up as puppet King of Ethiopia.

20 YEARS AGO

Oct. 18th., 1915

The 25th anniversary of the Belleville District Women's Missionary Society was held in the Tabernacle Methodist Church. The meeting formed out an interdenominational gathering of one hundred and fifty delegates. Mrs. Geo. Fetherstonhaugh organized, occupied the chair. Excellent reports were given of the year's work. Dr. Meacham of Toronto, a returned missionary from Japan addressed the meeting.

Mr. William Carnew, K.C., has returned home from Perth where he engaged in court.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Donoghue spent Thanksgiving Day with friends in Stirling.

Mr. W. H. Ross owing to ill health has been forced to resign the position of Division Court Bailiff at Tweed and Mr. J. E. Johnston has received the appointment.

Oct. 16th., 1906

St. Michael's Church which was destroyed by fire last Dec., was opened and dedicated yesterday by His Grace Archbishop Gauthier. It was indeed, a happy day for the popular parish priest, Father Twomey and the former pastor Rt. Rev. Monsignor Farrelly. The interior of the church is not yet completed, the grand organ, which will probably cost $8,000.00, may not be installed for a year or two, and only a temporary but beautiful altar was used yesterday. No one could help observing that the present church is much brighter, lighter and more beautiful than the old church. The twelve marble pillars, which used to present such a striking and beautiful appearance in the old church, have been duplicated in the new. They came from Aberdeen, Scotland. The cost of nine of the twelve has already been donated and the other three will be contributed for shortly. The nine donors are—Rev. Father Twomey, Rev. Vicar Forane Rohen, Chancellor of the Diocese of Hamilton, an old Belleville boy, Mr. W. Williamson, Mr. A. Robertson, Montreal, Mrs. O'Hara, Mr. T. Daly, Mr. Walter Scott, Mr. Frank Dolan and Mr. J. McGurn. The sermon at the morning service was delivered by Rev. Dr. Father Callaghan, parish priest of St. Patrick's Church, Montreal. His text was "This is no other than the House of God and this is the gate of Heaven". Gen. 28: 17. The sermon at the evening service was given by the Rev. Dr. Salmon of Kingston. His text was "I rejoiced when they said unto me, we will go into the House of the Lord". The musical portions of the services were beautifully rendered. The following clergy were present at the service: The Archbishop; Rt. Rev. Monsignor Farrelly, former pastor, Very Rev. John Masterson, V.G., Prescott, Very Rev. Charles Murray, Dean of Brockville, Rev. Martin Callaghan, Montreal; Rev. John Holden, Hamilton; Rev. Thos. Spratt, Wolfe Island, Rev. John Ryan, Perth, Rev. John Salmon, D.D., Kingston, Rev. Michael McDonald, Portsmouth; Rev. Michael Synan, Trenton; Rev. James Connolley, Gananoque; Rev. Patrick J. Dunstead, Napanee; Rev. J. D. O'Gorman, Gananoque; Rev. Alex. Carey, Merrickville; Rev. Chas. Mullin, Picton, Rev. John Meagher, Madoc; Rev. Peter McKeown, Tweed; Rev. Wilfrid Kingsley, D.D., Kingston; Rev. D. A. Twomey, the pastor. Notes of the day: Many Protestant invited guests were present at both services including the Mayor of the city. No less than four former curates of St. Michael's Church were present and took part in the services. Contributions yesterday amounted to $1,000.00 and it is expected that this amount will be increased by several hundreds during the week. The cost of rebuilding St. Michael's Church, so far, has been $40,-000.00 and the Rev. Father Twomey estimates that it will take fully $40,000.00 more to complete it.

Chinese Bandits Slay American Physician

Nanking, China, Oct. 16 (AP)—United States consular authorities tried to solve the puzzle of the death of Dr. Isaac Waddell with only slim clues to guide them on the police statement that the woman, a former resident of Berkeley, Calif., had been slain.

Her bruised body was found in a ditch here this morning with marks on the throat indicating strangulation.

GUNBOATS DESPATCHED

Hong Kong, Oct. 18 (AP)—British and United States gunboats were dispatched Tuesday to Swatow, China, where a Sino-Japanese controversy arose over customs duties.

Chinese authorities at Swatow told the Japanese had built a wharf and refused to pay duties but the Japanese insisted they only refused to pay a special, illegal rice tax.

The Japanese were reported to have threatened to land marines unless force settlement of the dispute.

HON. H. FERGUSON WILL RESIGN POST

Other Changes Are Likely to Follow Upset at Polls

Ottawa, Oct. 17 (CP)—At least one change in the external representation of Canada will likely result from Monday's general election. This will be the resignation of Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canada's High Commissioner to the United Kingdom.

This is regarded as a "political" office.

Mr. Ferguson will in all probability be succeeded by Hon. Vincent Massey.

With regard to other diplomatic representation, two of Canada's ministers were Liberal appointees, Sir Herbert M. Marler at Tokyo and Hon. Philippe Roy at Paris. Their positions were undisturbed during the five years of the Conservative regime.

City of Harar Founded by Arabs In 17th Century

Washington, Oct. 16 (AP)—Built on a hill 5,700 feet high and 6 days' journey from the nearest railroad station, Harar, penetrated into Ethiopia and held much of the country for several centuries.

Its finally was driven out and in 1875 the modern Harar was founded by an Egyptian army, which was withdrawn in 1885 to quell a rebellion in the Sudan. The British then acquired an influence in Harar which continued until 1935, when the province was acquired by Ethiopia.

In 1887, it came under the protectorate by an uncle of Emperor Haile Selassie.

People of the territory are a distinct stock, do not speak the same language as other Ethiopian tribes and are Mohammedans.

Although much of the province consists of rich farm lands there are stretches of wild mountainous country, through which roam lions and other animals.

The caravan city has an extensive trade in coffee, ivory, hides, skins, textiles, wax and gums, centered to some extent since construction of the Djibouti-Addis Ababa railroad.

Stratford Editor To Go to Peterboro

NEW MINISTRY IN OFFICE IN 10 DAYS

Bennett Ready to Hand Over Duties at Anytime

Ottawa, Oct. 16 (CP)—The Bennett government today is carrying on while Premier-elect Mackenzie King makes the necessary preparations for his incoming Liberal administration in a manner quite personally in 10 days.

Important decisions and questions of policy are being staved over for the victorious Liberal party to decide. Only routine matters essential to the continuance of the government of a country are being dealt with.

In a two-hour conference yesterday Mr. Bennett is understood to have intimated to Mr. King his willingness to hand over the reins of power when the Premier-elect was ready to assume government. The meeting concluded without producing any announcement.

The outgoing administration requires little time for packing up and handing in its resignation. A formal order-elect, though has considerable preparatory work before being sworn in including the selection of his cabinet.

Re-election by their constituents is no longer required when new ministers are appointed. Three years ago, the House of Commons Act was amended removing this requirement.

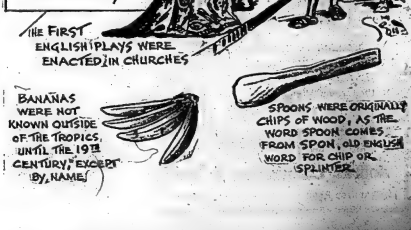
Death by Drowning Cobourg Jury Finds

Cobourg, Oct. 16 (CP)—A Coroner's jury on Tuesday, found Marion Bates, fireman on the sandsucker O'Connor Dick, who fell off the dock into the harbor here, met death by drowning early in the morning of Oct. 6.

Accompanied by others of the crew, Bates went up to the town the previous night, witness said. He returned to the craft alone. He stopped to talk with Harold Gibson of the crew of an auto ferry.

Shortly afterward Thomas Meeson and Levi Miller, watchmen on the car ferry, heard cries for help. They reached the dock in time to see a man disappear under the surface of the water. The body was recovered later.

Captain J. Reid of the sandsucker said he had never seen Bates under the influence of liquor.



Witnesses said the docks were piled with coal at the time. In some places the passage for walking between the coal and the edge of the esplanade was only from 18 to 20 inches wide.

Arena Veritable Mardi Gras Carnival Spirit Prevails

Kiwanis Club Opens 1935 Carnival With Large Attendance

FINE VAUDEVILLE

Brilliantly decorated with colorful flags, bunting, and twinkling lights of every shade, Belleville Arena was a veritable Mardi Gras last evening as hundreds of people gathered for the eagerly awaited event of the fall season, the Kiwanis Carnival. Two thousand spectators, arriving early and remaining late were there for the splendid vaudeville program, the prize drawing, the dancing, and the games. A general air of fun and merriment dominated the gay scene and all agreed, that the Kiwanis Club had scored an overwhelming success in the Carnival of 1936.

All members of the Club, wearing smart berets in Kiwanian colors, were present to welcome the visitors and to see that everyone had an enjoyable evening. Games booths were arranged about the floor of the Arena and, well-stocked with prizes, did a splendid job of drawing during the evening. Refreshment booths also carried on a thriving business.

The dance floor became the focal point of the Arena's entertainment, which took place on an elaborately arranged stage and was followed by dancing to the music of Ernie Bruce and his orchestra. The climax of the evening was, of course, the drawing for prizes and it soon developed that everybody present was not merely community—minded—wide as tickets from the Maritimes to British Columbia were drawn from the large drum.

Opening Number

Under the direction of the Canadian Vaudeville Exchange, twenty-three acts of wonderful variety presented at the Carnival last night, ranging from acrobatic dancing, tumblers and the conventional comedy. The entire evening's performance was considered splendid entertainment and saw a snappy fast-stepping show throughout.

After President Cliff Ravrgar and Master of Ceremonies Bill Gardner, assisted by Ken Strong, had made announcements understandably assisted in the success of the show, Ernie Bruce and his band, the 1935 addition of the Kiwanis Carnival with a number of popular tunes to be followed by the opening chorus of seven scantily dressed young girls and Jos Carr as soloist. The next act was one of the features of the first night's show. Three blonde, a darling Arabian tumbling act, that saw speedy agility and dexterity combined to give the audience hair-breath entertainment.

"Mammy" Hazel accordeonist then appeared before the spotlight and drew rounds of applause and an encore with his entrancing genius. The Wilson sisters in a special tap dance proved most interesting as their rhythm was perfect. These two lassies were followed by that funny man Harry Dunn, whose uproarious monologues were thoroughly enjoyed. "Lucille" in her spectacular dance was truly clever and her contortional efforts received applause. The next act was one of the features of the night, the Taylor Duo, father and son, featuring Kenneth Taylor, ten year old Canadian acrobat. The tumbling and balancing of little Kenneth and his father was doubtlessly the result of many years of training and practice. The confidence shown by each member of the family acting was clearly demonstrated in their sensational act. This was followed by a fast dancing act by two attractive pretty girls in a song and dance act, Jack Lyle's charming voice was enjoyed but the Hollywood Clowns, with their trained dog "Spike" direct from the Metro Clement comedies, brought down the house with their antics and which were materially assisted by the trained canine. Eccentric dancing like Allen's is accomplished, band balancing act and "Slim" Allen's, the slapstick contortionist, who followed in order by Joe Carr's old time fiddling act. The Wilson sisters then returned to the spotlight to give their interpretation of the famous Adagio dance, a Russian dance. Their efforts were well received. "Curator" the famous black wire artist thrilled the crowd with his feats while the comedy Hill-Wyn put on a sensational act that proved exceptionally funny. Strong, dances and a floor show as midnite were all features associated to be seen nightly at the Kiwanis Carnival.

FAMOUS THE WORLD OVER

PRESENTATION

On Friday evening, October 4, the Rotary friends of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Davis, gathered at their home and after a social evening of games and dancing the following address was read by Mrs. Chas. MacFarlane and Mr. and Mrs. Davis were presented with two occasional chairs and a magazine holder.

Dear Harry and Mary,—

We, your friends and neighbors have gathered in your home tonight to enjoy a social evening and to extend to you very best wishes for a long, happy, useful, prosperous life.

Harry, it seems but a short time since you came a stranger to our midst but in your quiet, cheerful manner you have accomplished the kindest regards for us that would have friends, must show himself friendly." You have been ever willing to give of your time and talents to the work of the church and the community and now that you have so helpful a partner we will expect even better work.

Mary, coming as a bride to our community, we extend a hearty welcome and feel in the years pass you will find us friends indeed and true friends.

As a slight token of our love and best wishes, we ask you to accept this chair and magazine holder and may their use recall this happy social hour at the home of your friend. When you take an inventory Of your friends in new and old May you see adding to the joys of life

Which can't be bought with gold. When you feel the need of someone to help you through the hard hours We shall count ourselves most happy If you only count us in.

Signed on behalf of the Rotary community,

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Snider
Mr. Bruce McKinney
Mr. and Mrs. Chas. MacFarlane.

Mr. and Mrs. Davis replied very suitably and invited their friends to call on them again, they joined in singing "For They are Jolly Good Fellows" after which lunch was served.

BRANNONVILLE W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of the W.M.S. of the United Church Ladies' Aid was held at the home of Mrs. Orval Stratton on Thursday afternoon, October 1enth, with twenty ladies in attendance and Mrs. C. Liddle, Group Leader presiding. Mrs. Glen Gird, Chair opened the meeting with the call to worship and Mrs. Ross Stetler read the Scripture lesson from the 8th Chapter of Deuteronomy. Choice readings from the suggestive Thanksgiving program were given by seven ladies and the prayer from the program sheets was read by all. Roll was called by the secretary, members responding by repeating a verse of Scripture containing the word, "give." The minutes of the last meeting were read by the Secretary and adopted. Mrs. (Rev.) Clark read a letter regarding the conference scheduled to be held at Belleville on October 22nd and 23rd. After singing Hymn 352, Mrs. (Rev.) Clark presented Mrs. Wm. Tennant who gave a reading on this subject. Mrs. Glen Gird, a reading taken from the Missionary Monthly. Miss Ida Robertson, delegate to the sectional rally at Campbellford gave a report for which she received a vote of thanks and a hearty handclap. Collection was taken amounting to $2.00 dollars and fifty cents and for flower fund ninety cents. Envelopes were distributed for the thanksgiving offering to be handed in. In closing all repeated the Mizpah benediction. Hostess and her assistants served refreshments after the meeting. The next time was held at the close of the meeting.

ADKINS W.M.S.

Adkins W.M.S. met for October at the home of Mrs. Fred Westover with an attendance of fifteen members and two visitors. Meeting opened with Hymn 352, followed by worship and prayer by the president, Mrs. Fralick. A hymn was sung and roll call answered with Bible verses on Thanksgiving. Plans were made for the thankoffering to be taken in and general business attended to.

Mrs. A. Fralick then gave in her own words a short historical sketch of Adkins Auxiliary since its organization. The auxiliary was first organized in 1913 with Mrs. A. Fralick the first president. The first meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Wm. Yeleman, April 26, 1913, with 19 members. From 1913 to the present year 13 beloved members have passed on. Mrs. Fralick is now the honorary president. This talk was most helpful and encouraging.

The tenth anniversary program was then presented. Mrs. H. Rubble composing Mrs. Jas. Lavell of the Methodist W.M.S., Mrs. S. Spafford representing Mrs. MacWilliray of the Presbyterian W.M.S., and Mrs. Fred Westover, Mrs. Crowe of the congregational W.M.S. Mrs. Fred Westover the spirit of 1933, with other members representing all other departments of W.M.S. work.

"In Christ there is no east or west" was sung and Mrs. S. A. Strickcliffe closed this inspiring part of the programme with prayer.

Mrs. Everett Rubble then gave a very fine and complete report of the W.M.S. rally held at Campbellford, on September.

Mrs. Hamilton gave a splendid report of the afternoon session bringing some many helpful thoughts and ideas to help in the work of the society. A hearty vote of thanks was tendered these ladies for their excellent reports.

The concluding hymn was sung and Mrs. Grills closed with prayer.

Mrs. Fralick thanked the ladies in honor of cutting the tenth anniversary birthday cake and a social half hour was enjoyed.

First Kiwanis Car is Won by Fairy Glen, Sask. Resident

Frigidaire Goes to Quebec And Radios to Far Distant Points

Oscar Person, Fairy Glen, Sask., driving a car of the Dodge sedan person away at the Kiwanis Carnival last night. The ticket was drawn by Mrs. Glen Meagher, handed to the judges and Mr. Person was declared the winner of the first of three cars to be given away at the first of the Kiwanis Carnival. Mr. Person, according to the ticket, purchased the lucky number from M. T. Assay of Herbert, Sask.

In all 156 prizes were given away last night and will be given away every night throughout the week of the Carnival. A Dodge sedan, a Frigidaire and three Sherwat Warner radios are the major prizes to be awarded each evening while 150 consolation cash prizes also were drawn and awarded.

The Frigidaire was won by Mr. Mackinnon of Lacoste, Que., and the winning ticket was drawn a book held by the winner.

The three Sherwat Warner radios were won by the following:

1. W. Wilkinson of Winnipeg
2. B. Prandole of Toronto.
3. Anne Kaner of Winnipeg.

Many books or tickets for drawing purposes were placed in a large drum, manufactured for that purpose by the Sherwat Warner Air-emite Company, the drum is motor-driven and rotates continually to assure the mixing well of books of tickets. Five young ladies, who volunteered their services, came from the audience, while Kiwanis officials locked the door into the drum, each lady picking out a ticket until the entire 155 winners had been awarded. The winning tickets were then handed to five judges Bert Boyce, Rotary, P. C. MacLaurin, Kiwanis, Dr. Jack Marshall, Y's Club, Keith Strobl, Kinsmen's Club and J. O. Herrity, Chamber of Commerce. Each judge was asked to examine the winning ticket before it was announced. The Carnival continues this afternoon and each night this week-end while tonight and Thursday at the Belleville Arena.

Washed Overboard in Wild Night at Sea

Catalone, N.S., Oct. 15—(CP) — After a wild night at sea, two men and a woman reached land today in a battered motorboat that had started out into a northeast gale more than 13 hours before with four persons aboard.

Ethel Marcelle, 15-year-old daughter of the lightkeeper on lonely Flint Island, was missing, when great seas tore the helpless craft high on the beach here at dawn. She had drowned, while her sister-in-law and brothers watched after waves had capsized the motorboat in the darkness.

The Marcelle-Wills, 22, the bride he won by correspondence only a few weeks ago, and Kenneth Wills, 17, were on their way to Flint Island from Port Morien on the Cape Breton west-coast when tragedy struck.

Frankford and District

Frankford—The convention of the Quinte Presbytery Young People's Union was held at Frankford on Thursday, October 10th, an event the many members at Frankford has not before had in the honor of serving this particular group.

The Young People's theme for the year "Christian Youth building a New World" was carried throughout the entire program.

Afternoon session opened at 2:30 with President George Lewis in the chair, with a worship service by the Presbytery Executive in charge of Miss Pallser, Christian Fellowship Convener.

Gerald Snider, Vice President, then welcomed the assembled Young People many of whom had come from the western end of the Presbytery. Various reports were heard and committees appointed, then Muriel Tickell, Port Hope, delighted all with a vocal solo. Rev. Bert Howard of Albert College, Belleville, the speaker of the Convention, gave an address on "Albert College and what it has to do for Young People's."

The Young People now divided into groups for discussion under the following heads: Christian Fellowship, skeleton of R. Pallser, Missionary in charge of Rev. Mr. Lane; Christian Culture and Recreation in charge of Messrs. Mason and Beverly Hancock.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in Open Forum led by Rev. R. H. Rickard.

At the conclusion of this session Frankford Young People served a banquet to approximately one hundred and fifty people. This banquet was served in the Community Hall which was attractively decorated with autumn leaves and bittersweet.

While the tables were bright in yellow and green. It was most inspiriting to see this large group, composed chiefly of young people gathered on such terms of equality and good fellowship and to hear the rousing sing-song led by Rev. Roy Rickard.

Attendance at the evening session was considerably augmented by a large number from the village who had been unable to be present in the afternoon.

The session opened with a Worship Service by the Frankford Young People in charge of Miss Myrtle Foster. Gerald Snider acting as chairman. Reports of Committees followed, after which the new officers were installed by Rev. J. F. Lane, and George Lewis again in charge. Gold Spring Society gave an enjoyable musical number. Following announcements and Roll Call of Societies, Rev. Bert Howard addressed the convention.

His address with its theme "The Quest of the Best" was an inspiring appeal to young people everywhere to look ahead, and up, always striving for the best and eventually by the best would be obtained and a new world better more Christian world would arise from the ruins of the old.

Convention closed with the Young Peoples' Benediction.

Officers for the ensuing year are as follows:

Honorary President—Rev. M. L. Hinton of Castleton.

Past President—Beverley Hancock, Port Hope.

Conference President — Stephen Sayvell, Cobourg.

President—George Lewis of Wellcome.

Secretary—Jean Walker, Wadsworth.

Corresponding Secretary— Muriel Tickell, Port Hope.

Treasurer—Gerald Snider.

Convenors of Departments: Christian Fellowship—Reta Pallser, Campbellford; Missionary — Ruth Lasker of Palmville; Christian Fellowship—Harold Beckel Smith's Field; Christian — Culture — Joan Brooks, Odd Gartags.

Director of Recreation— Eleanor Grant, Cobourg.

Director of Leadership Training — Beverley Hancock of Port Hope and Gerald Wright of Brighton.

Director of Publications— Orville Kelly of Wadsworth.

C.G.I.T. — Elsie Moon, Port Hope.

GALT AHEAD OF PONIES IN SECOND

Galt got away to a good start, when Reggie singled, went to second on Wynn's sacrifice and scored on Bradshaw's long triple to left field that was just inside the foul line. The next two men were retired.

Kingston went scoreless in the first inning but Galt came back in the second with a make it 2-0. Galt got on when Smith bobbled his grounder, advanced to third on a sacrifice by Dyer and scored on an error by Clancy on Stewart's grounder. He scored on Baird's single.

Veteran Actor Collapses on Set

Hollywood, Calif., Oct. 15—(AP)—Sam Hardy, veteran actor of the stage and screen, died in Hollywood hospital today after an emergency operation for an abdominal ailment.

The 52-year-old player, best known for his humorous gambler-type portrayals, collapsed on a studio set yesterday as he made up for scenes in an Eddie Cantor picture.

As a result of his collapse and death, Samuel Goldwyn, producer, said much of the cantor picture completed so far will be scrapped because Hardy appeared in most of the scenes.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Bigger and Crawford by Financial Service.

The local market gave a very good account of itself yesterday. The Liberal sweep of the country being considered in a satisfactory manner by the majority of the stock market investors. First, it tended to clear up any uncertainties that was reflected in business and securities for several months. Second the majority of the Liberals over all Parties assures Mr. King a stable governing body that should go ahead with the problems of the country without any interference.

For some time now stocks in New York have been moving steadily ahead while here the markets were dull and slow. Now, for the short part, very narrow, in view of the improved business outlook, a stable government, better outlook for wheat, a large favorable trade balance, the cessation of agitation is that the better class of dividend-paying securities should see a purchase at prevailing market prices. Those who look for a substantial and the ultimate recovery of this country by purchasing good common stocks will, in time, be adequately rewarded.

We have come a long way from the depths of last November, the cut of which was touched early in 1933. Prosperity is slowly but surely being reached and those who take the attitude that this country, with its enormous natural resources of water power, gold and other metals, and timber etc., is bound to go ahead, would be well advised to accumulate a line of those securities representing the leading industries of the Dominion.

British Trade Booming

Concrete proofs continue to accumulate that the recovery in Britain is definite and firmly based. The statistics for the month of August show a decrease of 40,000 in the number of unemployed, as compared with the previous month, and this despite the significant fact that 22,000 persons came into the labor market at the end of the summer season. Today there are a quarter of a million more people earning salaries and wages than there were at the end of August, 1935.

Not only this, but the bulk of the increase is in the heavy industries—the key industries of the nation. In coal mines, for example, more than 37,000 more men found employment in August than were at work in July, and there is nothing merely seasonal to explain this. Moreover, in both the iron and steel industries the improvement is marked, as well as in engineering, shipbuilding, the woollen, worsted and jute trades, and the motor industry. Undoubtedly the steady and unimpeded growth of the national well-being is reflected in these details.

Rise in Bank Stock Values Here

The stocks of nine leading Canadian chartered banks rose 7-4 per cent. in quoted values to an aggregate of $281,630,000 on Monday, compared with $222,485,000 a week previous.

Lake Shore

Lake Shore has produced over $99,000,000 in gold up to the time of writing. The mine is equipped for an output of 600,000 ounces of gold annually. During the past two years the policy has been to draw upon some of the lower grade ore. As a result, output has been around 450,00, ounces of gold a year. On this basis, the company has been able to pay dividends and bonuses aggregating $4 per share annually.

Lake Shore also demonstrated production of 600,000 ounces of gold at a cost averaged $5,000,000. Its grade now at 0.20 ounces, capacity would be increased to 1,000,000 a year and show an operating profit of $16,000,000 before provision for taxes, etc., or a rate of $8 per share annually.

After allowing for all taxes and contingencies, an output of 600,000 ounces of gold annually would point toward dividends of $8 per share annually. The output in 1932 was actually very close to 600,000 ounces.

Livestock

Toronto, Oct. 16—(CP)—On a quiet plain quality supply formed mostly of 1,600 holdovers, cattle sold slowly at 10 cents lower to weaker. Market this morning. A small calf supply of lambs and sheep steady with lambs opened strong and hogs, as usual, unsettled.

Reports reported by the Dominion Livestock branch were: Cattle, 500; calves, 150; hogs, 500; sheep and lambs 540.

A few butcher heifers brought $3.25 to $4.75 and steers, mostly cows sold from 3.00 to $3.50. Plain quality stockers made $2.25 to $4.00.

Calves sold steady at $8.50 to $9.50 for choice vealers with common downward $5.00. Culls for rough, heavy calves brought $6.50 down.

Hogs opened unsettled with early bulk steady at $9.75 f.o.b. for bacons and $9.50 off car.

Lambs were strong as the bulk sold at $7.00 for good ewes and wethers though a few off tucks moved down to $6.75. Sheep held steady at $3.00 to $3.50 cwt., for good, light ewes.

Canadian:

Lambs, good $6.75 to $7.00; medium $6.25 to $6.50; tucks $6.75 to $6.00; culls $5.00 to $6.00.

Cattle, calf and sheep quotes unchanged.

'Dead Pan' Alex Connell Retires from Hockey Wars

Came Out of Retirement Last Year to Help Maroons Win

By A. E. FULFORD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Hockey's court jester, "dead-pan" Alex Connell has scrawled on his armour for the last time, faced his final barrage of pucks in a big league goal mouth.

The unsmiling little Ottawa fire department secretary, who came out of retirement last season to help Montreal Maroons win a world title is going back to the fire hall to spend his winter regaling the boys in his own hot-stove league with the tall tales of the hockey wars.

Connell's retirement, rumored at the height of his comeback glory, when Maroons annexed Toronto's bid for the Stanley Cup last spring, was announced last night.

Tommy Gorman, who signed the area goalie to his first professional contract with Ottawa Senators in 1926, and at New York he had taken unable to shake Connell's decision to leave the game as a champion.

Fate played a strange trick when Bill Beveridge, former Montreal Maroon flagle, was secured to replace Connell. Beveridge skated into Connell's cage shoes before in a game, that forms the only bitter episode in Connell's hockey memories.

Beveridge, who was playing New York Rangers in Ottawa on night of January 28, 1932, and were skating a bad hockey, when Connell collided with a shoot by Marty Burke. The goalie was signalled from his cage and he stumbled to the dressing room with the bones of bone-town fame ringing in his ears. His never played for Ottawa again.

After that no big league team awarded Connell and Beveridge the rest of the season out of hockey. Gorman, still had faith in him, and last season used his Irish persuasive powers to induce him to forget those bones and to don the pads.

He justified Gorman's confidence last season by writing into hockey's colorful history its most surprising comeback chapter. Working behind a team that was on the way of getting the world title, Connell had a high average among the goalies the world title. His whip-lash comments directed at the players were almost as great as a contribution to Maroon success as his brilliant goaltending.

Submitted to Electors at Coming Municipal Elections By-Law on Daylight Saving

Period Will be For Years of 1936 And 1937

MUNICIPAL LIST

Only Ratepayers And Tenants Will Have Right to Vote

A by-law respecting Daylight Saving Time will be submitted to the electorate at the coming municipal elections for a period of two years, the first time to start on June 15th and continuing till before the Belleville Fair dates according to a recommendation brought down and passed by the City Council in regular session on Tuesday night. The vote will be taken on the municipal list, that being those eligible to vote for Mayor and Aldermen. The City Solicitor was asked for his opinion as to what list, Municipal or Provincial, would be legal on which to take the vote and his answer was given to the Council before the recommendation was passed. Had the vote been taken on the Provincial list, every one, who was over 21 years of age, a resident of over six months in the city could exercise his or her franchise on the question but on the municipal list, only those paying income, business tax or tenants will have a right to vote.

The letter received from A. B. Collins, K.C., was read before the recommendation was passed and is herewith given.

October 15th, 1935.

J. Wilfred Holmes, Esq.,
City Clerk,
City Hall, City.

Re Resolution re Electors at Question of Daylight Saving

Dear Mr. Holmes:

After consideration of the Sections of The Municipal Act applicable hereto, particularly Section 366—subsection 11, which provides for the submission to the electors of any question of municipal interest to the electors together with those sections which limit and define those who may vote on such question it is my opinion that the Council has no power to extend the meaning of the words "Municipal Electors" as defined in Section 1, sub-section (K) of the Municipal Act in connection with which sub-section (d) which defines "Electors" is to be read and interpreted.

Considering these sections together it is my opinion that those who may vote on such a question are those whose names are on the Municipal Voters' List and who are entitled to vote for Mayor and Aldermen.

Probably it should be pointed out that this is the practice followed in the larger cities of the province where the question has been submitted on a number of occasions.

Yours very truly,

A. B. COLLINS,
City Solicitor.

Seems Short One

The absent member was on Tuesday evening although the members agreed that there was quorum for discussing certain questions that will be dealt with later this year. The question was the Chairman of Market and City Property to put weather stripping and storm windows in the City Hall at a cost of $31.60, not being the amount recommended for the work. The West Playgrounds was given a cheque for $100, that being the grant to that organization. The United Veterans will be asked to hold a Poppy Day on November 8th. A new floor of third grade maple will be laid in the police court room, the work to be done by relief labor. Also a new partition will be erected at one of the fire halls. Residents in the Evans property on Bleecker Avenue will be notified to pay their rents to the city. The Dunlop Tire Company was given permission to erect a sign on Front Street, providing a proper bond is given. The Company notified the city that they would furnish a bond of $20,000 for one person and $40,000 for one accident and $5,000 for property damage. This was satisfactory and the erection of the sign will start immediately. There being no other business the council adjourned. Those present were Mayor Tice, Aldermen Wills, Hill, Thompson, Foley, Arnold, Sale, Guthridge, Cushing, Barlow, Marshall and Harvey. Alderman Sale was in the chair in the committee of the whole.

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Virginian"

Owen Wister's Charming Western Story With Cary Cooper in Lead

While Ray Francis and George Brent continue to please their hosts of admirers in their latest success "The Goose and the Gander" at the Capitol Theatre, tomorrow will usher in two of the few really worth while pictures of the current season. One, "The Virginian" is perhaps one of the most widely read stories of the past twenty years. It was made in as a silent picture, after Dustin Farnum had made a great success in the title role on the stage.

The second feature, "Dance Band" that abounds on the same principle, is a snappy musical comedy that stars Buddy Rogers and the charming June Clyde.

No other than the popular Gary Cooper plays the leading role in "The Virginian" and he is ably supported by the Dorothy Jordan, Chester Morris, beddes there is Richard Arlen and Mary Brian in recent out an excellent cast.

The story of "The Virginian" entails all the romance, thrills and hard-riding cowboys of the old West who drive their bellowing herds to Dodge City, ranches clash—during their drives under the stars by the campfire gun-toting enemies exchanging their savage epithets and lovers speaking their hearts in the murmuring pine forest.

It concerns a New England girl who goes West to teach school, falls in love with a soft-spoken Southerner and is lured in turn, by the Southerner's best friend, a wayward cowboy, will live on forever with its Incidental plots conceived by a notorious bad man with an unbridled lust for life.

Cooper's memorable portrayal of a Rangal Lancer is easily understandable after one sees him as the soft-spoken Southerner in "The Virginian." He is assisted in this great melodrama by Mary Brian, Richard Arlen and Eugene Pallette.

"Dance Band"

The "Dance Band" features picture is an original story in which the rivalry between two dance bands—male and female, turns the principal ingredients. The good looking Buddy Rogers is right at home in his role, that of a band leader, and he is given every opportunity to display his ability as play most every instrument in his band.

"Dance Band" is replete with gay and lilting melodies and there is plenty comedy with sparkling, witty dialogue. Especially delightful is June Clyde the cute little miss who has appeared in several important productions during the past year.

A Fox Movietone Newsreel brings the latest happenings from the war scene and other parts of the universe.

"Broadway Follies"

"Broadway Follies" is the name of the Capitol for five days beginning the stage show that will appear at Wednesday, October 23rd. The company embraces a cast of twenty two clever and talented vaudeville performers who bring you a 45-minute entertain in a highly acceptable manner.

There will be a Midnite Matinee given beginning Wednesday night, October 23rd at 11.30 p.m. with the complete stage show besides a feature picture other than "Dinky" which is a part of the regular program.

AT THE BELLE

"Here's To Romance"

Operatic Selections, Popular Tunes and Dance Specialties Adorn Romantic Picture

Lovers of music and lovers of love—the two categories embrace the human species—have a glorious entertainment in store for them in the screen debut of Nino Martini. This romantic idol of radio and opera whose voice has thrilled millions, now caps his triumphs with a singing an acting performance in "Here's to Romance," the new Fox picture that is glorified by the dazzling stars of radio, opera, ballet, stage and screen, and which will be presented at the Belle theatre both matinee and evening today (Thursday) and again Friday. Daily matinee starting at 2.30 p.m. Evenings at 7.15 and again at 9.15.

Martini heads a cast composed of Mme. Jeritza, Jan Kiepura, Helen Heink, the beloved grand old lady of opera; Genevieve Tobin, Anita Louise and Reginald Denny, stage and screen favorites; Marie Gambarelli, the world's greatest ballerina; and Vincente Escudero, the Spanish dancer. Rarely is such a cast brought together in a single picture. This array of talent contributes to make this attraction an event.

"Here's to Romance" deals with the private life and loves of a world famous tenor when the millions love for his golden voice, and whom two women love for himself—with a dangerous love.

Musically the action of the picture shifts from the Opera Comique in Paris, to the Metropolitan Opera Company of New York. One sees the behind-the-scene workings to make a star of a promising singer ...the rivalries of headliners ... the breakdown of a great voice at the moment when its owner is getting his supreme chance to make good....the disgrace, and slow ascent from the bottom once more. With its glorious love story, it brings the drama and comedy attendant on the heart-consuming trials of a singer.

Melodies of today are offered by Conrad, famous and prolific musician of American popular song writing. He wrote two new numbers for "Here's to Romance"—the theme song bearing the same title as the picture; and "Midnight in Paris."

An excellent comedy and a sports subject will also be presented in addition to the feature "Here's to Romance" at the performances Thursday and Friday.

Stage Style Revue

Friday evening only commencing at 8.45 p.m. The Stanley Management Stores Limited will present their annual Fall Style Revue at the Belle theatre. Every effort has been made to make this season's presentation for approval of Milady's 1935-6 gorgeous and dainty wearing apparel for all occasions. The most outstanding of all previous years. Living Models will parade to and fro exhibiting each individual garment under specially arranged lighting effects. Enhancing the spectator's enjoyment of this looked forward to Style Revue.

Two Westerns Tonight

Two excellent features will be exhibited at the Belle tonight for the last times. "Charlie Chan in Shanghai", with Warner Oland in the role of "Chan," and lovely Irene Hervey and Charles Locker supplying the romantic interest, and "Dante Dunn, Dorothy Wilson and Louise Fazenda in the laugh-littered romantic comedy "Bad Boy", plus Edwin C. Hill detailing the Latest News Flashes garnered the world over, completes a program of splendid screen entertainment.

FIFTH OF SEATS HELD BY SCOTS

Canadians Do Electing But Scots Rule The Commons

Governments turn over, but Scots continue to dominate the House of Commons. In the last Parliament there were 30 Macs and Mos. The new Government counts in with 29. They include a traditional Macdonald, this time representing Beauford; four MacKenzies, two McKinnons, three McLeans or MacLeans, a McCannan, a McGregor and a McRae. And there are beddes a host of representatives of Clan-Cameron, Ross, Campbell, Stewart, Sinclair and Neill, which runs the list of those whose names were first heard in the land of the heather somewhere up around 60.

The only other race so obviously represented in the House is French, who hold almost solidly the representation of Quebec.

Ontario heads the list of Scots with Farquhar of Algoma East, and follows through with 13 Mac and Mcs and a dozen more whose names came from the hills and glens. There's a Campbell, a Cameron, two Ross's, an Anderson, a Stewart and a Fraser. There are beddes W. A. Taylor, T. F. Ahearn, O. S. Rennie and Dr. J. K. Blair, whose ancestors came from the Highlands.

Some from the North of Ireland may lay claim to some of the Mcs perhaps, but the significant at least to a Scot that of the 30 Macs and Mcs in the last House only one claimed an Irish father and one an Irish mother. One had an English mother, three styled themselves "Canadian" without more detail, and all the others had both Scottish fathers and mothers.

Among its four members Prince Edward Island offers a Grant, a MacLean, and a Sinclair, and Nova Scotia offers a Duff, a Cameron, a Cochrane, a Macdonald and a McCulloch.

From Western Canada comes such heather-feeling names as Malcolm MacLean, Ian Mackinzie, Grote Stirling and C. H. Bothwell. There is Tom Reid of New Westminster, born in Scotland, and Angus Macinnis. At least a fifth of the seats in the House of Commons will hold someone whose grandfather at least saw the sun rise over a glen.

ELECTION COMMENT BY N. Y. PAPERS

New York, Oct. 16 (CP)—The Canadian election outcome was regarded in morning newspaper editorial comment here today as a victory for the two-party system.

The New York Times said: "What the friendly observer is most called to note is that an effective government will be called into being. It will be dependent on no compromising responsibility and power will be evident. It will not have to cajole or truckle to the little sporadic groups. These Mr. Bennett regarded with no less dislike than Mr. King. The Conservatives are beaten but Conservatism is victorious. Most of these associations are devoted in one form or another to unsound or impossible finance. It is rather the two-party system than the Liberal Party, that has been assailed."

Under the heading "Canada Kicks Over," The Herald-Tribune said: "The Liberals have won not only a clear but an overwhelming majority.... the principles dividing Liberals from Conservatives in Canada are quite as vague as those which separate Republicans from Democrats here yet our cousins to the north have refused to depart from the two-party system, have under provocation to do so from a half-dozen radical movements. Just as we have done before and will undoubtedly do again, they have staged a first-class revolt merely by switching from one major party to another. Mr. Bennett and his government had become identified with the depression. More particularly, perhaps, and certainly more recently, they had become identified in Canadian similar in many respects to our own new deal. On both counts it appears, they were slated for the discard in favor of a leader and a party, whose basic appeal was a promise to restore "normalcy."

The Journal of Commerce says: "The overwhelming victory of the Liberal Party in the Canadian Federal Elections will be welcomed both within the Dominion and in this country as the most desirable outcome of what might have become a serious situation. The Social Credit triumph in Alberta and the Ontario gain, the seeming popularity of the Stevens Reconstruction Party and reputedly enthusiastic receptions given the Conservative Prime Minister, Mr. Bennett, had indicated that no party might obtain a clear majority.

"W. L. Mackenzie King, the Liberal leader, now returns to power for the third time with an undisputed majority. In the light of his low farm stand his advent will doubtless greatly facilitate the negotiation of a renewal of the Ottawa pacts with British Empire countries. Similarly, early completion of pending negotiations of a reciprocal trade treaty with this country is now to be anticipated."

KEEPS HIS SEAT

Stationed at the last jump, our magic eye cameraman caught this exhibition of heads-up riding by Jockey McCarthy on Captain Jim the steeplechase event, second race at the Laurel, Maryland, track. As Captain took the jump, McCarthy was lifted out of the saddle, and seemed headed for a dive over Captain's head, but he held to the reins and "pulled" himself back toward the saddle again, landing with his neck against Captain's. However, he found his leather perch again, and, grinning broadly, drove his mount to capture second place in the race. The pictures show the action in correct sequence, from TOP to BOTTOM.

CANADIAN RECRUITS FOR BRITISH HOCKEY TEAMS LIMBER UP

With many recruits gleaned from British ice hockey teams are preparing for a monster season. Wembley (London) teams are already rounding into shape for the scheduled which will pit them against other British teams and possibly the European squads. Here are some new additions to Wembley Lions and Wembley Canadians, both popular metropolitan teams, in practice on the ice of the Empire Pool at Wembley Stadium. A major showdown is impending on the amateur skating of British teams with recruits threatened with ban by the ruling body. So is the flow of new material has not been checked.

by

Janet Doran

Judy forgot the flaming rows of salt-cellars, the mechanical thirty-three dollars wiped gradually out of their honeymoon fund. She forgot the taunting certainty of rain and the fact that Michael had bought the car on time, instead of paying cash as she had at first favored. She forgot everything but; the vibrant charm of his flashing smile, the lilt of his embarrassed laughter, the tender thoughtfulness that had sent him out into the early storm to buy bread and eggs and bacon, in order that she be protected, sheltered, cared for.

"Love me a little, Mrs. Swayne?" Michael teased, brushing a crumb of toast from her mouth before he kissed her tenderly. "Like being an old married woman?"

Judy snuggled into his arms, burrowed her brief little nose under his chin, and sighed softly.

"Love it, darling," she whispered sleepily. "I never felt so loved and protected in all my life before! Oh, Michael, we will be so happy, won't we?"

"Didn't I tell you this would be perfect?" Michael asked confidently. "The trouble with you modern heroines gals is, you're given too used to being waited on hand and foot and pooling! You don't know how grand it is to have someone look after you and—"

"Women," he concluded positively, "at heart want to be sheltered and protected. Rabbit. It's every man's ambition to shield the girl he loves from the hard knocks of the world. Most can stand the grind, but not women! He—heard her sob's lips, held her close to his nobly beating heart for a long moment, and then got up hastily.

"Almost forgot. Got to long-distance the office. Shop I work with owns me some money, and I've got to catch him before he goes out on his rounds." He went whistling to greet, and Judy watched him in delay, luxurious content, her face allayed by the convincing proof of Michael's love for her; his complete proof that he stood, a stalwart rocky bulwark between her and the bruising, rough outside world.

"Can I help you, anything dressed?" he asked, stooping to kiss her goodbye; overwhelming—her with his adoring worship for her every happiness.

"Nothing more...your love, Michael, darling," Judy whispered, holding him tight for a last kiss. "I'm nothing dressed, right away. Go through by the time you're back."

He dashed his head against the rain, and Judy pulled her robe tight about her and fled toward the bathroom, where Michael's razor was rubbing herself dry with a huge towel, before the rules in his college publishing observed her glowing absorption in her new-found responsibilities and roles. She recalled, then, that the cottage had had a sign, "Pay Station" over the door.

"Hello....hello, Shorty.....this is Mike Swayne.....Yeah, married, Shorty. I'm down here in Maine, and I've run out of cash.....Can you lend me fifty until I get back?.....Old Orchard..... Ran into your trouble, and need the surplus."

Judy was powdering her face, finishing her careful bathe-up, when Michael returned, whistling gaily. He kissed the nape of her neck lightly, and jingled the coins in his pocket, before he turned to the open luggage and began to pack up his things.

"The money?" he here—by train—he offered casually, "and we'll be getting out of here. Can't say I'm crazy about spending time in one of these dumps, in a rain like this!"

Judy folded his pajamas neatly and laid them on the bureau beside his open suitcase. Her hands were not quite steady as she assembled her toilet articles and began storing them in her luggage.

"What's the matter, Judy? Don't you like the rain, either?" Michael asked lazily.

"Michael," she said thickly, impulsively, "Michael, please let me loan you some money! I'd love it, really. I've plenty saved up! I'd as much rather!"

"Nothing doing!" Michael said grimly, punching his shoulders angrily. "Think I'm going to let my wife pay for our honeymoon? Now you forget all about money for a while, Judy, and concentrate on having a little fun for a change! Let's take care of things all right! I'm no infant!"

Judy's tangled lashes sparkled with tears as she turned away to hide herself from the suitcase, and her lower lip trembled childishly.

CHAPTER 6

JUDY'S DISCOVERY

They drove on, through the fine curtain of rain, and at one, Michael stopped at a big ocean-front hotel, and ordered dinner. Judy was still distrait, still so worried over Michael

TARZAN THE INVISIBLE

(Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

"Do not cry, La," Tarzan said, to Opar and you shall regain your throne." "I am crying for joy," she replied. "You have come with me." In pity, Tarzan let her be. Then they set off once more toward the barren city.

"We shall return, That night, they slept in a great tree, La in a rude couch which Tarzan constructed between two branches; Tarzan himself in the crotch of the tree a few feet below. Tarzan awoke at dawn. The sky was overcast and he sensed an approaching storm.

Tarzan and La had not eaten for many hours. He craved meat and must find it, returning to La before the storm broke. For La he would build a fire and cook it, though he himself ate his meat raw. Hunting had been in his youth, still preferred it raw.

He looked up into La's cot and saw that she was still asleep. Knowing that she must be exhausted from all she had passed through the previous day, he left her swinging to a nearby tree, and set out in search of food.

Little Benny's Note Book

ANIMALS AND PEOPLE

People are supposed to be a higher type of civilization than animals, and many of them proberly are.

Hawks swoop down on chickins and wolfs kill calfs for their veal, seeming like cruel things to do when you compare them to sitting down at a table in a refined way and eating a meal of chickin salad and calfs liver.

Birds never take singing lessons and yet their harmony is famous, while fellows often take 20 or 30 piano lessons and still sound feare.

Dogs eat grass when they don't feel good, while fellows are supposed to eat spinnitch to keep from feeling bad.

The smallest man can harpoon the biggest whale from a row-boat, only if he's not careful about it he'll be sorry he ever started.

Horses and dogs are man's best friends, especially on account of being allowed in the house. People are much better natured about their own dog barking than about anything of it, while other animals don't even live a day, such as a moth if a lady sees it.

The king of beasts is the lion, while the king of trees may also be the sultan or the emperor.

Carnivorous animals eat meat and never even try vegetables, and herbiferous ones go to the other extreme and only eat vegetables for every course of every meal, and they would probably look shocked at the idear of sitting in a drug store and eating a mixed up sandwitch of bacon and lettuce and chickin and tomatoes and mayonaise dressing.

EXPORT BOARD SUSPENDED

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—J. F. Singleton, chairman of the butter export marketing board, confirmed Montreal reports that the board had suspended operation. It had been in business since September 30. During the three weeks it was in operation the board and its agencies in Montreal arranged for export of 4,302,144 pounds of Canadian creamery butter to the United Kingdom. No exports to the United Kingdom were made during the corresponding three weeks last year. Mr. Singleton said exports were now being made to the United Kingdom without loss to the consumer, and that the work of the board was finished.

Proposal of France to Withdraw British Fleet Meets With Scant Favor England Must Maintain Her Position in Mediterranean

PRESS WITH ENGLAND

Says it is Time to Speak "Plainly" To France

By G. E. ANDERSON

(Copyright, 1935, By The Associated Press)

London, Oct. 17.—The French attempt to coordinate Premier Laval's policy based on a proposal that Britain should withdraw its Mediterranean fleet (precautions in favor of withdrawal of Italian troops from Libya, found scant favor today from either the government or the press.

After Sir John Simon, Cabinet, in effect, put it up to Italy to take the initiative in any reduction of armed forces in or about the Red Abyssinia was the great emphasized again and again, pressure all must be backed by the League of the League of Nations and the error Haile Selassie of Ethiopia.

Sir Malcolm MacDonald, Minister studying a report on the conversations this week between Premier Laval and Sir Samuel Hoare, Clerk, British Ambassador to France, Pierre Flandin, regarding the additional troops to Libya made it impossible for the British to weaken their fleet.

If the French Premier presented definite evidence that Italy was withdrawing troops from Libya, the British would be willing to discuss withdrawal of their fleet, but not before, it was said today.

Without Details

British authorities said they were without details of reported talks by Laval to persuade Il Duce to state his minimum demands in Ethiopia as a forerunner to a new conference.

The British press greeted the Chateau decision with such headlines as "Fleet To Stay Where It Is" and "Britain Declines To Withdraw."

Several newspapers pointed out frankly the time has come for Laval and France to make their choice between Britain and Italy in the Mediterranean.

"France has before her the choice," declared the Daily Herald, "and M. Laval is in serious danger of thrusting it upon her by a gesture and in a tribal to collect all his contract.

"It is not necessary to remind the French, above all people, that it is impossible to make concessions without breaking eggs. If the League, which is pledged to defend against the aggressor of today, how can it be expected to protect Abyssinia's possible aggressor of tomorrow."

WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 17.—(CP)— Showers or local thunderstorms in Northwestern Ontario, though in other districts of Eastern Canada the weather has been fair. There was light snow in Northern Manitoba and in a few sections of Saskatchewan but it has fair throughout the West.

Lake Superior—Variable or strong southerly to westerly winds; mostly cloudy with some showers.

Thunder Bay and Rainy River—Fresh westerly winds fair and cool.

Manitoba—Fair and cool.

Saskatchewan—Mostly fair with frosty or slightly temperatures.

Alberta—Partly cloudy with a little higher temperature, and probably a few scattered showers.

Air Base Near Alexandria May be British Defence Location

CONTINUOUS ARRIVALS

Four Italian Subs Will Interrupt Arms Shipments

By ALBERT W. WILSON

Associated Press Staff Writer

Alexandria, Egypt, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Military authorities agreed today on establishment for fighting aeroplanes, 18 miles east of here, would be the real British defence base in the event of trouble in the Mediterranean.

This air base, behind the historic Bay of Abukir where Admiral Nelson defeated the fate of Napoleon's adventure in Egypt, is the largest in the near east and one of the largest in the world.

Authorities estimate more than 1,000 royal air force planes have been but all private observers can see is a barbed wire fence along a road and the sand, the sea, the sky-blue and numerous hangars.

Proof that this site is becoming a congested air base is the fact officers' quarters are so crowded their Lieut.-Colonel Joseph Rivers, Clerk, British Ambassador to Egypt, and Premier Mussolini, Sir George asked for such assurance from Premier Laval replied. It would be easier for him to give an affirmative answer if Britain found it possible to withdraw part of strength in the Mediterranean. Sir George Lloyd referred Laval's policy to London.

Last night Sir George had a long interview with the French Premier and informed him as the British attitude. The understanding strengthening of the British fleet in the Mediterranean still remained Britain could not withdraw her ships. Sir George client then repeated his request for declaration assurance French Naval assistance will be forthcoming in the event of Italian attack. Premier Laval promised to reply in day or two.

Definite Action From Italy

Before withdrawing any of her battleships from the Mediterranean Britain wants unmistakable assurances from France and definite action by Italy. From France she wants definite assurance of her readiness to fulfil her obligations under Article 16 of the covenant. From Italy she wants:

(1)—Termination of the threatening attitude towards Britain signified by the inspired Italian Press;

(3)—Withdrawal from the Mediterranean, it is stated in British quarters, would be considered a month ago to a level considered the minimum in view of the circumstances. No assurances have been made about Abyssinia.

Appeasement over Libya

The British attitude, it is understood, however, have not ceased in the interval and they have continued to send troops to Libya.

Dino Grandi, Italian Ambassador in London, has informed all the chief of September of British apprehension at the increase of Italian forces in Libya. Yet only recently another 17,000 Italian soldiers were sent to Libya. The Italian forces in Libya are reported to far exceed the number of British troops in Egypt.

The reduction of British naval strength in the Mediterranean, the Canadian Press has been informed, has been brought about by changes in the political temperature [illegible] of the existing danger.

FLOWING MATCH ATTRACTS

Caledonia, Ont., Oct. 17 (CP)—All roads in Southern Ontario led to the Caledonia Fairgrounds Match today as an endless stream of cars poured over numbers of highway into Seneca township three miles north of Caledonia. Many of Ontario's best plowmen were competing this afternoon in the high cut and contour classes, the largest competition in the history of Haldimand County, their 30,000 people and 176 entrants. Largest number on record, plowing will begin at 9 o'clock tomorrow under ideal conditions.

Eat Little Meat, Plenty of Spinach, Advise of 105 Year Old Indian

New York, Oct. 17 (CP)— Two ness," he declared. "Eat when you're things you must have if you would hungry. Eat five, six, seven times live long and live well, Chief Pad Deer a day if you're not. Bill Mohawk Indian with 105 years Sleep on straw, wood or Buffalo behind him, are lots of fruit hide. Or maybe a deerskin. But stories and plenty of spinach. don't sleep on soft beds like lit-

His counterpart of the comic-strip mattress, because that's what diseases come from—the air never Popeye says you should eat grass touches it.

He pointed with a brown hand to a piece of wood on the floor. "I sleep on that—put it between me and the mattress.

"Rub your stomach night and morning. Smoke lives or four pipes and pat them by the fire when you're not using them. Roll your own cigarettes. Use plenty of tobacco, with a little vasaline. Then you'll be healthy and strong and live to be 200."

"Eat little meat, plenty of spinach."

Lord Tweedsmuir (John Buchan) and Lady Tweedsmuir will not attend the unveiling of the Champlain monument at Quebec until Nov. 2nd. Their plans for leaving England have been altered, so that their arrival at Quebec will not be much later than originally intended on Oct. 24. They sail for Canada on the Duchess of Richmond.

NEW GOVERNOR GENERAL SAILS OCTOBER 25

TEXTILE TRADE IN ENGLAND WORRIED

Believed New Prime Minister Will be Unable to Make Change

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 17 (CP Cable)— With the election of Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, the textile trade in England is wondering what action the Liberal Prime Minister will take regarding Canadian Customs duties and exchange competition, which Yorkshire manufacturers claim has greatly hindered exports to the Dominion.

No prominent textile manufacturer cares to express his views but it is the general belief Mr. King will be unable to make any very definite move in the matter as he would undoubtedly encounter opposition from Canadian manufacturers. There is also the belief here Mr. King's avowed intentions to increase Canadian-United States trade will not help the British exporters.

The federation of British industries is already preparing, along general lines, a case for submission to the next Imperial Conference expected within the next 18 months.

Waterfront Fight Is Believed Cause

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 17. (CP)—Albert Van Dell, 35, porter aboard the Great Lakes steamer John J. Sullivan of Fort William, Ont., died today of a fractured skull suffered in a waterfront fight.

Van Dell walked aboard the steamer yesterday, said he was feeling ill, and collapsed. He said after recovery to a hospital he had been "beaten up" and medical examiner Dr. M. Tuper stated after the sailor's death this morning it was obvious the man had been in a fight.

The freighter had sailed for Lake Superior when police began their investigation this morning and the medical examiner stated authorities there to question the crew on arrival of the ship.

Premier-Elect King Deluged With Messages

Ottawa, Oct. 17 (CP)—Telegrams and letters from all parts of Canada and messages by cable and otherwise from Great Britain, the United States, Japan and other parts of the world, have flooded the office of Premier-elect King. From the office today it was estimated it would be impossible for Mr. King at this time to attempt anything in the way of a ministerial statement. A staff is now working on the messages.

New Governor General Arrives Quebec Nov. 2

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—(CP)—Although are to allow Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King to make preliminary arrangements for his new Liberal Cabinet. The intimation given color to the suggestion members of the new administration will be sworn in here before the administrator, Sir Lyman P. Duff, before the arrival of Lord Tweedsmuir, although no official announcement has been made.

Ottawa's official party to Quebec to welcome the new Governor General will be headed by the Prime Minister of the day and his cabinet. Precedents have established this course which will be followed in greeting Lord Tweedsmuir, better known as John Buchan.

DUCE AND DE BONO AT LOGGERHEADS

Addis Ababa Report Says Mussolini Irritated by Delays

Addis Ababa, Oct. 17.—The Ethiopian government has issued an official communique today stating it was informed there were "grave differences of opinion" between Premier Mussolini and Gen. Emilio de Bono, his commander in Ethiopia, leading the latter to offer his resignation.

The official communique was issued shortly after Emperor Haile Selassie informed the Associated Press: "I will not discuss peace while a single Italian soldier remains on my soil."

At the same time, government officials stated Ethiopians who have escaped from Tigre province, scene of fighting for the past month, told Ethiopian men, women and even children were being compelled by their conquerors to work like slaves on road construction.

The communique stated:

"Informed persons say grave differences of opinion have existed between Mussolini and his general staff in Eritrea. Mussolini is most displeased with the stagnation of military operations around Adowa, seriously affecting the prestige of the Fascist army."

The king of Italy is reported to have intervened in order to terminate the dispute.

Premier's Remarkable Reincarnation

The communique continues:

"Mussolini it was asserted remonstrated violently when General de Bono, even threatening to remove him, whereupon, the general is reported to have resigned, saying owing to topographical difficulties, the enormous number of roads, the food and water difficulties and the determined resistance of the Ethiopians."

Love and Respect Between 2 Countries

Victoria, Oct. 17 (CP)—There is a genuine feeling of love and affection between the peoples of Canada and the United States and they have lived in amity for more than a century, Vice-President Garner of the United States said in speaking at a dinner given last night by the Government of British Columbia and the Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

"God help us to be that way always," he added. "As long as we live and understand each other, as we have done in the past, this particular section of the world is safe."

Premier Pattullo, who sailed with the vice-president and the party of 46 members of the United States Senate and House of Representatives who sailed later on the S.S. President Jackson for the Orient—hopes they will attend the inauguration of the first president of the Philippine Commonwealth.

KING SAYS PRESS REPORTS UNTRUE

Rumours Concerning Cabinet And Trade Unauthorized

Ottawa, Oct. 17.—(CP)—Statements which have been appearing regarding probable appointments in the new Liberal cabinet, policy and kindred matters are unauthorized, it was stated today. at Laurier House Tuesday arrival of Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, former Minister of Justice who will confer with Premier-elect King today the French elect has not discussed cabinet representation with anyone.

Mr. King has asked the Canadian Press to state he has noticed there has been reference to the newspapers, as was to have been expected, that he would be able to announce all the Liberal party and regarding action to be taken by the new Liberal administration on questions of policy, appointments and kindred matters.

Mr. King wishes the public to know he has given no indication whatever as to the terms either of himself or the party with respect to any of these matters. Any statements which may appear from now until the new government is formed are to be regarded as wholly unauthorized unless made expressly in his name.

Particularly does Mr. King wish to make it clear any rumors regarding trade and labour matters and what may result in connection therewith as a consequence of the change in administration are wholly without foundation; on all matters of this character Mr. King has been keeping his own counsel.

Pending arrival of Mr. Lapointe, with whom he will be conferring today, Mr. King has not discussed with anyone the question of cabinet representation or possible government action.

'Employ Guerilla Tactics' Says Emperor Selassie Reviewing Troops

Addis Ababa, Oct. 17.—(CP-Reuters)—Emperor Haile Selassie today counselled his warriors to "employ guerilla tactics," in the dispute with Italy.

Reviewing his troops, massed in the capital, Negus said:

"You must never remain massed. Employ guerilla tactics and be patient. Disperse whenever you see an enemy plane. Disband while clothes by [illegible] Italian warriors and ride past—some of them whipping themselves into a frenzy of barbaric enthusiasm.

UNQUALIFIED AID ASKED BY BRITAIN IF TROUBLE COMES

Premier Laval Seeks Time To Interview Cabinet

MUTUAL AID CLAUSE

Britain Will Not Withdraw Until Italy Meets Demands

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)
London, Oct. 17.—(CP Cable).—Great Britain had requested France to say definitely yes or no whether in event of an Italian attack on the British fleet in the Mediterranean the French fleet will give assistance. It was learned today Premier Laval of France has asked time to consider.

The British request to France was based on Paragraph three of Article 16 of the League Covenant which provides members of the League agree they will mutually support one another in resisting any special measures aimed at them by their member by the covenant-breaking state.

Assurance Sought

Britain is not questioning the French readiness to live up to the covenant. But it is seeking French assurance which Paris will leave no possible doubt on the point.

The question was first raised in an interview between Sir George Clerk, British Ambassador to Paris, and Premier Pierre Laval. Sir George asked for such assurance from Premier Laval replied. It would be easier for him to give an affirmative answer if Britain found it possible to withdraw part of strength in the Mediterranean. Sir George Lloyd referred Laval's policy to London.

Last night Sir George had a long interview with the French Premier and informed him as the British attitude. The understanding strengthening of the British fleet in the Mediterranean still remained Britain could not withdraw her ships. Sir George client then repeated his request for declaration assurance French Naval assistance will be forthcoming in the event of an Italian attack. Premier Laval promised to reply in day or two.

Definite Action From Italy

Before withdrawing any of her battleships from the Mediterranean Britain wants unmistakable assurances from France and definite action by Italy. From France she wants definite assurance of her readiness to fulfil her obligations under Article 16 of the covenant. From Italy she wants:

(1)—Termination of the threatening attitude towards Britain signified by the inspired Italian Press;

(3)—Withdrawal from the Mediterranean, it is stated in British quarters, would be considered a month ago to a level considered the minimum in view of the circumstances. No assurances have been made about Abyssinia.

Appeasement over Libya

The British attitude, it is understood, however, have not ceased in the interval and they have continued to send troops to Libya.

Dino Grandi, Italian Ambassador in London, has informed all the chief of September of British apprehension at the increase of Italian forces in Libya. Yet only recently another 17,000 Italian soldiers were sent to Libya. The Italian forces in Libya are reported to far exceed the number of British troops in Egypt.

The reduction of British naval strength in the Mediterranean, the Canadian Press has been informed, has been brought about by changes in the political temperature [illegible] of the existing danger.

HORSE IS STRUCK WANDERING ON ROAD

While straying on the highway in the vicinity of Jocelyn Creek, a horse, the property of R. H. Fuller, Trent Road, was struck by a passing motor car and trotted down shortly after midnight last night. The accident was investigated by Highway Constable Patrolman Leo Delaney, who was informed that the automobile was being driven eastward by Leonard Elliss, 180 Gough Ave., Toronto. Apparently the horse broke loose from the pasture field and was wandering at large on the highway, when struck. Mr. Ellis assured the constable he did not see the animal until it loomed up directly in front of him. The animal suffered several cuts and bruises, when knocked down. A veterinarian's service was summoned by Mr. Potter today. The machine in the front of Mr. Ellis' car and the top were slightly damaged. The matter of financial settlement was amicably settled at the scene by Mr. Potter and Mr. Ellis and no charges were laid, according to the Traffic Officer in charge.

BELIEF CONACHER IS A HOLDOUT

Leafs Open Training And Already There is One Casualty

Kitchener, Ont., Oct. 17 (CP)—Less than an hour after Toronto Maple Leafs had left the ice here and opened their two week training campaign at Victoria Park here today they had a casualty on that score.

Normie Schultz, who came to Leafs from Detroit Olympics of the International League, turned his left ankle at the physical training drill and will be here de combat for several days at least and possibly a week.

Absent from the workout today were two Leaf standbys, "King" Clancy and Charlie "Chuck" Conacher, at Toronto. Clancy is nursing a foot infection and will not report until Saturday at least. Conacher is believed to be a holdout.

POLICE BLOTTER

Continued cooler evenings are attributing to the increase in number of transients to appear nightly at the police station in search of warm and dry sleeping facilities. Last evening 31 cold and shivering transients were lodged in the police station and given warm quarters for the night. This is the largest number to appear at the night sergeant's desk this autumn.

Frederick Marsh, 27 Benjamin St., reported the loss of a number of chickens to the police authorities this morning. Mr. Marsh informed the authorities he had been missing chickens from the yard with marked regularity of late. The matter is being investigated.

Following complaints from the vicinity of the west hill section of the city, Police Constables Ferguson and Lazard apprehended two youths in possession of a rifle. It is alleged they were discharging the weapon and causing general confusion in that section of the city. The rifle was confiscated and the youths returned to their homes. No charges were laid.

EILEEN PROULX SOUTH PORCUPINE WINNER OF CAR

Frigidaire Goes to B.C. And Radios to Toronto, Alberta and Three Rivers

FINE VAUDEVILLE

More Than 3,500 People Jam Arena on Second Night

Interest in the drawing for the cars being given away by the Belleville-Kiwanis Club is not abating, judging from the size of the crowd present when the second draw was disposed of on Wednesday night at the Hastings Arena. Eileen Proulx of South Porcupine, Ontario, was the holder of the winning ticket and today she will be notified of her good fortune. The first car went to Saskatchewan, and the last car will be drawn for tonight. The ticket was sold by Oliver Proulx, most likely a relative of the winner.

The Frigidaire will take a long journey as Mrs. U. Thogre, Box 362, Kelowna, B.C. was the holder of the winning ticket. The three radios given as third major prizes each night were won by M. Keating 56 Rowland Avenue, Toronto, C. S. Angler, Rosebud, Alberta, and G. A. Gazzette, 535 Ste. Ursule St., Three Rivers, Quebec. All these winners will be notified by the Kiwanis Campaign Committee and then dispositions will be made. It is more than likely that Eileen Proulx winner of the Dodge sedan will come to Belleville personally to claim her prize. The winning tickets were drawn from the huge drum by five women members of the auxiliaries. The drum, donated to the club by the Stewart-Warner Alemite Corporation was kept revolving by an electric motor all evening and the drum securely locked.

Another $1,000 collection prizes were drawn and the complete list for the three nights will be published in this paper on Friday.

3,500 Present

More than 3,500 people milled, jostled and shoved themselves around in the Arena to witness the second night of the Kiwanis Carnival. The discomforture was taken good naturedly for everyone present was bent on having a good time and what did a little shoving matter. As usual the vaudeville and revue arranged by Bill Gazzolo of the Canadian Vaudeville Exchange went over with a bang. There was more snap to the program, the numbers were run off quickly and the acquisition in every part of the building were perfect. The variety of the program was most enjoyable and so arranged that the customers eagerly awaited the next turn. The scenery and lighting effects are of the program to a great extent and the Kiwanis Carnival committee are to be congratulated on the clean wholesome entertainment, that has been provided.

Before the show was completed, Cliff Barnaby, president of the Club came to the "mike" and thanked all, who in any way had contributed to the success of the enterprise. The management of the Queens Hotel was especially thanked for the beautiful bouquet sent and also to the Rotary Club for their display advertising wishing the sister club success. At the conclusion of the show, there was a mad rush for the booths and until away past midnight, the sellers were busy busy. The games of skill were heartily patronized, while the refreshments booths did a thriving business.

The younger set made merry on the excellent dance floor, that had been provided and with Ernie Brunet and his band clashing out popular music there was always a crowd on the floor. Eddie Shapiro, chairman of the dance was a busy man but everything was run off in fine order. A floor show given principally by the female members of the vaudeville troop was enthusiastically applauded. The Carnival will conclude tonight, and there will be a complete change of programme.

20 Choir Boys Sing In Music Festival

Twenty of the choir boys from Christ Church Choir are in Toronto to take part in the music festival of the School of English Church Music which is being held tonight in St. Anne's Church. They are one of the twelve choirs supplying the two hundred and fifty boys who will sing at the festival.

The choir boys from Belleville are the only ones outside of Toronto to take part in this, the first festival of its kind to be held in Canada.

Rev. G. G. Wright, the Rector of Christ Church, and Mr. George N. Mayhew, the organist, accompanied the boys on their trip.

At the evening service last Sunday Rev. Mr. Wright announced that the boys would repeat all the festival music at a recital to be held following evensong in Christ Church next Sunday.

Obituary

THE LATE ROBERT M. HEATH

Trenton, Oct. 17 (Special)—The funeral of the late Robert Mowry Heath was held yesterday afternoon from St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church and was largely attended by friends and comrades of the Canadian Legion of Branch 110 of Trenton. The service was conducted by the Rev. W. E. Kelley, Minister of St. Andrew's Church. The last rites of the Canadian Legion were administered by the Legion Chaplain Comrade James E. McKibbon. Corporal Short of the Royal Canadian Air Force, sounded the "Last Post". The bearers were: Comrades Lorne D. Foster, Robert Lloyd, Ernest E. Wiggins, James E. McKibbon, Geo. Jordan and W. R. Donaldson.

The late Robert M. Heath was born in Leith, Scotland 42 years ago. He came to Canada shortly before the Great War but when the call to arms was sounded he enlisted with the 156th Battalion and was later transferred to the 19th. Since the Armistice his health had been impaired although he was able to take an active part in the affairs of the community. At the time of his death he was Secretary-Treasurer of the Trenton Branch of the Canadian Legion and he held the same position at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church where he was an active and valued member. The late Mr. Heath was an ardent supporter of Dufferin Street School Home and School Club of which he was a former President. While acting as a judge at the annual Public School Field Day he contracted a severe cold which later resulted in his death at the Kingston General Hospital last Monday evening.

Surviving are, besides his wife, two sons, James 16, Robert 11 and one daughter, Mary 5, a brother, James Heath of Colusva who also left to mourn his passing.

LATE WALTER GARDINER

The funeral of Walter Gardiner, late of Delor, Ont., took place from the Tickell & Browne Funeral Home on Monday afternoon. The service in the chapel and at the graveside in Belleville cemetery was conducted by the Rev. A. L. Green.

The bearers were Messrs. Fred Farmer, Thos. Clare, Robert Davidson, W. Jones, Thos. Ramsay and Harold Ramsay.

Deseronto, Ont., Oct. 17 (CP)—Municipal Judge J. E. Merchon appeared in the court of Municipal Judge J. E. Merchon yesterday to answer a summons for double parking.

He fined himself $1.

Although noted this was the minimum penalty.

WINDSOR YOUTH ENTERS NO PLEA

Charged With Theft Of Car in This City.

John Kent, no address, was arraigned by local police on a charge of vagrancy last night. Kent appeared in the local police court, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler K.C., today and pleaded not guilty to the charge, "I ask this man be remanded in custody and re-charged with indictable and non-bandoning," requested Crown Attorney B. O. Donnan K.C., upon hearing Kent's plea. "Request granted", replied His Worship. It was alleged by police authorities today, that Kent was pan-handling on local streets, when apprehended following complaints received from citizens.

Fred LeClault, Windsor youth, who was arrested in Peterboro' when found in possession of Arthur Snare's automobile reported stolen from Belleville on Tuesday night, was not asked to plead to a charge of the theft of the vehicle, his case being enlarged until Monday, when after police authorities were notified of young LeClault's trouble. He gave his age as 16 years.

Two other teen aged youths companions of LeClault and found with the Snare car, pleaded guilty to the theft of Mr. Snare's car in a subsequent Juvenile Court. One, a police youth from the Bowmanville School of Correction, was sent back to that institution while the third was returned to the custody of his mother, who appeared in court and assured His Worship her son had never been in trouble before.

A local young man was sentenced to serve one month in the common jail when he was found guilty of failing to comply with the payments ordered in a previous U.P.A. court. The sentence was meted out by His Honor Judge Dorothy yesterday, who had presided in the first instance and heard the order of payment under the U.P.A. court.

MRS. TILFORD'S APPEAL IS FILED

Ten Points to be Covered When Frank Regan Argues Case

Woodstock, Ont., Oct. 17.—(CP)— Appeal of the death sentence imposed on Mrs. Elizabeth Tilford for the poison-murder of her husband Tyrrell Tilford has been filed by defence counsel, Frank Regan of Toronto, it was announced today.

The appeal notice states Mr. Regan will present his case orally in the Supreme Court of Ontario and is based largely on the claim the trial judge, Mr. Justice Kingstone, in charging the jury failed to include numerous points of evidence favorable to the accused and he failed to instruct the jury in the proper law governing cases or circumstantial evidence.

The 10 points covered in the appeal also include one that the trial judge failed to require the crown to call the only witness who received the arsenic into the house and knew what became of it and further refused to have the said witness called by the crown that the defence might cross examine."

The witness referred to here was Isabella Wells, 16-year-old daughter of Mrs. Tilford by a previous marriage, subpoenaed by the crown but was not called.

Mrs. Tilford was sentenced to hang Dec. 17.

Truck Shipments to Italian Africa Stopped

Detroit, Oct. 17—(AP)—The Detroit Free Press said today it had learned from "reliable sources" the Ford Motor Company had stopped all shipment of trucks to Italian Africa and had so informed the United States Senate Munitions Committee.

The Free Press credited the information to a letter sent by a Ford Company executive to an investigation of the committee headed by Senator Gerald P. Nye. It stated the Ford Company had exported 2,056 trucks to Italian Africa this year but ceased shipments at the outbreak of hostilities between Italy and Ethiopia.

William J. Cameron, Ford spokesman, confirmed the report no exports to the Africa war area had been made since hostilities began.

LONDON USING IRON NON-SKID ROADS

That section of Upper St. in Islington borough, London, wherein corrugated iron skid paving is being tested, is pictured. The corrugations, designed much after the style of the familiar auto tire treads, are expected to reduce skidding to the ultimate minimum and London traffic authorities are expectant in the matter of the wearing quality of the road. They believe that in this care, surely, the familiar guarantee to "wear like iron" will apply.

THE SPEED THAT KILLS

35,980 persons were killed in or by motorcars in the United States in 1934, while 1789 others lost their lives in collisions between automobiles, railroad trains and streetcars. The highest rate of deaths in which automobile figured was in Nevada with 78.40 per 100,000, and the lowest in Rhode Island with 14.60 per hundred thousand. The average was 26.9 per hundred thousand.

"What is the cause of this shocking increase?" asks the New York Times and answers: "About half of it may be attributed to increased use of the highway, gasoline consumption having jumped 7.5 per cent last year. A small fraction may be blamed on drinking and drunken drivers, with more money to spend on liquor. Most of the remainder of the added fatalities can safely be charged to increased speed, as distinguished from that convenient but over-worked scapegoat, reckless driving. There is no evidence that Americans were more reckless last year than the year before. Roads were better than ever; cars more nearly perfect mechanically. The only significant factor was the increased speed made possible by improved equipment and "safer" highways. In collisions no matter what the cause, it is generally speed that kills.

"Highway speeds are definitely higher than they were a few years ago. People who used to be content at thirty five miles an hour are now impatient at forty five. Thanks again to better equipment and improved highway surfacing, the ordinary driver does not realize how fast he is going; fifty miles an hour today seems no more than twenty-five in the old days. Moreover "Any current model can be driven much faster than the average driver's reflexes will permit handling with any reasonable degree of safety." He does not figure that a car going twice as fast takes four times as far to stop. He makes no allowance for the time it takes him "to make up his mind" to put on the brakes, three quarters of a second on the average, a significant and sometimes, at high speeds, a fatal interval. At sixty miles an hour, for example, the "reaction distance" of 160 feet, to calculate the total "stopping distance" of 226 feet."

It has been shown that two thirds of all fatal accidents on the highways in the United States occur at speeds in excess of 45 miles an hour.

Consider along with the above these facts: Not a single railroad passenger was killed in a train accident on steam railroads in the United States in the first six months of 1935, though the traffic was the highest since 1931, aggregating 8,600,000,000 miles and equivalent to transporting one passenger around the world 344,000 times without fatal injury. Not a single railroad trainmen were placed at 28 in the United States for the same period, compared with 42 in 1934's corresponding period.

What more need be said!

WHAT ABOUT THE BLACK MAN?

Looking the world over as it exists today, we do not think we have left out any other question that we might ask that has equal importance with that one, "What about the black man?" It was because we believed that we were faced with a condition that had grown more and more intense with the years, that this issue of our paper, devoted so largely to the continent of Africa, was decided upon. It is in that continent that the problem of the black man has become most difficult, and altogether critical. There, at least, it is not likely to wait for any easygoing and contemplative solution. Events are every day giving it a greater urgency.

In the current number of The Christian Leader, published in Boston, Professor W. Logan, head of the History Department in Atlanta University, writes a most awakening article, to which he gives the title, "The Negro Studies War Some More". He starts out by asking the question as to what shou'd be the black man's attitude toward another world war now looming on the horizon, and answers it by saying that he is convinced that it would be the best thing that could possibly happen for the two hundred million black men of the wor'd. He hastens to give his reasons for that seemingly brutal belief, which he sums up in the statement of a fact and a deduction from that fact. The fact he sets forth in the following terms: "Nowhere in the world is there an intelligent governmental policy that has even a long-range plan to keep black men other than subject or inferior citizens." The deduction is thus stated: "Nothing short of a considerable weakening of the white races by war will, I am afraid, bring appreciable improvement of the Negro's status."

One does not need to accept all the implications of that frank way of putting the situation to realize fully that the relationships between the black man and the white have come to a rather serious and difficult pass, with all sorts of dangerous possibilities ahead in the not altogether distant future. The idea that the white man can keep on settling the issues between black and white as he wishes them settled will have to be given up and, for the safety of the world, be given up very soon. No one in his senses would try to minimize the difficulties that stand in the way of the amicable settlement of the vexed problems that the relationship between the two groups have brought about, but it is getting more and more evident that the black man will have to take his just and legitimate place in the making of that settlement.

One thing seems very certain, our world must learn to live out a more genuine spirit of brotherhood or there will be dark and tragic days ahead for it. We ought to learn our lesson by an easier process, but if we refuse to do so, history seems to tell us that we cannot hope to escape the sterner discipline. The necessity certainly is upon us to try to know and understand the vexed situations created by the involved relationships between the races and to try to face them with sympathy and Christian understanding, ever missing any opportunity that may come to us to live up to our theory of the universal brotherhood of man. Practising a real brotherhood is better and more effective than much preaching of it.—New Outlook.

LIKE A TREE

Just stand like a tree
With your face to the sun,
As noble and strong as the tree,
Brave the winds,
Beat the storms,
When fear stabs your soul do not flee.
The strong winds may blow,
And the storms linger late,
Like a tree in the strength of your power,
You may bend, but not break,
With you roots grounded safe
A conqueror—never to cower.

A 40-ton locomotive ran smack in a storm on the Elder-Dempster steamship Mary Kingsley, 4,017 tons, injured three men and threatened serious harm to the steamship. The locomotive on the forward deck came clattering forward, pitching hither and yon with every motion of the ship. A 36-ton barge, also on the forward deck, was filled by the heavy seas crashing over the steamship and became a menace to the safety of the ship. The sailors tried to smash a hole in the bottom of the barge to allow the water to escape, but were injured when swept into the scuppers by the invading waves. The chief engineer finished the Job. (Remember the road roller running amuck on the ship in "China Seas?").

His Grace Archbishop Gauthier arrived in Belleville this evening prior to the dedication and reopening of St. Michael's Church on the 15th inst. He was met at the G.T.R. station and escorted in a procession to the church where an address of welcome was read to him on behalf of the parish by Mr. E. J. Butler. The address was signed on behalf of the congregation by Messrs. M. J. Hendrick, E. J. Conaut here, J. M. Hurley, James Cummins, The Quinlan, E. J. Butler, F. P. Carney, J. Hanley, W. A. G. Hardy, J. N. Trudach, J. W. McNab, L. P. Hughes, W. Williamson and J. S. McClurn. His Grace made a feeling reply after which he was escorted to the Presbytery. The procession from the station was led by the I.O.O.F. Band. Many members of the Knights of Columbus, Catholic Order of Foresters and Catholic Mutual Benefit Association and many citizens were in the procession.

The first altar in a Roman Catholic Church in this city was set up in the year 1827 in a small wooden building about 30x50 feet which stood on the south-east corner of the same lot upon which the present church stands. The Rev. Father Michael Brennan was the first priest and under his loving and fostering care the parish of St. Michael's flourished. In the year 1837 the second church, a stone edifice, was built and in it the congregation of St. Michael's worshipped for fifty years. Eventually it was found to be too small besides falling into a bad state of repair. The grand church which was burned last December, was commenced in 1886, the corner stone being laid on Aug. 22nd, and it was opened on October 7th, 1888.

POWER COMPANIES MAKE PROPOSALS

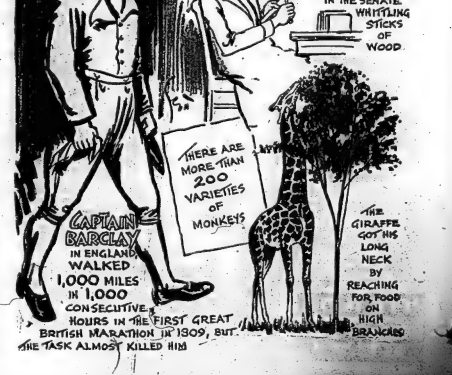
Expect Satisfactory Settlement on Hydro Contracts

Toronto, Oct. 17.—(CP)— Their counsel instructed, a committee of bondholders of Quebec power companies started today to perfect the organization, which will open negotiations with the companies, governments and Ontario Hydro Commission with a view to arranging a more satisfactory settlement on Hydro contracts.

From a number of proposals, the bondholders of Maclaren Quebec Power, Gatineau, Beauharnois and Ottawa Valley companies, endorsed a plan for refunding aggregate bonds outstanding at a lower interest rate, with government guarantees.

This proposal also provides means whereby the Ontario Hydro Commission would be able to accept additional power as stipulated in contracts and distribute it to users of Ontario at not more than $4 per horsepower, apart from the cost of building lines.

The meeting was told aggregate outstanding bonds of the four companies whose contracts with Ontario were threatened with cancellation was $160,000,000, bearing an average interest of 5.27 per cent. It was proposed to refund these issues with a coupon rate of 3.27 per cent. with interest guaranteed by the governments of Quebec, Ontario and the Dominion.



Gas Bombs Dropped On Eng. Camel Corps

Djibouti, French Somaliland, Oct. 17 (CP-Havas)—Gas bombs were dropped by Italian airplanes on a camel corps moving across British Somaliland territory, reports here today said. According to the reports the British High Commissioner at Berbera, British Somaliland, had notified the home government of the attack.

A large number of camels were killed by the gas fumes, the reports said. The reports did not state whether there had been any casualties among the men. The attack, the dispatches said, occurred close to the Ethiopian frontier.

Famine Feared.

Ethiopian from three provinces reported all their animals have been seized for the Italian army and a famine of the population is inevitable. Ethiopians in the capital commented indignantly: "So that is the way Mussolini expects to win away the Negroes from their loyalty to the emperor."

The correspondent informed the Emperor Great Britain had refused to reduce its fleet in the Mediterranean.

Praise For Britain.

The Emperor exclaimed: "This proves Great Britain is determined not merely by words but by the might of her fleet and army, to compel all outlaws to respect the covenant of International Justice and the principle of righteousness on which the security of the world rests."

His Majesty continued: "It is plain England perceives that peace cannot be reached at the price of violation of justice and sanctity of the League or by partitioning of land.

"I am sure that the British, with their traditional fairness, will see that justice triumphs in the end."

SAYS THIS WAR IS NO PUSHOVER

Robinson McLean of Toronto Broadcasts From Addis Ababa

New York, Oct. 17 (CP)— The spirit of hundreds of thousands of brown and black troops massed in Ethiopia—"A little tin-pot kingdom lost in the African mountains"—has caused Robinson MacLean, correspondent at Addis Ababa for the Toronto Telegram, to "think that perhaps the Italians aren't going to have the pushover they expected.

MacLean gave first-hand impressions of the situation in North America last night in a broadcast from the Ethiopian capital where "the streets are filled with soldiers who "sing songs of hate against the white faces." A transcript of the address, released here, in part follows:

Four Bombing Record

"The record of the Italian bombing hasn't been particularly brilliant up to the present. Take Gorahai for instance—little stone huts down in the sweltering desert—30 men and a colonel. So far it has been bombed three times, according to the latest census, and five men have been killed and 13 wounded.

"To till those five men the Italian aviators dropped 300 odd bombs; 100 of the bombs didn't explode . . .

Guerilla War.

"But in the north it was a different story. Dozens of women and children died in the bombing of Adawa and Adigrat. The Italians hold Adawa now . . . the Ethiopians didn't make much of a fight for the city. They were wise enough to realize that if they have any hope of winning this war, they must not lose Ethiopia in Guerilla warfare.

"The Italians claimed they did kill about 500 soldiers in the north, but they killed them with machine guns, not bombs. They killed them on Italian soil. That happened when 1,000 Italian Eritrean soldiers took Mussolini's rifles and scampered over to the other side to fight for Haile Selassie.

"How many have deserted the Italian ranks we don't know. Communications are bad in the north. The reason we know about the 1,000 who deserted and teh 500 who perished—the other 500 being mowed down by Italian machine guns—is that they passed near a telephone station and reported . . .

Flashes Outside Addis Ababa

"On the plains outside Addis Ababa hundreds of tents are pitched. Night now . . . there are 30,000 men there and most of them are rifle . . . Tomorrow 50,000 more brown warriors will pour through the gates. They are the men of Kambata province.

"This afternoon the Minister of War of Ethiopia put on his full European uniform. Soon he will be on his charger. He will ride with 50,000 men. There are hundreds of thousands more like them ready for the front and hundreds of thousands more coming along the trails . . .

Song of Haile

"The warriors yell their hate at us whenever they pass us in the streets. Personally I don't blame them . . . the war song of Ethiopia, translated means, 'break it up and feed it to the birds.' that's the correct I can come to the words.

"It doesn't sound like much when I sing it, but when you hear 35 000 men pouring out their voices in that howl of hate, it makes you think that perhaps the Italians aren't going to have the pushover they expected".

War at a Glance

Adawa, Ethiopia, Oct. 17—(CP-Havas)—The Rome zoological garden will be among the first to reap the fruits of Italy's war of conquest in Ethiopia.

Two small lion cubs, were found by Italian soldiers who took possession of this city in the palace of Ras Seyoum and have been shipped to Rome.

The palace of Ras Seyoum, now commanding Ethiopian forces south of Adigrat, was so seriously damaged by Italian air bombardment that it will be razed.

Buenos Aires, Oct. 17—(AP)—The Argentina government will place an embargo of shipments of armaments to Italy as ruled by the League of Nations, it was stated authoritatively today.

It was said government circles consider satisfactory Argentina's stand at Geneva but feel steps must be taken cautiously.

Addis Ababa, Oct. 17—(AP)—Ethiopian government officials expressed extreme skepticism today over reports 16 British and five Italians were killed in a clash on the British Somaliland frontier. Similar rumors reached Rome yesterday and were promptly denied.

London, Oct. 17—(AP)—Benjamin and Joseph Martin, sons of the Ethiopian Minister to London, left for Addis Ababa today to offer their services in the army of Emperor Haile Selassie.

Djibouti, French Somaliland, Oct. 17—(CP)—Rumors circulated today that Count Luigi Vinci-Gigliucci, head of the now-disbanded Italian legation at Addis Ababa, and his military attache, Col. Calderini, had been interned at Moggu, about 15 miles distant from the Ethiopian capital. The Italian consul at Maggalo will join them shortly whereupon the group will leave the country, reports said.

Tokyo, Oct. 17—(CP-Havas)—The Asahi Shimbun quotes a trustworthy source as saying the Soviet union has asked whether Great Britain would favor sanctions in the event of an invasion of Soviet territory.

The question was put to Geneva by Soviet Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinoff to Anthony Eden, British Minister for League of Nations affairs, the paper said.

Adigrat, Ethiopia, Oct. 16—(Tuesday, delayed in transmission)—(AP)—Degtar Gugsa, who came over the Italian side with 6,500 men, is becoming accustomed to his new surroundings.

He eats spaghetti with the officers and expresses the hope of another big battle where he can clash again himself. "Then, he said, "I want to go to Rome and see our "high life."

Stockholm, Oct. 17—(CP-Havas)—The crew of the Swedish ship C... sta, which has been sold to Ita... today refused to sail the vessel as an Italian port.

21-YEAR WIDOW LOOKS TO PRISO

Short Crime Wave Engul... Mrs. Ruth Vernot at ... Kentville, N.S.

Kentville, N.S., Oct. 17 (CP)—A 21-year-old widow, by turns hysterical and stoical, sat in a jail cell today and looked ahead to ... years in Dorchester Penitentiary.

It was the end of a short crime wave for Mrs. Ruth Vernot, leader of a gang of youthful thieves. It was the end, too, for the three-man gang this mother of a six-year-old child had led through at least three burglaries before the law caught up. All four pleaded guilty when they came before Mr. Justice John D... in Supreme Court, the young widow's admitted companions in crime ... Arch Cowtan, 20; Harry Hamilton, 22, and Owen Welton, 18—were sentenced to three months in County Jail.

But Mrs. Vernot, the Judge said in passing sentence, must be ... moved from the community for a period of time. Her influence over the male trio, he asserted, was bad. ... hoped, though, she would receive useful training in jail and emerge a better citizen.

NEW STATION AT CHATS FALLS CAN SUPPLY POWER

Set on Sunday Gives 60 Cycle Power to Eastern Ontario

HEPBURN TO 'DEAL'

Gatineau Power To Be Replaced If Necessary

Toronto, Oct. 17.—The Ontario cycle last Sunday quietly tested and proved its ability to supply 60 cycle power to Eastern Ontario, and is independent of all Quebec power supply, The Globe learned on night.

Several Hours' Test

Some time Sunday power from the Chats Falls change-over station, which has been rushed to completion at Chats Falls, was turned into the Eastern Ontario sixty-cycle mains for several hours, unofficially O.K.'d as the reported result which was given after the test. Power from all of the load is said as Queen's Park, is the result of the election which makes now entirely independent of Quebec power.

Behind the joker in the Quebec power company hand has been the Gatineau Power Company, Ontario hydro mens on sixty-cycle Gatineau power, which was imported in the premiers regime. Hydro could not easily provide that essential power from its own resources for the asking. On Sunday the new sixty-cycle power from the Chats Falls landed into the Eastern system in place of the 43,000 horsepower now from Gatineau.

Will Developments

Latter reported proof that Hydro could take that much power, even 60-cycle supply, the Hydro power was cut off and Gatineau power switched into the system, pending developments.

These developments may take shape in some final settlement of the old Ontario-Quebec boundary dispute, are now expected in a month or so as Queen's Park. With a compromise settlement of the power issue, the Ontario Government is reported to be in a position to make a good one dealing with the private power companies, and the Ontario Government holds most of the strings in its hands.

It is understood in Toronto that the Ontario Government will "deal" with the power companies. This is said to mean that the Administration is prepared to subscribe to some compromise. It is possible that they are prepared to offer the power companies to sell some surplus power to Hydro.

Ontario Government is dictating its terms, is limited by an intension to "deal fairly," in the light of the Government policy voiced when the powers said the controvrs were sold last spring.

Terms Not Stated

Neither Hydro nor Ontario authorities are prepared at present to announce what those terms will be. The chance that the companies will not delivery and payment for the last new power deliveries scheduled for next year is reported to be very, very slim. How far the final terms will sink into the Gatineau Power Company now send to Hydro is the question which is to be settled at this embarrassing negotiations.

WANT MORE PAY IN 8 HOUR DAY

140 Walk Out at Maple Leaf Milling Company Plant

Port Colborne, Ont., Oct. 17 (CP) About 100 men walked out of the Maple Leaf Milling Company's plant here, yards, feed mill and other departments yesterday morning as the 8-hour day began. The men struck in protest of the wages paid and refused to report for work at less than a basic rate of 40 and 45 cents per hour.

The night shift, which concluded at a 10-hour shift at 8 o'clock this morning, was the beginning of the eight-hour day at the mill, largest in the district. Sumpter Trader's shift went to work at 8 o'clock but left immediately, demanding an increase in wages.

The company had agreed to pay the men 40 and 45 cents a day. The basic rates under the 10-hour day, for eight-hour day, it was agreed, demanded the increases to $3.20 and $3.60. Through their spokesman, Thomas Magnuson and Andrew Courtney, they stated the cost of living in Port Colborne is the same as the wage paid by the International Nickel Company here, somewhat higher than that paid by the Milling Company, and they could not live on the wages they were now receiving, particularly in view of the fact that they are out of work time during the coming winter months.

CLOSE VOTE MAY BRING RECOUNT

Election of Former Candidates Still in Balance

(By The Canadian Press)

Of the dozen or so constituencies where close votes were recorded in Monday's general election recounts may be held in four. Definite decisions have not been made and probably will not be made until the ballot boxes are opened. In some ridings this will take place Monday, in others October 28.

The four constituencies are York West, Souris, Chaplean and Vancouver-Burrard. The closest vote in the country was recorded in the big new constituency of Chaplean where with returns incomplete, only one vote separated T. A. Lalonde, Liberal, and Frank Bisk, Independent Liberal. Mr. Lalonde held the lead.

The official election in York West where Peter L. Brown, Conservative, had been corrected election over J. E. L. Straight, Liberal, will be available Monday when the ballot boxes are opened.

A re-check in Souris yesterday gave George MacDonald, Liberal, an apparent margin of six votes over R. R. Wills, Conservative, whose election was conceded at first.

Despite the count which awarded Vancouver-Burrard to Arnold Webster, C.C.F., by a 50-vote majority over Mayor C. O. McGeer of Vancouver, Liberal, the fate of the seat will not be considered settled by Returning Officer R. G. Phipps until the ballot boxes are opened October 28.

A recount is not mandatory. The candidate demanding it has to petition a court judge giving reasons why he considered ballots were not properly counted and the judge rules on the petition.

The applicant must deposit $50 for surety for costs. If he is declared elected, the candidate previously awarded the election must pay the whole cost and the prevailing candidate recovers his $50 deposit. Should the protesting candidate lost on the recount, he must bear the entire cost.

MILL EMPLOYEES REPORT FOR WORK

Paid For Eight Hours as Much as They Received For Ten

Port Colborne, Ont., Oct. 17 (CP) Employees of the Maple Leaf Milling Company were back at their jobs today after an eight-hour strike, which company officials said resulted from a misunderstanding.

The mill-workers walked out yesterday upon learning they were to work an eight instead of a 10-hour shift. Paid by the hour, the men thought the change represented a reduction in pay. A conference with General Manager O. C. Maclachlan, of Toronto, then was held and it was afterward announced the misunderstanding had been set right with the men returning to work at the same wage for eight as formerly and been paid for 10 hours.

HOME DEFENCES ITALY FORTIFIED

Call Out Class of 1906 For Few Membership in Air Force

By George Jordan
(Associated Press Foreign Staff Writer)

Rome, Oct. 7 (CP)—Italy directed attention to its home defences today as informed sources expressed concern that relations with the League of Nations and Great Britain in particular, Air force and anti-aircraft officers of the class of 1906 (men 29 years of age) were called out.

Officials of the ministries of corporations, agriculture, finance, communications and merchant marine conferred on detailed measures for fixing the food supplies situation in case League sanctions are applied and for defence against sudden prizing sanctions into practice.

Pessimism replaced the earlier optimism as the dominant mood in the capital's political quarters. Informed sources said Fascist chiefs were worried lest the tension mounting between Britain and Italy would crystallize with unforeseen rapidity.

Officially little importance was attached to French moves for settlement of the crisis. Authorities emphasized Italy was taking no part in any peace negotiations.

Officials said the Ethiopian campaign in its military aspect was a peaceful movement and exerted every effort to place it in a favorable light before Europe.

OBTAINS SUCCESS WITH NEW WHEAT

Manitoba Farmer Produces Excellent Crop of Rust-Resisting Wheat

Arnaud, Man., Oct. 17.—(CP)—Harrassing his habels to the acre of plump-kernelled "Thatcher" rust-resistant wheat, Alfred Lillejord, Swedish farmer here is the envy of his neighbors and a study of great interest to the Manitoba government.

Lillejord's 230 acres of wheat was surrounded last August by thousands of rust-ruined acres. His excellent crop attracted attention from nearby farmers, with the result that government experts frankly last examins the samples. A few days later a deal was made with the province for 5,000 bushels at $1.90 a bushel, to be used as seed.

The government agreed to make the seed available to farmers at cost, with a limit of ten bushels to each of their customers. Two days after the purchase was made application began to pour in, and within three weeks there were 1,100 requests for only enough wheat to supply 500.

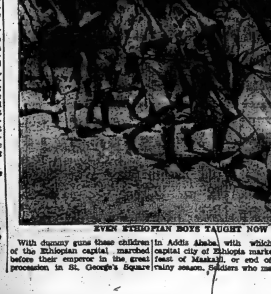
Lillejord received $12,000 for his crop. The new variety, named after Dr. Roscie W. Thatcher, former dean of the University of Minnesota, Agricultural branch, was developed after years of experiment at the university farm here by H. R. Hayes, Minnesota agronomist.

Lillejord bought ten bushels in 1931, and kept saving the entire crop for seed. His big test came this year when rust made scrgrr ravages into United States and Canadian crops. "It proved my unqualified success. Experiments in the United States have proved just as successful, with 200,000 bushels being available to United States farmers as seed next year.

The wheat has good milling qualities but the flour has a slight yellow tinge. It is hardy, a good yielder, and most important of all, has proven a good rust resister.

Right Kind of Teacher Needed Say Dr. Faulkner

Toronto, Oct. 17 (CP)—Necessity of having the right kind of teacher in the school, as a first essential towards decreasing the number of mentally ill in mental hospitals, was emphasized by both Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Ontario Minister of Health, and Dr. Harvey Clare of Stonewood Sanatorium at last night's session of the convention of the Canadian Association of occupational therapy.



"If we are going to develop the kind of people who are not going to break down we must have the right kind of teaching in our schools. Our schools should try to produce men instead of people who pass examinations," said Dr. Clare.

"Hundreds of boys and girls are being taught that the chief business is to pass examinations. We should teach them to live free, frank, open lives. It is repression of the emotions and the desires and thoughts that do untold harm."

Dr. Faulkner declared that all the mental cases were preventable. "We should get the right type of teacher in our schools and then cooperate with that teacher 100 per cent. How often we see a boy whipped at school, come home and get the youngster of his parents. We have passed the buck to one of the poorest paid professions, the Canadian public school teacher," he continued.

The spirit of humanity "lost its bread" when it slightshted the mentally ill, the speaker declared, he said. He was glad that day was past and mental hospitals were becoming less institutionalized.

EVEN ETHIOPIAN BOYS TAUGHT NOW TO CARRY GUNS

With dummy guns these children of the Ethiopian capital marched before their emperor in the great procession in St. George's Square in Addis Ababa, with which the capital city of Ethiopia marked the feast of Maskall, or end of the rainy season. Soldiers who marched in the great review were in full kit, and many of them left for overseas to depart for one of the several fronts.

CHANGES TO COME IN MEDICAL FIELD

Great Strides Predicted in The Next Ten Years

Saskatoon, Sask., Oct. 17.—(CP) Lack of governmnent finances is the main drawback in state medicine in Canada but with the next ten years tremendous changes in the practice of medicine will be made, declared Dean W. S. Lindsay of the University of Saskatchewan medical school in an address here.

Successful forms of the government system already in operation are free clinics for cancer and venereal diseases, as well as institutions for the treatment of tuberculosis, said Dr. Lindsay, and with state control taking a major part in medical research standards will be raised to new levels.

"That well beloved character, the general practitioner, is slowly becoming a thing of the past," he stated. Under state control opportunities to students of medicine would be greatly enlarged, for areas unable at present to obtain medical services because of lack of funds would be supplied with professional aid by the government.

He cited the "panel" system of Great Britain as a decided boom to the public and medical men.

Vancouver, Oct. 17.—(CP)— The war on the European carvig, one of the most recent pests of the Western coast, will be in full swing by the end of this year when parasites developed by the entomological branch of the Dominion department of agriculture will be available in sufficient numbers to combat the garden pest.

Brisbane, Australia, Oct. 17. — (CP)—Former Aussie soldiers have adopted the chain letter plan in the cause of peace. The letters urge the avoidance of war and are forwarded to returned soldiers associations throughout the world. The chain is hoped to finally encircle the earth.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Clothes are important, even to men. In fact, there is an anxiety to clothes, a physiology of clothes and a psychology of clothes. For clothes influence in many ways. They affect your mind as well as the minds of those that behold them.

The fit of the clothes may be termed their structure, their anatomy. Tight-fitting clothes hamper your movements and restrict your activities. Hampering garments prevent you from getting around as you want to. They make you irritable and nervous.

On the other hand, garments that are too loose, that flap around the body, produce a feeling of looseness and slouchiness. The result of this upon your mind is a feeling of indifference—and "I-don't-care" attitude.

Poorly fitting clothes draw attention to any peculiarities of figure or gait that you may possess. In this instance, the result on your mind is embarrassment.

By physiology of clothes I mean the suitability of your clothes as to thickness and thinness and its consequent effects upon your well-being. Thin clothes in cold weather permit too-free body radiation. Hence a needless strain is placed upon the circulation to keep the body warm. This result interferes with mental concentration. Thick clothes in hot weather are also bad. Lack of radiation causes the sweat-glands.

By psychology of clothes I mean the texture, the color, the appropriateness of your clothes in relation to the occasion for which you wear them. Cheap material, garish colors, or clothes worn out of place, make you a marked man or woman. The result is embarrassment on your part—possibly a feeling of resentment. Again, dark-colored clothes have a depressing effect upon spirits while gay colors elevate them.

Yes, clothes have anatomy, physiology and psychology well worthy of consideration. Everybody wants appearance, sureance, confidence. Clothes also help to give you these, to you.

Fundamentally, it is the mind, of course, but the doctor recommends above effect that mind of yours. See that your mind is affected beneficially! Buy clothes to suit your personality and figure. Beware of styles fads and fancies. Make your clothes an asset to your personality while you wear them. Take time and thought in selecting them. Power Compromise Denied by Hepburn

Toronto, Oct. 17 (CP)—Despite reports of a Conservative majority of a compromise between the Ontario Reform Government and the Quebec Power Companies, Premier Mitchell Hepburn insisted today it is the intention of his administration to push claim the legislation which declares Ontario power contracts illegal.

With the election out of the way and possibility of the contract cancellation affecting the result removed, Mr. Hepburn called his Cabinet into session today to discuss the question of termination of the contracts.

With the change over at our Chats Falls plant, we offer both 25 and 60 cycle power there," he explained. "We are independent and in a position to deal with the Quebec people. They can shut off all their power and we can still run, and we can get what we need from Chats Falls."

GIVE AWAY FORTUNE TO ESCAPE TAX

Washington, Oct. 17 (AP)—Securities Commission reports said today Joseph Kennedy, former Ambassador to France, and Percy A. Straus, New Yorker, have given away $5,819,740 worth of stock.

The gifts swelled the total of millions of dollars which the reports give away by corporation officials and heirs to escape taxes in the past few months. Such contributions are subject to lower taxes now than they would be if they were delayed until after next January 1 when a new gift tax schedule goes into effect.

MEXICAN TOWNSFOLK FLEE FROM BANDITS

Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, Oct. 17 (AP)—Residents of Agua Prieta, Sonora town were reported fleeing across the border into Arizona today as fear of bandits increased after a disarmed unabated.

Mounted guards patrolled the city of Agua Prieta where Commandante Jesus Macgallan said he had every reason to believe he was absorbed by a roving band of heavily armed bandits.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 17.—(CP)—Selective buying proved a sustaining force in today's stock market but quiet profit taking in a number of the recent favorites acted as a restraining influence against spurting prices.

Among Canadian stocks Dome dipped a point while International Nickel and Canadian Pacific were about even. Gain Grain Ribstone Wedge advanced nearly a point and Lake Shore was slightly higher. Dominion Government bonds ruled steady. Canadian Funds improved 1-16 of a cent at 99 9-16 cents.

Shares of Mack Truck, Swift, Eastman Dillon, American Power and Light Preferred and United Corp. Preferred advanced 1 to 2 or more points. A steady to slight, but improved tone was shown by U.S. Steel, General Motors, Chrysler, Packard, General Electric, American Can, Westinghouse, Consolidated Gas, National Dairy and Borden. Utilities issues included Chrysler, Du Pont, Johns-Manville, U. S. Smelting and American Smelting.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 17.—(CP)— Stocks turned irregular in early afternoon on Toronto Stock Exchange following a fairly free display through the morning and noon hours. Gains up to a half point in the liquor shares, Ford and Dominion Tar & Chemical Preferred were converted into moderate losses.

The restraining influence was chiefly the hesitating performance of the New York market but the disturbing situation in the Mediterranean also supplied a reason for caution. Brazilian was particularly weak falling back to 7 1-4 in quite heavy selling.

Power stocks were stronger, gains of around a point each appearing for Power Corporation, Beauharnois and B. C. Power A.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Some of the utility, alcohol and food issues pushed ahead in today's stock market but most of the rails backed up a trifle along with a number of the recent favorites.

Wilson and Co. Preferred and Western Union got up more than 2 points each while gains of fractions to a point or so were registered by Consolidated Gas, Standard Brands, Case, National Distillers and American Commercial Alcohol.

Off a like amount were Chrysler, General Motors, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem and International Nickel. Allis-Chalmers Jumped a point to a new year's low. The late tone was irregular. Transfers approximated 1,350,000 shares.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Oct. 17.—(CP)—The minigal list had pointed strength on the Toronto Exchange today, particularly during the morning session but the clearness of gains was limited in all metal groups. Losers were limited to a few cents each. Lower prices for lead and zinc helped to weaken the base metals. Hudson Bay, Sherritt Gordon and Base Metal Corporation changed hands at lower prices.

In the general sickness of the Toronto trading Hollinger dropped back to 1.31 off 7 cents and other gold stocks were unchanged or down slightly.

The feeble post election boom was functioning poorly in the golds also and morning gains in Pickle Crow, Lake Shore, Sylvanite Patricia and McWatters were cancelled.

Had to Set Fires Investigators Told

Montreal Oct. 17 (CP)—Charged with setting fire in connection with two fires in the city last night, Arthur Giroux, 22, pleaded not guilty when arraigned in police court today. He was remanded to October 23.

According to police and Fire Underwriter investigators Giroux told them following his arrest "I had to set the fires or I would die." Eric Neuman, fire investigator, quoted Giroux as saying he had been ordered to set the fires by some person unknown to police.

Removal of Uncertainty Over Taxation

A better tone has been noticeable in the mining market since Tuesday morning. The majority of mining men and mining analysts were favouring a liberal victory. The various changes which were put into effect regarding taxation during the past few years have, according to mining men and mining brokers, frightened many foreign investors and speculators.

It will be recalled that in a speech made in Vancouver on September 26th, the Right Hon. Mackenzie King emphasized his policy regarding the mining industry in establishing confidence in order that foreign capital might be attracted. The development of a uniform mining policy throughout Canada, he stated, would lead to a great development in that industry and would open the door to increasing prosperity. The existing uncertainly as to taxation and security regulations, the varying policies of the provinces, could be removed by conference of Provincial premiers.

South Africa, stated the Liberal leader, has been getting millions for mine development and had been prospecting systematically. No one had gone there from Great Britain because investors know that they are to expect in the way of taxes and regulations and administration.

Macassa $441 on Ore on 2,000-Foot Level—Powell Rouyn Reports Gain

It is learned that approximately 300 feet of ore has now been opened up on the 2,000-foot level of Macassa. No recent information has been given out as to width and average values, but the ore is understood to average well above mine average with better than drift widths. While in some quarters it is believed that this new ore is not a separate body but a downward continuation of the bodies found on the upper levels, the management holds to the idea that this recent ore is a separate occurrence and the so-called main ore is yet to come, this perhaps 100 feet in front of the east drift face. Recently, Mr. R. A. Bryce, president, said that the management felt confident that what has been called the new orebody will remain within Macassa ground on both dip and rake.

So far this new development had added materially to known ore reserves but the possibilities appear so great that the main problem of ore development work may change the whole Macassa picture.

The electrical storms are having a constructive influence on a number of situations and several large gains have been recorded in the past week. The elimination of uncertainly over the results has been followed by the rise in some stocks, while the interference of constructive developments for some months has served as a buying power sufficient to move some issues upwards considerably.

The rise in Simmers calls attention to the fact that Cpitvie is a large holder of Simmers stock. In the past, a sharp run-up in Consolidated Smelters has usually found reflection in the rise of Simmers. In Rouyn Flour, The Canadian Pacific, which owns control of Consolidated, is also benefitting from the advance in the stock.

It may be only a coincidence, but the Liberal Party was always in power during prosperous times.

Noranda and International Nickle are both well liked by the investing investors. The former is benefitting in a big way from the rise in copper prices and an increase in earnings is confidently anticipated. In the case of International Nickle, the third quarterly figures should show a good increase, the actual capitalization of present high income could easily justify a split-up and the companies augmenting their current dividend disbursements.

Good Common Stocks Are a Buy

Now that the investment stocks are buying a partnership interest and in good times are the first stocks of increasing earnings in the form of better dividend returns, are the prospects for your stocks. Since it is generally conceded that substantial recovery in business is now under way, carefully selected common stocks should now represent a large part of your investment portfolio.

The matter of wise selection to determine whether the profits realized will prove good or bad for you. If you invest carelessly, the chances are that any securities you buy will give you more grief than satisfaction. If you buy with a knowledge of vital investment data, you are likely to realize profits and good incomes during the promising years ahead. Canadian Securities is in a position to furnish this information.

Duke of Buccleugh Taken Seriously Ill

Selkirk, Scotland, Oct. 17 (AP)—The Duke of Buccleuch, father of Lady Alice Montagu Douglas-Scott, fiancee of the Duke of Gloucester, today was reported seriously ill.

Ailing since an operation about a year ago, the Duke of Buccleuch's condition reached a serious stage. A relapse last night from his home, Bowhill, said his "condition is giving rise to serious anxiety."

Kingston Trounces Galt 13-8 At Maple Leaf Stadium, To Win Senior O.B.A.A. Title

"Bud" Clancy Goes Route But is Hit Rather Hard

TEAM FIELDS WELL

Hewitt Smith Had Four Out of Five With The Willow

Toronto, Oct. 17—Kingston Ponies earned the O.B.A.A. senior championship to Eastern Ontario for the first time in years when they whipped Galt Terriers 13 to 8 at Maple Leaf Stadium here Wednesday afternoon. It was the third and final game of the series, the teams breaking even in home-and-home games previously.

Despite this weather, considering the lateness of the season, the crowd was disappointingly small, less than 1,000 spectators witnessing the game. It was a free-hitting affair, with Kingston collecting 15 safeties off the offerings of Galt pitchers.

13 The Limestone City lads didn't get under way until the third inning, but once they started there was no holding them.

"Bud" Clancy, the much-heralded Kingston right-hander who held the Terriers to six hits in the first game, 7 to 5-3, was no mystery to the Intersociety champions on this occasion. The Terriers threatened to bunch him out of the box in the first two frames, when they scored a two-run lead. But after that Frames Galt forgot to bunch, and Clancy settled down to more effective pitching. The Ponies had their three runs in "rout" when Galt went to bat in the sixth, but the Terriers tied the score in that session before a man was retired. However, the Central Ontario league champions came back in their half of the sixth to get three runs, and never were never headed after that. The Ponies scored in every inning after the second, winding up with a four-run splurge in the eighth.

Baird Removed Early

Jim Baird, young Galt southpaw, started for the Terriers, and showed lots of be, going along nicely until two were out in the third. Then suddenly the Limestone City batsmen, Clancy, Compeau and McQuaide caused consternation in the Galt camp and Baird was promptly convicted in favor of Jack Murphy, Terriers' ace, who finished strongly for the Kingston batsmen, who made 13 hits off him in four and a fraction innings. He was relieved in the eighth with one man out and four runs in the clutch. Thompson, a small, slim right-hander, managing to retire the side without further ado.

Gordon Bradshaw, the hefty first baseman of the Ponies, hit two triples and did three in a run each time. Bradshaw took the first three in his stride, Catcher Bennett was the only other Terrier to get more than one hit. Bennett made a triple and a double in five appearances, driving in two runs and scoring three times.

Hewitt Smith, third baseman, led the Kingston batsmen. He had four safeties in five trips to the plate and drove in five runs. His assortment included a home run with the bases full, the eighth McQuaide was purposely walked to get Smith, but the latter made this strategy look ridiculous by shooting the ball over the fence. Galt Weaver tried to take off his shoe-tops; he failed to get up to the ball but he did manage to get a triple.

Meggie's single and Bradshaw's triple accounted for Galt's run in the third inning. Meggie drew a free Gooding's sacrifice and two hits, both of which went for hits, gave Galt another run in the second.

Kingston Takes Lead

After retiring the Ponies without a hit or run in the first two frames Baird walked Clancy to open the Kingston third. He got the next two men, however. Clancy going to second when Arnell was thrown out. Compeau singled to right, scoring Clancy. McQuaide also singled to right, Compeau going to third and McQuaide to second on the throw to get Compeau. At this point Murphy replaced Baird and finished inside the first of his four hits off the Galt fast-ball flinger—a triple single to centre that brought Compeau and McQuaide home.

Galt's single and Boyd's double, a drive that hit the top of the right field fence and bounded back into the park, paved the way for Kingston run in the third. Quinn opened the inning at Clancy's infield safety. Arnell's single and Smith's double sold Quinn to the plate.

Weaver walked to open the Galt sixth and Bradshaw got an infield single. Bennett tripped to deep left scoring both. Howard singled Bennett to left with the tying run.

The Ponies did not stay on even terms long. With one man out in the third of the inning, Boyd and Clancy walked. Scrutton filed to Gooding, but Arnell's fine drive got away from Weaver for three bases, Boyce and Gooding scoring. Clancy then tripped to right to score Arnell.

Clancy was touched for three hits and two runs in the eighth. Bennett's double and Gooding's triple featuring that frame. With two away in the Galt ninth, Bradshaw tripled to deep right to score Weaver. The Ponies had the game well in hand by that time. In the eighth Scrutton beat out an infield hit and scored when H. Bennett threw Arnell's bunt too hastily. Arnell drawing up at third on the play. Compeau popped to Meggie, but McQuaide was purposely passed. Smith tripled to score two, and he counted on a single by Dr. Louis. Murphy was taken out then and Thompson retired the side.

Kingston showed a neat second sacker in Jake Quinn. He handled set fielding chances faultlessly, playing his position well and getting a couple of hits in three official times at bat. He might improve his batting if he didn't dance around so much at the plate.

Catcher Bennett of Galt is the strength of that team. He has a fine throwing arm, hits well and looks like a ball player. A good first baseman would have caught his fast one in the eighth when Arnell was bunted. Bennett had to toss the ball high to prevent hitting the runner, but the throw seemed to take Bradshaw by surprise. He didn't get it.

It appeared to be a mistake on Galt's part to remove Baird. The youngster was making up his pitching well and he appeared to have something on the ball. At least, the Ponies were having trouble hitting him. He might have lasted several innings longer without much scoring off him.

Murphy, had a fast ball, but he couldn't keep it out of the groove. At that, better support from two of his outfielders would have saved him some grief. Weaver had both hands on Arnell's drive in the sixth, but failed to hold it. It was hot and roaring away from him, but a faster man would have smothered it easily.

Clancy is a slim, gamut young chap who hails from Philadelphia. He has more knowledge of pitching than either Baird or Murphy displayed. He didn't look good on bunts. Also, he didn't look good in a fourth, when he has to bird on Scrutton's lift to Gooding. Clancy finally pitched at second on Gooding's throw.

The amateurs still maintain the old system of playing for one run in the early innings. If the first man up in the second always attempts to sacrifice. The Terriers stick to this system religiously. With three runs in the score tied, nobody in the sixth and only one on his bat, Hickey sacrificed. Clancy was in a tough spot in that inning and it looked as if the batsman was out to keep on swinging hard in an effort to drive him out of the game.

Kirsty Lee was among those present. Knocked out in the ninth, Kingston had all the luck in eliminating the Peterboro team.

Lionel Sinclair, manager of G. and W.'s Toronto championship team, is in conflab with Kingston club officials here. Sinclair would like to see getting nowhere fast. The Ponies are willing with their Ontario laurels, and there will be no game off with the T.A.B.A.A. champions.

Scrutton's catch of Meggie's long drive in the ninth was the fielding feature. W. Bennett was on first at the time and Meggie's drive was ticketed for extra bases had it got away.

'Y' Swimming Club Begins Activities

The members of the Y.M.C.A. Swimming Club held their first practice swim of the season at the Y pool last night. In spite of the fact the notices for the meet were late in getting to the members, a good attendance was on hand. With practically all of last year's swimmers available again this year, the instructors are looking forward to an interesting and successful season and all are keen on making the greatest possible progress. The object of swimming this winter will be the training of their life savers test of the Dominion Y.M.C.A. Swimming and Life Saving Programme, before November 30th and hereafter all members of the Y wishing to join the club will be required to first pass this test. Members of the club will probably be competing in several inter-association swim meets during the indoor season and with this year's early start they should be all set to form for all such activities.

ANOTHER LEWIS ON WAY TO TOP

Negro Challenger For Light Heavyweight Crown Real Boxer

St. Louis, Oct. 17.—(AP)—John Henry Lewis, dusky challenger for the world's light heavyweight crown, rubbed his rabbit's foot today, perused the sporting pages and decided where his friend, Joe Louis, is apparently heading—at the top of his class.

The hard-punching Arizona negro practically would knock out champion Bob Olin in six rounds or less in their 15-round bout for the title here Oct. 31. He has his reasons.

"I've beaten the person who was champion three times in the past couple of years," he said. "Twice I beat Rosenbloom (Maxie the slapper), when he had the title and last Winter I gave Bob Olin a drubbing. The championship was never at stake in these fights though, so I've just had to be content to be the man who beat the champion."

John Henry wasn't given his task. "I can go 15 rounds at top speed and never know I've been in a scrap," he continued. "But don't think I'm going any 15 rounds. No sir. I'll be mighty surprised if I have to 'come out for the sixth.'"

Tom Louis, the brown bombing heavyweight, will referee one of the preliminary bouts.

PRINCETON AND YALE ARE BEST

Rated High This Year Among Teams in The East

New York, Oct. 17.—(AP)— The east lacks a big football conference such as the major western and southern groups but a couple of times each season it's interesting to see how the "old guard" is faring within its limits and against "outside" opposition.

The "old guard" is the term generally applied to the seven United States universities in the eastern football and basketball leagues. Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Dartmouth, Cornell, Columbia and Pennsylvania.

Princeton and Yale are rated among the best teams in the east with Cornell and Harvard down in the coldrums, the group has recorded eight victories and four defeats against outside opposition. This year's program should give an even better line on its strength.

Penn is favored to beat Columbia in the only old-guard game of the week. Yale stacks up against Navy, Dartmouth tackles Pennsylvania and one-which might be included in the "conference" Harvard, trimmed by Holy Cross in its only major game so far clashes with Army and appears due to take it on the chin again. Princeton faces its neighbor, Rutgers, in a renewal of football's oldest rivalry, Dartmouth kinner of three minor victories in its downtrodden Brown eleven.

Palmetier Kids Praised by Star

The following newspaper clipping was taken from Wednesday's issue of the Toronto Daily Star and clearly demonstrates the prowess and ability of local athletes outside of Belleville. It reads:

While two little kiddies, George Palmetier aged five and his brother Roy, aged six, bored an exhibition hockey game between the regular amateur card at Maple Leaf Gardens Tuesday night, few folk in the crowd of about 3,000 saw the cute young codgers' father cheering them from the upper grandstand.

And fewer still realized that there is a tragic story to be told concerning the dad, and grand-dad.

Their grandfather, Silas Palmetier, aged 60, had met with a level evening accident 35 years ago which cost the old gentleman the best of both legs, well above the knees. And that nine years later, at the same level crossing, the kiddies' father, Lorne Palmetier, was the victim of a similar mishap. So, the grandfather's both legs to-day.

Tuesday night the father saw his two young sons box. He sat at the ringside with his wife and after the little fellows had put on their show he walked on artificial limbs, shouldered the aid of cane or crutch to the dressing room to congratulate them. He was a proud dad.

It was the first time the two boys had ever boxed outside of Belleville and their little dad was warmly received.

Both the dad and grandfather work regularly. W. E. Rowsome, manager of the Stewart A.C. in Belleville confirms. "They were ever greatly interested in sports until Roy and George were given a pair of boxing gloves by a citizen in their home town.

Tuesday was the first day in their young lives that either of the boys had seen a street car.

Last night they were both given cups in appreciation of their efforts.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Recently we received a letter from Charlie Hicks, of the Queen's University athletic board, incorporated in which was an invitation to the Belleville hockey team to enter the pre-season Kingston Hockey League. After a year's absence the league is to be revived. It will be remembered that sometime ago the C.A.H.A. stepped in, at the request of the O.H.A. It is presumed, and erected a 25 mile limit for the importation of clubs into the Kingston City loop. This barrier has been removed now, however, and invitations to Brockville, Napanee and Belleville have been mailed out. In his letter Mr. Hicks intimates the Kingston City League will commence operations some time next week or possibly the week following. The letter also points out that no knockout draw series will be played this year, as the league will revert back to the original championship schedule with each club playing two games with the other teams comprising the league. We have the letter in refutation in our possession and will gladly turn it over to any hockey-minded person in Belleville who are interested in sponsoring a local club in the Kingston loop.

Tuesday was supposed to be the deadline for the migration or importation of players to the O.H.A. A last minute decision by many players throughout the province materially assisted the two circuit railways throughout length and breadth of the entire Dominion as managers sent out last minute S.O.S. calls for players. Even here Doug Eamiens, ex-Belleville pitcher, has settled down to Fort Colborne this year and is slated to be "set with the Legionnaires." Incidentally Eamiens has had a wide and varied experience since leaving Quinte Athletics some five years ago. He has played in Belleville, Deseronto, Picton, Napanee, Bridge and intermediate points and is best remembered locally as the right end of a hockey stick." Eamiens is a mighty good hockey player and can take his place with the best class of pucksters, who range themselves under the Legion banner. Incidentally we dispatched a number of our private questionaires to various directions to ascertain how many or how much new hockey material would be available for the fast approaching season. Something must be amiss as we received no reports nor have the replies returned.

George Laughlin's B.C.I. and V.S. junior football squad are scheduled to open the junior group of the City of Quinte conference at Trenton this afternoon versus the group champion Trenton H. S. Coaches Laughlin and Shiels have been using their boys as sparring partners for the past week in preparation for this game. The local squad has plenty of courage and in no way lack confidence in themselves, but the Trenton squad like Trenton always produced a hard hitting fast moving senior intermediate football squad and at least two stellar backfield men are expected. Then on Friday afternoon there will be two junior intercollegiate games in town with the group leading B.C.I. squad journeying to the O.S.D. for the annual battle with the College boys meets Eddie Shrieder's Irish from Picton in Belleville. In Sporting circles the Belleville squad returns to the city gridiron as the result of their journey to Oshawa for an important Lake Shore group tilt with the Oshawa C.I. on the Oshawa Athletic Stadium. From every conceivable angle this game will be the most important of the entire schedule, as a defeat for the Oshawa squad at the hands of Belleville will bring Lindsay, Peterboro and Belleville all up on a common level with the present Oshawa leaders. Mosey City squad. A Belleville reserve would be most desirable, however, Coach Dr. Kennedy has been working his charges out with regularity of late and with the exception of Fred Teeple, who is out with a bruised foot, the locals are ready to go and in fine fettle.

The local wrestling promoters are not giving anything like usual number of lucky number programmes for this week. They feel that the calibre of show we are presenting this week does not warrant free tickets, as a matter of fact the entire free list has been dispensed with for this all-star show," stated one official today as he pointed out, that five main bouts were being presented. "We have Johnnie Gyroffy meeting meeting Chief Lynx in one main bout and Joe Katelnaach matched with Walter Parnell for the second main go," added the official as he made reference to the added attraction of Jack Pearl, the Turkish strong man, who will break chains by means of the expansion of his chest. Hassen will also perform other strong man feats. Of course what interests the wrestling fans supramentally is to see that disliked Indian bad man, Chief Lynx, defeated in a local ring. The Chief has a strong aggressive wrestler, but Gyroffy's speed may off-set the Chief's brutal attacks.

Thanks to the Kingston Ponies, Ontario has one provincial baseball championship this year. In a tough uphill struggle the Kingston Ponies battled back to trim the Galt Terriers 13 to 8 in a free hitting third game at Toronto yesterday. The game provided a big crowd and thrillers, but apparently was not the high class of baseball usually seen in the O.B.A.A. series, maybe the weather had something to do with the high scoring. At any rate it's "orchids for the Ponies today and condolences for the Kingston." Incidentally Joe Daley has realished a one year ambition, by his 5 second pitching stint. Bud Clancy was not quite as effective as he proved in his previous start. Hewitt Smith, who wrot pilfers in the diamond game in Kingston swung a very potent bat yesterday to collect two singles, a double and a triple. Although the Galt nine started well, class soon told on the heavy hitting Kingston club and saw three Galt hurlers pounded proficiently. The Ponies got 15 the Terriers 15 to 13 making 27 hits for the day, which is a lot of base hits to be registered in a final tilt. Once again we say— Congratulations Kingston, 1935 senior O.B. A.A. champions."

Elsewhere on the sport pages today is a very flattering published news clipping from a Toronto newspaper paying tribute to two local athletes, Eddie Jankowski, Belleville, who more than pleased the fight fans at the Arena, Friday evening on Tuesday night. Incidentally Eddie can be seen being caught throughout the length and breadth of the province and they have been seen in the Dominion Athletic Stewart-Warner Alemite A.C. box-ing club and at the Belleville Arena which will feature a main bout between Eddie Jankowski, Belleville, and Gilonna holds the Dominion title-holder while Gilonna holds the Canadian welter title mark. As pointed out by Promoter Clem Wilson, he has the best light heavyweight line bout to be staged in Ontario in years."

Professional Golfers Start Drive for Crown

Twin Hills Golf Club, Oklahoma City, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The men of Golfdom went hopefully today to the Twin Hills course where they will be the next to wear the crown of the Professional Golfers' Association.

For the next six days it will be medal play with the low scorer eligible for the championship over Twin Hills' rugged, narrow fairways.

Until sundown tonight 120 of the best in the American professional ranks in the game will follow the 36 hole grind, seeking their places among the 64 low scorers who qualified for match play, beginning tomorrow and ending with the finals Tuesday.

BAILEY OFFERED POSITION

London, Oct. 17. — London Tecumsehs of the International Pro football league have a newly-appointed manager today, but it may have been a blessing in disguise, for guess who Ray Lawson, owner of the club, is seeking as a replacement for pilot, the London entry in the coming I.H.L. race. It's none other than Irvin (Ace) Bailey, former member of Toronto Maple Leafs, who is well-known and respected by every hockey fan in Western Ontario.

WORSALL NOT ELIGIBLE

Toronto, Oct. 17—(CP)—Jim Worsall, star Varsity hurdles champion and University of Toronto's chief threat for the college track and field meet here tomorrow, has been declared ineligible and will not compete.

Worrall, graduate of McGill is taking another degree at Ontario College of Education. He is hot taking the full course, however, as he is an Upper Canada College.

BRADDOCK IN WRECK

Duluth, Minn., Oct. 17.— James J. Braddock, heavyweight boxing champion of the world, escaped injury tonight when a blow-out sent the automobile in which he was a passenger, crashing into the 62nd mile post on Duluth. Braddock referreed at a wrestling show here later in the evening.

Sydney, N.S.W., Oct. 17.—(CP)— Most of the native murders in New Guinea can be traced to pigs or women, J. Hinds, resident magistrate, stated while visiting here.

If a man's wife or pig was killed, Hinds said, native tribes were so excited to seek the life of the culprit. Sometimes his search lasted ten years.

FOUR VAMPIRE BATS BROUGHT

Dr. Ditmars Arrives in New York With Rare Specimens

New York, October 17.—Dr. Raymond Ditmars, of the Zoological at the Bronx Zoo, returned from Trinidad on the Pan American Airways clipper with seven specimens notable for the rarity as for their appearance. The specimens included four half-grown bats— vampyrus spectrum — the first ever to be brought back alive, according to Dr. Ditmars. The bats eat mice, as do the other new arrivals.

Another of the specimens was a bonesnatcher, which ordinarily would be the star in almost any group of newcomers to a zoo. The bonesnatcher is a yard long and bears the names Cheiurus Ursinus. The second most interesting for the island on which it was found. The bonesnatcher looked very healthy and appeared as if shod in tongue toward several wary cameramen.

It is about as venomous a snake as these is, but this one is remarkably good-natured, Dr. Ditmars said. It was found in February, and kept by Paul Urich, on whose estate it was discovered.

The two other specimens which will go on display today in the reptile house with the snake and the bats are a pair of giant pond spiders. They look like brown arrowheads, or broad-bodied bugs with, naturally, many legs. They are about fourteen inches long, several inches longer than the specimens which has been on view in the reptile house.

But the bats are the zoo's prize. The characteristic that puts them among the leaf-nosed bats also makes them look a little like a throwback. Their bodies are the size of a fairly large rat and they have rat-like heads with beady eyes and large ears. Their snouts are comparatively long and are decorated with a formation of skin that looks somewhat like a folded leaf or a chimp's head.

One of the bats yawned while being scrutinized yesterday and displayed a capable looking set of teeth. Dr. Ditmars remarked that one of the saddest boys who caught the bats was bitten on the hand. The bat's teeth went through a thick glove.

Three bats were found in cave. His specie at the roots of tall trees. The captors of two of them was complicated by the presence of a nest of bees in the same tree.

They were caught by pushing rods about the bases of the tree, while a native entered the cave where the bats and the bees lived to drive them out. It was thought that the bats would stay low but they soon learned, the bear had another path and they returned to the upper levels.

The vampire bat has a keen appetite, and injected forced acid into the skin of men and bats alike. The bats were caught with their hoofs off at last. They and the other pet kill arrived after 21 days in a taxi at the zoo. The bats were in a case covered with wire netting, a pan of water, some food and some wrapping paper. The other specimens came in a ride in the taxi.

The bats are the larvae of their kind in North or South America, Dr. Ditmars said. As they hung upside down in their cage they looked about seven inches long, and their wings spread about three feet.

Sydney, N.S.W., Oct. 17.—(Cp) —A large white cockatoo that took exception to footballers in aiding its domain forced two codes to be called while it was removed from the field. It flattened the unwelcome players throughout the game and made the umpire the object of its special attentions.

DOCTOR SAID SHE NEEDED "BULK" FOR HER CONSTIPATION"

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief to Mrs. Maneely

Read the following unsolicited letter:

"Up is five years ago, I knew no end of suffering caused by constipation." I used all kinds of laxatives but only found relief till I got used to them. My physician told me to get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and instructed me how to use it.

"I did just as I was told by my doctor, and find I need my laxatives or pills for what your ALL-BRAN has done for me."—Mrs. Jas. Maneely, Ft. Adelaide, Montreal.

Due to insufficient "bulk" in meals.*

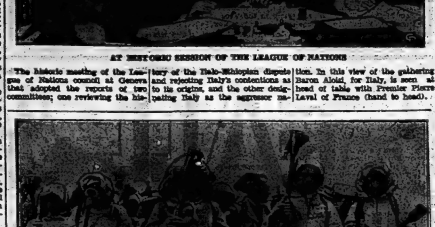
ALL-BRAN provides gentle "bulk" to help overcome common constipation. It is also a good source of vitamin B and iron.

The "bulk" of ALL-BRAN is often more effective than the "bulk" in fruits and vegetables, as it does not break down within the body. Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. If not corrected this way, see your doctor.



Isn't this food much pleasanter and safer than risking patent medicines? Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in London, Ontario.

AT HISTORIC SESSION OF THE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

The historic meeting of the League of Nations council at Geneva when it was that adopted the reports of two committees; one reviewing the history of the Italo-Ethiopian dispute and rejecting Italy's contentions as to its origins, and the other designating Italy as the aggressor nation. In this view of the gathering are Baron Aloisi, for Italy, to the head of table with Premier Pierre Laval of France (hand to head).

FLAME THROWER USED BY ITALIANS AT A DOWA

Proof that Italy is using Hoyt gas against harmless Abyssinians' is given by this picture from Addis Ababa. Garbed in special fire-proof habiliments, this company of Italian soldiers, armed with flame throwers, was just about to go into action on the Adowa front.

EARLY MARRIAGE URGED BY WOMAN

Dr. Parker Holds Parents Should Face Way Financially For Couples

New York, Oct. 17.—Representatives of 3,000,000 American club women were urged to turn their attention to the family relations of young men and women as the "most critical single issue" of the problem of social security in the depression.

Dr. Ursula M. Parker, chairman of social hygiene of the National Council of Women, told the delegates, assembled at the Hotel Vanderbilt, for the council's biennial convention, that youth in periods of economic gloom was forced either to the single state or to marriage without any preparation. She said that neither encourages early marriage and makes the child unable to bear the necessary increase in financial burden until the young people are able to take care of themselves, or else they must accustom themselves to the idea of keeping their daughters work after marriage until such time as the husband's income is sufficient to support two people.

"Abandonment of the old-fashioned notions on the part of the elders will save many a young life from wreck. Some educational leaders, some churches, some women's organizations appreciate the seriousness of the situation and the necessity of such adjustments, but the attitude is not nearly so widespread as it must be if we are to save the younger generation from making costly mistakes."

Mme. Yolanda Mero-Irion, radio chairman, warned the clubwomen to keep their ears open for wax propaganda broadcasts. She said:

"Today, if there is a war in which the United States is involved, radio will be the main instrument of arousing the people to a fever pitch. So as the first suggestion that the United States should take up arms again, raise up your voices in loud, concerted protest. If we are silent it may change the course of the nation's history."

A day when newsboys will whistle tunes "Aida" and 4 a.m. sittings on the farm will be accompanied by strains from Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony" was envisioned by Mrs. Ruth Haller Ottaway, chairman of music. She called on the council members to co-operate with the Federal government in creating projects to employ musicians.

"Unless women are asleep in the pale rays of returning prosperity," Mrs. Ottaway said, "they will grasp the opportunity to establish a national and district art centres, embracing music and the arts."

The full council took cognizance of reports on the loss of civil and industrial rights of women in Germany and other foreign countries and adopted a resolution warning its members to defend "the right of women to work on equal terms with men and their right to bear their full share of the responsibility for the making democracy effective."

Another resolution recommended favorable study of affiliated organizations of the proposed "equal rights" amendment to the Federal Constitution.

The meeting opened by repeating the Lord's Prayer and the singing of the Institute Ode with Miss Burns as pianist. The Secretary-Treasurer then read her reports which were approved.

As the theme was "Health" Miss Ethel Thompson, Reg. N., of Menie gave a splendid paper dealing with Erysipelas, Scarlet Fever, T. B. Typhoid, Syphilis, etc., and also told of the house fly menace. Her address was intensely interesting and numerous questions were answered by her. Miss Alice Hume, then addressed the meeting, speaking on contagious diseases and how they might be prevented, such as vaccums etc. for diphtheria, whooping cough, scarlet fever, colds, etc., it is claimed that whooping cough, Measles and Scarlet Fever cause 9,000 deaths every year in Canada and the United States, yet parents will expose their child to these dreaded cases with the theory "They will have to have them sometime". The meeting closed with the singing of the National Anthem, after which Mrs. Wallace served candy and apples.

The 25th Anniversary of St. Andrew's Sunshine, was held on Sunday, October 13th, large attendance at both services greeted the guest speaker, Rev. Dr. Aikens, Principal of Knox College, Toronto, who preached two thought provoking sermons, taking as his text in the morning, "One Soweth and Another Reapeth". Speaking of the pioneers who sowed the foundations of Christianity in the district and we are reaping the benefit. The choir (all local talent except Miss Katherine Simpson of Belleville), rendered two anthems; a pleasing male quartette, Messrs. Geo. Fry, Geo. Donald, Malcolm Donald and G. V. Taylor sang "My Anchor Holds" in the morning, and "Nearer Still Nearer" in the evening when two more anthems were sung Miss Simpson sang "Just For Today", and "Abide With Me". The church was beautifully decorated with autumn flowers. Rev. McMillan was present and welcomed the guests present from other churches. The collections were over $200.00.

The following item is surely a unique one relating to Goderich College Institute in the days of Principal J. P. Hume, B.A., as principal of the school—Principal Hume after forty-three years of service, twenty-seven years spent in Goderich.

The school has a splendid record in 1934-35— the Junior Middle School made 70 per cent. and every Middle School 83 per cent. and every pupil of the class wrote. Upper School 96 per cent. and all tried. But it was in Scholarships that they starred. Three girls wrote for University exams had the honor of winning Scholarships to the value of over $2,000, but they can be awarded some $1,850, one wins cash $225, and three years' free tuition value $450. Another wins $210, and four years' free tuition and she was likely to win the 1st Carter Scholarship, but at time of writing result was not announced. The 3rd one gets gets $50, cash and two years' tuition, value $750. She also is likely to win 2nd or 3rd Scholarship $60, or $40; so the Goderich C.I. is proud of by Mr. Hume with a fine record. Misses Alex and Wm. Hume and Campbellford, are brothers. Mr. Hume is continuing to live in Goderich.

Miss Margaret Hutcheon spent a week in Campbellford, the guest of her brothers, Fred and Irvine.

Mrs. A. T. Donald has returned from visiting her sister-in-law, Mrs. John Oddie of Campbellford.

Mrs. W. J. Barlow of Demarlay, called upon her aunt, Mrs. Percy Oddie recently.

The pupils of this district had a holiday last week owing to the Teachers' Convention held in Campbellford.

Mr. Alex Hume, Miss Alice Hume, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Hume, Jean, Alex and Isabel motored to Cobourg, on Friday and spent the dinner hour with the former's son, T. J. Hume and family, thus celebrating Mr. Alex. Hume's birthday, Mrs. Alex. Hume, who had been visiting her son, T. J. for three weeks, returned home with them.

Dr. H. J. Meiklejohn of Winnipeg, and his niece, Miss Jessie Gray, have left these parts on their homeward motor journey.

Miss Sarah Meiklejohn, Reg. N., of Washington, D.C., Mr. and Mrs. Allan Watson of Campbellford, motored to Kingston and Ottawa for the week-end calling on Mr. Allan Meiklejohn and Mr. and Mrs. Ken Maiher.

Alex. Hume and son looked after the shipment of seventeen head of Ayrshire cattle recently to Gilbert McMillan, Esq., of Huntingdon, Quebec. She were purchased from John Locke, West Seymour; seven from Sam McComb, Bonarlaw and four from Dr. Bruce of Tamnia, whose farm is situated at Todmorden, Ontario.

Filling silos and threshings are about over.

Mrs. Eva Milne returned home from Belleville Hospital on Saturday having a tonsilectomy operation early in the week. We hope for a speedy recovery now.

Miss Mabel Stewart, who was seriously hurt in an auto accident, was able to go home to Guelph a week ago, Saturday and stood the journey well. She was an inmate of Belleville Hospital for about two two months.

Mr. James Thompson of Menie, was a Kingston visitor on Thursday, his health is improving slowly.

Is Your Life SUPER-SELECT?

WHAT do we mean by "Super-Select"? Simply, this: that if you are healthy, with a good family history, and engaged in a hazardous occupation, you are probably a first-class life insurance risk and, consequently, are entitled to buy $5,000 or more Confederation Life Insurance Protection with Total Disability and Double Indemnity Benefits, at the lowest possible premium rate.

A $10,000 Super-Select Policy pays to your beneficiary $10,000 at Death, or, if the beneficiary prefers it, $57.50 a month for 240 months.

If you die by accident before you reach age 60, we will pay £20,000 to your beneficiary in cash, or $10,000 in cash and $57.50 a month for 240 months.

If you become totally disabled before you reach age 35 (after six months of said disablement) the Confederation Life will pay you $100 a month for 30 months and then $50 a month for 100 months. Then, if you are still totally disabled at the end of the 130 months, the Association will pay you a further $10,000 in cash. This is the most desirable form of Life Insurance Policy that can be purchased anywhere. Fill out and mail the coupon and get full particulars.

Injustice of Unselfish Mother

Self-Sacrifice Often Is Destructive to Child, Expert Says

(By Lee Ormiston)

The unselfish mother is often, if not generally, a destructive rather than constructive force in her child's development.

That the majority of selfish children spring almost invariably from unselfish mothers is by no means a contradiction.

Self-sacrifice, unless wisely directed, is not only futile, but positively injurious to the very object it is intended to benefit.

A mother who slaves for her child who asks nothing in return, is doing that child a grave injustice. She is not only undermining his character, but by refusing to share her burdens with him, is depriving him of the means which is every human being's right, unless they themselves voluntarily forfeit it.

Lesson Equality

Sacrifice, by its ordinary sense of the word, is the mother giving and wasting upon a destructive basis—a lopsided, ruinous equality. For though it may be a material necessity beneath by the transaction, the giver gained strength whatever, both in his own eyes, and in the eyes of the recipient.

Children, often appear ungrateful to unselfish mothers because understand this very rightly resent being put under such heavy obligation without their being consulted or even being given the daily opportunity, to pay like debts—and, all debts, it is the moral principle, that they feel no obligations, beyond the debtor's means of payment. Or at least, they resent any payment other than that of his fellows, which is too high a price for any young person to pay even for his life.

The unmaternal or paternal sacrifice will also lead a child to expect things from life and from fellow relationships that they will not give him.

How It Effects

If you train your daughter to expect unequal habits, it will only go hard with her when she marries, or—if the day ever comes—when she must shift for herself.

Then, however, a certain kind of sacrifice that is as constructive as the above is destructive; as necessary as the other is futile.

That is the sacrifice on the part of the parents, of daily friendship, of tenderness, and of any personal luxury to their children.

A mother who sacrifices her mood, her instinct for full possession to her child, will be giving that child as well as herself, a great and lasting service.

That sort of sacrifice will never demoralize him; it will support and encourage him to go forward. Even through it will be form any selfish or irregular habits of mind. It will only reap a great respect for his parents, and a healthy confidence in and respect for himself.

Advice to the Lovelorn
By Beatrice Fairfax

"She Who Will Not, When She May"

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When he first met me, he showered me with attentions, took me everywhere. But for some unknown reason I acted high-hat, and as if I didn't care about him. Now I wish to renew the friendship, which I so flagrantly tossed aside, but, he is taking another girl out and I feel hurt and jealous.

I see him very often. What can I do to make up with him?

Betty.

Yours is the old old story of never valuing the water till the well runs dry. Most often do "they" come back. Indifference and ingratitude do not always succeed. Take some the work too well.

The only right way, under these circumstances is to tell the boy, delicately that she misses the friendship they were good pals together.

Shows Her Affection Too Plainly

Dear Miss Fairfax:

My parents have instilled in me from my early years that any show of affection in public, such as kissing, petting or pawing, was decidedly vulgar. And now that I am 26 years of age I agree with them, and feel that any petting parties I see, in cars, movies or trains going to beaches, are more fitted for a zoo than among decent, well-bred men and women.

I'm engaged to be married to a very nice girl, but here lately she has been very near to disgusting me by the way she overdoses the bounds of good-mending, when we are in public. She is demonstrative to me very much, and as I do not want to give her up, or hurt her feelings by telling her I think her actions are common, I am puzzled what to do.

Decent.

You brew a orifice of putting up with this young lady's too ardent behaviour in public, or telling her, if you have told me that you dislike this public exhibition of affection. Don't you think you'd better tell her, rather than permit her embraces in public to disgust you to the point of breaking your engagement?

Engagement Party

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to have my engagement announced at a party and would like to know how to go about it.

1.—Who should make the plans—the girl's parents or both the girl's parents and the groom's parents?

2.—If the girl's parents make all arrangements, should a special invitation or announcement be sent to the fiance's parents?

3.—Who should be invited to the party—friends and relatives—and should there be a separate party for each, or should the announcements be printed?

4.—What would be the best or correct way to serve—buffet or sitting at the table?

5.—Where should the girl's parents sit? The engaged couple? The fiance's parents?

6.—Should the relatives bring gifts to this announcement?

J.

1.—It is the girl's parents who are the hosts at this party, and so it is they who make the plans and who take care of all the expenses in connection with the giving of the party. However, it is gracious and courteous for the groom's parents to ask their parents to talk over the party with the groom's parents so that they feel that they are an important part of he picture.

2.—Even if the fiance's parents know all about the party, it would still be the correct thing to send them the first invitation that is mailed. Just as they are sent the first invitation mailed to the marriage ceremony, and to the wedding reception.

3.—It is not good form to send formal engagement announcements. And whether you give separate parties or one inclusive party depends on your own and your family's choice and convenience.

4.—Also whether you serve a buffet meal or a sit-down meal depends entirely on the convenience of the household. Either is correct, but of course so many more guests may be accommodated by buffet service that this is the one usually and wisely chosen for a large party.

5.—If a sit-down supper is served, the engaged couple might sit together, as they will sit at their wedding feast, the bride-to-be on the right of the groom-to-be. The girl's mother, then, sits at the head of the table, and the girl's father at the foot, also at the foot of the table. At the girl's mother's right would sit the fiance's father, and on the girl's father's right would sit the fiance's mother.

6.—The gifts given at engagement presents is not taken very seriously nowadays, but it is, of course, correct. Often close relatives and friends give gifts to the bride-to-be and to the relatives at the engagement-party, and these gifts are usually of a personal nature, rather than for the home, as are the wedding gifts.

Gifts For the Baby

Mrs. Beeckman:

My boy friend's sister is to have a child soon. Would it be proper for my friend and me to make a present of a bank book with ten dollars deposited in the child's name? Is that amount all right.

M.

I heartily approve of starting a bank account for a baby as a birth gift's so much more sensible than giving one of the many useless things which the baby may receive, or one of the toy spoons or a ring which a baby shouldn't be allowed to have. It is also practically to approve of the baby's uncle, your boy friend, starting this bank account. But unless you and he are engaged, your co-operation in such a personal gift may be open to question. You would have to decide that, and it depends on how well you know the boy and how well you know the parents of the baby to come.

(Mrs. Beeckman will be glad to answer questions on Good Manners submitted by readers.)

Daily Bathing is Advised for Beauty

Ida Lupino

Daily bathing helps to retain her refreshing beauty.

By HELEN POLLETT

Miss Tubby who gets into her bath every day, scours herself vigorously with warm soapy water and a brush, achieves something more than a clean skin surface. She gets vitality, radiance, a sense of well being. And she is one of those fortunate souls who always looks as fresh as a morning in May.

The skin is an eliminating organ and can't carry on its job unless dead cells and foreign substances are removed. Even on a perfect day sweat glands are working, loosening up the epidermal cells that are offensive. You have to fight them all the time.

An after-the-bath dusting with a fragrant powder will cut down on the perfume expense. A scanty application with a couple towel that takes hold like the paper of a guilty conscience is a form of exercise. There are all kinds of benefits. The effect upon the eyes and complexions is simply swell-elegant.

Fashion Flashes

(Copyright 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Gilded Lily is the best description of an evening velvet gown of black which has a large square sailor collar of white.

Don't forget that wearability must be a feature of your Winter coat. Good looks and service combine in a coat of black Tyrolien with large collar and gauntlet cuffs of black Persian lamb. There are impressed pleats at the side front.

A light moment amidst all the dark evening wraps is given by a lovely wrap of white-and-silver mat ar cloth with a front border and face-framing collar of white fox.

Full-away in a corner of the suit-case means that one has chosen that that will not wrinkle. This feature is found in a beret of black hand-shirred felting ribbon which is trimmed with a black velvet bow high at the side back.

Something else again from what is being shown by most shops is a startling daytime coat of black woollen done on dramatic lines and trimmed with cream soutache braid in the big lapels and pocket flaps.

New partners appear in many of the latest fashions. For instance, a street-length cocktail frock of rayons velvet; entire back and long, full sleeves are of chiffon. This dress is black and royal blue and is worn with a swagger coat of the velvet.

HITCH-HIKE TO VISIT FRIENDS

Lethbridge, Oct. 17.—(CP) — Hitch-hiking their way over 3,600 miles to visit relatives in the east, Mrs. Dorothy Burrel, 34, and Miss Pauline Donovan, 17, sisters, arrived home safely after completing the trip. They "thumbed" their way from Lethbridge to Bismarck, N.D., and took in the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto en route.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

Although many people realize the value of courtesy, not enough people practice it. When we are courteously received, we always appreciate it. But we often fail to realize what an asset courtesy is to our own personality and success.

Courtesy is a habit of demeanor that is very easily acquired. And when it becomes a part of you, you display it as if by second nature.

Worth developing because it unfailingly wins, courtesy must not be forced. When you deliberately try to be courteous only to suit the occasion, it becomes evident that your "charm of manner" is only unhealthful artificiality.

Counterfeit politeness deceives no one. Mere lifeless bows, devoid of winning confidence and respect, is merely creates suspicion. Genuinely courteous persons are polite under all conditions, with all sorts of people. Such persons simply cannot help being courteous.

The graciousness of graciousness are unlimited. An adversary is immediately disarmed when you are polite and agreeable. Courtesy also engenders courtesy. Be kind and civil and others will not even think of treating you otherwise.

Courtesy wins in business. Public officials who are courteous become more popular. Courtesy bespeaks good breeding. It stamps you with worthy qualities. It usually reflects your refinements.

Besides, courtesy is a readily available asset. Anyone can practice it, for it involves no extra labor of any kind. In fact, it often saves labor because it makes your relationships with others more smoother and easier.

Remember this: "Life is not so short but that there is always time enough for courtesy."

Next time you are noticed how a courtesy extended to you will put you in a happier frame of mind for the whole day? And have you noticed how it affects your attitude on the street.

Observe the responses you get. You will find that courtesy pays tremendous dividends.

Dr. Black's Daily Diet Hint

Tomato, orange, grapefruit and other fruit juices, also sauerkraut juice, taken before breakfast, are not only refreshing but also tend to aid intestinal elimination. Such juices should be used immediately upon arising and before dressing. So as to allow an interval of fifteen minutes or more before the regular breakfast is eaten.

Little Benny's Note Book

After supper pop said to ma. Where's Aibit, Meening Uncle Albit, and I said, waveing around by himself out in the yard smoking one of your cigars.

That's punning true to form, pop said. By golles I'm going to miss my cigars rite now before the meening. Come on, boys, come up. He so tells he hates to give himself a treet. Why don't we have a couple in the box for appearance sake, and then I'll have a real treet and give some himself, because he doesn't seem able to live without smoking. Ha, ha.

With he did, and prilly soon Uncle Albit came up without a cigar in his mouth, and pop said, and pop took the other one, saying, Why, Albit, where is your cigar, as sum O well, everything must have an end, I suppose, including a box of cigars.

And they both smoked them up and Uncle Albit looked at the empty box and at last, saying, Try one of mine, Willyum, wont you?

And he took out of his vest pocket a big cigar. With pleasure, I will be a novelty, I mean I'll enjoy one, pop said.

Let me give you a lite, Uncle Albit said. And he quick took pop's cigar out of pop's mouth in his hand and struck one and lit both cigars with it and put the box in his own pocket, and then handed pop back the first pull. Uncle Albit saying, How do you like them?

Pop not anserzing on account of not being finished cgarffing, and Uncle Albit saying, They're the choice, somebody hanned them to me today.

In that case I can cawif freely, they're the world's worst, pop said. I must have a few more stuck around somewhere, I'll look. I've got to smoke something and these things aren't anything, he said.

And he went out of the room and pretended to find some and came back with them and Uncle Albit quick put his own cigar down and took one of pop's.

"Installment Marriage"

by

Janet Doran

Judy smiled softly, she had never known anyone in all her life who could get so much fun out of life, out of ordinary, everyday things, as Michael. She thought: "Even if I do worry so for him, I'm glad he's the way he is. He's worth it and more. Just being with him, sharing his every thought . . ."

At three he returned, simply bursting with excitement. He crossed Judy's eyes with hands so cold they were like ice, commanded her not to dare look. He began stuffing bills and coins into her hands until they fell over into her lap, and Judy was speechless with amazement.

"Michael! Michael," she gasped, "where on earth did you get all this? Where did you get this money?" She began collecting it, counting it, down on his knee and laid his cold, damp cheek against her hand, and went on: "They asked for it, darling. They thought they were safe, slick card sharps! They were sure they were going to take me right into camp in a barrel! They thought they'd pour a few drinks down my neck and then clean me out. But they didn't know what a few Yon Chiltrans under Miss Swayne's belt does to his hard head!"

Michael, Judy began to tremble with the combination of his excitement, "Mike, darling, now you can pay up some of our losses on the trip so far!"

"Nothing doing!" Michael said firmly, loudly. "Not on your life, Mrs. Swayne! That's velvet, mine. That doesn't come in under the ledger at all, and I'm not going to cut it. You go shopping; buy yourself some-doo-dads . . . get some kick out of this adventure!" He kissed the top of her soft, shining head proudly, tilted her chin up, and kissed her soft lips tenderly. "Proud of your husband, Mrs. Swayne?"

Judy nodded rapidly, glanced wonderingly down at the pile of bills in her lap.

"Forgot all about my goals," Michael grinned at her. "Go fishing and overlook the required evidence. Go back to a job. Wait till you see the beauty I grabbed off!"

He dashed off, and Judy stood up, carrying the money in her dress, over to the dresser top. Michael still came blasting into the chair spare her an idea. The little black leather book! In it he had his bank book . . . money he owed. In it would be Shorty's address.

Michael need never know! He need never know what she spent the money for, until later—until he had enough to pay Shorty himself. And she'd rather pay that debt than buy anything. He didn't need to buy anything. Freedom from debt!

The black book was in the inside breast pocket. Judy drew it out, aside that other papers flew out, at the same time, caught against the elastic band. Photostats rained hastily down the hall, and Judy heard them as in a dream. Her eyes, wide and stricken, were fastened on a letter, folded open, hastily on a single line, opening the letter, directly under the bold, dashing date: September 6, 1934. "Michael, darling: It seems an eternity since you left . . . . "

Judy picked the papers up, but her fingers were numb, icy, and without feeling. She picked up the envelope, cancelled from New York, September 8th . . . yesterday . . . addressed in the same bold, dashing handwriting, to Mr. Calvert Swayne, The Breakers, Oldport, Maine, care of clerk.

"I think," Michael said grimly, advancing into the room, "those belong to me, Judith. I've always heard you had every available pocket, but I must confess I didn't expect it of you!"

CHAPTER VII.

FIERY QUARREL.

"Michael!" Judy said agonizingly. "Michael, stop! You mustn't say things like that! You . . . you know they aren't true!"

Michael laughed bitterly, disagreeably. He snatched the papers, the letter, and the tiny black book from her hand as she stood up, and jammed them into his pocket savagely.

"That's good, Judy! That's even better than I'd expected. He stamped the height of the room and back, and his eyes, bitter and angry, raked her, with the force of lenting, with no remnant of the rapture they had known only a moment in their icy, accusing stare.

"You go through my pockets, pry into my affairs, read my letters, and when I catch you red-handed, you calmly tell me all is natural! Excuse me, Judy, "it isn't true!" He drew a deep, shaky breath, and ran tense fingers through his hair in a gesture of mingled exasperation and confusion. "Love may be blind, Judy, but even you should know it's not that blind!"

"Michael," Judy began again, unsteadily. "Michael . . . you're angry now. Well and let me explain! Michael! I wasn't taking your pockets . . . I'm not the reason you think I was . . ." She stopped again, as his intent, explosive silence drove her thoughts into chaos again. His anger battered against her reason, stifled her ability to voice the words fighting through the confusion in her mind.

Michael glared at her in wordless disgust, and Judy shrank, for the first time, that sullen severity of his scared her. She could not explain. Could not tell him. That the explanation would be worse than his misreading. That it would anger him even more to know that she had been searching, for Shorty's address, in order to pay back the money he had borrowed.

"You were looking through my personal papers; reading my letters!" he reminded her savagely. "I can't imagine anything more despicable, Judy! I can't imagine any reason justifying such action!" His voice rose to a brittle pitch. "When you have to—you must have known always—that you could know anything about my affairs, anything about me, by simply asking me!"

Judy remembered the letter then. With the blinding glare of a light bulb bursting in her brain, she saw again the glaring words that had leaped at her from the page. That letter had received her, in the last about wanting to hear from the office, when all the time he was expecting a letter from a girl . . . . a girl who addressed him intimately, affectionately, as "Michael, darling"!

"You know, Michael," she finished in a choked, tight little voice, "you'd never tell me about that letter! You know you had no intention of ever telling me! You know about it!"

"Can I help it if some dumb, romantic woman writes me a mash note?" He tramped up and down the room again, bunching his shoulders in furious anger, wrenching this way and that, as he fired the words at her, like so many angry missiles. "I suppose, now, you think I wanted to get that dumb letter?"

Judy was absolutely still for so long a moment he became uneasy.

"It was addressed to this hotel, Michael," she reminded him slowly. "And you came straight here, and asked for mail! You insisted upon staying here, when a tourist camp would have been much less expensive! You expected that letter, or you'd not have asked for mail several times!"

Michael swore in explosive exasperation.

"And if I did," he grated jarringly, "if your imaginative flight were true, is that as bad as sneaking through my pockets when my back is turned? Your role of the outraged martyr falls down there, Judy! I received that letter—yes—but I didn't write any! And what you read you can never blame on anyone but yourself! You were snooping!"

Judy pushed her cold little hands palms flat, down, the sides of her dress, and her arms were rigid, the whole body tense and taut, with the first defensive rebellion, clamoring within her.

They were quarreling. Quarreling bitterly, horribly. She and Michael, who had sworn, so short a time ago, that nothing could ever come between them. Nothing dull the sweetness of their love, their faith in each other!

They faced each other, in the drab, monotonously ordinary little hotel room, and oceans and continents could not have made greater the distance between them. They were strangers, hating each other. They were enemies, strangers to each other.

They were lovers, with their love turned to acid and hate. To bitter accusations and denunciation.

"All right, Michael—" Judy heard her cold, tight little voice, and it seemed like a stranger's. It came from so far away. It was a stranger's because never before had she used it to address Michael with! "All right, Michael. I was snooping! I was looking through some girl wrote you, and it was not your letter, even though you seem to have on purpose to get it!"

She drew a long, shaky breath, and her chin came up even higher as she faced him furiously, her cheeks flaming with a scene. A fury that only outraged love and trust and faith could incite. It was terrible, but not because I wanted to read your letters. Your love-letters! I'd rather have died than see that letter, Michael! It has killed something beautiful, something I wanted to cherish always—to treasure!" Her voice broke and turned bitter. "I hate you and hope you burn, curdled with a soft, glowing passion, for her!"

Michael stared at her intently for a moment, uneasy, confused. He had never seen Judy so pale before. He had never dreamed she could look like that. He had never known anybody could be so angry, so outraged, so terribly hurt, because of him.

"All right, Judy," he said gruffly, his voice shaky. "But perhaps you want the money you gave me! It was because of that I looked in your pocket for the little black book. Because the money you won at poker was yours! I . . . I wanted to pay a debt of yours with it, Michael. I wanted Shorty's address so I could pay back that money you borrowed! I didn't want the money; I wanted your freedom from debt!"

"Money!" Michael was shouting at her in his absolute fury. "You were thinking about money, Judy! You were going to pay Shorty back? He gulped, and then swung on her, with a fresh violence, and Judy shuddered deeply before the impact of his terrifying rage.

"How did you know about that debt, Judy? I didn't tell you! How did you know I owed Shorty money?"

"I overheard you talking to him, when you telephoned, Michael. I couldn't help overhearing. I was taking my shower, and you were in the other half of the cabin."

"Overheard!" she pleaded, terrified at the violence of his temper, his utterly consuming passion. "Michael, I wasn't! I only overheard, accidentally! And when you won the money, I didn't want it, didn't need it. I just wanted to pay that debt up so you wouldn't have so much to worry over!" Judy's gray eyes filled with tears, but Michael was beyond seeing, beyond caring, beyond everything but the choking grip of an anger he had never known before in his life. An anger that frightened even him.

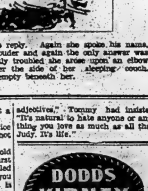
"Money!" he screamed. "Money money, money! You began it long before we were married! On our very engagement night you crabbed about expense, Judy! On our wedding day you complained about money and debts!" He inhaled shakily, and put his hands up in wild, frantic desperation.

He glared at her, white faced, with eyes cyclids twitching, his mouth twisted into bitter scorn.

"I'm sick of it, d'you hear? Sick and fed up with it!"

CHAPTER VIII.

MICHAEL DISAPPEARS.



The door slammed the charged silence, and Judy stared at it blankly, numbly, shaking, icy fingers through her tumbled hair, she slid down weakly, in sudden, nervous collapse, into the green tapestry chair by the window and sat a long time, trying to think.

Fragments of remembered advice goaded her, like tiny, white-hot needles.

"Wait," Tommy Jennifer had told her, "until you've had the first big fight! Wait till you're called him names, and he's assured you you're a shrew. The honeymoon is over, when the rose-colored spectacles get busted in the first big battle."

"Michael and I won't quarrel, Tommy," Judy had insisted in troubled confusion, while the rest of the office howled in glee. "We respect each other too much."

"Counting to ten or ten thousand won't save you from wanting to wrap the breakfast cup around his stubborn mug, once you tee off for the first big skirmish with hot words," Tommy had insisted. "It's natural to hate anyone or anything you love as much as all that, Judy. It's life."

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Like the lion, Tarzan particularly relished the flesh of Pacco, the zebra, though either Bara, the antelope, or Sorta, the boar, would have proven an acceptable substitute; but the forest seemed to be deserted by every member of the herds he sought.

Only the scent spoor of the great cats assailed his nostrils, mingled with the lesser and human-like odor of Mann, the monkey. Time means little to a hunting beast. It meant little to Tarzan, who, having set out in search of meat, would return only when he found meat.

When La awakened, it was some time before she could place her surroundings. When she did, a slow smile of happiness and contentment parted her lovely lips. She sighed, and then whispered the name of the man she loved. "Tarzan!" she called softly.

There was no reply. Again she spoke his name, but this time louder and again the only answer was silence. Slightly troubled she arose upon an elbow and leaned over the side of her sleeping couch. The tree was empty beneath her.

AT THE CAPITOL

"The Virginian"

Classic of the Cow-Country With All-Star Cast.

Acclaimed as one of the greatest of Western outdoor romances, Owen Wister's "The Virginian" begins its run at the Capitol this week-end.

To those movie fans who recall seeing this story on the screen during the days of the silent picture, it will thrill to the night of hearing hoofbeats sound, the very same players in this talking version of the romance between the soft-spoken Southerner and the school teacher.

They will readily recall Gary Cooper as the drawling lanky cowboy, known as the Virginian; the villainous Trampas is portrayed by none other than Walter Huston, and Mary Brian and Richard Arlen will again soon in the same roles they created six years ago.

"The Virginian" is regarded as a classic and the story of the New England school teacher out in the cow country being courted by the rugged, rough and ready cowboys will live forever with its incidental plot conceived by a notorious bad man with an unbridled heart.

For good measure and to satisfy Capitol patrons who desire the lighter and gayer type of entertainment, there is a snappy musical comedy entitled, "Dance Band" in which the popular Buddy Rogers and Jane Clyde are co-starred.

"Dance Band"

"Dance Band" contains all the successful ingredients to make up the ideal musical comedy. There are several catchy dance numbers played by an extraordinary group of instrumentalists. The humor is supplied by Leon Errol, Richard Herne and Fred Duprez, a trio of film-makers that have no equal on the variety stages of the British Isles.

The romance is furnished by Rogers and Miss Clyde, who are rival band leaders. But Rogers finally succumbs to the charm and beauty of the girl band leader and in the end she substitutes at the piano for his vanishing rival.

"Dance Band" gives Rogers an opportunity to display his versatility with various band instruments. He makes his debuts with his ability in handling intricate instruments.

A Fox Movietone Newsreel completes this bargain double feature program.

Monday Show

The Capitol announces a Midnite Show on Wednesday, October 23, when they will present a gorgeous stage show, entitled, "Broadway Follies." This aggregation of vaudeville artists and musicians offer an hour of solid entertainment and variety. The "Broadway Follies" is composed of 21 people are all artists in their respective lines.

"Broadway Follies" will be at the Capitol for two days, with three shows scheduled daily. The prices are the same as for the Sunday Show that they have recently. Patrons may secure seats in advance for the Midnite Show by applying at the box office any time after Monday.

AT THE BELLS

"Here's to Romance"

Stars of Radio, Opera, Ballet, Stage and Screen in Grand Variety Show.

Fresh from radio triumphs and a sensational career in opera and concert performances, Nino Martini arrives on the screen of the Bells Theatre today, where his "Here's to Romance" is destined to prove that he is not only the greatest tenor in a decade, but a magnetic screen personality whose acting skill increases good looks and vital, personality did not to make him an overnight sensation.

In the gala cast which supports Martini are Genevieve Tobin, Adolphe Louise, Madame Ernestine Schumann-Heink, Reginald Denny, Marie Cambarelli and Vincente Escudero.

The heroic career of Martini, who as a young singer is sent to Paris by Mimi Tobin, is the principal theme of the picture's plot. He falls in love with Anita Louise, is divided between his loyalty to Miss Tobin and his new love.

Later he makes a debut that proves a terrible flasco, and returns to New York. He is a failure until Miss Louise comes to his rescue, wins him a chance with the Metropolitan and finally consents to marry him . . . All ends revealing that she is the one who brought him success.

Martini's Golden Voice

That is the essential story. But the thing which interests audiences more is Martini's golden voice in selections from "La Traviata", Cavalleria "Rusticana" and innumerable other operatic favorites as well as the two popular numbers with music from the fertile pen of Con Conrad.

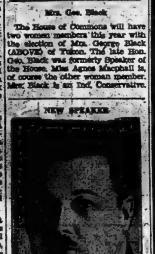
The astonishing debut is followed by Maria Gambarelli, who learned her art from the Immortal Pavolva, and the Spey interpretations of Vicente Escudero offer some artistic treats which help to make "Here's to Romance" a miracle of entertainment.

Even lovely Anita Louise, who is superb as one of the romantic principals, contributes dance numbers to the picture.

Undoubtedly, the able direction of Alfred E. Green, contributed much to the unusual shockingly, as well as the acting of such capable and seasoned performers as Miss Tobin and Reginald Denny who are outstanding in featured roles.

"Dance Hall" a very funny Tuesday-comedy, with a cast of all-star funmakers, and Henry Fehling" a clever screen Oddity will be exhibited on the same program.

Pat Style Reyne



Tomorrow evening at 8.45 p.m. the Canadian Department Store Style Revue will be presented introducing a sparkling array of the newest creations on living models. This Revue will be presented Friday evening only at 8.45 p.m.

SECOND WOMAN MEMBER

Mrs. Gee. Black

The House of Commons will have two women members this year with the election of Mrs. Cecyle Black, (ABOVE) of Yukon. The late Hon. Geo. Black, formerly Speaker of the House. Miss Agnes Macphail is, of course the other woman member. Mrs. Black is an fact Conservative, full of gorgeous music and capable and unusual dancing.

NEW SPEAKER

Oscar L. Boulanger . . .

Reports from Ottawa indicate that the House of Commons will have a French-speaking member as Speaker at the next session. Oscar L. Boulanger, prominent Liberal member of Soleil-Joliette, Quebec, is mentioned as probability.

RAWDON

Rawdon: Salem United church was a success as one of the romantic principals, contributes dance numbers to the picture.

Undoubtedly, the able direction of Alfred E. Green, contributed much to the unusual shockingly, as well as the acting of such capable and seasoned performers as Miss Tobin and Reginald Denny who are outstanding in featured roles.

No More Piles

Get Quick, Pleasant Relief

Probably not one person in ten knows the cause of piles is inside—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

That is the scientific truth about piles and is the real reason why salves and suppositories do not give more than temporary relief—they do not remove the cause.

Your piles can not be relieved until you have corrected the condition which causes them. That is why all internal medicine the HEM-ROID should be used.

HEM-ROID is the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, who early in his professional life made a specialty of relieve piles by correcting the cause. His medicine succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, eases the pressure of blood in the veins of the lower bowel and helps to heal and restore the sore, tender parts.

So if you have failed to get the relief you want from your sore, painful piles, and would like to give HEM-ROID a trial, you have our promise to refund your money, if in one bottle of this prescription does not give pleasing results. S. S. McKeown or any druggist can supply you with the genuine HEM-ROID.

World Peace Would End When Suez Closed, Say Observers

Not sanctions imposed by League of Nations members, but closing of Suez Canal by Britain to Italian ships, is regarded most likely to bring other nations into Ethiopia-Italian war, providing Britain adopts that extreme measure to halt Mussolini's African conquests. LAVAL ASKS ITALY MINIMUM PEACE TERMS

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Boone, Ia., Oct. 18 (CP)—Miss Inez Masterson, reporter, took an unexpected train ride with Lawrence Tibbett, the baritone, last night, but she didn't have to walk back, for Tibbett handed her train fare home.

Miss Masterson's boy friend did the walking—home in the rain.

Miss Masterson, interviewing the opera star on the train as it stopped here, was engrossed when the diners ahead it pulled out. Hence the interviewer missed the way to Grand Junction, the first stop. There, Tibbett, thinking at her confusion when she discovered she'd brought the wrong pocketbook," produced the fare.

Back at the radio station, Miss Masterson arrived soaked and waited in her automobile for she had taken the car here with her.

Then he walked home in the rain.

Chicago, Oct. 18 (CP)—Richard Lagabell, 37, window washer, dangled, half conscious, nine stories above the loop for 15 minutes yesterday after one of his safety ropes had broken. The other rope held however, until an office worker in a nearby building noticed his plight and summoned aid.

Sidney Creek, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP) —A brown-white robin, but for a dark bar or feather on each wing was seen in the vineyard of W. S. Corman's farm the other day by grape pickers. It not only puzzled the workers but all members of its own bird family. When it flew into a tree where there were a number of robins the red-breasts left immediately.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP)— One of the greatest "evils" of the day is the attitude many heads are in," important declared Dr. J. Martin Deane when appearing before the Windsor Kiwanis Club in relation with the suggestion dental clinics be established here, admitting of pre-school age.

FIVE YEARS TO SEE CURE OF INSANITY

Detroit, Oct. 18 (AP)—Strides made by medical science in treating thyroid deficiency and performing goitre operations were explained to the assembly of the Interstate Post-graduate Medical Association of North America by Dr. Charles H. Mayo, of Rochester, Minn., retiring president of the organization.

Dr. Mayo made a comparison of the old method of treating goitre merely by the external application of iodine to present highly-developed surgical methods. Yesterday, he declared, thyroid operations are made with a minimum of danger because of the discovery of the control of the gland to remedy the deficiency and build up the patient.

Dr. Mayo predicted within five years a cure for insanity would be developed. He told the physicians he expected to see insane patients restored by a new method of treatment to act on the brain in a manner similar to the action of the cure for thyroid deficiency.

WOMAN AGED 84 HEADS BIG FIRM

Mother of Frank and Ralph Morgan Increases Firm's Capital

New York, Oct. 18 (AP)—On the eve of her 84th birthday, Mrs. Josephine Wuppermann, mother of Frank and Ralph Morgan, the actors, signed the papers that made her firm a $1,000,000 corporation.

She also discovered her office has no looking-glass. She was back at her desk today after celebrating her anniversary and laughed about the lack of a looking-glass.

"I must have left frivolity outside the door when I came in. Maybe that's why the firm won't let me retire," she said.

Back in 1915, Mrs. Wuppermann became the first woman president of a large bitters manufacturing firm and in the decades, increased its capital stock from $45,000 to $1,000,000.

Her children—she reared eight of her own and two adopted—are in the firm's success "a con-woman proposition". Mrs. Wuppermann said the children followed.

"I'm one of the kind that doesn't sign anything unless I know what I'm signing," she said. "I'm not a rubber stamp."

Her business philosophy also includes "not shirking, not putting things off and gradual expansion with no display.

"That, I believe, is good business."

She has stuck to it since she was 15 and kept books for her father who operated a line of merchant ships.

McCARDELL SAYS MEISNER NOT IN ON KIDNAPPING

Tells Court of Plan To Snatch Labatt Early in 1931

MR. X HEARD

Admits Record of Convictions Under Liquor And Drug Acts

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 18.—(CP)—David Meisner, serving a 15-year term for the crime, had nothing to do with the kidnapping of John S. Labatt, Mcheael McCardell, confessed abductor, testified today as the trial of Jack Bannon on charges of kidnapping and armed robbery proceeded.

McCardell took the witness box following Mr. X, Crown surprise witness who stated as early as 1933 Bannon had suggested kidnapping Labatt. The named witness also admitted a record of convictions under the Liquor and Drug Acts, named Bannon, Albert Pegram and Gerald Nicholson as the trio who met with him in Toronto and discussed the snatch around that time.

It was on account of Labatt's ill health a plan to kidnap him in 1931 was dropped, McCardell told the Court. He said he had gone to Windsor to meet Bannon, Ernest Rossi (now dead) and Russell Knowles to discuss the abduction.

"We didn't on account of his health but because you couldn't get him," Mr. Justice McFarland suggested.

"No it was strictly on account of his health," McCardell replied. "We were afraid the shock would kill him. We didn't want a dead man on our hands. We don't collect on a dead man."

Name Withheld

By persuasion of Justice McFarland, the real name of Mr. X was written on a slip of paper and handed to the jury as he took the stand in the afternoon today under the kidnap trial of Jack Bannon started. Bannon is accused of kidnapping John S. Labatt, London Brewery head.

After admitting a record for convictions under the Liquor and Drug Acts, the witness said he had known Bannon intimately for 18 or 20 years.

"In 1926, I had bought three carloads of poisoned whiskey from a man named Perio and I got Jack the car to drive me up to Hamilton to see if I could get money back from Perio," Crown named Witness was in the car and on the way up Bannon suggested we kidnap Perio and said he could keep him at his brother's farm.

"We went to Hamilton but we couldn't locate Perio and on the way back, Bannon suggested we kidnap Labatt—either one of the

HIT AND RUN' DRIVER SOUGHT

A. Lowsen, Tyendinaga, Found Injured Lying Beside Road

Found lying in the ditch in a semi-conscious condition, Alexander Lowsen, 50-year-old Tyendinaga resident, was rushed to the Belleville General Hospital early last evening after having been struck by an alleged "hit and run" driver on the Shannonville road. Lowsen was found lying beside his wrecked bicycle by persons who were returning home from a hunting trip. Lowsen was attended by Drs. Boyce and Deacon and J. J. Robertson of Belleville and found to be suffering from a fractured skull, face dis-figured, head and arm injuries as well as general body injuries.

The accident was reported to Provincial Constable Sam Hart, who was assisted in his investigation by Chief Frank Bonisteel of Tyendinaga. Upon gaining consciousness Lowsen informed the authorities he had been riding his bicycle upon the right hand side of the road when he was suddenly struck him from the rear, hurling him and his cycle into the ditch. There he sustained his injuries. Lowsen and the police contend the driver of the car "hit and run" car failed to stop at the scene of the accident. The bicycle was badly damaged during the accident. Following further investigations the police announced that no marks or clues were left at the scene of the collision.

The party of hunters to discover Lowsen lying in the ditch were Clarence Wagger, Gordon Thompson, Ernest Hall and Cecil Parry all of Deseronto. Traffic Officer Evins of the Provincial Highways Department is investigating sustained severe injuries was reported to be out of danger.

Russia Notifies League Arms Embargo Against Italy Put in Operation

Committee of 18 to Meet To Discuss List

FRANCE ANSWERS

Places Certain Restrictions Before Lending Aid

BY WADER WEEMES
Associated Press Foreign Staff

Geneva, Oct. 18.—(AP)— Russia notified the League Nations office today it has accepted and put into operation an arms embargo and financial sanctions against Italy.

Simultaneously, the sub-committee on economic sanctions decided that this proposal to place an embargo on all importations from Italy should be discussed directly by the co-ordination committee of 18 nations, delegates said after a sub-committee meeting.

The delegates said difficulties controlling such a boycott seemed to be becoming too great for the sub-committee to handle and that clarification of questions by the larger committee was deemed necessary.

Switzerland raised two objections to the proposed "buy nothing from Italy" boycott.

The sub-committee on economic sanctions decided to add rubber and petroleum to the list of key products on which prohibition of exportation to Italy is to be placed.

Committee to Meet

The committee of 18 will meet tomorrow morning to discuss both the list for the key products embargo and the British "buy nothing from Italy" proposal.

British spokesmen said the fact that Anthony Eden's proposal had been sent to the committee of 18 meant it had been unanimously approved of the economic sanctions sub-committee.

Observers believed the next 24 hours might tell whether the sanctions campaign to crush Italian warfare against Ethiopia would progress directly against Italy or whether it would fall into futility.

Uncertainty over the ultimate attitude of France, therefore, made scons smaller league states doubly anxious over the repercussions of a boycott to their own national economies should they throw themselves into a sanctions campaign which failed to mees quick success.

Certain Restrictions

(By Richard G. Massock)
(Copyright 1935, by the Associated Press)

Paris, Oct. 18.—(AP)— Premier Laval has asked Great Britain to renounce formally any blockade or intimidation measures which might mean war before France promises aid against Italy, authoritative sources said today.

The British government declared it would never take isolated actions more than a fortnight ago.

France is withholding its formal reply to Britain's question as to whether she "chooses the League of Nations or Italy" until she receives the British Government's consent to such terms, these sources asserted.

The French terms were reported authoritatively to be:

1.—That the British fleet use her Mediterranean bases and will lend naval aid in case of an attack by Italy if Britain agree to recall several warships from the Mediterranean in exchange for Italian withdrawal of troops from Cyrenaica, Italian North African Colony.

2.—France will support Britain fully in application of sanctions if Britain renounces the right to take isolated measures and promises not to blockade Italy unless the League so decides.

W. N. PONTON K. C. ATTENDS MEETING

Mr. W. N. Ponton, K.C., attended a meeting of the Benchers of the Law Society of Upper Canada at Osgoode Hall yesterday. Nine new Barristers were "called." The Benchers entertained the Judges of the Supreme Court at luncheon in the century old dining-room after the meeting. $21,000 were allotted to the Ontario Law Libraries for 1936. Of this Hastings gets its allotted share, based on membership.

MILITARY PENALTY NEVER PROPOSED SAYS G. BRITAIN

Attitude Governed Entirely By Conception of League Obligations

NO DIRECT QUARREL

Sweden Places Embargo on Arms Shipment To Italy

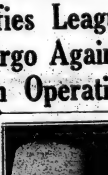
London, Oct. 18.—(CP Cable)— Great Britain today made known to Premier Mussolini that she has never suggested military sanctions against Italy, as blockade or the closing of the Suez Canal or the Red Sea.

Her attitude in the crisis, Britain said, has actuated entirely by her conception of the obligations imposed under the League of Nations Covenant. Britain has no intention of taking individual sanctions against Italy and the British media regard remains that if risks are to be run they must be run under the Covenant but run by all parties.

This clarification of the British position is a sequel to what is described in British circles as the grotesque misrepresentation of the British policy appearing in the Italian Press. This misrepresentation has been carried so far, one author, it says it appears that Duce himself will be poisoned by his own cooking.

Misrepresentation

And these dangerous ideas, it is stated, have been strengthened by French Press despatches which seek deliberately to allege Anthony Eden, British Minister to the League of Nations, has taken every initiative at Geneva and which has been Britain's intention to drive Italy into a corner, humiliation and war.



Any such misconception is described here as absurd. Britain's aim is to bring Italy back within the League Covenant. She has no quarrel with Italy. She does not want to see her humiliate Italy nor make war with Italy.

British Waste Reply

The British Government is waiting for a brief reply to its five questions: "Will you back us in case of an attack upon British ships in the Mediterranean" a direct "yes" or "no" answer has been asked.

Conversations today in Paris between Premier Laval and the British Ambassador were reported to have finally to be concluded on improvement in the Anglo-French situation. Laval also met the Italian Ambassador today.

Sweden decided to put into effect its first sanction against Italy today, placing an embargo on arms shipments to that country and at the same time lifting the embargo on arms to Ethiopia.

LEADS BRITISH ARMY

The nobles that Gen. Ludwig Beck had been made head of the German army was revealed in a casual reference made during the celebration of the 125th anniversary of the founding of the German war academy, Gen. Ludwig Beck is now in a niche with Moltke, Schlieffen and Von Hindenburg as head of the German army's "brain trust". The formal reconstruction of the German general staff has been indicated upon as another abrogation of a provision of the Treaty of Versailles.

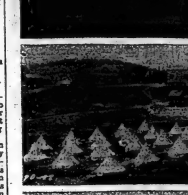
SWEAR IN NEW CABINET OCT. 28

By-Election Not Necessary in Case of New Ministers

Ottawa, Oct. 18.—(CP)— The new Dominion Cabinet may take office until the end of the next session of parliament, it is understood, the incoming administration will be sworn into office by the Governor General, Right Hon. Earl Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, as Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor General designate, will not reach Canada until Nov. 2, when he will arrive at Quebec.

By-elections will not be necessary in the case of the new ministers of the Crown. Three years ago, a change was made in the House of Commons Act by unanimous consent of the different political parties which will permit the newly appointed ministers seeking re-election by their constituents.

Members of the Bennett Cabinet contained today in Ottawa in Ottawa. A meeting of Cabinet Council has been called for Monday, when an Order-in-Council will be passed accepting resignation of Hon. W. D. Herridge as Canadian Minister at Washington.



Hon. Vincent Massey, it has been taken for granted, will be the next High Commissioner in London, The Governor General, Right Hon. Bessborough, now at Geneva and expected to arrive in London for an audition until conclusion of the League of Nations session.

War at a Glance

Addis Ababa, Oct. 18 (CP)—Emperor Haile Selassie has adopted a new war flag showing George, Ethiopia's patron saint, riding a white charger to battle in a background of red, blue and regular colours, yellow and green.

Harar, Ethiopia, Oct. 18 (CP-Havas)—Heavy rains swept Harar and surrounding regions today, reportedly bailing the northward advance of Gen. Emilio Graziani's blackshirt legions. The rains are expected to continue until November and make the terrain also impassable for Italian mechanized forces in the south are concentrated at Gerlogubi, 100 miles south of the frontier of Italian Somaliland and Kenya, a longtime line east and west of that point.

Addis Ababa, Oct. 18 (CP-Havas)—Conclusive objectors are unknown in Ethiopia, an official bulletin indicated today.

Instead of finding it necessary to draft troops the government has had such a flood of volunteers it was necessary to reject large numbers, the bulletin asserted.

Oslo, Norway, Oct. 18 (AP)—The government announced today it has placed an arms embargo against Italy.

Valletta, Malta, Oct. 18 (AP)—Exportation of scrap metal from Malta and neighboring Islands for any foreign destination was prohibited officially today.

Italy normally is a large purchaser of scrap metal from this British base off Sicily in the Mediterranean.

Colombo, Ceylon, Oct. 18 (AP)— The all Ceylon trade union congress adopted a resolution today to boycott Italian goods and vessels in the Port of Colombo. The resolution asserted Italy "is one of the countries where color distinction is divulged. The trend of events there is a deliberate insult to colored races."

100,000 CAVALRY MOVE TO CUT OFF ITALIANS

Asmara, Eritrea, Oct. 18—(AP)— Officials said today 100,000 Ethiopian cavalrymen and infantrymen under Ras Desta Demtu are moving north from the Juba region on the border of Italian Somaliland, hoping to cut off Italian troops who have crossed the Webbe Shibeli River.

Crazy Quilt Matrimonial Affair Of Canadian Couple Interests Court

Philadelphia, Oct. 18.—(CP)—The crazy-quilt matrimonial affairs a Canadian couple unfolded in court here must have the cherubic Dan Cupid blushing furiously today.

It seemed each of them was already married by the time they accepted the holy bonds of matrimony from Dan's hand. Each had answered their appearance in Magistrate Price's Night Court yesterday to face the seeming intention of the husband to have another fling at it.

The husband, Samuel and Mrs. Henry Sayers, were charged specifically with fighting over a pistol. The woman told the court she had taken the weapon to the factory, where Sayer is employed so he might shoot himself. She decided upon that course after reading he had procured a marriage license at Elkton, Md.

The Magistrate's astonishment soared when Mrs. Sayers related two months after they had wed in Toronto her husband informed her he was already married to a woman in Belleville, Ont. It soared anew when she explained she agreed to overlook that unlawful detail but came to like her bed went her husband to a Philadelphia man" by a bogus minister.

But that was not all in the way of finding love in the law. Mrs. Sayers testified they quit Victoria, B. C. and moved to Philadelphia because of a romantic escapade.

So avid was Magistrate Roberts' interest that he adjourned the case until next Wednesday to hear more. As he was setting Sayers' bail at $2,500, both the accused were arrested on charges of illegal registration to vote in Philadelphia. It seemed likely the Sayers had failed in matrimony they are Canadians and not eligible to cast ballots.

LAVAL DELAYS PROMISE OF AID TILL WEDNESDAY

Premier Wishes to Learn How Far Britain Going With Sanctions

ARMS EMBARGO

Laval Hopes to Have Duce's Reply by Middle of Week

Paris, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Authoritative reports said today Premier Pierre Laval will not commit himself by a promise of aid to British Naval strength in the Mediterranean until he learns how far London is going in sanctions against Italy.

Official circles said Laval had asked the Italian Ambassador, Vittorio Cerruti ,to insist Premier Mussolini send him his minimum terms for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict.

Laval indicated he was delaying an answer to Britain's question on naval aid until Wednesday at the earliest in the hope of having Mussolini's response by then.

Ten Nations Active

Geneva, Oct. 18.—(AP)—With Russia and Australia today declaring the League of Nations they are guiding an embargo against imports against Italy, ten nations had notified the League they are enforcing such a ban. They are Great Britain, Poland, Greece, Cuba, Latvia, Colombia, Finland, France, Russia and Australia.

Russia also notified the League it will enforce a financial blockade. Russia was the only nation to have announced application of this penalty.

POLICE HOLD GIRL IN STORE ROBBERY

Hale Companions Escape After Hectic Motor Car Chase

Hamilton, Ont., Oct. 18 (CP)—Police today held an 18-year-old girl in connection with a jewelry store robbery at Hagersville. Most of the loot was recovered but two men with the girl escaped.

The girl gave her name as Louise Ethel Hale, Hamilton. Hagersville arrived this morning and Provincial Police early this morning followed a wild chase on the side of the mountain. Both brakes screaming, the sleek car-pilot bends on steep mountain roads.

The girl's companions police were notified of a grey car coming from Hagersville with the loot. They noticed a car with two men and a fourth clip down James South on the mountain road. They gave chase the sharp curve on the mountain edge where there is a sheer drop and tumble of some 500 feet the police car raced along side trying to force it into the ditch.

They were unsuccessful and after a chase at 80 miles an hour up and down the steep curved grades of the Jolley Cut and other mountain roads, the two men and girl abandoned the car.

Constable Sanderson caught the girl but the two men escaped. Men's clothing was found in a revolver with dummy bullets and a cap full of watches. The car was one stolen from Mrs. Pearl Fenton of Hagersville. Police are searching the mountain-side for the rest of the loot.

THIRD CAR GOES TO BRADFORD MAN

J. A. Crake Holds Winning Ticket at Kiwanis Carnival Draw

Despite the number of tickets sold in Belleville by the Kiwanis Club, not one of the major prizes came to this city. All three cars offered were won by citizens living outside this city. On Thursday evening, the last night of the Carnival, Mr. J. A. Crake of Bradford, Ontario, held the winning ticket, which was drawn by one in the audience. The seller of this ticket, Mr. Crake and Scarrow of Bradford and they receive a radio. The Frigidaire was won by G. Dellis, R.R. No. 3 of Belleville Ontario, while three radios went to Mrs. Maki, 191 Pen; Arthur Rookyard, Port Arthur, Ontario, C. P. Smith of Roboayeon, Ontario and Mr. Hemr Dafoe of Tweed, Ont. of this city.

Mr. Harold Barriage, salesman for the Belleville Fruit Company succeeded in winning the $80.00 offered by the Belleville Committee for the one selling the most number of tickets. Mr. C. Webb of Bancaiaw was second prize in this competition and received $25.00, while John Mather, Ascomidon, for Regal Garage won third prize and $10.00. The closing night of the Carnival saw the largest crowd present of the entire week and it can be safely said the Carnival was a success. In a blaze of glory and from President Cliff Rackow down to the last member a smile of satisfaction was noted, that such a gigantic proposition had been put over in such fine style.

Bill Gordon of the Canadian Vaudeville Exchange arranged a splendid program for the closing night and the crowd seemed as enthusiastic as they did witnessing the first appearance of the troupe. The variety of numbers offered by the versatile artists brought hearty applause and the troupe will be welcomed back on future occasions. The dance floor was well patronized during the evening, while the refreshment stands did a thriving business. The various games run by the club were busy places during the evening and a fine sum was realized. Before the Carnival closed, Cliff Barrager on behalf of the club thanked all, who in any way contributed to the success of the Carnival.

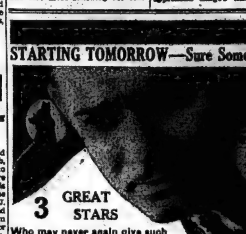
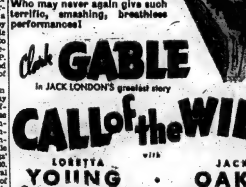
NOT MAN WANTED SAYS INFORMANT



Defendant Had Heard Police Wanted Man, Brant is Discharged

A rather embarrassing situation occurred in today's local police court in the matter of mistaken identity. The case arose following the complaint of Joseph Large, Belleville youth, who informed the Provincial Police he had been assaulted and beaten while on the Tyendinaga Reserve. Mr. Large named a man he referred to as Brant as being his assailant. Subsequently and following investigations Michael Brant, Tyendinaga, gave himself up to the authorities and was charged with the assault of Large.

When Michael Brant appeared in today's police court, held before Magistrate Baxter, he appeared rather bewildered and was somewhat at a loss as to the entire proceedings. When Large was called to the witness box, however, he assured the court that Michael Brant was not the man who assaulted him despite the fact that Brant had given himself up to the authorities upon hearing that a man named Brant was wanted by the police.



Dismissed upon hearing Large's testimony, Crown Attorney R. G. Deroan, K.C., asked for a dismissal of the charge. His Worship granted the request and the police were immediately dispatched to apprehend Large's assailant.

JOHN THOMPSON

John Thompson, a highly respected resident of Belleville for the past sixty-eight years, passed away late Thursday afternoon at the family residence, 86 Charlotte Street, after a brief illness.

The late Mr. Thompson, who was in his 87th year, was born in Ireland, the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Thompson. At the age of 18 years he came to Canada and located in Belleville and his resided here continuously since that time. For many years he was engaged in the shoe business being employed by many of the leading merchants and manufacturers in the city. Some years ago he gave up active business and had been living retired at his residence on Charlotte Street, taking enjoyment in working in his garden. He was a man of friendly disposition and of most upright character and during his long residence here he was a good citizen being held in high regard by all who knew him. In religion he was a member of the Church of England and attended Christ Church.

Surviving him are one son, Mr. John T. Thompson, Jr., Calgary, Alberta; three daughters, Mrs. William H. Clarke, Toledo, Ohio; Mrs. E. Reeves at home; Mrs. S. A. Rodgers, Mrs. Alan Bateman and Mrs. Robert Boyle, Belleville, and Mrs. George Hains, Detroit, Mich.

His wife passed away twelve years ago.

FRED (CLIFF (Napanee)

Napanee, Oct. 18.—(c)—Mr. and Mrs. George A. Cliff received the sad intelligence on Saturday morning announcing the death of their son, Fred, which occurred at Miami, Florida, where he had resided for some time. Interment was made in Miami on Monday.

The deceased, who was 37 years of age, was a native of Napanee, where he spent his early years and where he attended the public school and collegiate institute. In the year 1915 he underwent an operation in Kingston General Hospital and after convalescence left for Vancouver, B.C., where he remained for some time. He again returned to his former home town and later left for Miami where he had been engaged in the business of electrical goods, including refrigerators.

During his residence in Miami, he had undergone two operations. The deceased was a very congenial chap, and was very popular. He was also the possessor of a splendid tenor voice and took a leading part in the comic opera, Jolanthe, which was produced by local talent in Napanee several years ago.

Of a family of five born to Mr. and Mrs. Cliff, the death of Fred, makes the fourth. A sister, Mrs. Stock, resides in New York city.

The many friends of the deceased will regret to learn of his passing.

LATE JOHN NOBES

Marmora, Oct. 19 — The death occurred in Campbellford on Tuesday morning of John Nobes, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Nobes of Marmora township.

The deceased was 39 years of age and had lived most of his life in Marmora village where he employed with the Delora Smelting and Refining Co., for a number of years. He had been subject to heart attacks for some time, but recently suffered a severe attack which proved fatal.

Besides his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Nobes, he is survived by one brother, Ernest of the city of Campbellford and four half brothers and sisters, Mrs. Thomas Gordon, Samuel, Lorne, Leah, Hilda, Ila, Verna and Lloyd, all at home.

The funeral was held on Thursday afternoon, leaving the residence of his uncle, Mr. and Mrs. John Wells, Marmora Village, at 2 p.m. and proceeded to the Methodist church; North Marmora where services were conducted by Rev. Lewis S. Chalmers, interment being made in the Pine Methodist church.

The pallbearers were Messrs. Carl McCoy, Ross Carman, Joseph Darrah, Harry Wells, Charles Nobes, and James Nobes, Jr.

SAMUEL DEAN

A resident of Hastings County all his life, Samuel Dean died at his home, third concession of Tyendinaga Township, today, after an illness which had extended for some time. He was born in Shannonville 69 years ago, being the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Dean. For many years he farmed in Tyendinaga, later moving to Thurlow. A member of Melody United Church, he is survived by his wife, formerly Lucy Huffman, one son, Percy, at home; Johnston, Stratford, and a half-sister, Mrs. John Shea of Buffalo, N.Y.

TOWN PLANNING SCHEME TALKED

Chamber of Commerce to Hold Dinner to Discuss Projects

Town planning was discussed at the meeting of the directors of the Belleville Chamber of Commerce on Thursday. It was the opinion of the directors, that some action should be taken in this matter and an objective established. Nothing great can be accomplished at once, but by looking ahead and planning as to what certain desirable things may be brought about, some advancement may be made. It was decided to discuss this question further at an open forum meeting to be held in the near future.

Reports submitted showed that the campaign for new members in the Chamber was progressing and that when the canvas is over many new members will be added to the Chamber.

The Inter-Community dinner which was to have been held at Stirling on the evening of Oct. 21st has been cancelled and in its place a dinner will be served at Hotel Quinte, next Monday evening at 7.30 o'clock. This dinner will be under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce and the Belleville Rotary Club. The members of the Kiwanis Club, Y's Men Club and the Kinsmen Club have been invited to be present. The guest speaker will be Dr. J. H. Holbrook of Hamilton, who is a most interesting and effective speaker. A musical program has been arranged for also.

President; J. Boyce presided at the meeting and the following directors were present: Messrs. Mackenzie Robertson, W. H. Morton, W. C. Springer, H. E. Fairfield, E. V. Hilley, Leo. B. Riggs, H. W. Ackerman, F. C. Bernstein and Secretary-Manager J. G. Hetty.

POLICE COURT

The season's first infraction of the Game and Fisheries Act was presented in today's local police court, held before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C., when Joseph Brant, Tyendinaga resident, was charged with illegal fishing. The accused was pleaded guilty before any evidence was submitted by Game and Fishery Inspector J. Weymark, who laid the information. A fine of ten dollars and costs was imposed. Brant asked for an extension of time in order to raise the money to pay the imposed fine. His request was granted.

A number of Highway Traffic cases were disposed of during the court proceedings. The charges ranged from speeding to operating motor vehicles without the proper lights facilities. Motorcycle Policeman Sam Irvine and Bert Delaney presented the traffic cases.

SHOTGUN EPISODE HEARD IN COURT

Stirling Youth is Given Suspended Sentence in Charivari Case

Using a shot gun instead of confetti for charivari purposes was the cause of Raymond Lawrence, Stirling youth, being charged with illegally discharging fire arms. Lawrence appeared in today's Police court and pleaded guilty to the charge before Magistrate E. J. Butler, K.C. A suspended sentence of one month, upon the payment of the costs of the proceedings was meted out.

The court case followed the celebration of a recent Madoc wedding when Lawrence entered upon the spirit of the surrounding and decided a fitting manner to assist the bride and groom upon their forthcoming honeymoon, was to greet them after the ceremony with a hilarious resound of noise. Lawrence appeared outside the church armed with his trusty shot gun and when the happy couple appeared upon the scene, after and hearing he fired the gun off, but unfortunately some of the shot struck the back of the moving automobile in which were the newly married couple.

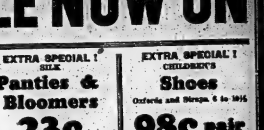
REAL JAILBIRD LOVES KITTEN



This is the story of two jailbirds, one a real jailbird in the Folsom prison; at Folsom, Cal. Jailbirds as a class, say criminologists, have no love for cats. But this jailbird, Chirpy by name, has more than love for another jailbird, a kitten called Bibs. The kitten and the bird, a linnet, were born in the prison and took a liking for each other. So much so that the two jailbirds live together, eat together and sleep together.

ANXIETY FELT FOR A. HENDERSON

LONDON, Oct. 18. —(AP)— The condition of Arthur Henderson, president of the World Disarmament Conference, was described as "grave" in a bulletin issued today by his physician here where he was seriously ill after an operation.

He has been suffering from jaundice.

Arthur Henderson served in Britain's first labor government. He was Home Secretary under Ramsay MacDonald in 1924. Five years later when Labor returned to power he was Foreign Secretary.

He had previous experience in the Ministry during the war as parliamentary-general, as President of the Board of Education and later as Minister without Portfolio in the War Cabinet.

He led the Labor Party in Parliament following the formation of the National Government in 1931 until he resigned to take over the task of chairman of the World Disarmament Conference, which he labored for upward years. His efforts for peace won recognition, when he was awarded the Nobel Peace prize in 1934.

He is a member of parliament for Clay Cross division.

GUARD RAILS FOR PEDESTRIANS

The constant danger of the pedestrian and the motorcar meeting—is something that is going to direct man's attention for many years, as long as motorcars endure.

Over in crowded ancient London they are talking of fencing off pedestrians in the crowded parts of the city—that there will be no risk of a walker coming into the path of a car.

Pedestrian guard rails on each side of the main road from Whitesand Bay to Shannon Bridge, Mile after mile of the stretch of road, are advocated. Automatic signals are to be installed at every street intersection. The guard rails will prevent pedestrians crossing the street at any other than the designated crossways. Not only adults will be kept from stepping carelessly before cars but children—by the hand—will be forbidden to cross the roadway.

Experts see a great relief to motorists who will not live in the constant fear of having someone running into their car. They say that traffic can move closer to the curb and so make it possible for more cars to use the roads. Similarly pedestrians will be able to walk closer to the curb.

In the three mile stretch indicated is one of the worst in London for accidents. Success with the new plan will mean the extension of the scheme to many other parts of the great city.

Provision will be made for merchants to send out and receive goods, so that business will not be impeded.

It may seem strange that this system of fencing off the sidewalks has not been thought of before.

The future of the undertaking will be watched with interest in large and small cities where the congestion of traffic is heavy.

THE THIRTY-HOUR MIRAGE

Once more the American Federation of Labor has declared in favor of the thirty-hour week as one of its "paramount objectives." It will support the Black-Connery Thirty-Hour Bill at the next Congressional session. Mr. Green assures us that "we are ready to fight for this as we have never fought before."

From the standpoint of labor, it is a short-sighted decision. It will be paid for only out of the pocket that labor helps to make. There is no way in which it can get more by producing less. From a thirty-hour week labor can secure a standard of living only two-thirds as high as from a forty-five hour week. There is no escape from the elementary mathematics of the case. Any belief that we can supply our needs better by working less is plainly muddle-headed.

The belief results from failure to recognize even the more obvious secondary consequences of such a policy. Proponents of the thirty-hour week begin by accepting the "lump-of-labor" fallacy. They believe that there is a fixed amount of work to go around; and that if men are permitted to work only thirty hours a week instead of forty, employers must hire an additional ten million workers to get it done. They forget, with, that the average work week in manufacturing is still only thirty-seven hours. Even this is an increase of 11 per cent in average working hours compared with a year ago. Instead of bringing a fall in employment and earnings, this increase in the working week has been accompanied in that period by an increase of 5.6 per cent in number of workers employed, in slightly higher average hourly earnings, and in higher weekly earnings—because it was accompanied by an increase in production.

Those who believe that employers would be obliged by a thirty-hour week to take on a third more men—or any other ratio—and keep them on, forget also what the other consequences of the thirty-hour week policy are. To insure the individual worker the same weekly wage as he received for a forty-hour week, hourly wage rates would have to be raised 33 1-3 per cent. This would force a corresponding rise in prices which would much more than nullify the wage advance. For, though the workers would be receiving higher hourly wages, they would confront higher prices for goods all around the circle, with only the same weekly wage to pay for them. The result would be a constriction of purchasing power, a narrowing of the market for goods, and a smaller total demand for employment.

The shorter-hours theory had an ample trial in the forty-hour weeks generally introduced by the NRA codes. For about three months these appeared to stimulate employment. Then unemployment froze. It is still at nearly 10,000,000, the same level as in September, 1933. If the forty-hour week had fulfilled the expectations of its sponsors, we should now have substantially less unemployment than other countries. The opposite is the case. In the last month for which statistics are published by the League of Nations, employment in the United States was 75.9 per cent of the 1929 level; in Canada 83.5 per cent; in Italy, 89 per cent; in Sweden 95.2 per cent; in Great Britain, 101.5 per cent.—New York Times.

LITTLE SHADOW PETS

When all the house is still and dark
And Memory's Lamp is lit,
Those little ghosts of pets we've owned
Steal back and by us sit.

With bright, dark eyes they speak to us
Of distant yesterdays,
With tail-wags and head-a-tilt
In dear, remembered ways.

So real they seem, we reach a hand
To stroke a silken head,
And think to hear familiar barks
When a well-loved name is said.

No human heart that once has known
So furry comradeship
But when the house is still and dark
Hears tiny ghost paws trip.

They're with us still in memory's sache,
The Starry Fields they've crossed,
Those furry wraiths of shadow pets
That we have loved and lost.

THE WORLD IS VERY SMALL AFTER ALL! A lump of coke, a bromide as it seems, opines a member of the Sidelight Family who tells this one: At a grand ball in Madras, India, not so long ago, a gentleman and lady were dancing when the conversation drifted to home addresses. The lady said "I am from "Canada" "So am I," said the gentleman "What part of Canada?" she asked. "Oh, you wouldn't know the place, just a small community called Napanee." "Well," said the lady, "As I came from Belleville, I should know Napanee." And all this in Madras, India, not far from the burning ghats and the dirty water of the sacred river Ganges, the (Ya) land of mystery, beautiful temples, the land of Kipling and Kim and deep and dark mystery—one of the oldest civilizations in the world, bedraggled and downtrodden, but also romance, pride, hate, jealousy and all the evil spirits which degrade a nation—a nation where the poor are the poorest and the rich the richest in the world—Napanees meets Belleville in the shadow of the Taj Mahal.

WE EAT WHAT WE CAN AND CAN WHAT WE CAN'T, that old canonry joke of the Gay Nineties, has been revived and redressed by Mark Hellinger, New York columnist, who tells the story with gusto, shades of that old, and gives the usual finishing touch of the Englishman who heard the joke and repeated it to his wife when he reached home America in these words: "When I awaked what so many tomatoes were used for her answer was very peculiar. She merely said: that they ate what they could—and what they couldn't they could." Oh, I say, you blighter, don't throw any more of those tomA—tomA— tomATOes!

The Rev. W. A. Gustin, formerly curate at St. Thomas' Church in this city, later of Port Hope, is now rector of St. Andrew's Church, Peoria, Ill. A Peoria paper says of Mr. Gustin: "He is a young man and filled with energy and enthusiasm. He is original, eloquent and forceful, leaving the beaten paths of pulpit oratory. His morning theme was Edward Everett Hale's story, "The Man Without a Country", applying it to church affairs. Mr. Gustin has been warmly received by the congregation."

There is some opposition to the organizing of another citizen's band in the city. The proposed new organization is off to a good start. It is feared, however, that between the two the city will not have one good band as the new band will take some players from the old band.

POOR T.B. VICTIMS ARE GIVEN HOPE
Collapse Therapy Clinic Opened At Chicago Today

Chicago, Oct. 18.—(CP) —New hope for thousands of men and women afflicted with the "white plague" of poverty and tuberculosis arose today with the opening of a collapse therapy clinic here.

City officials and medical men hailed it as the first institution in the world to be devoted wholly to artificial pneumothorax, a method of treating tuberculosis by collapse of the lung with air.

The clinic will be open to all legal residents of Chicago who lack the means of paying a private physician for treatment. Artificial pneumothorax was said by doctors of the clinic to have made possible the treatment of tuberculosis at home with no undue interference with the normal activities of ambulant patients, particularly their employment.

"We believe a patient gets just as good treatment at home with the mechanical aid of the lung provided by its collapse, as he does in a sanitarium," said Dr. R. F. Troy, superintendent of the dispensary for the municipal tuberculosis board.

Dr. Frederick Tice, President of the Board, said:

"Pneumothorax is a two-fold blessing. While it restores the patient to health without removing him from his home or income, it renders him at the same time incapable of spreading the disease."

The treatment, after administration of a local anaesthetic, consists of an injection of gas into the pleural cavity between the lung and the chest wall by means of a hypodermic needle. The gas collapses the lung gradually. After half an hour's rest, the patient is allowed to leave the clinic. Numerous refills, sections are necessary, physicians said.

ITALIAN ADVANCE IS BEING HALTED
Makale Centre of Movement Against Italy

Asmara, Eritrea, Oct. 18.—(De-layed in transmission)—First real opposition to the Italian advance through Ethiopia was believed to be developing today around Makale, major objective 60 miles south of Adowa.

Three important Ethiopian leaders were reported concentrating their forces in that district where it has long been predicted there was a good chance for a big battle.

Ras Seyoum, Ethiopian commander and former Governor of Adowa who fled when the Italians marched their conquering advance and took the capital, was said to be uniting his forces with those of Bierondi of Lalibela.

A third Ethiopian chieftain, Asfaw Chaga, was moving with another large force toward Makale, the region from which Haile Selassie Guga, now Italian-appointed Ras of Tigre province, withdrew his forces when he went over to the Italian side.

NEW FORD IS ANNOUNCED
Longer Lines Result of New Front Design—More Streamlined

Longer lines and more advanced but still conservative streamlining are the chief changes in appearance of the Ford V-8 for 1936 on display at the showrooms of J. J. Trudeau, local Ford dealer. Importantly new steel wheels with unusually large hub caps strike an entirely new note.

New Front End

The front end of the car has been redesigned to give a longer hood line. Deeply flared front fenders, each with high inner apron carrying smoothly into the new radiator grille are at once noticeable. The horn for the first time is placed within the radiator apron, behind a small chromium grille under the headlamps. This is made possible by the higher apron, and takes the horn, always a visible accessory, out of the windshield area. Hood louvres are of different, prettier and are more numerous.

The radiator grille is of new design, sweeping outwards about halfway up the radiator shell in conformity with the graceful lines of the car. Under the hood, a heavier new V-8 engine decorates the nose.

The 13 1-2-inch hub cap carries the V-8 insignia on its highly polished centre, of nickel plate. The rest of the cap is enameled the same colour as the wheel itself, whose short spokes or cars allow for a brief distance between cap and rim. Wheel and rim are of one-piece welded steel. Tires are again 6.00 by 16 inches, of "balloon" design.

Rear fenders have been redesigned to conform with the longer lines of the car.

Interior Redesigned

Interiors are in new color schemes. De luxe types have the instrument board, moulding and hardware finished in metallic pyroxylin in gray. Plastic knobs are gray. Upholstery is a cool choice for a big battle.

Has Seyoum, Ethiopian commander and former Governor of Adowa who fled when the Italians marched their conquering advance and took the capital, was said to be uniting his forces with those of Bierondi of Lalibela.

FASCIST GRIP ON AUSTRIA STRONGER BY NEW CABINET

Von Starhemberg Has New Authority Placed in His Hands

SCHUSCHNIGG REMAINS

Monarchists And Farmers Lost Ground to Starhemberg

By ALVIN J. STEINKOPF
(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Vienna, Oct. 16 (AP)—Fascist Prime Minister Kurt Schuschnigg strengthened his grip on Austrian Government affairs today as a cabinet reorganization placed new authority in his hands.

Youthful foe of Nazism and friend of Premier Mussolini, the Vice-Chancellor, achieved power in Engelbert Dollfuss' shakeup of which his strengthened army of 175,000 was only a symbol. Political observers professed to see in the changes a probable closer co-ordination between Italy and Austria.

Associated with Adolf Hitler during the 1923 beer parlor putsch though he wheeled savagely on Nationalist machinations begun in active reprochment policy with Mussolini late in 1933, the Prince set up his own Government in the Tyrol at the time he broke with the national Chancellor over Engelbert Dollfuss.

The reshuffling of Cabinet posts by heavily armed police guarded buildings left Kurt Schuschnigg in the office of Chancellor and in possession of the portfolio of Defence Minister—in nominal control of the powerful Defence Ministry—Nominal control of the Federal Army—but he sacrificed his Cabinet to storm troops to Starhemberg.

These troops were merged with the new Starhemberg militia, formed of the private armies which have been a powerful factor in the Austrian organization.

Dictatorship Control

One author of a prophesy of an Austrian world empire, Starhemberg emerged from the lightning-like changes in the completion of the Government in more authority than he enjoyed previously over the country's internal affairs.

The Cabinet changes disclosed a tendency to centralize even more the control of important matters in the hands of Schuschnigg and Starhemberg, with the old Heimwehr slowly but surely losing greater power.

The monarchists and farmers apparently lost much ground to the Starhemberg organization. An official note on the forced resignation of Theodor Zeldaric, was indicated in his appointment as Minister of Agriculture and Ministry of Social Administration.

Under the set of the Cabinet with Josef Reither, Minister of Agriculture, was Major Emil Fey, supporter of Dollfuss.

The difference between Fey and Starhemberg, said to have been developing since Dollfuss' death, resulted in such a reduction in the former's power that the Vice-Chancellor revealed on Schuschnigg the strike of a heavy hand.

Italian Machine Guns Cut Force to Pieces

Paris, Oct. 17.—(AP)—The correspondent of Matin in Addis Ababa said today an attacking force of Ethiopians advancing to reoccupy the Holy City of Aksum were slain almost to a man by Italian machine gun fire.

The Ethiopian attack took place last night and ended at dawn, the Northern Italian Army near the Setit River, the correspondent said.

Forewarned of the Ethiopian attempt to retake Holy City, the Italian troops were ready and the native warriors as they approached armed with rifles, daggers and spears. The Italians opened with machine gun fire from which few of the Ethiopians escaped.

DEPORT "WOMAN IN RED"

Chicago, Oct. 17. —(AP)— Mrs. Anna Bak, "woman in red" in the Dillinger case, lost her fight against deportation from the United States today when Judge John Barnes dismissed a habeas corpus petition filed in her behalf. He declared she had been promised residence here because of leading Dillinger into the law's trap.

NO MORE SICK HEADACHES

Keep Your Stomach Clean

If you are a martyr to sick headaches, biliousness, liver upsets and similar disorders, here is news that will cheer you. In a few hours you can clean the scores of the trouble is the stomach, where undigested food accumulates and interferes with your digestion, poisoning the whole system and making you feel no good for anything.

Thousands of sufferers have put an end to all that misery, by taking Maclean Brand Stomach Powder. Look for the signature "ALEX. C. MACLEAN" on the bottle. WEST HUNTINGDON

West Huntingdon, Oct. 18 — The annual convention of the O.B.G.C. of Hungerford, township, was held at the West Huntingdon United church on Wednesday afternoon and evening, Oct. 16.

Delegates were present from Moira, White Lake, Beulah, St. Andrews, Fuller, Elmore and Fuller United and West Huntingdon Sunday Schools. Rev. H. A. Turner BA. West Huntingdon very ably conducted the worship period for the afternoon session.

Mr. Ward Holland, president of the Huntingdon branch, presided over both sessions in an efficient manner. In his opening address he was much encouraged with the Sunday School work of the past year in the township. Those giving the reports of the various departments were: Mrs. John Wallace for the Children's Work; Mr. Arthur Wilcox, Young People's Work; Miss Phillip Carr, Teacher Training; Mr. Harry Lovelond, Temperance. The other superintendents were not present but their reports were read by the secretary Mrs. William Shaw.

The Misses Verna and Betty Foster of Moira delighted the gathering with a duet "God's Love". A most interesting and instructive feature of the programme was a teaching demonstration. Mrs. Henry Emmerson of Moira, taught an adult class and Mrs. John Wallace a junior class. Both of these talented ladies received many complimentary remarks concerning their method of teaching and no doubt the various teachers present carried home many new ideas which will be of great assistance in the coming year.

The Provincial representative this year was Rev. R. E. Elliott and at the close Mr. Elliott discussed some Sunday School problems of convention and the afternoon session was brought to a close with Benediction. The ladies of the United Church served supper to the visiting delegates in the Orange Hall.

Rev. D. C. Hill pastor of Knox Presbyterian Church, Fuller, conducted the worship period in the evening and Mr. Elliott continued his afternoon's discussion for a few minutes. Mrs. William Shaw read the report of nominating committee as follows:

President: Mr. Ward Holland, Belleek, United church.

Vice Presidents: Mrs. D. McCamley of Fuller.

Superintendent Children's Work Mrs. John Wallace, St. Andrews.

Superintendent Girls' Work: Miss L. Redling, Knox Church, Fuller.

Boys' Work: Mr. Gordon Fuller, of Moira P.P.

Young People's Department: Mr. Arthur Wilcox, of West Huntingdon, S.S.

Adult Department: Mrs. Henry Emerson, Moira S.S.

Home Department: Mrs. J. Clement, Beulah S.S.

Teacher Training, Mrs. (Rev.) H. A. Turner, West Huntingdon S.S.

Missionary Work: Mrs. Florence Geary, Bethesda S.S.

Temperance Work: Mr. Harry Lovelond, Beulah S.S.

Rev. H. E. Lackey of Ivanhoe in his address gave splendid helpful hints on the above officers who will constitute the executive for 1935-36. Next meeting will be held in Knox Church, Fuller United Church, Mrs. Shaw read the report of the resolution committee.

The appreciation of the convention was extended to those taking active part on program, to the ladies for the splendid supper provided, also to officials of the United Church for the use of the building for the convention.

The Fuller quartet composed of Messrs Arthur and George Brough, Frank Sprague and Mr. McCamley gave as special music, "Standing in the need of Prayer", with Miss L. Redling at the piano. This number was greatly appreciated by the convention.

Rev. D. C. Hill gave an address on the work of the Sunday School and Church combined. Rev. R. H. Elliott gave a very instructive closing address on the conditions that he is of the opinion that Sunday Schools are doing the best possible for any of our church organizations. Rev. Turner pronounced the convention with the Benediction.

RESUME ACTIVITY AT QUEEN'S PARK

Special Cabinet Meeting Will Be Held Next Week

Toronto, Oct. 18—(CP)—Dormant during the absence of Ministers on the hustings in the federal election campaign, Queen's Park activity has resumed with the first meeting of the cabinet in three weeks.

After his Ministers finished their session in the council chamber late yesterday, Premier Hepburn announced a special cabinet meeting for next week to consider recommendations from the Hydro Commission respecting the Quebec power commercials and forecast appointment of a committee to survey pending acquisition of the Great Lakes Paper Company of Fort William by United States interests.

The Premier announced also changes in the government service involving resignation of R. Leighton Foster, superintendent of insurance, his replacement by Hartley D. McMaim of Toronto, and elevation of Eric Silk, junior clerk of the legislature to chief clerk.

Enters Private Practice

Mr. Foster is understood to be entering private practice. The new chief clerk replaces W. B. Common, senior solicitor to the Attorney-General's Department, whose other duties were considered sufficiently onerous without the legislative work.

Date for the special cabinet meeting to hear the Hydro Commission's recommendations was not set definitely because Mr. Hepburn said the Commission had not yet decided on them. The Premier declared proclamation of the act invalidating the contract would be authorized almost immediately.

Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Lands and Forests, and Attorney-General Roebuck may be on the committee, which will examine the Great Lakes deal. The committee may also examine the question of the Carpenter-Minzen Lumber Mills Ltd. limit. Since as it was understood United States interests are ready to spend $2,000,000 on the property provided satisfactory arrangements can be effected regarding the original bonding obligation.

THOMASBURG

The anniversary services of Thomasburg United Church, on Sunday, October 13th, were a wonderful success. There were about 135 out for the morning service, and 170 for evening. The church was beautifully decorated with fruit, vegetables, plants and flowers as well as with autumn foliage.

Rev. Bert Howard, principal of Albert College, Belleville, gave two stirring and inspirational addresses. In the morning his message was "The Call to Service". In the evening he emphasized the need of living a clean life that we may have the "inner resources" needful in life where fear and sin lie nearer.

The choir, composed of seventeen voices, rendered special music.

In the morning the choir sang:

Anthem, "All Hail Emanuel"; quartette, "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me"—Mrs. J. C. Morton, Mrs. F. Porter, Miss Lucille Herrington, and J. R. Morton; solo, "Nearer My God To Thee".

In the night they rendered:

Anthem, "O Light Eternal"; solo, "My Task"—Mrs. Dorothy Clarke; trio, "At Eventide", by Mrs. Neil Stevens, Mrs. H. B. Herrington, Miss Lucille Herrington.

The financial objective set by the steward board was met.

Principal Bert Howard of Albert College, Belleville, and Mrs. Howard addressed the Sunday School session at the parsonage on Sunday.

Many visitors were present the week-end was greatly enjoyed by the people of Thomasburg.

Mosquitoes have been seen by some of the village residents.

Much excitement has been created in this vicinity during the past week during the election which took place on Monday.

INTRODUCED TOMORROW

THE NEW FORD V-8 FOR 1936

Why do we say The New Ford V-8 for 1936?

What is new about it?

Of course, the newest engine in the low-price car field is still the V-8 engine. Since Ford made it available to all car users (keeping it as economical as cars with fewer cylinders) the Ford V-8 has been the newest engine on the market, and remains the newest for 1936.

You may buy a car on minor "talking points"—some specially advertised feature "with the car thrown in"—but, after all, it is the engine you buy when you buy a car. Hence we put the engine first.

Other new points about the car make a long list.

Its lines are much more beautiful. The hood is longer and sweeps forward over the distinctive new radiator grille, giving the car a length and grace that are instantly impressive. The fenders are larger, with a wide flare. Horns are concealed behind circular grilles beneath the headlamps. New steel wheels.

Ford upholstery—always of sterling quality and excellent taste—is rich and enduring. The appointments of the car have a new touch of refinement. There is no question about the increased beauty of the Ford V-8 for 1936.

In more practical matters, many improvements have been made—Steering is made easier by a new steering gear ratio. The cooling system circulates 4½ gallons of water through a new, larger radiator. Natural thermo-syphon action is assisted by two centrifugal water pumps. New louvres permit a rapid air-flow ground the engine.

Easier, quicker shifting of Ford gears—The gear shift lever now travels a shorter distance.

The two qualities you want in brakes—Brakes that stop the car with ease and certainty. Ford Super-Safety Brakes of the long-tested, foot-pivot mechanical design.

Safety—as always—in the electrically welded genuine steel body. Safety Glass all around at no extra cost. Hundreds have written grateful letters because this glass has protected the safety of their families.

A car you can drive without strain all day, if you like, in city or country. Steady, holds the road, responds to the driver's touch like a well-trained horse. You don't have to "push" or "fight" the Ford V-8—driver and car easily get on terms of good understanding with each other.

An engine has much to do with the roominess of a car. Very much indeed. A long engine uses up car space. The compact V-8 engine permits much of the ordinary engine space to be used by passengers.

It really is a great car in every way, this 1936 Ford V-8—the finest, safest, most dependable Ford car ever built. Get complete details tomorrow.

DEANERY W. A. ANNUAL MEETING HELD AT TRENTON

Mrs. E. R. Logie, Re-elected to Office of Secretary

Rev. Bruce Jennings, rector of Port Hope, delivered the sermon at the service held in St. George's Church, Trenton, yesterday morning at the opening of the annual meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Prince Edward Deanery. Rev. Jennings spoke of his former rector, Canon Rupert Clout Mercon, B.C. His text was "The Northern Crose" calling monthly it 31 places where meetings were held. Canon Clout, piloted a parish of course for many miles along the coast.

Most of the Indians have not heard the Gospel. Lighthouse-keepers are very visited and Mr. Jennings referred to the bravery of the men and their wives. Storms raged from November to April. The keepers

Fish Out of Water

(By Donald B. Smither)

There was an inscription on the back of the gold watch.

Presented to Henry Smithers in recognition of 25 years of loyal service

Jones, Ward and Co.

"It's beautiful, Henry!" Mrs. Smithers said.

Mr. Smithers was slumped in an arm-chair, hands dug deep in trous-er pockets. "Pah!" he said, "I suppose He's a pretty swell way of telling a man that he's no good any more."

Tears floated in Mrs. Smither's kindly brown eyes. She forced them back, put one arm around her husband's shoulder and stroked his gray head.

"Don't take it like that, Henry. You ought to be very thankful. They've given you a generous pension. Now you can enjoy a rest."

Mr. Smithers did her best to smile, but in her heart she was afraid. Man retired against their will from jobs held almost a lifetime, forced into inactivity, went to pieces quickly.

Next morning, in spite of protests from his wife, Mr. Smithers went as usual at seven. He shaved, dressed and was the first down at breakfast.

He was moodily munching a piece of dry toast when the click-clack of feminine heels sounded on the stairs. Doris took her place at the table.

"Good morning, daddy!" Unfolding a napkin, she turned her pleasant little face with its bobbed hair and eyes in the direction of her mother. "Gee, daddy's back, isn't he, mum?" she said. "No more rushing off with me to catch the 8:15 in the mornings. All day to read the funnies. Isn't that as he likes."

George, tall and glowing from his morning shower, slipped into his seat in time to echo the sentiment.

"Tee, dad," he said. "Wish I had a little of the spare time you're going to have. I'm going to have to time to try out my new fishing rod."

Mrs. Smithers kept her eyes on the coffee she was pouring. She knew that dread of retirement had entered Henry's mind. Without his job, he was like a fish out of water.

All morning Mrs. Smithers' patience was tried. Instead of Henry's face moped around. He wandered aimlessly in and out of the kitchen like a man hunting a lost. Once when she scolded him he made no reply. Just looked at her with a hurt expression in his dull eyes.

At lunch time, Smithers decided that something must be done. She was afraid of what might happen if this went on. Desperately she cudred her hands and went to find him. Henry was in the living room. The old brown hat he sometimes wore was missing from its accustomed spot on the hall rack. He must have gone off somewhere for a walk. Mrs. Smithers sat down to the telephone and put a call through to the office of Jones, Ward and Co.

Mr. Ward, the president, listened with astonishment. Then he said, "But my dear Mrs. Smithers, I can't take your husband back! He's already been pensioned off. We have the pension's not adequate, perhaps I could—"

Mrs. Smithers had to begin all over again.

"It isn't a question of money. Don't you understand? Henry's whole life was in his job. Now you've taken it away! I'm afraid. So afraid! Can't you find a place for him somewhere? Anywhere, I don't please, please!"

Gradually the president came around. Yes, he began to see. If she'd tell Mr. Smithers to come down in the morning they'd talk things over. Mrs. Smithers hung up the receiver with trembling fingers. She'd done it! There would be no more of his dull looks that she had called the office. Just say they had phoned and wanted him back.

When George came home from work she was almost frantic. They drove down to the village to make inquiries. The butcher put them on the track. His little boy had seen Mr. Smithers heading down to-wards the river where high banks overlooked the most dangerous part. Mrs. Smithers, white-faced, exchanged glances with her son.

George drove grimly, sending the car bouncing and bucking along the deep-rutted lane. The fifty yards had to be covered on foot, through trees. As they neared it close to the river bank, Mrs. Smithers uttered a little weak cry of distress. Halfway up the slope-jay a crumpled brown figure. It was Henry's battered old hat!

George gripped his mother's arm and steadied her. They climbed to the top and looked down. Immediately below them, at the water's edge, sat Mr. Smithers on a large rock—fishing! Mrs. Smithers' eyes closed and a little prayer of thankfulness went up. Then she looked down again and cried out!

"Goodness gracious, Henry! Don't you know it's getting dark?" The scolding tone in her voice was to hide her relief. "Come on up. We've got good news. They phoned from the office. They want you to go back!"

Mr. Smithers raised the fishing rod, swung the baited hook to the other part of the stream and let it fall in again with a little plop.

He looked up at the bank. "Mean go back to that stuffy old office!" he exclaimed. "Not on your life! Look —" He laid the rod aside and held up an insignificant little fish about four inches long. "I just landed it, he said with eyes that shone proudly. "Going to have it for supper, by golly. This new rod of yours is a daisy, George. Say—I'm just starting to live!"

THOMASBURG W.M.S.

The W.M.S. of Thomasburg United Church held their October meeting in the vestry on Tuesday, October 8th, with the President Mrs. J. Bateman in charge. The meeting was opened with the singing of hymns, followed by all repeating the Lord's Prayer in unison, Mrs. Brown, treasurer gave the financial report. Mrs. Ira Ashton, secretary read the minutes of the last meeting. Roll call was answered by a verse of Scripture. Business was then discussed by the President. Mrs. M. Ashton read the 23rd Psalm and the program. A hymn was sung, followed by all repeating the 91st Psalm.

A paper on Christian Stewardship was given by Mrs. Fox. Mrs. George Jones read the Scripture lesson after which Mrs. Herrington led in prayer. A Temperance Reading was given by Mrs. G. Sharp. This was followed by a solo by Miss Lucille Herrington which was much enjoyed by all. Mrs. H. Elliott gave an interesting talk on the 1st chapter of the Study Book, "The New Africa". A hymn was sung. Mrs. Fred Porter then gave a fine report of the tenth W.M.S. Rally which was held at Cannifton.

The meeting was brought to a close by a hymn and all repeating the Mizpah Benediction. Lunch was served and a social hair-hour enjoyed by all.

CENTENNARY W.A.

The Woman's Association of Centenary Church held its October meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Hall on Thursday afternoon, and two visitors, Mrs. Twiddy of Cannifton and Mrs. Hutchinson of Frankford. Mrs. Fred Aitkin, President used hymn 4 as the opening hymn. Mrs. Hall offered prayer, followed by the Lord's Prayer in unison. Mrs. Twiddy and Mrs. Hart, sang "If I have wounded any soul today". Rev. Foley of Springbrook, chairman of the Presbytery will conduct the services on the anniversary Sunday, Oct. 23rd. Collects for the day $5.33. A business meeting was held at noon by the hostess and the ladies. Meeting closed with Mizpah benediction.

W.M.S.

The W.M.S. meeting of the Centenary auxiliary for October was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hart. The meeting was opened with hymn 306. Mrs. Roy Thrasher, President in charge. Mrs. James Ray gave a splendid report of the sectional rally at Cannifton which was much appreciated. Mrs. E. Phillips, group leader, opened her programme, with the call to worship and hymn 156—also responsive reading. Helen Hart and Hazel Keene gave the Scripture lesson. Mrs. E. Phillips offered prayer. Mrs. Mr. Plant gave a reading entitled "Gift of Power". Hymn 179 was sung and Mrs. Garrison, peace secretary, gave a reading on peace topics of the day. Rev. Mr. Plant sang "Open My Eyes That I May See" and Mrs. Philip Ray closed with prayer.

"CLEANSE" YOUR KIDNEYS

Just as your household needs cleaning, so kidneys need cleansing to keep healthy. Healthy kidneys filter the impurities out of the blood—but in these days of hurry they fail, poisons collect and Backache, Rheumatic pains, Leg Cramps, Dizziness, Nervousness, Sleeplessness often follow. Don't neglect your kidneys. Take Dodd's.

Pash Da-ni and the Sage Lily

By Donna Thane

The young Indian's impassive face did not alter; a slight slithering of his hands was the only sign he gave. The cane was not leaving as him and the pretty girl who had entered did not notice. She came to lean against the counter near beside him and nodded carelessly.

"Pah, Pash Da-ni," (Sharp Knife).

He answered through a constricted throat, "Hello."

A lean curly-haired boy about the girl's age came into the store and flung an arm around the girl's shoulders. "As I live and breathe, he drawled, "it's Margaret, in person! How are you, sweetness?"

Pash Da-ni loved the girl. He did not want to. He tried not to. None knew better than he the guilt that spawned between Pash-Da-ni, the full-blooded Navajo, and pretty Margaret Hamilton, daughter of the county sheriff.

The curly-head was wearing cream colored corduroys and a dazzlingly clean white shirt. Pash Da-ni wore a checkered calico shirt, washed overalls, clumsy cow-hide shoes; and his dark black hair had been tied up in back and tied with a buck skin thong. The curly-head had been to high school with the girl. Pash Da-ni had stopped attending the agency school years ago.

Because he was white, the curly-head could behave as he liked. He held her hand and playfully ruffle her mop of light hair. But for Pash Da-ni, because he was red man never, never, venture to touch her. He was Navajo, and proud of the zenith when the youth rode up to the trading post on his pinto to the admounted, strode inside, took a bundle from a dark corner, and rode away. He remembered he had marry Ha-spe-de, (Dove) daughter of Ash-ke-a-Nagli.

Tomorrow, when the sun was directly overhead in the west, many relatives of Ha-spe-de would gather in the open space before his father's hogan. They would bring with them a basket of water over his hands and the new corn-husk dress he had received as a wedding present. A blanket would be spread on the ground for Ha-spe-de to sit. Then Pash Da-ni would come riding up on his pinto. Ha-spe-de would take a mouthful of the corn and then he would take a mouthful. The oldest man in the tribe would make a cross on pollen over the mouth, and they would be man and wife.

He loved Margaret, the white girl, but he would not Ha-spe-de, the Indian maid, tomorrow.

He slid to the ground, stalked to the river bank and stood with folded arms, looking into the depths, glinted by the moon. On a sudden impulse he commenced to strip himself of his clothing. He dived lightly into the water.

Then the moon must be dried himself with his hands, shivering a little in the night air. He began to pick up his clothes and flung them contemptuously into the water. Then he took the bundle from the white girl, but he would wed Ha-spe-de, forbidden fruit of the tree of pollen bell, a pair of moccasins decorated with beads, a leather-jacket, a short knife in a sheath, and two eagle feathers stained blue and tied together with a leather thong. All had belonged to his grandfather.

He turned upstream toward the town, watching the ground as he went. When he found what he was seeking, the pale glean of a clump of white flowers. Twice he went by the trail blossoms and carefully dug up the roots with his strong hands.

Before a white house on a back street he paused. Lightly he vault-ed the picket fence, climbed to the heath a cottonwood tree that grew near Margaret's bedroom window.

Pash Da-ni moved out into the light of the moon. Gently he placed the fragile things were drop-ping. These he took out and threw away. Only perfect blooms remained. Without difficulty he vaulted from a low branch of the tree to the sill and stepped inside the room.

He stepped to the floor like a shadow, his heart thundering madly in his breast. If he should be caught —! An Indian, entering the bedchamber of a white girl at night by stealth! They would tear him to pieces!

He received a small white bed in the far corner and heard the heavy breathing of the occupant. Noiselessly he crept forward.

The girl lay on her side, one hand under her cheek and the other thrown up over her head. Her blond hair was tumbled on the white pillow, her lips slightly parted with her breathing, her expression tranquil as that of a Madonna.

Pash Da-ni dared not stare for fear of waking the girl. Cautiously he leaned over her, noting how the bobbed hair fell, cast a long wavering shadow of the eagle feath-ers in his hair.

Pash Da-ni spread his seven eagle fillies fanwise and placed them on the pillow by the girls' face. Then he turned and swiftly and noiselessly was across the room. On the sill he gave a backward look. "Farewell, my little sage lily," he said in his native Navajo. "It could never have been."

He stepped out and swung to the ground. A shaft of moonlight found him and he stood motionless, staring up. All the boy drained from his face and only the bitter man remained.

Suddenly, although no breeze had stirred it, all moonlight allowed. It was long past midnight. It was his wedding day.

AIKENS FOWL SUPPER IS WELL ATTENDED

Aikens fowl supper on Wednesday was most successful. A larger crowd than usual attended and thoroughly enjoyed the delicious supper served by the ladies. The proceeds also surpassed that of other years.

An interesting program arranged by Mrs. Percy MacMillan was given by the young people of Mount Pleasant and Widman's Corners. The numbers were:

Humorous song, Mr. John Cogle; Musical number, Miss Faye Andrews and Mr. Herb Hipp; Vocal solo, Miss Mildred Sharp; Reading, Mrs. Percy MacMillan; Vocal solo, Miss Frances McKown; Musical trio, Misses Leatta and Lulu Hoover and Mr. Stewart Hoover of Wellington; Miss Edna Thrasher and Frances McKown; Vocal solo, Mr. John Cogle; Musical number, Miss Faye Andrews and Mr. Biggs; Reading, Mrs. Percy MacMillan; Vocal solo, Miss Mildred Sharp; Musical trio, the Hoover family; Solo, Miss Edna Thrasher; Reading Mrs. Percy MacMillan; Closing number, solo, Miss Marjorie Dale White.

Before the closing number Miss Audria Parry, President of Aiken's W.A., moved a vote of thanks, seconded by Mrs. E. Hipp, after which Mrs. MacMillan very graciously replied.

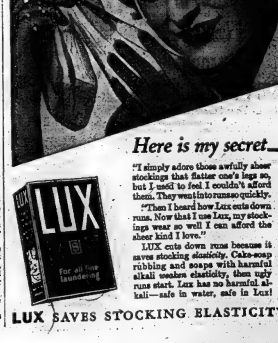
ALBERT COLLEGE GUILD

The Albert College Woman's Guild held an interesting meeting in Ackerman Hall on Wednesday, October 12th, with Mrs. Baker, president, in the chair.

Opening exercises consisted of the singing of a hymn, one of Pratt's Daily Bible readings on Faith and Prayer by Mrs. Baker.

The President reported that an executive meeting had recently been held and mentioned some suggestions which had been made and invited discussion of same.

Any special request Mrs. Bradley and Mrs. Duff sang that lovely duet, "The Garden of Prayer" accompanied by Mrs. Pate played by Mrs. Geo. Wright.



Mrs. I. R. Naylor then told the story of a wonderful work being done by Miss Mabel Williams, a co-worker of Dr. Wrinch among the Indians in British Columbia. It was very interesting and inspiring indeed.

Mrs. Houston then favored with a reading which the meeting adjourned and a pleasant social half hour was enjoyed by those present.

FISH CONSERVATION UNDER WAY

Ottawa, Oct. 13.—(CP)— A Federal-Provincial Conference on fish conservation will be held here in January, J. A. Hood, director of Fish Culture, Dominion Department of Fisheries, told the Ottawa Fish and Game Associations' annual meeting. He said representatives of the provinces and Dominion Parks Branch, Dominion Tourist Bureau, Federated Associations of Canada, and others interested would be invited.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 13 (CP)— Fatter business conditions also interested result in an increase in police court cases, according to Magistrate Brodie and His Worship expects the trend will continue, however at any time now. The Magistrate expressed this opinion at the meeting of the Windsor Canadian Chamber when Adj. T. Fontaine had reported into the activities of the police court for October.

Here is my secret...

"I simply adore those awfully sheer stockings that flatter one's legs so, but I used to feel I couldn't afford them. They went into runs so quickly.

"Then I heard how Lux cuts down runs. Now that I use Lux, my stockings wear so well I can afford the sheer kind I love."

LUX cuts down runs because it saves stocking elasticity. Cake-soap rubbing and soaps with harmful alkali weaken elasticity, then ugly runs start. Lux has no harmful alkali—safe in water, safe in Lux!

Lake Shore Production in September, Iron Ore Shipments Also Increase

Previous Quarters

For the first three months of the new fiscal year which begins on July 1st, Lake Shore Minerals' indicating aggressive sponsorship, a factor that has been sadly lacking in the last few months.

The Liberal victory has brought about a decline in wheat prices due to the understanding that the Liberal Party will not support the previous Government's policy of purchasing the farmer a minimum price of 77 1-2 cents a bushel. October wheat is presently selling at approximately 88 1-2-89 cents a bushel, which is only 1 to 1 1-2 cents above the minimum set. Mr. King, it is reported, has no ambition to support the world price of this commodity but is most anxious to bring about a steady liquidation of the huge wheat carry-over and the high prices possible. This country's "wheat gamble" appears to have ended.

The Trader in Barron's states that the immediate impasse between corralling market prices and current earning power would be broken by another forward movement in the general business index. After the substantial and broad expansion in the volume of business reflected through the summer months, the recent halt has coincided fairly accurately with the halt in the market advance. A renewal in a decisive way of expansion in general business from the level of September would provide the base for a further lift in stock prices; otherwise a plateau of price would seem to be the likely event until some indication is disclosed of the trend of general business in the current quarter which seems to be pretty fully measured by the prevailing prices of stocks as a whole.

A bullish development for International Nickel is the report that the placing of sanctions by the League of Nations against Italy will directly affect the sales of nickel to the aggressor nation. Italy has not directly bought nickel from Canada but has obtained its requirements through roundabout channels and it is maintained that the placing of sanctions will not stop this.

Shawinigan Water and Power

The reported earnings of Shawinigan Water and Power for the first nine months of 1935 show the current indicated rate of $2.00 per annum to have been covered by a margin of wel over 100 per cent.

Assuming that the amount to be transferred to depreciation reserve in 1935 will be the same as last year, namely $1,000,000, the earnings of Shawinigan available for dividends this year, should be approximately $3,000,000 higher than in 1934, which means that this year's annual statement should show not income of between $1.15 and $1.20 a share. This would be equivalent after depreciation but before deduction of income tax. On this basis, last year's net was equal to $1.04 a share.

After deducting income tax which is equal to 4 cents a share, net loomed after all deductions in 1935 at between $1.10 and $1.15 a share, as against $1.00 last year. This estimate is based on the assumption that the increase in earnings in the final quarter of 1935 will be maintained at the same ratio as reported so far in 1935 over 1934.

International Petroleum

The directors of the International Petroleum Company Limited will be meeting shortly to take action on the dividend for the last six months of the year. The regular dividend of 75 cents plus a bonus of 50 cents a share is confidently expected in Financial Service. If such procedure is followed, $2.50 a share in all will reach the shareholders during 1935. It is generally recognized that "Petrol" is in a large amount of the above mentioned dividend out of the money it has on hand from the depreciation account and the surplus profits is large one.

Copper Industry Improving

Industrial recovery has been accomplished nowhere more strikingly than in the copper industry, says Barron's. Production, now enjoying its biggest revival in six years, is running 50 per cent more than a billion pounds of metal have been sold by American producers, according to Financial Service of the New York firm.

WEATHER

Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP)—Synopsis: Light to moderate showers have occurred in many parts of Ontario and Quebec during the past twenty-four hours. Elsewhere the weather has been fair. It has been cooler in the Prairie Provinces.

Lake Superior—Fresh southwest to west winds; partly cloudy and comparatively mild.

Kenora and Rainy River—West to northwest winds; partly cloudy with stationary or a little lower temperature.

Manitoba and Saskatchewan—Fair and comparatively mild.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 18 (CP)—A little more speculative public came into the stock market today but selective trading was effective to a degree to stimulate more bearish sentiment. Trading was quiet during the greater part of the session.

A steady to slightly higher price trend was succeeded by Canadian issues of Dome, McIntyre, International Nickel and Canadian Pacific. On the curb Hiram Walker showed a set well above a point but Lake Shore was fractionally lower. Canadian bonds were quiet and narrow. Canadian Dome issued 1-18 of a cent at 99½ cents.

The general run of shares held to a narrow range with fractional declines pushed ahead. Among the latter, up 1 to 2 points, were Swift and Co., American Power and Light Preferred, U. S. Industrial Alcohol Preferred and Chrysler. Gains of fractions to a point or so included American Telephone, Western Union, Chrysler, Auburn, American Can, Du Pont, Union Pacific and Great Northern. Slightly higher were Westinghouse, Armour, Anaconda, U. S. Steelning, Packard, U. S. Rubber, Consolidated Gas, Johns-Manville and Consolidated Oils.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP)—Industrial shares of the Toronto Exchange improved a bit here as to directions with exception of Walkers Common, an active issue, which showed a moderate decline on the day's transactions. Morning general recessions were erased by slightly stiff buying of issues in the early afternoon but there was no pickup in the trading tempo. Walkers sold at $1 per common in the morning session, but dropped to 98 cents on a turnover of 1,000 shares. Gold issues were generally higher, showing a fraction less.

Nickel and Hollinger recorded recessions despite a higher London quotation on copper.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, Oct. 17 (AP)—A heavy demand for low-priced motor shares was the feature of today's brief appearance during late trading today following forenoon irregularity.

Two hundred and fifty-odd shares of Packard Motor changed hands at up to $4 a share, or 5 per cent. Blocks of 5,000 shares of Studebaker, Graham-Paige, White Motor, and Nash made frequent appearances at advance of ¼ to ¾. Chrysler was more than 2 points higher.

Swift was 3 higher, American Power Preferred got up nearly that much and advances of around 1 were registered in International Harvester and U. S. Gass were 1 to 2 higher. The late loss was small, the day's turnover approximated 1,750,000 shares.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Oct. 18 (CP)—The mining shares of the Toronto Exchange dragged wearily along and was slower than the previous session. Gains during the morning and slight recessions were chiefly noticeable in the golds of the Kirkland Lake section. Upper Bay, Base Metals Corporation and Sherritt Gordon were the leaders and spots in the medium-price gold group were God's Lake, Little Long Lac, Pickle Crow, Sylvanite and Antonio.

Hasaga advanced a few cents while other silver shares were unchanged. Interest was at a low ebb on the oil issues but Commonwealth search was a little more active than usual and the price was a few cents higher.

McCARDELL SAYS MEISNER NOT IN ON KIDNAPPING

brothers. I gave the excuse I was easy to recognize and wouldn't do it," the witness added.

"Were you to kidnap him right then or at a future time?" Mr. Wright asked.

"At a future time," witness replied.

Met in Toronto

Witness said it was in September 1932 he met Bannon in Hamilton. Three or four months later they saw each other in Toronto when they wanted to see a man about parole. Bannon, Pegram, Gerald McKinnon and witness had lunch in Davis Street in Toronto at that time.

They went to the prison by Pegram and Bannon supported Pegram's application. Pegram seemed interested in this matter, witness said. He said while driving back to Hamilton Pegram asked if he can be assisted nothing to do with the kidnapping of Bannon. He said he had no further communication with Pegram and Bannon.

The witness said the following Pegram the Carruthers' farm near Mitchell where Bannon lived. Joseph Labell could be hidden.

M. G. Labell visited the Bannon farm with Gerry Mahoney the day after Labell was kidnapped.

"I told Gerry Mahoney" said when asked by defence counsel Percival Brown in polite pleasantry "anything either pay or time off his sentence for my performance."

Mr. K. said he visited the Bannon after the mill rookery of the Toronto Union Station. He also admitted being arrested for armed robbery in Detroit and claimed he was acquitted.

Bannon looked forward in the box to follow the testimony and once called out instructions to his counsel.

"Be quiet," commanded Justice McFarland.

JUNIOR B.C.I. TEAM SCORES 18-6 VICTORY

Defeat Trenton in First Game of Junior Series

McCABE BOOTS 'EM

Two Touchdowns And The Remaining Points Come Singly

Displaying too much speed in the backfield and presenting a line of scrimmage that repeatedly had their opponents at bay, the Belleville Collegiate Junior football squad won their initial game in the Bay of Quinte group of O.S.S.A. football when they defeated the Trenton High School squad by the score of 18 to 6 on the Trenton campus yesterday afternoon. The game was conched 1st-color from the B.C.I. carried the better part of the play throughout as they scored in every quarter, while the Trenton lads tally was registered in the final fifteen minutes of play after a 40 yard run by Mason, their star halfback.

The B.C.I. backfield of Kerr, Carson, Mosely and Dickens showed plenty of speed and literally ran their opponents into the ground, while the line of scrimmage, headed by Tommy Patterson, Clarke, Gilcreaser, Moore and all others proved a stonewall defense. Wright, Mason, Kenny and Vandervleit, Trenton's all a good account of their efforts for the losers, as their team mates battled gamely in the face of certain defeat. Wright, Mcclelland, Kempler, gave a splendid exhibition of tooting the pig-skin as his trusty toe accounted for no less than eight of the Belleville squad's 18 points, the remaining ten points being the result of touchdowns.

Mason's Timely Tie

McCabe started the locals off on the right foot when he booted three times went over the goal in the first quarter, Kenny in the second quarter B.C.I. backed Trenton into their own five yard line and when the benchsitters finished the quarter with one goal line, Gerald Alyea crashed through to fall on the fumbled ball for a Belleville touchdown, which McCabe promptly converted. The local kicker bobbed two more over the Trenton goal line, that went for nought and the score stood at 18 to 6 for B.C.I. when the final whistle sounded.

Mason's timely tie in the third quarter, when he booted three times over the Trenton goal line, that went another point and on a beautiful 15 yard forward pass, Jack Dickens accepted the pass and raced over for a second B.C.I. touch, which McCabe again converted for one the victory scoring. The B.C.I. line was holding well, when Mason suddenly smashed around right end and ran so closed to the line of scrimmage that it was practically impossible to tackle him and he raced 40 yards for a nice lay and Trenton had averted making the final score 18 to 6 for B.C.I. as they were again on the offensive, when the final whistle sounded.

The lineups:

Belleville Collegiate: Flying Wing, McCabe, halves, Kerr, Carson, Mosely; quarter, Dickens; snap, Cole, insides, Moore, Tidmarsh; middles, Patterson, Clarke; outsides, Gilcreaser, Morgan; alternates, Muir, Atyeo, Warren, Noakes, Webb, Price, Dark and Gibson.

Trenton High: Flying wing, Wright; halves, Mitten, Mann and Vandervleit; quarter, Emerson; snap, Priddy; insides, Peak, Coutts; middles, Cameron, Dowdeswell, Kenny, Bertel; alternates, Smith, Brundage, Thompson, Weary and Mcgeaghey.

Referee: H. Townsend; Umpire, J. Rutherford.

GOLF

Oklahoma City, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Four of the hottest campaigners in golf, all of them members of the United States Ryder Cup team were pitted against each other by a ball drawn today at the outset of match play in the P.G.A. set-to.

It is not often a golf tournament has to be called on account of darkness and there was wild confusion last night, with gathering twilight stranded 34 would-be qualifiers on the "Twin Hills" links.

But confusion gave way to taut expectation when names came out of the hat in the drawing parlor.

Waller Hagen, swaggering all the season in the role of apparent medalist, vs. Johnny Revolta, and Horton Smith, another pre-cracker, vs. one of the year's outstanding strokemakers, Henry Picard.

Together, only three others of the select Ryder Royalty had clinched service for the qualifying round. They were little Paul Runyan, defending champion; Gene Sarazen, the ace of the old guard operating and Sam Parks, Jr., the open champion.

"Sir Walter" was the Hagen of the season in the role of apparent medalist, as Johnny Revolta, and Horton Smith, another pre-cracker, vs. one of the year's outstanding strokemakers, Henry Picard.

Together, only three others of the select Ryder Royalty had clinched service for the qualifying round. They were little Paul Runyan, defending champion; Gene Sarazen, the ace of the old guard operating and Sam Parks, Jr., the open champion.

"Sir Walter" was the Hagen of the season in the role of apparent medalist, as he stroked around the trying course yesterday in one under par, 67-72—139. Four among the starters were there, given even an outside chance of doing better on the windup today.

The magic eye attended a recent performance of Ziegfeld Follies in Madison Square Garden and had a hearty chuckle over the efforts of the wild and woolly cowboys from the Golden West, to ride the wild and untamed steers. The camera recorded the above impressions as Curley Hatchell, of Alpine, Texas, slid gently, if not gracefully, off the hard back of the "critter" which seemed to be whirling around the arena. Curley is shown in the upper panel starting his fast trip to the sawdust as the steer gallops up and down. In the final picture the steer trots contentedly to his pen, the cowboy to his feet unhurt, but chagrined.

SAYS SANCTIONS WOULD HELP NEWSPRINT INDUSTRY

Montreal, Oct. 17.—(CP)—Canada's pulp and paper industry would lose a large amount of export trading should the international boycott of Italy go into effect, it was stated today at headquarters of the Canadian Pulp and Paper Institute.

Last year Canada exported pulp and paper products to Italy valued at $2,200,000 and during the same period about $336,000 worth of Canadian pulp and paper was sent to Italy.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Blocking and counter holds, which when used by a clever wrestler nullify most the attacks of the most capable of opponents, just don't seem to click against Cliff Olson the Rama Reserve Indian wrestler, who appears in the main bout on tonight's wrestling show at the Arena versus Johnnie Gyroffy, the Hungarian adonis. Gyroffy's main bout ordinary methods, either offensive or defensive, have proved fatal-ities vs Johnny Revolta, and Horton Smith, another pre-cracker, vs. one of the year's outstanding strokemakers, Henry Picard.

Together, only three others of the select Ryder Royalty had clinched service for the qualifying round. They were little Paul Runyan, defending champion; Gene Sarazen, the ace of the old guard operating and Sam Parks, Jr., the open champion.

BILL CRAWFORD

The local boxer who was recently named as the manager of the Stewart Warner Boxing Club's fighters and who assists in their training and seconds them from the ringside during their fights, Crawford was a successful lightweight pugilist in his retirement for a year and knows the fight game. He will second his fighters when they meet Monday night next. Six boxing bouts and two amateur wrestling bouts are on the card that was completed by Promoter Clem Allen.

Personally we feel sorry for Billy Enright, 118 pound Maple Leaf A.C. boxer from Toronto, who meets Howard "Dynamite" Wheeler, of the Stewart Warner Boxing Club in Belleville Arena on Monday night. Wheeler suffered his first knockout last Tuesday in the Maple Leaf Gardens when Jackie Roberts, slim Ilfra Terrorist Kid, landing from Wheeler for nearly three rounds and then "bagged" him with a solar plexus punch that left the dynamite Belleville scrapper helpless and counted out. Wheeler was discharged over the k.o. and has vowed revenge on the two by Mrs. Enright's little boy next Monday. Despite the fact Blatchmaker Clem Allen has five high class fighting bouts, he is augmenting these with two amateur wrestling bouts in order to give the fans a little extra for their fee. Incidentally Clem still contends he has the best card he's ever presented in the amateur boxing ranks of Ontario in the Belleville Gliomna-Bill Humphries scrap. Gliomna is the former Dominion lightweight titleholder, whom Humphries at present holds the provincial title at that weight. "It's a match race" says Clem. Another good bout should be the Mark Hawkins-Ken Pease go.

After watching Wheeler's bout in Toronto, Lou Marsh, Toronto's supreme authority on boxing (if you don't believe us ask Lou) printed many flowery remarks about the local scrapper who Lou admires very much. Lou says Wheeler was about the last one on the St. James gym to be expected to take the count. Lou continues as follows:

"He was Howard Wheeler of Belleville, midget edition of the famous Tuy Bodino of Elizabeth, N.J. Mickey Walker, Wheeler, compact muscular-looking midget halfmiddleweight replica in face and body and berserk fighting spirit of that once popular fighting man, gore into frail-looking Jackie Roberts of Trenton in the first and second round and just about bashed him out of the ring. He was going big and the crowd was in a frenzy of delight as his two-fisted and whirlwind attack.

But in the third round the shrewd slim, like Toronto lad had Wheeler sized up. He waited for the target to open up, slipped a right to the Belleville battler's jaw which rocked him, and then laid him like a rug flat on his face on the floor with a pelt to the stomach which folded him up like a concertina, and knocked the wind and fight clean out of him with that one shrewd blam. The ten count—was superfluous.

(Thanks Lou, them words is music in our ears.)

When the Kingston Ponies won their first senior O.H.A. championship on Wednesday a rather queer incident occurred. Local fans will well remember the famed No. 13, that Clancy sated for at the start of the season and was given a big uniform all season. Well, to cap off a perfect season, Clancy got his sweater, went out, and got him 13 cuts in the final game of the season. Who says 13 is unlucky? Well, at any rate it doesn't think so and from now on neither do local fans, for the Kingston Ponies. Incidentally we understand Bud Clancy may be among the missing when the Ponies' roster is announced next spring. Clancy would not commit himself as to his preference to his possible return to the Ponies' fold. He intends to return home as soon as possible to participate in that great winter indoor sport of basketball in his native city of Palladelphia. Speaking of migratory workers, we understand, Cyclone "Aulkie" McIlroy and Art Calhoun, 1935 members of the local Stewart Warners, have all returned to their Toronto homes and are not expected to line-up with the local seniors in 1936. So what?

Just when he had his squad hitting on all sixes and ready to show their best wares old Jack Jack apparently decided to frown on Coach Doc Kennedy's Belleville O.R.F.U. squad. Two weeks ago Freddie Temple sustained a broken ankle, which ruled him out for the remainder of the season. With the most important game of the Lake Shore schedule with Peterboro Collegiate on the Belleville Collegiate campus, "Tip" Clare, sturdy middle-winger, injured his arm and to cap it all off Bud O'Dell, fleet outstanding wing of the team broke his collar bone during scrimmage practice last evening on the Collegiate campus. "I'm having a lot of luck lately, but I'm used to it," he said, commenting on Coach Kennedy after examining O'Dell's injury. Incidentally his fracture happened in a most unbelievable manner. O'Dell fell easily on his left shoulder, regained his feet, took his place in the line of scrimmage and on a forward pass signal, raced down the field to accept the pass, but when he turned to absorb an arm droppe the collar bone apparently snapping. as... he turned suddenly. Fortunately the fracture came, when he fell previously, however. All of these injuries will do the locals no good on Saturday, when they journey to Oshawa, to meet doubtlessly the strongest team squad will fight that much harder, now they realize their handicaps.

Coach Stacey Pai's junior B.C.I. and V. S. interscholastic squad completely opened their Bay of Quinte schedule with a well-earned 18 to 6 victory over the Trenton H. S. juniors. According to eye witnesses the locals carried too much speed in the backfield with their line of scrimmage stood up well under pressure. When it came to punting, well Mc-Cabe, local booter, out-kicked all and sundry put forward by the Trenton aggregation. As there are only two teams in the junior interscholastic group, efforts are being put forward to have a double schedule played. In the meantime the interscholastic group holds the spotlight this afternoon with two games.

ANOTHER BOXING CARD ON MONDAY

Several Toronto Fighters Will Take Part in Show

The rise to fame of Joe Louis, the Detroit Brown Bomber, has doubtlessly proved the making of several athletes to elevate the fight game to its proper status in the sporting world. Following directly in the wake of Louis' triumphania, Promoter Clem Allen is presenting another of his Stewart Warner interclty boxing shows at the Belleville Arena on Monday evening next.

The feature bout of the evening brings together two boxing champions and sees Mel Gliomna, former Dominion champion, meet Billy Humphries, Ontario lightweight titleholder, both boys are from well known boxing stables in Toronto. Another outstanding bout will be between Billy Enright, Maple Leaf A.C. Toronto and Howard Wheeler, Belleville's dynamic featherweight. The famous Palmatier boys, George and Roy, who recently appeared in the Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto, will open the show in the 50 pound class. The wrestling card is:

"The Mask", Toronto, vs. Jack Doyle, Belleville.

Billy Thorne, Belleville vs. Ed Cauley, Belleville.

The remaining boxing bouts on the mammoth card are:

Pee Wee Pease, Maple Leaf A. C. Toronto vs. Mark Storms, Stewart Warner A. C., Belleville at 110 pounds.

Jack Raven, Elm Grove A. C. Toronto vs. Freddie Fisher, B.W.A.C. Belleville at 135 pounds.

"In metropolitan show at the lowest prices in Ontario"—is the motto of Promoter Clem Allen, who completed arrangements for this all-star card, while in Toronto with his fighters early this week. Special ringside seats will be placed in the Arena for those bouts on October 31.

Drop Off to Sleep From Sheer Exhaustion

Detroit, Oct. 18 (CP)—It won't be Harry (Jo Jo) McGuire's fault if members of Detroit Red Wings and Olympics' hockey clubs are not in condition for the opening of the season. Thursday at Northwestern field the physical director was putting the players through a stiff series of calisthenics and ordered them to lay on their backs for leg exercises.

Manager Jack Adams approached at the time and engaged McGuire in a brief conservation. When the P. T. man resumed his commands he found several of the Athletes had dropped off to sleep from sheer exhaustion.

Bolstered With American Talent 'Pegs Expect First Football Crown

Russ Rebholz, Jacksonville. — Bob Fritz—Concordia. — Greg. Kabat—Wisconsin.

By C. H. McKENZIE

Winnipeg, Man., Oct. 18.—When an All-American centre or a few years back says he wouldn't feel a bit jittery about pitting Winnipeg's 1935 wing line against anything in the Big Ten Conference, then you have an idea of the possibilities in this city's big blue and gold rugby football machine. Herb Ojo, former Minnesota Gopher and present line coach and hard-hitting inside of the 1933 Winnipegs, feels this way and makes quite certain he is now a member of a front wall which ranks with the best ever assembled.

Outplayed Sarnia.

And one cannot help but agree with Ojo after viewing Winnipeg in two games to date. Their real clean up front came out in the Sarnia game on September 21, when they outplayed the Dominion champions all along the wing line. Since then they have shown even more power and should be near perfect when that important play-off games roll around nearly in November.

Ojo himself is an outstanding centre, but since joining Winnipegs he has shifted over to an inside position allowing that old ace, Lou "Roxy" Adelman, to fill the centre berth. And to date "Roxy" has responded with the best football of his fifteen years of playing here.

Dahokans Add Power.

With Ojo on the right and Adelman in centre the other inside position on the "Peg powerhouse is filled by Gregory Kabat, former University of W'consin captain, who is in the midst of his third season with Winnipegs. Supporting this trio at middle positions are Herb Peschel and Lou Migal. Peschel was brought in from North Dakota State and who first came into prominence in 1933, when Carl Cronin coached the club. He has become a big time football star this season.

Rob Fritz—Concordia.

American Pass-Tossers.

The remaining cogs of this much heralded front wall are a pair of rangy youths—"Stud" Marquardt and Joe Perpich—well schooled in the art of blocking and tackling and both past masters at receiving the forward passes. Marquardt hails from North Dakota State, and Perpich comes from St. Cloud Teachers' College. The latter is the lad who handed Sumner Sterling in pushing when Winnipegs upset the Imperials late in September, 14-7.

Then behind the line "Pegs have assembled an all-star cast, which has variety in abundance. Rob Fritz, plunger de luxe and a great field general, performs at quarter. He comes from Concordia College and also fills the post of head coach for Pegs.

James in Reserve.

Coupled with Fritz are Russ Rebholz, ex-Wisconsin ace who has been here for four years. Fritz Hanson, dynamic halfback from North Dakota State and Tubber Kobrinsky, a fleet, sure-handed youngster who graduated into the Imperials last season while playing in the backfield for Manitoba Varsity.

Hanson, fastest without a doubt, and possibly the best running half ever to come north to play Canadian rugby football, is a treat to watch. He's small, but tough and plays the game with his eyes wide open. Rebholz, chiefly noted for his passing, is throwing them all over this season and can just about match the ball carrying of "Hurricane" Hanson. Kobrinsky fills in nicely and the twelfth job on the starting line-up is usually filled by Eddie James, now fully recovered from a serious arm injury sustained three years ago, or Cliff Rosebrough, 190-pound package of fine football talent, who started his playing career at Saskatoon.

FIVE COLLEGES IN TRACK MEET

McGill is Favored to Hold Title Won Six Times

Toronto, Oct. 18.—(CP)—Students athletes from five of Eastern Canada's most prominent colleges, gathered here for the annual senior Intercollegiate track and field meet, dusted off their spikes today and determined to set new records.

Since 1909 the meet has been held as a triangular competition between Queens, University of Toronto and McGill but a ruling this year has thrown the event open to all members of the Canadian Intercollegiate Athletic Union. University of Western Ontario and McMaster University of Hamilton are the added entries.

McGill, led by the colored veteran Phil Edwards, are favored to win the meet and their sixth straight title. Edwards, member of two Olympic teams and British Empire 880-yards champion, is ready to run the 440, 220 and the mile, and may also compete in the relay race.

McGill will have plenty of competition, however. Varsity, has Ray Cooper, broad jumper, Bill Pritz, who ran some great sprint races for Queens last season, and Billy Kibble white, former Canadian three-mile champion and a member of the 1932 Canadian Olympic team.

Mainstay of the Queens' Athletics will be big Abe Zwerkin, star member of the football squad, entered in all three weight events. His toughest opposition will come from Gordon Middlejohn and Edmond Larsen, both of McGill.

Western will trot out Johnny Loaring, former Windsor High School lad, favored to capture the hurdle events now Long Jim Worrell of Varsity has been barred from competing because he is taking a post-graduate course. Worrell was one of the mainstays of the McGill outfit last fall.

The smallest college in the meet, McMaster, will have Sylvester Appo, British Empire games pole vault champion, and Fred Shaver, smart quarter-miler, to look after their interests.

'Wart' Mayo 'Pinked' In First Scrimmage

Detroit, Oct. 18.—(CP)—"Wart" Mayo, 104-pound 40-year-old gosling from Amherstburg in the Michigan Ontario amateur hockey league, laid off practice today after one of the shortest sessions he had ever experienced in his career between the goalposts.

Mayo, wishing to get his eye back after the summer layoff, obtained permission from his old friend, Manager Jack Adams of Detroit, to play in goal at all of Jack's duds and participate in the team's workout yesterday.

In the first practice scrimmage the puck "pinked" him in the eye and it took five stitches to close the wound.

MANY DEALS TO BE CONSIDERED

(By Sid Feder, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Philadelphia, Oct. 18 (AP)— You can pretty well write it down now that something startling is likely to happen, when Connie Mack lifts the lid on the baseball pot that has been boiling for weeks with rumors deals involving baseball's biggest stars.

The talk that has included almost every outstanding player in the game, up for sale or trade to about half the teams in the American League, reached a new high overnight with receipt of word, that the Mack leader is in New York, possibly considering another of his history-making deals.

The possibilities were these:

That Jimmy Foxx, first baseman and long-flight slugger would go to either the Chicago White Sox, Boston Red Sox or to Cleveland Indians.

That Pinky Higgins, one of the classiest third-baseman in the league, is slated for the New York Yankees.

That Roger Cramer, outfielder extraordinary, will be with the White Sox or Red Sox, when 1936 rolls around.

That infielder Eric McNair is headed for the Yanks.

DANNO O'MAHONY STILL CHAMPION

Throws Jim Browning Twice in Half an Hour

Toronto, Oct. 18—By the grace of the wrestling gods and the luck of the Irish, Danno O'Mahony arrived on this continent in search of greener fields and pastures about a year ago, and he continued his parade through the top-notchers of the mat fraternity here last night at Maple Leaf Gardens by dropping Jim Browning, former title-claimant, in two straight falls. He made it look easy, but with the wrestling force of habit, as he accomplished it twice in a little more than half an hour. Like their seafood back here, while they have also met in other rings, with the Irisher always on top at the finish.

O'Mahony displayed a little more last night than in his six previous bouts here, but there was not much in the bout for the 12,000 fans to get enthusiastic about. Both settled down to close-in holds, with little of the acrobatic action that arouses the fans to cheers, and boos, and Browning seldom gave the fans the thrill of almost pinning or beating the Celt and upsetting a wrestling crown. Browning tried his special airplane leg scissors, the hold that kept him on top as champion for several years but the Celt squirmed free and used toe holds to guard against it.

Celt Works Fast

The first round was over almost before it started, as when it appeared the grapplers were just getting warmed up, O'Mahony reached out for one of Browning's arms and applied two of his favorite whip holds to get two slams and a fall. The round lasted little more than 15 minutes.

There was a little more action in the second round, with Browning bounding the Celt around while both tangled with toe holds. Browning wrapped his powerful legs around the Celt and it seemed that the Irisher would be pinned for the first fall since he started his climb to the championship, but the Celt escaped and gripped the Browning ankles to work a merry mix-up with both in his rival's head straining the mat. He then put on his whip hold for another fall. The second round was less than 12 minutes.

O'Mahony must be a great deal better than he shows on the surface, as he made the best holds his opponent could muster and managed to defeat himself for favorable attacks. When both dropped to the canvas last night in a scramble for grips, the Irisher generally beat Browning to the hold, while he displayed remarkable strength in his bridging to keep his back and shoulders off the mat or toss Browning out of position.

Perhaps Jim Braddock, the heavyweight champ, has overlooked another sport in which he might well be one of the outstanding stars. Running with boxing gloves, Jim holds the ball tightly and eludes two tacklers of the Caldwell University Yoohoo team. The grid team was unanimous in its opinion that Jim is a natural open-field runner.

Current Attractions at Local Theatres

What Local Theatre Managers Have to Say About Current Offerings

AT THE CAPITOL
"The Virginian"
Walter Huston, Tweedie-born actor, Has Strong Role in Popular

Two splendid features dominate the Capitol Theatre screen this week-end. They are of entirely different forms of entertainment, so that it is difficult to select one over the other.

For those who like real red-blood-ed melodrama, such as is found in stories of the pioneer west, Owen Wister's stirring tale of the early country of the past, in "The Virginian" will be found all the pulse-quickening action that Gary Cooper, Walter Huston, Mary Brian and Richard Arlen provided in the same story that was first produced six years ago.

Since Cooper stimulated such fame with his performance in "The Lives of a Bengal Lancer" his work in "The Virginian" stands out all the more prominently. Mary Brian as the New England school teacher, who is courted by the rare bandit on a western ranch, portrays the role with a sweetness and sincerity that endears her to all.

Walter Huston

Walter Huston, Tweedie-born actor, enacts the role of the villainous Trampas in a most convincing manner, while Eugene Pallette provides much humor and laughter with his usual things.

For those who want to see and hear snappy and fast-moving musical comedy, the latest production that features Buddy Rogers, "Dance Band" will provide more than ample.

The story revolves about two rival band leaders, one headed by a girl leader and the other by Buddy Rog-ers. They enter in a competition, and, when the girl band suffers the loss of their instruments it is Rogers' band who comes to the rescue by loaning their instruments to the girls.

The screen story is replete with gay and sparkling melodies interspersed with delightful comedy that is novel and refreshing.

Rogers is also featured in "Dance Band" by the charming young June Clyde who sings and dances in a capable manner. These young people are supported by a cast of well-known actors and musicians who, are popular favorites on the variety stages of the British Isles.

These two excellent features are supplemented by the latest current events taken by the Fox Movietone camera man.

Broadway Follies

The Capitol management an-nounces that Broadway Follies will be playing on Wednesday and Thursday of next week, will stage a Midnite Show on Wednesday night at 11.30 p.m. and tickets may be purchased in advance for that performance.

DEPOSITS SHOW DECREASE

Ottawa, Oct. 17 (CP)—Dominion Government deposits with the Bank of Canada showed a decrease of $1,-249,371 during the week ended Oct. 16, while deposits by chartered banks increased by $8,077,582, and notes in circulation showed a gain of $4,772,702.

AT THE REGENT
"Call of the Wild"
Jack London's Sensational Tale of Yukon Gold Rush

Jack London's immortal story of the Yukon Gold Rush, "Call of The Wild", has been converted into a thrilling picture of entertainment by the combined efforts of producer Darryl Zanuck, director William Wellman, Gene Fowler and Leonard Praskins who made the screen play and cast, but not by no means least in importance, Clarke Gable, Loretta Young and Jack Oakie who interpret its leading characters.

"Call of The Wild" which will commence three days' engagement at the Belle Theatre tomorrow (Saturday) at 2.30 p.m. and 7.15 and 9.25 p.m. and two complete performances nightly, 7.15 and 9.25 p.m. returns after many requests, since its showing at the Belle, a special midnight performance, early in September, when a capacity audience acclaimed its merits most heartily. The story gives to Clark Gable a real he-man role, as Clarke's work as Jack Thornton, the handsome, swash-buckling prospector, stands out as the finest of his career.

Jack Oakie as "Hoodlum"

Loretta Young is believable and beautiful as Claire Blake, the shelt-ering but society woman who casts her lot with Thornton, and his buddy Shorty Hoolihan, when her husband is slain in the Arctic wastes, and Jack Oakie is at his best as the wise-cracking Hoolihan.

The gulf between their worlds and their codes turn Claire and Thornton apart, and the return of Claire's husband, "Hoodlum" Blake, on the long trail to the 'Lost Claim' where both men claim her and travel to deep love. However, when they reach the claim site and find it richer than they had dared hope, their dreams of happiness crush with the sudden return of Claire's lost husband. Facing this test Thornton is happy than his "take-what-you-want" code and lets Claire go away with her husband.

The work of the entire supporting cast, which includes Reginald Owen, Frank Conroy and Catherine De-Millet is uniformly excellent and the film introduces a new "wonder-dog" in Buck, the St. Bernard who plays London's immortal dog hero, with more wolf than dog and is torn between civilization and the call of his wild-self.

"Call of the Wild" is as fresh and brisk as the air on Mayerthe Mt. Baker, Washington, which provides its magnificent scenic backgrounds. We urge you to be sure and see this outstanding production during its engagement, Saturday, Monday or Tuesday.

Major Bowes Amateur Hour

The Gong—the most feared object in the broadcasting studio today, the bane of would-be one-man bands, whistlers, barnyard imitators and warblers—is silent in Major Bowes' Amateur Theatre of the Air, as "two-reel Ajax" and seven-teen several who appeared on Bowes' program from time to time.

That the gong is stilled in the Amateur Theatre of the Air, "every cloud has a silver lining" is evident by the fact that only the cream of talent is presented. Among the talented is Doris Webster, blonde beauty whose thrilling voice has already earned her a contract at the Rainbow Room in Rockefeller Centre with Ted Weems' orchestra. She is seen and heard are Mlssourian, a male quartet and pianist who are heard on a vaudeville tour, Ginsburg and his colored hoofers, the Alabama Mustang Wranglers, and others.

Boiler Explosion On Italian Liner Causes 3 Deaths

Alexandria, Egypt, Oct. 18.—(AP)—A boiler explosion aboard the Italian liner Ausonia killed or injured an unascertained number of, per-sons today as the vessel entered this port from Haifa, Palestine.

The bursting boiler set the ship afire and vessels of the British fleet in the harbor went to its assistance. The Ausonia, 19,629 tons, was built in 1928, has been engaged in regular weekly passenger service from Trieste, Italy, to Alexandria.

Shore fire engines, floated aboard lighters, helped to fight the blaze which was fanned by a strong wind.

Passengers were landed safely by naval tenders but early reports said three of the crew were missing and were believed dead.

Several tanks exploded after boiler blast, causing the fire to spread more rapidly.

ACCIDENT HALTS MURDER TRIAL

Four Indian Brothers Injured During Collision

Vancouver, Oct. 18 (CP)—Injured in an accident, the four Indian George brothers lay under guard in hospital today while their trial on charges of murder was halted.

The accident occurred last night when the brothers were being removed from the court house to Oakalla jail in the police patrol. It struck an ambulance answering an emergency call.

Joseph George received a dislocated shoulder, face lacerations of the forehead; Richardson, lacerations of the face and Ronas fractured pelvis and ribs, and face lacerations.

The four George brothers are under trial for the slayings of Constable F. H. Gisbourne of the Dominion Department of Indian Affairs and Constable Percy Carr of the R. C. police on the Canford Indian Reserve in May, 1934.

AUSTRIAN CABINET RESIGNS TODAY

Chancellor Commissioned to Form New Government

Vienna, Oct. 17.—(AP)—Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg and his cabinet resigned today. President Wilhelm Miklas immediately commissioned Schuschnigg to form a new government.

Large squads of police armed with bayonets and machine guns occupied important points in Vienna throughout Vienna at dusk today.

Chancellor Schuschnigg said he assumed office a little more than a year ago after the assassination of the late Chancellor Englebert Dollfuss, submitted his new cabinet list almost at once, because a sufficient of his changes were the eliminations now bearing the title of Chancellor of Austria, from the post of Minister of the Interior, Guido Zernatto, Minister of Agriculture and removal of Baron Odo Neustaedter-Stuermer as Minister of Social Welfare.

Meanwhile, Vienna became tense once more as strong military and police forces patrolled the streets.

BLOODY CAREER

Lasi, Rumania, Oct. 18—(AP)—The bloody career of Vasile Tescion, Rumanian bandit, terminated in a shootout today when he succumbed to bullets wounds inflicted by police yesterday.

Tescion, by his own statement the slayer of more than 30 persons, was shot when he attempted to escape custody.

He had confessed to killing six more persons, burying them on the outskirts of Lasi, and had offered to lead officers to the spot when the shootiine occurred.

Little Benny's Note Book

We was all in the living room including Uncle Albit on account of it still being with us against pop's will, and all of a sudden I annexed on account of my nose itching, and pop said, Come, come, dear, tell me ours got some kind of a contagious cold? It would be a fine token of hospitality to give your Uncle a cold after he's honored us with his company for more than 2 weeks, I should think.

And he gave me a secret wink and I said, If you have catched your complies colds easy, Uncle Albit?

Well yes I do as a matter of fact, said Uncle. There's nothing I get easier than a cold, he said, and pop said, Then you too bad, of course a cold in itself isn't dangerous, but it's very unpleasant and it so often leeds to serious complications. I'd do anything to escape catching one.

Properly meaning he'd get out of the house, and I said, I go home, and just then I sneezed again on account of tickling and Uncle Albit wiggling my nose, saying, Gosh, I bet I shot out a million billion germs that time. Did you know a million germs could get on the head of a pin, Mr. Bigler?

Not the head, the point, pop said. I'll always say there's nothing like a good cold as far as I'm concerned. I keep sneezing all day long and I do love to sneeze. In fact the first thing I do in the morning is turn my face up at the sun to make myself sneeze, he said, pop said, But of course you wouldn't like to go home and give me some of your family colds, eh?

That's true enough, I'd just play here a while and pretend something to himself and gave me a look meaning to stop trying to sneeze. Which I did.

When You Feel A Cold Coming On!

Stop it at once by taking ZUTOO Tablets. Remember that Grippe and Pneumonia begin with a common cold. These tablets stop the pain and fever immediately, and assist nature in throwing off the cold. Taken in the beginning, the cold is often stopped overnight.

Udder of Dead Cow Gives Milk By Means of Artificial Heart

Minneapolis, Oct. 18 (AP)—By means of an artificial heart the udder of a dead cow has been made to give milk, Dr. W. E. Peterson, University of Minnesota scientist, disclosed today.

Dr. Petersen devised the artificial heart to aid him in studying the fat content of milk.

He said it led to a new and better test for butterfat. The new test is known as the Minnesota Babcock method, a refinement of the Babcock method, the scientist asserted. It measures creamery butter to obtain more accurate results.

Dr. Petersen said on one occasion he kept an udder "alive" for 13 hours and milked it five times during that period.

This was accomplished by providing circulation of blood through the gland by means of the mechanical heart and utilizing the animal heart.

The lung also was kept active for the greater part of time as the udder, he said. Both were affixed to the mechanical heart.

The mechanical heart is a revolving disc with an iron arm on each side. The arms are paraded back and out from the disc at different levels. As the disc revolves, propelled by an electric motor, the arms press rubber tubes through which the blood flows.

This gives the same pulsating effect as the heart in a living body, Dr. Petersen said. At first efforts were made to keep the udder alive merely with the mechanical heart but the attempts were unsuccessful because the blood deteriorated from lack of oxygen.

Dr. Petersen then added a lung taken from a freshly slaughtered cow. It was inflated and deflated by an automatic air hose. Before the lung was used the blood returning from the udder could be almost black, he said. When it was circulated through the lung it came out bright red.

To keep it at body temperature the blood is passed through a glass coil immersed in warm water. Thirteen pounds of blood are used.

Duke's Fiancee Rushes To Bedside of Father

London, Oct. 18.—(AP)—Lady Alice Montague Douglas-Scott, fiancee of the Duke of Gloucester, left Hendon Airdrome in a private plane of the Prince of Wales today on a mission to the bedside of her father, the Duke of Buccleuch, seriously ill at Bowhill, Scotland.

The Duke of Buccleuch, ailing since an operation about a year ago recently took a turn for the worse and a bulletin issued today at Bowhill said he was weaker and his condition was "very grave".

"Installment Marriage"

by

Janet Doran

"It takes two to make a quarrel," Judy had, reminded him severely.

Now the words lagged crazily through her aching, tired mind. Two to make a quarrel. Two, saying harsh, brutal, unkind things to each other. Two, flinging accusations, denials, pent-up, petty, goading resentments. Two hating. Instead of loving.

"If only I hadn't tried to find that stupid little book! If only I'd waited until we were back home to repay Sherry!" she thought miserably.

That was at first. During the first hour of Michael's absence. Before the thought came to her that perhaps he had gone for good. Gone, because he could not bear her worrying about money.

That was what he had said. "I'm sick of it.... sick and fed up with it!" She had never seen Michael so terribly angry," so beside himself with rage. He had been like a man driven to utter desperation, to violence he was beyond controlling.

Remembering, his white, tense face, his blazing eyes, his haggard desperation, drove Judy to her feet, and she paced up and down the hotel room, trying to keep pace with her racing thoughts, with physical energy. Trying to crowd down the terror rising to engulf her, to banish reason and sane, orderly thought.

Michael couldn't do this to her. His couldn't. His couldn't leave her simply because he was angry, because of a quarrel. Michael loved her. He did. said so dozens, hundreds of times.

"Listen," he had said, on that never-to-be-forgotten occasion when they had come closest to quarreling, closest to actual separation; when it had been she, not Michael, who was angry. When Michael had been defending himself. "Listen: nothing in all the wide world could make me stop believing in you, Judy. No mistake you could make, no circumstances you could stumble into. Because I love you."

Now—now, because he loved her. It had happened. Because he loved her to the point of idealizing her into beyond-human qualities, he had let the unreal pattern of his love, the pattern he had built in his mind, his heart, of her, crowd out the real, flesh-and-blood Judy.

"I was wrong, Michael," Judy whispered, her hot face pressed against the cool window pane, as she strained to see through the darkness to the driveway below, in vain hope of seeing him—hope that he was returning. "I was wrong to look in your coat for that book. But it was because I loved you; because I couldn't bear to have you worry on myself that should pay your debts!"

"Crabbing," he had called it; "rapping about debts..... about money." The minutes crept slowly, relentlessly into hours, and the still, chill quiet of midnight mantled the little seaboard resort town. And in the huge, lonely, terrifying hours Judy grew from adolescence, from a girlish conception of life and love into the mature, sober realization of marriage.

When dawn lifted the chill curtain of night, she had come to the last bitter alternative.

"Send him back to me," she prayed wordlessly, from a bruised, aching heart. "I won't care about anything else. I won't mind the debts. He won't only send him back to me again..... I love him so! I can't bear thinking of life without Michael! Michael is life. My life. The only life I know, darling!"

She was chilled through. The autumn dampness had filled the room with an icy, raw chill and the building was unheated, that early in the season. She had been so distraught, so utterly frantic over Michael's absence, it had not occurred to her to get on a sweater, a bathrobe, or a coat.

Now she moved about stiffly, woodenly, her hands fumbling and awkward, picking things up, putting the room to rights. Her hands touched the tweed jacket, still hanging over the chair-back, where Michael had placed it. The jacket she had searched to find the little black book.

Tears blinded her as she picked it up, holding it close to her heart, her cold face against the scratchy roughness that smelled of fine tobacco, of shaving talcum, and tangy salt air. Michael's coat!

Her hands shook beyond control as she tugged the jacket about her shoulders, and turned the collar up about her neck, and an arid, barren comfort crept into her heart with the thought that it was Michael's coat—Michael's arms about her.

Breakfast time came and went, and Judy had exhausted even the things she could invent to do. She had done everything. Even to packing all the bags, ready for her leaving. And through it all she had waited, listening keenly to every footstep down the hall, every sound that might herald his return.

Waiting, and finally came to the bitter realization that he was not coming back. That he had left her for good. That he was, in truth, "fed up with it all."

Quietly, with a defeat more terrible than despair, Judy planned what she must do. Michael would have to have his luggage eventually. He would have to come after it. But meanwhile she had to live, until she saw him again and learned what he planned to do. What he had decided for their lives, their love.

And it was unthinkable that she remain, here, at this exclusive resort hotel, paying heaven only knew how much a day, besides meals, when she could live cheaper elsewhere.

She would go to an overnight cabin camp, and wait for him there. She would check his luggage, and leave word that he could find her there. The hotel would tell him that when he came for his things.

The gay, bright little seal and beard overnight case the office help had given her brought a lump in her throat as Judy packed the things she would need for her temporary stay at the tourist camp. It had started out so gayly, so bravely. It was ending so sorrowfully.

Soon—as soon as Michael came back—she would be going back to town. Back to the old job, the old life again. No longer Mrs. Michael Swayne. Simply Miss Judy Swayne, whose husband had left her, because she nagged about debts. Because she wanted to repay a loan, and he couldn't bear it. Because his pride was bigger, stronger than his love.

She went down to the dining-room and drank some hot black coffee. At the desk the clerk shorted two letters toward her. They were both for Michael. They were addressed in the same bold, masculine hand—writing of the letter she had found in his jacket pocket, just before their bitter quarrel. The words of that other letter flared like hot, menacing branding-irons before Judy's weary inner vision: "Michael, darling, it seems an eternity since you left....."

"I'll leave these here for Mr. Swayne," she said in a tight, checked little voice, "and when he returns will you direct him to my address, please?"

The clerk took the note, written on hotel stationery, sealed in an envelope bearing "The Breakers, Oldport, Maine," in the upper left corner, addressed to Michael Swayne care of desk clerk. He stared briefly at the girl's white, ravaged face and grief-stricken eyes and turned hastily away.

"Certainly, Mrs. Swayne. Is there anything else we could do for you?"

Judy swallowed with difficulty, and shook her head. She couldn't very well say, "Help me to find my husband..... he has left me!" Michael would be furious. He would be beyond rare, beyond violence, he would be so distracted.

"No, thank you!" She walked unsteadily, a little grotesquely, up the stairs, and down the hall, clinging to fresh numbness by her appalling loss.

The door was open, but at first Judy could not see the room, through the blur of tears. When she did, she leaned back against the door panels, holding onto the door handle for support, lest she slide to the floor in a nerveless heap.

Lying, abandoned full out, across the bed, with the same clothes he had worn last night when he left her.....clothes now crumpled, soiled, rain-spattered..... was Michael!

His face was bluish pale, under the faint, shadowy stubble of beard and his eyes were puffy, swollen, as if he had been weeping. He was sleeping heavily, noisily, and his mouth was slightly open, lending a strange look of weakness to his face.

One fist was closed tight about something, and as Judy advanced slowly, wonderingly, her heart began to beat faster, quicker with hope.

He was very drunk. He was clutching a tiny locket Judy had given him, of her mother's.

CHAPTER X

THE REVENGE

Michael's tense fingers were closed so tightly about the tiny locket that even the fragile little gold chain would not give, when Judy touched it. Her hands shook slightly as she touched the sun-bronzed fist, knotted so tensely about the little talisman, and then she drew back swiftly about her bruised heart and a smile, tender, maternal, wiped away the tired defeat from her soft mouth.

Michael had come back to her! He had come back, bearing this little locket face against the grimly locked fist, with the hope Judy's love dangling precariously over the rushing over her like a tidal wave.

"I can't afford it right now, Michael. I can't even afford an engagement gift," she had told him between love-words, September night when they had become engaged, "I can only love you, and love you."

"Love," Michael had assured her tenderly, gravely, "is greater than anything money could furnish forever. Because," he had ended simply, "it's not only a part of you, sweetheart.....it is you!"

He had opened the tiny locket and stared at the smiling girl pictured within; at the baby girl in the opposite side, Judy... and her mother!

"You are so very like her, Judy! The same smile, the same hair and eyes. My little Judy! My little mother, I never had a mother, Judy. She will be mine now. Even in spirit!"

Now the little talisman had brought Michael back to her. Nothing else mattered.

Judy tiptoed to the clothes-press, brought a thick comforter and tucked it gently around Michael. She loosened his shoes and slipped them off, and moved his feet over until the bed in a more comfortable position. She lowered the shades.

At three, she was still sitting in the big chair, waiting for Michael to waken. From time to time he had stirred, groaned, or muttered faintly. Once he rolled over and drew his feet up sharply, as if in grim pain, and his face twisted briefly into a spasm that ended in a groan, wrenched from tightly clenched teeth.

Judy wanted to wake him. She was sure he was ill, in pain. But fear of his anger restrained her. Perhaps, if he slept long enough, he'd be up feeling all right again.

"Judy..... his voice was a strange sounding, "Judy.....where are you?"

She was beside him, her icy fingers gripping his hot, burning hand in tense anxiety.

"Michael," she whispered brokenly, "Michael, what is it?"

"Judy," he said slowly, laboredly, as if the words were confused in his mind, as if he couldn't think clearly, "I'm not a doctor. I think I'm poisoned!"

Judy dropped the room telephone her hands shook so wildly. Her voice was a ragged, hoarse whisper when she finally got the room clerk and asked him to send a doctor up at once.

"Not exactly a model honeymoon, is it, Judy?" Michael muttered thickly. "Getting drunk right off the bat."

"It was my fault. Michael. We were both wrong," Judy comforted him stoutly, and as he tossed into another delirium of fever. "What did you do, Michael? Where is the pain?"

"Feels like my appendix," he said, clenching his teeth as a wave of pain doubled him up again. "Bothered me ever since I was a boy."

"Tell the what to get, Michael," Judy gasped in terror over the terrifying something in his face. "There must be something that will help ease up the pain! Baking soda, bromo seltzer....?"

"Pills," Michael said on a long, careful breath. "Don't dare take anything until the doc comes. I've had this before."

The doctor came in briskly, and his professional face changed to a frown of chill disapproval as he realized the cause of Michael's attack.

"Have you had these attacks before?" He snapped his medicine kit open and waited for Michael's reply.

"Several times." Michael's tone was sullen, resentful of the doctor's obvious disapproval. "Fat something wrong, or drink a little, and it lays me out."

"Your doctor has told you you have a bad appendicitis?"

"Often." Michael grinned wryly, briefly, "but nothing to worry about. Science all sharpened and handy!"

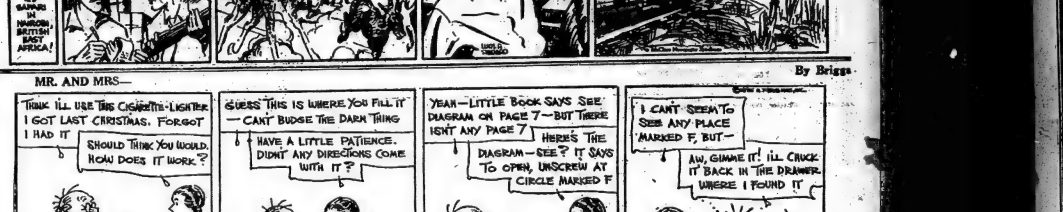
"You'd better let him get that appendix out, and not wait any more time over it! Those things are serious. If that should break while you're away from home, it would be a very serious matter, from a history."

"O.K.," Michael said briefly, tack.

"But what about it now? Can't you fix me up so I can untie myself? I feel like a pretzel right now."

"Let me know, if this doesn't help," the doctor said tersely. "But I warn you, if it does, you'd better have it attended to immediately."

Judy shivered, as the door closed after the medical man. He had sounded so grimly foreboding; he made it sound so menacing!



"Michael," she whispered, unsteadily, "Michael please do as he says, and have that operation! It's better to have it done before it gets dangerous, worse! Please, darling!"

"Get me a glass of water and some of that medical genius' dope!" he said. "I've had this before. It was just that bad boose. I'll be O.K. in a jiffy."

NEWS BRIEFS AND ODDITIES

Minneapolis, Oct. 19 (CP)—Even university students can bring 'em back alive" when Frank Buck chases them here.

Richard Hurley and Frank Manley returned to the University of Minnesota this fall with two jungle monsters captured after the Buck manner on the Malay Peninsula. The boys were on a freighter ordered off the Malay coast when Frank Buck came aboard with a cargo of lizards, tigers, elephants and snakes.

When he explained how easy it was, the pair got a bag of bananas, stepped into the jungle and returned with a boa and "something" two small monkeys who were the student's delight at the Pi Upsilon Fraternity here.

Los Angeles, Oct. 19 (CP)—An educational program in the South to provide the basis for selecting a mate" was advocated last night by Jane Bright, assistant director (13 to 18 years of age) by Dr. Gertrude Laws of the California Department of Education.

She addressed 2,500 delegates of the Progressive Education Association.

This course should emphasize the primary fundamentals of family life," she said, "love, courtship, money and the use of leisure time."

Glen Falls, N.Y., Oct. 19 (CP)—Mrs. Marshall Harris of nearby Brayton bought a hunting license this year and, with a party of hunting trip in the Adirondacks.

Yesterday, during the rear door of her home to find a huge bear standing a scant 300 feet away. She ran into the house, grabbed her husband's two shotguns and brought down the beast with two shots.

The bear weighed 13 pounds.

LAVAL'S VICTORY HAILED IN FRANCE

Many of Premier's Worries Believed Solved by Diplomacy

By ROBERT PARKER
Associated Press Staff Writer

Paris, Oct. 19 (AP)—France's "favorable" note to Great Britain on the sanctions question had support was considered generally today a victory for Premier Laval in his struggle to keep France united.

His reply to the British government's demand for assurances of naval and air help if the League of Nations oil cut-off failed to end the Italo-Ethiopian war was expected to satisfy both rights and left parties.

Many of the Premier's worries, in addition to those of foreign conflict and friction between Italy and Britain, also were eased, over the rivalry of domestic unrest arising from France's stand in the international crisis.

The note was characterized as a "diplomatic masterpiece" by one of Premier's friends. It came on the eve of the sensational elections Sunday in which Laval is running for re-election and in which he is ranging France's conflicting political sentiments under the international issue.

It was counted on to satisfy the radical left which considers a strong stand at Geneva and to calm the fears of the right over the threat that Britain might drag this country into war. The note provides Britain must act under League orders to obtain French aid.

Whether the note would satisfy Britain was another question, the French still conceded.

The British embassy said in a statement Laval "expressed an opinion and reply in a plain affirmative to all questions put to him" by Britain.

MARRIAGE OF DUKE WILL BE PRIVATE

London, Oct. 19 (AP)—The Duke of Gloucester and Lady Alice Montagu-Douglas-Scott will be married Nov. 6 as originally planned, it was announced officially today but the ceremony will be private because of the death of the bride's father, the Duke of Buccleuch.

King George and Queen Mary made messages of sympathy to Selkirk, Scotland, where the Duke of Buccleuch died early today after a long illness.

The Duke of Gloucester arranged to leave London for Selkirk tonight to attend the funeral Tuesday.

Duke of Buccleuch, Father of Royal Bride Succumbs to Illness

Selkirk, Scotland, Oct. 19.—(CP Cable)—The Second Duke of Buccleuch died at Bowhill, his Scottish residence today after a long illness three weeks before his daughter was to have married into the Royal Family.

His Grace passed away quietly with his daughter, Lady Alice Montagu-Douglas-Scott, and other members of the family at his bedside. Lady Alice had flown from London in the private plane of the Prince of Wales, when it became apparent his condition was grave.

The 71-year-old nobleman had undergone an operation shortly before Lady Alice announced her to the Duke of Gloucester, third son of the King, was announced.

News of his death was conveyed to the Duke of Gloucester at Buckingham Palace also was sent to Sandringham, Norfolk, where the King and Queen are residing.

Whether it will cause a change in plans for the wedding, now scheduled for Nov. 6, is not known but the whole situation will be reconsidered by authorities later today.

A decision to hold the wedding privately in spite of Buckingham Palace, instead of in Westminster Abbey, was reached only yesterday, it was learned, if the Duke's present condition had been received by the family.

Earlier this month it was stated the Duke would be unable to attend the wedding and that his son-in-law, the Earl of Dalkeith, would give the bride in marriage.

Long Ancestry

The Buccleuch family traces its ancestry back to Sir Richard Scott of Hassendean and Murthockston who died in 1574.

CITY IN DARKNESS

All Buildings in City More or Less Damaged by Tremor

(By T. M. Metzger)

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Helena, Mont., Oct. 19.—(AP)—An earthquake, dealing death to one man and injuring a score, scattered wreckage today in the main streets of Montana's hilly capital, focal point for a week of tremors traced in crazy pattern across the United States northwest and part of Canada.

The severe overnight shock, 60th of the sequence, tore at the mountainous continental divide and spread into three States—Montana, Idaho and Washington—and into Canadian Province, Alberta.

The vibrations gripped this city of 12,000 with such intensity that Oscar Bazzoni, city engineer, estimated the damage might run as high as $1,500,000.

As the quake swayed Helena for about 12 seconds, the brick facing on many buildings peeled, crashed into the streets and was scattered. The shock began at 4:47 p.m., Mountain Standard Time.

The front wall of an unoccupied structure fell on Main Street, Dan Harris, a negro.

It was several moments before anyone in that section knew the cause had taken a life. The body was under a pile of bricks which stood, too feet deep in the street.

Throws Into Darkness

The entire city was thrown into darkness for a time by the paralyzing o. light and power facilities. A new half-million dollar high school which went into use this fall suffered severely. A chimney at the center caved down and brick fell from the walls. Two floors caved in at the National Biscuit Company factory. The roof of the State armorial fell and damaged trucks and National Guard motor vehicle. A large part of the coping on the Algeria Shrine Temple, perhaps the city's outstanding structure from an architectural standpoint, was torn away but the tower, about 40 feet tall, was unscathed.

A city, grown sleepless after seven nights of shocks, ran into the open. The screams of children were heard from the crash of crumpled plate glass.

Little hurried groups gathered quickly in the middle of the street and family huddles throughout the night were common. Downtown confusion was more intense. From the theatres poured the early audience. Ushers stood guard and though some persons fainted from fright none was badly hurt.

Hayden Simpson, once a trombonist for Sousa and Whiteman, brought his horn into action on Main Street in a medley of march tunes. Hotel occupants, standing in night attire, marched back inside.

Celebrants Undaunted

Three hundred students celebrating a football victory at Intermountain Union College, were unhurt when the wall of a gymnasium in which a dance was being held caved in.

Almost the entire western half of the State felt the shifting of the earth's substructure. Reports of quaking which resulted in negligible damage came from Bozeman, Dillon, Billings, Missoula, Shelby and a half- dozen other smaller cities extending from Yellowstone National Park north to near the Canadian border.

Minor tremors occurred at Spokane and Walla Walla, Wash., and Boise, Idaho and Moscow, Idaho.

At Great Falls, 97 miles north of Helena, three distinct shocks were felt about 9.50 p.m. Damage was negligible.

Whitefish, in the northwest corner of the State, reported similarly severe shocks, and at Livingston the tremors were "fairly heavy."

Dr. Francis A. Thomson, President of Montana School of Mines, said the earth tremors probably were caused by slipping masses of rock along a fractured zone deep in the earth.

Say Abuna Admits Rome's Right to Rule

Abuna, Rivieres, Oct. 19—Italian headquarters here are known when the Abuna or Bishop of the Ethiopian Church of Aksum went to Adowa to submit to General Emilio De Bono, Commander-in-chief of all Italian forces in East Africa, he said in a formal speech:

"Other than from Rome comes civilization and also that it has regard for peace, for church and religion. The right of Rome to dominate is a spiritual right, deriving from the goodness and force of its laws."

General De Bono, in a speech to the clergy at Aksum and Adowa yesterday, the text of which was released today, said "Italy would pay for every drop of blood spilled in Ethiopia with any somewhat colder; possibly light showers in some districts.

G. Britain Acts Only With League, Declares Baldwin

Worcester, Eng., Oct. 19 (AP)—Prime Minister Baldwin told his political constituents in a speech today "it is a dangerous lie to say the object of the British government is to overthrow Fascist Italy."

Instead, Baldwin said, "The object we seek is peace and we seek it with the nations composing the League of Nations."

He added: "In no step do we go before them. In no step behind. Continued in no step do we take except in full unison with those who are working with us."

Anglo - Italian Tension Eases in Mediterranean; Buying Boycott Favored

Misunderstanding Believed Definitely Removed by Laval Note

FLEET STILL REMAINS

No Progress Made in Settlement of War Issue

By G. A. ANDERSON
Copyright 1935 by The Asso. Press.

London, Oct. 19—Great Britain today ordered the entire fighting fleet in the Mediterranean, authoritative sources said today, despite an easing of the Italo-British tension and a definite understanding with France.

The British government was represented as feeling that Premier Laval of France has definitely removed any misunderstanding which previously existed between Great Britain and France.

These authorities said, however, that no progress yet had been made toward the settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian war—the Mediterranean fleet would have to remain at its present post although it was possible a few warships might later be removed to Gibraltar as a conciliatory gesture.

Side Issues

It was stated in informed quarters that diplomatic conversations now in progress in Rome and in London will deal only with the side issues and that there had been no progress toward peace between Italy and Ethiopia.

So far as the British government is aware, it was stated, there still remains a great gap between Premier Mussolini's conception of his aims and terms which would be acceptable to the League of Nations.

It was authoritatively stated that Sir Eric Drummond, the British ambassador to Rome, was undertaking to remove a feeling in Italy that Great Britain contemplated military action against Italy and that he also was trying to convince the Duce that British warships were in the Mediterranean for precautionary measures.

—Trading" Not Considered

The question of "trading" the removal of British troops from Libya for British naval reductions in the Mediterranean had not arisen in his conversations, it was stated.

Australian Premier Joseph Cir Bruce bluntly told Il Duce Great Britain was acting as Geneva only in response to her conceptions of what was required of her as a signatory of the League Covenant and that the suggestions of British hostility to Italy were based on misunderstanding.

If was believed Mussolini had not reached the point at which he was willing to progress to the second phase of Premier Laval's his campaign of occupation in Ethiopia.

Lord Zetland, Secretary of State for India, asserted in a speech at Oxford on Saturday that Britain "under certain circumstances might be called upon to assist in enforcing sanctions if military measures were imposed eventually to halt the warfare."

RIOT BREAKS OUT IN CONVENTION

John L. Lewis And William Hutcheson Combatants

Atlantic City, N.J., Oct. 19 (AP) —A riot broke out on the floor of the convention of the American Federation of Labor today when supporters of John L. Lewis and United Mine Workers of America, and William Hutcheson, president of the Carpenters' Union, engaged in a fistfight.

Lewis and Hutcheson began to quarrel over the right of an Aluminum Workers' local to establishment of an unrestricted industrial union in the rubber industry.

Hutcheson, yesterday, re-elected a member of Aksum went to Adowa to submit to General Emilio De Bono, Commander-in-chief of all Italian forces in East Africa, he said in a formal speech:

"Other than from Rome comes civilization and also that it has regard for peace, for church and religion. The right of Rome to dominate is a spiritual right, deriving from the goodness and force of its laws."

General De Bono, in a speech to the clergy at Aksum and Adowa yesterday, the text of which was released today, said "Italy would pay for every drop of blood spilled in Ethiopia with any somewhat colder; possibly light showers in some districts.

League Sanctions Committee Approves "Buy Nothing From Italy" Boycott

PLENARY COM. DECIDES

Boycott Decision Goes Through Like Streak of Lightning

By WADE WERNER

Geneva, Oct. 19 (AP)—The League of Nations Sanctions Committee of eighteen nations approved today the British proposal for a "buy nothing from Italy" boycott.

With the consent of the committee, the "financial" sanctions to cut short the Italo-Ethiopian war, the projected sweeping boycott against the Italian goods now pass before the plenary Committee of fifty-two nations for final approval.

The boycott was discussed point by point by the smaller committee and only Switzerland made reservations. Even this nation, however, did not abstain when the measure as a whole was approved.

Decision of Date.

The committee decided October 31 to have the plenary Committee of all League states except Italy and Ethiopia should decide the exact date on which League nations would begin simultaneously enforcement of the sanctions.

A member of the committee said: "The Swiss government pointed out some difficulties and made a slight reservation. It might almost be said the boycott proposal went through like a streak of lightning."

Italian Viewpoint.

Rome, Oct. 19.—(AP)—An Italian government spokesman declared today the present negotiations between Italy and Great Britain are "restricted only to the Mediterranean problem" and have no direct influence on the Italo-Ethiopian war in Italy Africa.

It was made clear while Italy and Great Britain may come to a friendly understanding eliminating the tense situation which has developed over the presence of Italian and British units in the Mediterranean, Italy has no intention of swerving from her campaign in Ethiopia.

Italy, France and Great Britain are discussing the removal of their military forces in the Mediterranean. Il Duce wants Great Britain to withdraw the warships which ordinarily constitute the British home fleet. The British want Premier Mussolini to recheck army in Libya which, they have indicated, they would withdraw to Egypt.

As for the final peace conversations which Premier Laval of France is reported to be conducting, the spokesman said Italy was making no overtures but was merely listening.

DR. HUDSON LEAVENS BELLEVILLE TO PICTON

Dr. Charles Hudson Leavens, M.D., C.M., of Belleville, has closed a medical practice at Picton. This gives the town two doctors, with surrounding villages well supplied. Dr. Leavens graduated from Queen's University last year and has been recently associated with Dr. Stobie at Belleville.

CHANGE TIMING GEAR IN TRAFFIC LIGHT

Car owners of the city who have felt annoyance over the apparent slowness of the traffic lights on the four corners have had justification for their complaints, it has been revealed following a test checkup of the lights. Constant wear and the formation of grime on the inner workings of the signal box had resulted in a considerable slowing up of the action. The lights have been placed today by another time box, which has been overhauled and cleaned.

CAR TURNS OVER FAILS TO MAKE TURN

Failure to complete the turn just east of the village of Shannonville, resulted in an automobile driven by Frederick Brown, 287 Macaulay St., Toronto, turning completely over on the highway shortly after 10.15 p.m. last night. Fortunately Mr. Brower and a passenger, Herbert Welnitch, 186 Westminster Ave., Toronto, were not seriously injured. The accident was investigated by Motorcycle Patrolman Sam Revlow, who reported that Mr. Brower was proceeding westward and had apparently failed to observe the sharp curve just east of Shannonville and suddenly swerved the vehicle, when he came upon the turn. The car turned over on the highway and was badly damaged about the body and fenders. Following assistance from a nearby garage the vehicle was righted and Mr. Brower continued his homeward journey suffering from shock only.

MOTOR CAR STRUCK NEAR INTERSECTION

A motor accident resulting in wheel and fender damage happened at the intersection of Dufferin Avenue and Dundas Street at 5 p.m. Friday. Mrs. J. G. Delaney, Jr., 138 Dufferin Avenue, was driving eastward and was about to make a left-hand turn to proceed north on Dufferin Avenue, when a large transport, driven by Bruce Hall, 56 Centre Street, Oshawa, collided with the rear end of the Delaney car. The force of the impact pushed the Delaney car onto the up curb, bending the right rear wheel and fender. The accident was investigated by local police, who reported that the transport was following in the wake of the Delaney car and could not grade striking the automobile, when the turn was made by Mrs. Delaney, who according to an eye-witness prevailed her intentions of making the turn. Mrs. Delaney and her infant daughter sustained slight bruises and a general shaking up during the accident, but were not seriously injured.

TURKEYS SCARCE FOR THANKSGIVING

Price For Fresh Birds Will Be 30 and 35 Cents Per Pound

The Thanksgiving turkey, time-honored symbol of the post-harvest festival, may be a rare bird on Ontario tables next Thursday. Dealers generally agree that turkeys are generally agreed turkeys will be scarce because the flocks are not sufficiently developed and the cold storage supply is low.

If a consumer really requires a turkey the fowl can be obtained but he may have to pay around 30 to 35 cents a pound. Quotations yesterday several local dealers at 27 cents and it was expected they would jump with the holiday demand.

One Toronto packer told the collector for Christmas decided to a plentiful supply of turkeys but geese were the best prospect for Thanksgiving.

A prominent Brantford turkey breeder said three weeks' rain on Manitoulin Island played havoc with turkey flocks and the Thanksgiving price would be 30 cents a pound for cold storage birds and 35 cents for fresh ones. He cited the high cost of feed as another factor contributing to the price increase.

Two Kitchener poultry buyers had widely differing opinions about the turkey question. One said they would be plentiful and cheaper while the other saw a shortage. The first man declared the cold storage supply was plentiful and the price would be around 27 cents a pound. The other one, however, argued the 1935 turkeys, while plentiful, will not be ready for the holiday market.

In Kingston, at the usual end of the province, buyers said the present turkey market was quiet. Storage turkeys were well sold out. Abattoir prices were 25 cents a pound while the retail price soared from 30 to 36 cents.

FOWL PLENTIFUL ON LOCAL MART

Turkeys, Geese, Ducks And Chickens For Thanksgiving

An evidence of the near approach of Thanksgiving day was apparent on the Saturday market when dressed fowl were offered for sale in abundance and many fine prices were obtained for same. A number of turkeys were offered for sale ranging in price from $2.50 to $3.50, specials averaging about 35c per pound, geese ranged in price from $1.50 to $2.00 according to quality. Ducks retailed from 90c to $1.00 each while chickens sold from 60c to 75c each.

Vegetables showed a slight increase in price over last week's quotations, with the exception of potatoes, which retailed for 25c per peck. By the bag the price ranged from $1.75 to $1.85.

The hog market during the past week showed a slight increase in price namely 10c for both live and dressed hogs.

No changes were noted in the grain market with sales quite brisk as farmers were busy.

In the dairy products the only change to note was in the price of eggs which showed a slight increase in price, namely 32c per dozen. In a few cases 35c was asked for specials.

Fruit displayed consisted of peaches, plums, pears and grapes, the latter plentiful. Prices were fairly reasonable.

Fish vendors did considerable business, the specials being white fish, lake salmon and small cod. Prices for same were reasonable.

HEAD-ON CRASH NEAR HOSPITAL

One Driver Tries to Avoid Hitting Car And Strikes Truck

Trying to avoid hitting another automobile which was turning into the Belleville General Hospital driveway, is believed to have been the cause of a head-on collision, that happened at that point at 8.30 p.m. last night. Clifford Crooks, 86 Chatham street, was proceeding easterly on Dundas street, but upon his arrival at the entrance to the hospital, noticed a car, coming from the opposite direction, turned into the driveway. A truck following in the wake of this vehicle, bound car had stopped to allow the motor car to turn into the driveway, when Crooks, while passing the vehicles going into the hospital, crashed head-on into the stationary truck.

The Crooks car turned completely over on the left hand side of the road, the collision, righted itself and proceeded across the highway and came to a stop as it crashed into a post. The Crooks car was badly damaged during the accident and while it rolled over. The left front wheel of the truck, which was driven by Elroy Pendelton, 135 Pinnacle street, were broken off while the axle was bent. The windows, fenders and body of the Crooks' car were completely wrecked.

The accident was investigated by P. C. Thompson but no charges has been arrived at yet. The matter is still under police observation.

Haydon of Toronto, Grand Lodge Librarian and Historian, who delivered an address. Other visitors, totalling 150, came from Toronto, Almonte, Brighton, Bellville, Lindsay and Cannington.

PRESSING NEED SCHOOL ADDITION BOARD DECLARES

Will Submit Plans to City Council For Queen Mary Addition

PLANS COST $500

No Holiday For Children on Friday After Thanksgiving

Local city council will be asked by the Board of Education to provide funds for the construction of class room additions at Queen Mary School, declared after an investigation by two committees of the Board to be a vital need, it was decided at a regular Board meeting held last evening.

The request will be accompanied with plans and estimates authorized prepared under a motion, which received almost unanimous support of members. Plans will be drawn by William Arthur Watson, registered architect of the city at a total cost of $500.

The report of the committee of Sites, Buildings and Repairs and Queen Mary School Management Committee was moved for adoption by Trustee Chas. Hyde, chairman of the former committee. It was pointed out by him that irregularities in the plans for addition to the school was revealed a pressing one, in that the committee was supported by chairman of the Board I.L.-Col. R. A. Gwen.

Should Children Attend

A total of 430 children now attend the school, Principal Foley told by School Inspector R. J. Clarke, who sanctioned Principal C. J. Frederick in explaining the local situation. One room now in use is unsafe, declared, was totally unfit for class room purposes in that sufficient light and accommodation was lacking. This is the auditorium which has been changed to class room.

"Part of plans, which will be submitted to city council was questioned by Trustee Geo. F. Cairom. "If this style is to be used, at once wouldn't it be better to approach council with the estimate first before submitting plans?"

"We have to have the plans and estimates before we can go to council," reminded Trustee W. J. Harrison.

"We probably couldn't get any action out of the present council this year anyhow," commented Trustee Rose Wotten.

"How many years has this school been in use without the need for the additional class?" asked Trustee Allin.

"Twenty-one years; since then there has been a steady growth of attendance at the school," replied Principal Foley.

A motion by Trustee Harrison that public schools in the city be given the Friday following Thanksgiving a holiday was defeated after considerable discussion. Members of the same week will be married by a joint session meeting of teachers' institutes of Northumberland, South Hastings, Peterboro and Prince Edward. The convention will be held in the city and the program Alexandra School in the morning and in the Collegiate in the afternoon.

"What is the use of one day of all teachers of the schools?" asked Trustee Allin.

"$23.00," it was pointed out by the chairman.

"And our loss of the government grant would be in the neighborhood of $11.50 for the Friday," remarked a member.

Kiwanis Carnival Success; Major Prizes Won by Residents In Many Districts of Canada

Funds Obtained From Sale of Tickets Will be Used For Underprivileged Work Among Boys And Girls of This City

DRAW IS WELL CONDUCTED

Impartial Judges Present And Ticket Stubs Well Guarded During Time While in Prepared Drum at The Arena.

One of the most successful campaigns ever sponsored by the Belleville Kiwanis Club was concluded on Thursday night with the final drawing for major prizes. The club made it a strict point that every detail would be worked out impartially and those all who purchased tickets would have an equal chance in obtaining these splendid prizes. The ticket stubs were kept under lock and key in the local bank and before the Carnival opened were transferred to a large drum especially manufactured for the purpose by the Stewart-Warner Alemite Corporation of Canada and driven by an electric motor. The drum also was locked and after the drawing started was again locked and guarded by employees of the Arena Company. The Club chose from the audience five women each night and each one pulled out a ticket from the drum the first one drawn to be the car prize, the second the Frigidaire and the next three for the radios. Each night one hundred and fifty of this city, independent of the Kiwanis Club were pressed into service to superintend the draw.

Besides the major prizes, the club gave out prizes for the salesmen selling the winning tickets and also for selling the most number of tickets. Naturally the last competition was won by Belleville and district residents but few of the major prizes came to this section of the Province. A nice sum was realized from the sale of tickets and the Kiwanis Club have the nucleus for a fund for their underprivileged work that will be used to good advantage. It has not been decided how this fund will be used but sufficient to say, the money will be spent where it will derive the most benefit. President Cliff Herringer and all members of the Kiwanis Club thank all who in any way contributed to the success of the undertaking. Prize winners will be notified from the campaign office of their success.

October 12th

1st prize—Car — Oscar Parsons, Fairy Glen, Sask.

BRITISH COLUMBIA LUMBER FOR KING'S YACHT

Splendid samples of British Columbia's finest timber in the form of masts and booms for His Majesty's new yacht which will replace the famed old Britannia) were loaded from the Canadian National Railways' docks in Victoria on S. S. New Westminster City, bound for England. Above, the timber is shown being swung from the railway flat cars. It is 106 feet long, thirty inches at the butt and twenty-two inches at the top. The second measured ninety-six feet with a twenty-two inch butt. The two booms were almost as long. Weighing about seven tons each, the timbers were cut from Grouse Mountain, on the North Vancouver Island. Two months were spent selecting the carefully specified timbers.

AUSTRIAN A KING IN PART ETHIOPIA

Adventurous Career of Emir Soliman Inger Ends in Rumania at 82

Emir Soliman Inger, a former officer of the pre-war Austrian Army, who had for the last few years been painting Rumanian lakes as Alexander Inger, has just died in a Bucharest hospital at the age of 82.

According to the castle's archives, forty years ago he was the sovereign of an Ethiopian Kingdom. Then last year he sent a message to the League of Nations demanding the restoration of his domain.

HOYT TO TIGHTEN WHISKY DEFINITION

Proposes Minimum of 1-Year 'Aging and Later 2 Years' for 'Straight' Liquor

Washington, Oct. 19 Franklin Hoyt, the new Federal alcohol administrator, tried his hand at answering the question: "What is whiskey?" which has bothered distillers and government officials for sixty years.

He proposed new rules for labeling and advertising whiskey, gin and other distilled spirits—including a definition of whiskey "to conform with the march of science in distilling."

Since the old Federal Alcohol Control Administration defined whiskey after repeal, an FAA official explained how stills have been invented and "the old regulations for straight whiskey would fit alcohol as now manufactured."

A distinct type of whiskey was started, too, in a proposed rule which would require whiskey to be "aged in charred-oak barrels for a minimum period of two years before it can be called "straight whiskey."

By Jan. 1, 1937, the aging requirement for "straight" whiskey will be increased to not less than two years. The FAFA had no age requirements for "straight" whiskey.

Hearings on the new labeling rules and advertising will be held Oct. 30 and 31.

New Definition of Whiskey

Whiskey, according to Mr. Hoyt's new definition, is:

"An alcoholic distillate from a fermented mash of grain, distilled at less than 190 degrees proof, in such manner that the distillate possesses the taste, aroma and characteristics generally attributed to whiskey, withdrawn from the cistern room of the distillery at not more than 110 degrees proof and not less than 80 degrees proof; and also includes mixtures of the foregoing distillates for which no specific standards of identity are prescribed herein."

Blended whiskey:

"Mixture which contains at least 20 percent by volume of 100 percent proof straight whiskey, when separately or in combination, whiskey or grain neutral spirits, if such mixture at the time of bottling is not less than 80 per cent proof."

If the rules remains more than 20 per cent straight whiskey it will be called blended whiskey.

The proposed rules would also eliminate the designation "spirits distilled" and "compound" gin. Under the proposal, gin would be the same whether distilled or compounded.

Are Limits Proposed

Washington, Oct. 19—Under changes proposed by the FAA, the age minimum for straight whiskey would be progressively increased as follows: from Jan. 1, 1936, to Jan. 1, 1937, eighteen months, and after Jan. 1, 1937, two years. The advertising of whiskey in a blend would increase accordingly.

The FAA said that distilleries had been producing and storing whiskey under bonded warehouse for approximately two years" and that they were available to supply higher standards now.

The new labeling regulations also prohibit the use of the word "pure" in connection with whiskey or statements designed to convey the impression that the contents are therapeutic or curative qualities. Also prohibited are the use of cost-of-arms and similar insignia which would be prohibited if their use would be misleading to the consumer.

All advertisements of distilled spirits would have to show alcoholic content.

Many Italians Are Reported To Be Quitting Eritrea

(A. P. Copyright)

Addis Ababa, Oct. 19—The Ethiopian government stated yesterday that Italians were quitting the colony of Eritrea for the Sudan in such large numbers that there would be cut off leaving them helpless in the face of a native uprising.

The government also said the Italian merchants and officials already had been instructed to send their women and children to Italy with unlimited opportunity.

The government reported great activity along the Italian front in Tigre Providence where the Italian commander-in-chief was said to be digging trenches and constructing barbed wire entanglements against an assault by the Ethiopia troops under Ras Kassa.

LOOKING FORWARD 25 YEARS

Rather an unexpected outlook on the future of the United States population has been formed after a preliminary analysis by the National Resources Committee after survey of finds of planning boards of various states.

The finding is that within twenty five years the U. S. will be converted into a country populated and ruled largely by elderly people and youth will be in the wane as to both numbers and influence. The population expectations indicate that by 1960 there will be twice as many citizens above sixty years of age, this making for a more stable population, with a considerable slowing down on the average American's pace in daily life, the committee believes.

Other results of this change are indicated—decreased demand for primary education facilities in some sections, marked changes to quieter forms of recreation and shifts in general types of occupations.

Present trends in birth and death rates are expected to continue.

Other changes visualized on the basis of the surveys show that with a staple population the state will be able more wisely to plan the public improvement and development will suffer less from uncontrolled real estate speculation and that the state can use its natural resources for financial resources. Land value fluctuations will decline with a stable population.

Kansas Board thinks that a stable population is not a necessity for a higher standard of living, to create new markets and to establish a more secure social future.

Redistribution of the people it is expected will be largely dependent upon the development of basic land uses during the transition period.

FOOTBALL AS PREPARATION

The mental and physical discipline of college football is valuable advance preparation for business or for a profession, in the opinion of Harold "Red" Grange, great star of the American gridiron for more than a decade.

"The player learns to compete," he says in the current Rotarian Magazine. "And business today is hard competition. He learns to take nothing for granted; virtually every youth who has participated in organized athletics has, at some time or other, been beaten, or his team has been licked, because he, or they, held the opposition too lightly.

"A defense engendered by over-confidence is a sound lesson, valuable long after the game has been forgotten by the fans. The player learns to underestimate the capacity of others. And I believe that any business man who reads this will agree that good, healthy respect for the other fellow's ability is a fundamental of business success.

"Red", who since his college days has reaped a golden reward as professional gridiron star, cites another real advantage of college football, for later use in life, in the training which a boy gets out of the game. "Football provides that every man's betterment depends greatly upon organized effort by a group.

"Development of that kind of spirit has practical value. A boy learns to gear his own ability in with the abilities of others. In the case of a lineman he may get little newspaper credit. But his is the satisfaction of a good job well done and the appreciation of his coach and teammates; to him that is ample repayment for everything.

"College football", he continues ,"has been called a character builder. I amend that by saying it develops character, if the character is there. It does develop one important trait: gameness! It is a sport of smashing impacts and continuous, hard body contacts, between boys of unequal size and strength. So hard and fierce is the competition today that the player is frequently up against boys who are bigger and stronger. But he learns to fight back, to stay in there trying, striving to win.

"If he learns never to quit, against the toughest going, then I maintain he has received from football something which can't be measured in dollars and cents—and he is the big winner. I do not refer merely to physical courage but to mental courage, or a combination of both."

Good-breeding is surface Christianity. —Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Good-breeding is the art of showing men, by external signs, the internal regard we have for them. It arises from good sense, improve by covering with good company.—Cato.

One principal point of good-breeding is to suit our behavior to the three several degrees of men—our superiors, our equals, and those beneath us.—Dean Swift.

The scholar without good-breeding is a pedant; the philosopher, a cynic; the soldier, a bully; and every man disagreeable.—Chesterfield.

THINGS TO REMEMBER

What shall we keep from out the misty past
To keep in mind throughout all the passing years?
Pictures of joys whose memories e'er shall last?
Or sorrow's days with all their sighs and tears?

Better to keep, in mind the happy scenes,
Days that were bright, undimmed, by cloud or rain.
Better the memory of one kindly deed
Than hours of anguish and of bitter pain.

Forgetting all the stings of faithless friend,
And all the buffetings of relentless fate,
Keeping in mind until this life shall end,
The love, the joys that time can't banish or blot.

—Helen B. Anderson.

TRAVELLERS ON THE HIGHWAYS,

says the Toronto Globe, will appreciate the versifier who thus parodies Joyce Kilmer's beautiful tribute to trees:

I think that I shall never see
A billboard lovely as a tree.
Perhaps, unless the billboards fall

"NOT HAVING THE FEAR OF GOD BEFORE HIS EYES, BUT BEING MOVED AND SEDUCED BY THE INSTIGATION OF THE DEVIL", was the motive given for a murder by a Coroner's Jury at Irish Creek (now called Jasper), a village near Smith's Falls, in 1892. Coroner's Juries, as a rule, permit the courts to establish guilt or innocence in murder cases, but the Irish Creek jury knew the circumstances, knew the people who were supposed to be murdered, and knew the motive behind the deed, hence returned a verdict which stated that "We, the jury, etc., etc., etc., find that Mr. and Mrs. John Luckey and Mary Ann Luckey were murdered by Charles Luckey, not having the fear of God before his eyes, but being moved and seduced by the instigation of the devil." The Luckey family lived on a farm near Newbliss, some fifteen or twenty miles north of Brockville, Charles Luckey, a son, was a ne'er-do-well, who didn't stay on the farm, preferred the bright lights of the big places to the lonelinness and hard work of the farm. He got into trouble and served a term in the penitentiary shortly after his father died. The farm house was burned to the ground, and the bodies of the parents and daughter found in the ruins. The finding left the daughter out of the ground in the yard. Charles Luckey was arrested, charged with the murder of his parents and his sister—motive alleged being a grudge against the family, who he thought had not treated him right. Prosecution made a point of the teeth found in the yard, alleging that individual's teeth made outside dentures. Mr. Clute, Q.C. of Belleville, a famous lawyer of that day, was Crown Prosecutor, and developed a very strong case, resulting in conviction. Luckey was hanged in Brockville jail, but protested his innocence to the last.

THERE IS NO SUCH THING AS LUCK, according to some people, but with all due respect to the folks who have thus summarily banished the "Great God Luck" we must point out that in athletics, for instance, the best team does not always win,— the breaks of the game have a lot to do with the result. Call it "luck" or call it what you will, we have observed that some folks seem to have more bad luck than seemed coming to them, while others have had a pathway of life remarkably free from thorns and sharp stones. Mark Hellinger tells of a young fellow, just graduated from college, who has a sweet tenor voice. A Broadway talent scout happened to hear the lad at a college concert and signed him up for a night club program at $50 a week. That was two weeks ago. The lad, whose name was Brady, sang one week at Leon and Eddie's, for $60 and the next week was singing at the Paradise Night Club at a salary of $350 a week, while picture companies are chasing him with contracts. Just the luck of the Irish, thirteen days after leaving college singing two or three songs a night for $50 hired a week—just because a Broadway talent chaser was lured to a college concert by a skirt who wanted to punish him with punk amateur stuff. No, luck's just a fairy tale, it's the breaks that count.

Boggs was proudly showing his new sedan to Joggs.

"But I thought your other car was less than a year old," said Joggs. "You only drove it about 8,000 miles, didn't you?"

"Oh, yes, it was still as good as new," replied Boggs, "but of course it was hopelessly out of date as soon as this new and improved model came out."

"Just how is the new model different?"

"Well, you can see at a glance, the automatic cigar lighter is an inch nearer the steering wheel this year."

ELLSWORTH BOUND FOR ANTARCTIC

Lincoln Ellsworth, top; Sir Hubert Wilkins, inset, have sailed from Montevideo, Uruguay, in the little Norwegian whaling ship Wyatt Earp for the Antarctic. Accompanied by two aviators, Ellsworth hopes to span Antarctica by air prior to January 1 in the low-winged monoplane, Polar Star, top left. It will be the explorer's third attempt to span this vast frozen region by air. Objective of the flight across 2,300 miles of ice and snow, and ice is to determine whether Antarctica is one immense continent or two.

HYDRO ADVISES CANCELLATION OF POWER CONTRACTS

Four Quebec Power Companies Involved in Deal

SPECIAL SESSION

Hepburn to Seek Aid at Ottawa For Water Drained

Toronto, Oct. 19 (CP)—With Ontario's three man Hydro Commission voicing a unanimous demand for immediate cancellation of contracts between the province and four Quebec power companies, the Cabinet will go into special session next week to discuss the Commission's recommendations.

The legislation providing for the cancellation of the contracts, passed at the last session of the Legislature after a prolonged opposition filibuster, has never been proclaimed and the power contract situation has been discussed throughout the summer.

Yesterday, however, Hydro Chairman Lyon, Attorney-General Roebuck and Highways Minister McQuesten accomplished a reconnaissance into refor proclamation with a declaration that immediate power from the Gatineau Company.

Meanwhile Premier Hepburn said last night he was prepared to appeal to Ottawa, for aid should an attempt be made to divert the Ottawa River for a frequency change-over program, which, removed the necessity of buying power from Quebec.

Ready To Deal

"I don't think that will ever happen," he said, "I don't think the Province of Quebec would permit it to happen. But if it did I would ask the Dominion to enter into fresh contracts "but there will be no millions of Ontario money in it, tario."

What action the Cabinet will take when it meets Monday or Tuesday has not been disclosed but Premier Hepburn's promise that reiteration the Act would be proclaimed in due time.

Meanwhile bond holders have a plan for refunding the power bonds now in the hands of the public in the week, characterizing this as a move in the right direction, which the Government was in a position to deal with the power companies.

TRACE CORN DISTRIBUTION

Chicago, Oct. 19 (CP)—Of each 100 bushels of corn produced in the United States 42 bushels are fed to hogs, 18 to cattle, 15 to horses, 12 to poultry, one to sheep and three to city livestock. Nine bushels go for industrial and commercial use. The remainder is used for seed or export.

Canadian Diamond Deposits Greater Than African, Belief

Glaciers Carried Precious Stones Together With Minerals

Cleveland, Oct. 19 (AP)— A geologist and an industrial diamond expert voiced today the belief beneath the soil of Canada lie diamond fields far richer than those of South Africa.

Professor A. S. Furcron of Western Reserve University and Dr. W. Carlton Hall of the Diamond Trust Company, agreed that undiscovered diamond discoveries in the United States support the Canadian theory.

They said the glaciers of thousands of years ago carried to this country many precious stones together with millions of tons of Canadian rocks and minerals.

Carter asserted he subscribes to a theory that Northern Canada was a jungle "before nature began forming gems in South Africa."

"Therefore," he added, "Canada would contain far greater deposits of riches than the comparatively new dark continent."

Concerning reported but unconfirmed discoveries of diamonds on Lake Barry shores, Furcron declared "it is possible . . . the same glacier movement, which dropped precious stones on the lake bed, left a covering of stone and earth on the mineral underpinning in Canada, where it had gathered its diamond clays and gold quartz."

To Make Survey

George C. Whittaker, president of the Cleveland Mineralogical Society, announced that a group of his associates was considering a short trip into Northern Ontario and Canada, possibly next month. He also expressed himself as convinced that Canadian mines would a thousand chest of gems.

Carter, who claims to be the only commercial producer of synthetic rubies in the United States, said he is confident science one day will produce synthetic diamonds of a quality comparable to those made by nature.

"When this process is discovered," he said, "you will find that its basic factor will be electricity."

He explained that while so-called diamond dust has been made synthetically for years, science so far has been unable to hold the microscopic particles together in the form of a gem.

"Since this is accomplished," he said, "diamonds will become a worthy commodity."

R. B. BENNETT to LEAD OPPOSITION

Conservative Cabinet to Meet Last Thing on Monday

Ottawa, Oct. 19 (CP)—Preparations continued today for the Victorian Liberals to take office and the Conservatives to quit. The change is likely to take place toward the end of the week or October 24.

At Laurier House, Premier-elect Mackenzie King was making arrangements to enter office at the time in his political career the office of Canadian Premier. He was again giving consideration to his selection of the personnel of his Cabinet.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, only Cabinet Minister currently among the forecasts has been conferring here with his colleague-elect. Others on Mr. King have been Premier Jean Lesage, Gardiner, of Saskatchewan, and Hon. J. L. Ralston, former Liberal Minister of National Defence.

Last of the Cabinet Cabinet to reach Ottawa, Hon. Robert Weir, Minister of Agriculture, and Hon. Norman Rinfret, Minister of National Defence, are due here during the week-end to attend Monday Cabinet meeting. The sitting probably will be final one of the present Cabinet. It has some routine matters to deal with and acceptance by order in Council of the resignation of Hon. W. D. Herridge, Canadian Minister at Washington.

In the meantime, the intimation is made Mr. Bennett will lead the opposition next session, although this is not considered to mean he will continue in the role until the next general election.

While the political looking forward to normal leads pack with the United States have been suspended appreciably, the question of will be taken up promptly again when the new Cabinet assumes office.

Elegance is the Theme Of C.D.S. Style Revue

Lovely Fashions For Day-time And Evening Shown on Belle Stage

Aristocratic new fashions commanded the admiration of a large audience at the Belle Theatre last evening when the Canadian Department Store presented their fall Style Show. The collection of lovely gowns and wraps reflected the highlights of a season of which "elegance" is the keynote.

Sue Belleville mannequins displayed the costumes of the evening most graciously; Mrs. A. Seymour, Mrs. M. Brooks, Misses V. Dermott, P. Kerby, D. McDonald and J. Wheeler. Miss Helen Smith was a natty little page boy, announcing each group of fashions. Tiny Dorothy Bishop and Bobby McIntosh showed boy and girl fashions in their own naive manner, to the delight of the onlookers.

The place of woollens in the Fashions of 1935 was demonstrated by the smart frocks shown last evening.

In rich, deep colorings the frocks stressed rabbit hair, or plain materials combined with gay plaids. The trim tailored lines relieved by trimmings of velveteen gave promise of a distinctly gala note in the sports and spectator style world.

Afternoon dresses in novelty crepes were divided into two classes, the formal or informal. The latter heralded the return of the slightly shorter skirt, cut somewhat fuller. Unusual sleeve treatments distinguished these frocks. Formal afternoon gowns and the new double-duty fashion—gowns with a dual personality made a dramatic entrance into the fashion picture. Matching or contrasting jackets gave these gowns an added interest in their dual life.

Formal evening gowns shown last night were the essence of charm. The beauty of line, emphasized by Old Grecian mode, the motif for evening gowns this season was never more striking than in the draped models of this collection. Scintillating gowns they were as well, for the sparkle of jewelled trimmings, the brilliance of metallic fabrics shone out against the more subtle appeal of softly-toned crepes and velvets.

The Renaissance tones of green, blue, the "stained glass" shades of purple, cerise, and ruby made the evening gowns a delight to the eye. The vogue for contrast in design and color, many clever new ideas were introduced, into trailing scarf the sort that covers the head or wears to become a scarf with the will, accordian pleats beginning with folded bodice treatment and continuing into the skirt all will add glamour to the dance floor this year.

Wraps from smart sports models to lovely evening wraps were shown last evening. The colors of winter coats rival the frocks in their variety and attractiveness and luxurious fur collars of fox, wolf and coon, and the lavish use of silver fox enhanced the coats. The chic hats in felts, velvets and velours were C.D.S. models as well.

Fur coats in gray kid, black broadtail, brown mink, to mention only a few of the outstanding models were also introduced. The evening wraps were of unusual interest. The conventional white lapin and fox never full-length black velvet wraps lined with white satin and featuring flattering collars of white lapin showed a definite departure in view of styles.

Outlined all the models were designed by the Mayfair Beauty Salon and during the evening music was supplied by Sid Samuel's Amebas.

SHORT HAIR MODE IS HERE-TO STAY

Venetian Red Blond Selected as International Mode, With Pastel Variations

New York, Oct. 19—The doctrine that short hair is here to stay was formally admitted into the dogma of the beauty industry by a council of hierarchs deliberating at the annual convention of the National Hairdressers and Cosmetologists' Association in the Hotel Pennsylvania. The color for the coming season will be Venetian red-blonde, according to another proclamation.

The short-hair edict, which is expected to have a stabilizing influence on the barbering branch of the industry, was promulgated in a long resolution adopted at the convention. The resolution embodied five "whereases" and three sections beginning "Resolved." The first "whereas" introduced a statement that "the leading hair stylists of America, here in convention assembled, do definitely recognize that short-hair styles are American in spirit and fashion."

The final "whereas" administered a mild rebuke to certain ritzphers undecies that appear to have impeded the spread of progress recently by being lukewarm about short hair.

"Whereas the publishers of national fashion, style, fashion and women's magazines are not conscious of and cooperative with the style trend in hairdressing as manifested by American women and originated and inspired by the hairdressers of America * * *, therefore be it resolved that all magazines, motion pictures and other mediums of expression do recognize, publicize and co-operate with the American style trend in hairdressing."

The closing paragraph, which carried forward that American style "as based upon short-hair coiffures be fully endorsed and unqualifiedly recommended," rose to a reverence in which the hairdressers referred to themselves as "the cream of the world in the hairdressing profession."

The dictum on color, handed down as a standard, was made by the International Master Ladies' Hairdressers Association. Once decided to have an international conference upon it, the color outcome of the tenth Congress of the association at Brussels last September, which was a Belgian-French decision that chignons were to be advocated.

A somewhat alarming note was struck when the decision that the ideals' rose to bright red, blue and violet were to be the vogue for evening wear, with subdued tones, liable car-lobes (or whole cars, ad lib.) with Venetian red-blonde hair "to break the monotony of the hair-line" are other international developments.

STONE CHURCH MARKS 80TH ANNIVERSARY

On Sunday, October 6, Stone Church on the Front Road of Thurlow Township celebrated its eightieth birthday with a two-storied and dedicated by the Wesleyan Methodist Church in 1855. The guest preacher for the eightieth anniversary was the Rev. L. S. Wight, B.A., of Belleville who for many years was a neighboring pastor in the Stirling Campbellford and Belleville had been more or less familiar with the history of the Sidney charge in which Stone Church belongs.

In the morning Mr. Wight spoke forcefully on the Christian Church as an investment stressing the debt the present generation owes to the early pioneers of Sidney Township and to the sacrifice to themselves erected such substantial edifices to the glory of God giving visibility and permanence to their faith. He urged that the faith of those who had passed to their reward might reappear and flourish in the youth of this generation to whose keeping is entrusted the custody of the spiritual Kingdom so fervently founded by our ancestors.

In the evening Mr. Wight spoke on "The Making of a Soul", indicating that in his belief the soul was built by the actions by each individual, unlike our bodies and physical features which we inherit from our forebears. By investing ourselves into the work of the Master and by identifying fellowship with Him in our patience we win our souls.

The centenarian Grace Rusbee Johnston, the present pastor, read a list of the clergymen who had served the charge during the eighty years of its history, four of whom were in the ministry behind the church. At each service the choir rendered appropriate and inspiring music. Among those who filled the edifice to capacity morning and evening were many former residents who came back to the "Bethel" of former days.

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 19 (CP) — Cash relief for single men will come into effect in Windsor early next week, Welfare Administrator Charles G. Hays advised the city council last night. The system will be put into general use Nov. 4 when cheques will be distributed to the heads of families, he said. Food vouchers are being distributed at present.

Toronto, Oct. 19 (CP)— Chief Constable John Fasido of York Township today was preparing for a complete investigation into the reported presence of three township constables at the Bathurst Golf and Country Club where a raid was made last night on a large quantity of gambling equipment seized.

Vancouver, Oct. 19 (CP)— An Iron necklace, one of 100 made in the 18th century and presented to the ladies of Berlin who gave 1,000 pounds to replenish the Prussian exchequer during the 30 years war, has been presented to the Vancouver city museum by Mrs. Dyer Thomson, Lymington, Hants, England.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Although girls should be trained even more carefully than boys, it is a fact that parents and teachers spend much less thought on the training of the female than on the male. Somehow people get the notion that some day a girl will marry, anyway, therefore, nothing really matters!

The idea of marriage, of course, in the very thing that matters highest. We can not forget that everything considered, the influence of the mother is the greatest influence there possibly can be. Her own mother's influence back and feel how great was the guidance of the mother and how great its influence.

Since the mother is the first adult who comes into contact with the infant and is the one who remains during its tender and most impressionable years, it follows naturally that the mother's personality should be the strongest.

The mother impression is indelible—always and absolutely. A father impression is important also, but never as influential as that of the mother. Therefore, training for motherhood as well as for homebuilding should rank second to none.

As early as possible in the life of a girl she should be made to take an interest in home affairs and in the training of children, and not be allowed to fill away her time and energy in trivialities. Dances and parties are fine, so far as they go. But unfortunately, they go altogether too often. Many a young girl's life, usurping too much of her energy and strength.

The world needs cool, collected, sensible and intelligent women. Of course, loving women there are plenty. Of those who hate kitchens and dining rooms, and who think of marriage solely as a chance for parties more than there should be, there is no lack.

Of card-obsessed females and women who think it a bore and a nuisance to have children, let alone nurse them, America has more than its share. But of young girls and women who take life seriously, who love it and who know how to evaluate it, there is not a common sense, we require more than we have before. The only solution is early preparation and actual training of the very wisest kind.

Don't deprive a girl of fun. Don't! Let her have the exuberance of spirit, but let her have also the poise she need be. Never allow her to belittle the importance in the world. Make her feel instead how really important and how great her influence for good as well as evil can be.

To bring up a girl properly and effectively is a harder job than raising a man child. It may seem so on the surface because it is a more subtle and a more treacherous task.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Potatoes are a starchy food and should not be used excessively. Used in moderation, however, they are a valuable aid in cases of constipation because their bulk promotes the muscular action of the intestines. They are also an excellent reducing food because naturally the appetite readily will be enforced calorie consumption.

Eldorado, Oct. 18.—On Wednesday evening, October 16, the congregation of Union United Church held their annual fowl supper. The evening was ideal and a large crowd was in attendance. Guests from as far as Prince Edward were present. The ladies of the congregation had a very sumptuous supper prepared of chicken, salads, cake and pie and provided ample justice to the good things provided. The tables were beautifully decorated with flowers. After the hunger man was satisfied the large crowd repaired to the auditorium of the church, which was packed to the doors, where a first class program was furnished by local talent, assisted by some friends from Madoc and the visiting clergyman, Rev. W. C. Fletcher, was the chairman for the evening and called on Mr. Colin Reaz of Madoc for the first number, being a vocal solo, "Three Wonderful Words Spell Home" and an encore, "If You Roll Out of Bed With a Smile", with Mrs. Ashley he accompanist. This was followed by a solo by Mr. Harry Thorne, "The Name On the Cover Was Sally" with "When Father Papered the Parlor", Misses Phillip Shaw and Dean Shaw then favored with a violin and organ duet with encore. Mr. C. I. Ross was then heard again in a vocal solo, "Daddy, Dear Old Daddy". Rev. J. C. Lowery of Queensboro gave a short address followed by an organ solo by Vernon Sherwood. Mr. Fletcher then gave a humorous reading, "Paddy McGrath's Interference to Find Bruin" with "Sandy and His Girl" as encore. Mr. William Fletcher of Madoc then favored with a solo, "Bells of the Sea Ring Out". This was followed by a solo by Mrs. Ethel Rvail from Bannockburn. Mr. Stanley Hawthorne rendered in his very winning way "Faithful Pal of Mine" with "Mother" as encore. Rev. Kennedy of Madoc brought greetings from Madoc and gave a short address. Mr. Wm. Fletcher then favored with a vocal solo, "Land of Hope and Glory", followed with instrumental by Finlay and Dean Shaw. A very successful evening's entertainment was brought to a close by all singing the National Anthem. The proceeds of the evening were $70.80.

On Tuesday night the employees and friends of Mr. Hamilton Bowerman, Mountain View Canning Co., to the number of twenty-five gathered at the Mountain View Hall, Ontario, to spend a social evening closing the 1935 season. The evening was spent in dancing, playing, checkers, crokinole and round and square dancing. Just before midnight Mr. and Mrs. Jim Pringle called the manager, Mr. Jay Sprague, forward and read the following address which was read by Mrs. Russell Dickson.

Mountain View, Oct. 15, 1935

Mr. Jay Sprague,

Mountain View Canning Co.

Dear Jay: This social gathering of the employees of Mountain View Canning Co. for the year 1935 has given the employes a long desired opportunity to show their esteem as manager, their appreciation of your kindness and your thoughtful consideration for their comfort, through some other medium than words. Therefore, Jay, we beg you to accept our gift. We trust you will find as much pleasure in the use of it as we find joy in the giving.

Signed on behalf of the employes of Mountain View Canning Co.—Mrs. Jim Pringle, Mrs. Ross Dickson, Margaret Waterhouse, George Whittaker.

Mr. George Whittaker on behalf of the employes of the Mountain View Canning Co. staff presented Mr. Jay Sprague with a lovely Rolling Pin. Mr. Sprague very suitably replied, thanking his employes for the very nice gift and also extended his appreciation for the manner in which all had worked together to make the 1935 season a happy one. All joined in singing "The Fix's a Jolly Good Fellow". Delicious refreshments of sandwiches, jellies, cake and tarts were served. Mr. Jay Sprague acted as host to ice cream. All departed shortly after midnight thinking they had had an enjoyable evening.

Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Lucile Fife of Ameliasburgh were Sunday visitors of Mr. and Mrs. George Lough and family.

Mrs. Charles Sprague spent a couple of days in Picton with her daughter, Mrs. Alfred Poste.

Mr. and Mrs. Percy Parliament and Ralph of Kingston were Sunday visitors at the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harford Parliament.

Mrs. James Barber and son spent Thursday with Mr. and Mrs. George Lough and family.

OPERA VS. JAZZ

Gladys Swarthout has been mentioned as choice of producers to do honors for opera in a movie in which opera would compete against jazz in a "battle of music".

Disciplining Of Small Child

By LISA GRENELLE

YOU CANNOT reason with the normal baby or small child. And slapping, scolding and such physical manifestations of discipline are not, in general, to be recommended. Violence is seldom constructive, seldom anything but immediately and temporarily effective. And unless it is used with great discretion, it teaches the child nothing but a fear of his parent and an instinct to retaliate.

For active physical punishment is a positive stimulus; and, since the object of most disciplin g is to arrest or prevent an action, it is a hopeless tool that is needed.

There are two natural "depressives"—isolation and the presence of blindness on the parents part. In the complete ignoring of the child and his action.

Sound Attitudes

These are sound attitudes, and can never, by any possibility, hurt the child. There is no fear connected with them, and they often solve the problem.

But not always, especially if the child is not completely sure why he is being isolated or ignored.

In disciplining small children and babies, that is the greatest problem: to make it always clear what you want them to do or not to do.

There is no use losing your temper, scolding or shouting. You may succeed in frightening the child, but you will teach it nothing.

The only way ever child can learn is through repetitious connection. A certain action is followed by a certain consequence, over and over again. If he makes a noise in the living room, he is quietly and immediately banished to solitary confinement in his own room.

Immediate Action

And it must be immediately. A baby is like a puppy; he can't as yet reason, nor can he keep the mind on anything for more than a second or two. Retribution must always follow immediately the action that draws it forth.

It is also a mistake to attempt to correct more than one fault at a time—that is, during the same period—day, week or month. One bad habit must be replaced by a good habit, and that good habit firmly established before the next lesson should be begun. Impressive though that next lesson may appear.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Why Doesn't He Write

Dear Miss Fairfax:

When we are together he promises he will write twice a week, but we live in different cities, and when he's away I never hear from him. His only excuse is that he dislikes writing letters.

My parents keep telling me to forget him, that he doesn't care for me and I know it would be hard to forget him as it's real love this time — not an infatuation. His silence makes me restless and unhappy.

Puzzled and Lonely.

I am inclined to agree with your friends that the better plan would be to try and forget him. At the same time I am reminded of a case which came to my attention recently. The man didn't write, though he was engaged to the girl, and they had the date set for the wedding. Sometimes he called her on the long distance phone, but always avoided writing.

The explanation was that he didn't know how to write English, and was ashamed to let his girl know. He could write his native language but as he had left his country in the Near East, when he was a youth of 18, he never learned to write English, though he spoke the language fairly well.

Ashamed of Her Home

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I'm the oldest daughter, 27 years of age, and have had to be the mainstay of our family since I was 16. The chance of happiness has come to me at last, and as my younger brothers and sisters are married, or self-supporting, I would be able to take it if it were not for one thing.

My mother is a good woman, but she is the whining, complaining type, and is a very poor housekeeper. My home is disgustingly unattractive, never neat and always full of clutter. My boy friend comes from lovely people, and his home is a dream of good taste and order. I have been there to see him. Naturally he expects me to return this courtesy, and yet I'm afraid, if I do, he won't want to come back.

As I'm employed all day, I can do very much around the house.

Spinster.

Naturally you've got to return your friend's courtesy, and invite him to your home. But I agree with you; it would be fatal. If your home is as unattractive as you describe it. You've got to make your mother understand your position, as tactfully as possible.

Then, get rid of the useless stuff which clutters up the place. A trip to the ash-man or janitor will be money well spend. See if your husband won't do a little painting and papering. If he won't, paint-cleaner and wallpaper-cleaner are miracles. And I think you will be forgiven if you try your hand at these things some Sunday. But, whatever you do, don't invite the boy friend until the place is presentable.

Unemployed, He Can't Afford to Marry Her a Good Time

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I can't afford to take her to clubs, dances and movies at present, as I'm unemployed. I am able to 22. Naturally she enjoys going out and feels she shouldn't miss out on the dances and all the fun because I can't afford to take her.

She claims she sees nothing wrong in going out with friend. She cares for me a lot, and has her tried to play a future together, although it is hard at present.

Mighty Puzzled.

One must take a chance in everything in life—in marriage, love, business, friendship, even in crossing the street. So you've got to have faith that this 22-year-old girl means what she says about going to dances and places of amusement.

Meantime, why not wear out the doorstep of your senator, congressman, governor mayor or other political pundit till he gives you a job? You know, of course, that many new jobs have been created, and a man who knows how to make a nuisance of himself, to some politician with whom he has a drag, is the victor nine times out of ten.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

(Copyright, 1936, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Small Dinner

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. I would like to invite my husband's aunt and uncle to dinner. We do not have a maid and our dining-room is too small to allow for the proper type of service. Since I am to cook and serve the meal myself, what, and how would you suggest serving?

What seating arrangements should I make for just the four of us?

2. Should both a bread and butter plate and a salad plate be placed for each person?

4. Should we allow the dishes to stand without clearing them away or washing them? We will spend the evening at home.

N.

1. With a little imagination in your planning of the menu and serving and with a little "sleight of hand" in the serving, you can give a dinner for four with great charm and hospitality. But don't leave anything to chance—have every detail definitely planned ahead of time. I don't know what the specialties of your cookery are, but from them choose ones in which you have especial success, and ones that can be most easily and gracefully served.

If you have a soup tureen—they are becoming tremendously popular—use this for the serving of your soup. Or individual covered soup dishes, if you have them. Or a large soup or cream soup cups. Or have fruit for the first course, slices of melon, or fruit cocktail. Or a fish-cocktail, shrimp, crabmeat, lobster.

I hope that you make such a delicious casserole that you can serve this for your main course, for this is the safest of main dishes and can be so perfect. With this your choice of food accessories. Or a roast for this course, beef, lamb, or chicken, or duck.

Then a salad course, with individual salads already prepared and chilling in the ice-box, or, better, the salad chilling in a largish salad bowl, waiting for you to add the dressing and to "toss" the salad at table. With this, cheese, one kind at a time, of course, and toasted crackers on French bread. This last course is very inexpensive, easy to serve, and adds an appropriate and festive touch to your dinner.

Then for your dessert serve something that you can prepare ahead of time, a lemon meringue or chocolate cream pie, or delicious layer cake, or a compote of fruits with small iced or plain cakes or a layer cake, or ice cream made in your ice-box and served with a sauce and small cakes.

And serve your after-dinner coffee in your living room. This will take you out of the small dining-room, will be a gracious service, and will mean that you can be leisurely about the serving, after you are so spend the evening at home.

2. Yes, as hostess, sit at the head of your table, with your husband, as host, sits at the foot of the table, opposite you. Your husband, as the woman guest of honor, sits at the right of your husband. Your husband's uncle, the man guest of honor, you sit on your right.

4. If, after dinner, you can clear the door on your kitchen and dining-room, do this, and leave the cleaning up and washing for later or for the next day. It is more important that you chat with your guests than it is to spend your time washing dishes on the evening of your party.

Ladislas Farago was sent to Abyssinia as Associated Press correspondent when that country became the centre of world interest. He spent three months there, visited the Emperor and political leaders, the people of the interior and the disputed territories that are now the danger spots. His book, "Abyssinia on the Eve" describes his many adventures in his quest for news. He discovered that invasion from foreign powers is not the only menace to Abyssinia, but that her future also depends on the solution of her racial and religious problems. "There is no doubt," he states, "that the racial question will always be the first problem in this country. Whether it remains free or is brought under foreign control." Mr. Farago has illustrated his book with photographs of Abyssinian personages and places.

A challenge to modern literature is given by T. S. Eliot, poet and critic, in his book "After Strange Gods". The volume, sub-titled, "A Primer of Modern Heresy" is made up of three lectures delivered at the University of Virginia, Mr. Eliot has presented his conception of the meaning of tradition as applied to modern English literature. He maintains that contemporary literature is suffering from religious weakness which has a crippling effect on men of letters. "There is no doubt, some will think, that I know what they think who think of his contemporaries," he says in his preface, "a standard which has less to do with literary criticism than with literary gossip. I am uncertain of my ability to criticise my contemporaries as artists; I succeed only in platforms of these lectures only in the role of moralist."

"Escape", edited by H. G. Armstrong, U.S.N., is a collection of articles collected from French, German, English, Australian and American sources, who escaped from prison camps. Captain Armstrong tells precisely the courage and endurance necessary for these dangerous adventures, and the ingenuity of military prison. In his introduction, he points out the wrong and foolish attitudes of the "escapers" due to their nationality, but all were alike in their high regard for sportsmanship. He states the fact that the volume is not intended to glorify war, but nor does it wearily rake over its miseries. Some of the stories simply told by brave men, who by their courage and mother wit overcame great difficulties and won their way back to freedom."

Dr. Leo Wolman, professor of the railway problem, the impartial study railway problem, the impartial study of the railway problem and the solution of their problems, the author at the same time proposes remedies. Professor Pound is well qualified to discuss the problems of Canada's railways. Himself a Canadian, born in Sudbury, Ontario, he is Master of Arts from the University of British Columbia and has been for ten years in the Department of Economics at Princeton where he is established in his reputation. Public Utilities, Government and Railways. He has had very intensive study of the Canadian Railway situation over a period of eight years.

To have served, for many years, a distinguished clientele is evidence of our ability to create good will, and to retain it.

DANGEROUS WORDS . . .

"I don't want to play"

HIS playmates and all the gay, sparkling out-of-doors call, "Come out, come out!" Yet—Billy prefers to stay in.

"I don't want to play," he says. To every mother these words are danger signals.

You wonder what is wrong. The answer may be one of many things. Perhaps your child is taking cold. Maybe his digestive system is out of order. But most likely of all—the underlying cause of the trouble is constipation.

Give a SPECIAL laxative

At such times as these it is a wise precaution to give a laxative—not just any laxative, but one made especially for him. Give him the children's laxative—Castoria!

Castoria is safe—contains no harsh purgatives, no narcotics, is not habit-forming. It is gentle—will not disturb digestion nor cause griping pain. And it is thoroughly!

Ask your doctor about Castoria. He will assure you that Castoria contains only such ingredients as are suitable for a child's system.

Children like it

Modern mothers, who realize they shouldn't force bad-tasting medicine on a child who is already upset; rejoice to find that their children like the taste of Castoria—like it without a struggle!

Keep a bottle of Castoria always ready in your medicine chest. (The family size bottle is especially economical.) Give it—from babyhood to 11 years—whenever a child needs a laxative.

Cheek Blushes Appear If One Sleeps Plenty

By HELEN FOLLETT

Natural blushes seem to have disappeared. Pink cheeks are out-of-fashion now and then, but they are a rare beauty asset. Rouge has performed as an understudy for the simple reason that cheeks are rarely pink. The home-grown cheek roses these days.

There are reasons why pretty cheeks aren't blooming. Life is too noisy and speedy. Young people don't get enough sleep and nervous systems get to acting up. The complexion suffers from sluggish circulation, poor complexion, it hasn't done anything. It is sympathetic, so it goes wan or gray. And then one has to resort to the make-up kit.

Late hours will destroy the finest complexion. In the old days, when all the world went to bed at a reasonable hour, there was no need of rouge. Girls awakened in the morning with cheeks flushed and pretty. The modern woman whose life is a rushing, activity cannot afford to display a complexion of exquisite coloring.

You can't get away from it. You can't cry it down—health is the foundation of beauty, and the movie star knows what. Do they take good care of themselves? It is a safe guess.

Among scalp specialists there is a difference of opinion concerning the frequent use of water on the hair. Some say it removes much of the natural oil, causes the hair to become brittle, and dries the hair. Is no more bad effects upon the hair than it has upon the skin. Water is a weak shampoo does no harm. The scalp is frictioned, there is a reaction of the blood and healthful is bound to be beneficial to the growth of fresh hair.

The long bob subsides gracefully to a variety of arrangements. It lends itself to what is known as the permanent waffles.

It can do a swirl at the back, burst into curls, clusters over one ear. It can be brushed upward to form crests or curls, which are fashionable this season. It may flutter in a silky curtain of charming ringlets to form a balance at the back.

But the short cut is not dead and done for. It is the perfect style for the business girl who hasn't time to plug her poor head full of metal curlers of to fuss with brads and puffs.

Duce's Two Sons Seek Foe Planes

Asmara, Eritrea, Oct. 19.—(AP)—Bruno Mussolini, son of Premier Mussolini, and Bruno, like all other Italian aviators, here, were burning with eagerness to encounter and the Ethiopian aviators.

Each pilot over Ethiopian territory on this Northern front, they searched busily for Ethiopian fighters, hoping to gain the distinction of having "his first to bring one down." Bruno Mussolini has been signed either in the air or on the ground. Ethiopian aviators flying have been against Ethiopian air raids. Even the street fighting of Aantara are extinguished every night.

TORONTO STOCKS CLOSE

Toronto, Oct. 19 (CP)—Toronto industrial shares marked standard up in today's short session, with buying expediting in the oil, liquor and metal shares as well as in Ford A and Massey Harris.

International Petroleum had an advance of a full point to 26¾ while gains of the subsidiaries reached up to Imperial and British American. Walkers Canadian pushed up to 20½ but weakened to hold a gain of a minor fraction. Distillers Seagrams added about a half point and Industrial Alcohol A added the minimum.

International Nickel was limited to about a fraction and Consolidated Mining Smelters added a couple of points. Ford A touched 36⅝, up a half point and Bradorn and C.P.R. closed with a firm note.

The day's gainers included Western Canada Flour, Maple Leaf, Fanny Farmer and Consolidated Bakeries. Utilities leaned to the up side, the Steels and strong spots included Page Hersey, Standard Metals and Dominion while Canadian Dredge Preferred and Building Products worked higher.

TORONTO MINES—Close

Teck-Hughes, 22½—The short interest in Hughes declined by a seven-trimming today as the price was pushed up three times to 23¼ as compared with a closing price of 23.63 yesterday.

McWatters sold up to 3.65 and closed around 3.63 for a gain of about 4 cents. Central Patricia at 1.36 added 6 and Sturgo gained about 4.

Lake Shore, Donnie and McIntyre sold down 5c on a point and Kirkland Lake Gold 2c. Hughes Owens traded around 4.05.

Base metals were weak, particularly Hudson Bay which sagged below the 13 mark. Noranda dropped ¼ point.

Eldorado's close at 3.25 was up 7 cents for the day. Bear and Frontier were steady and other issues dormant.

MICKEY MOUSE IS 7 YEARS OLD

Mickey Mouse recently celebrated his seventh birthday, and his status as the one being in time or space who has reached man's estate at so early an age.

No prattling child is this Mickey—small wonder who is being beginning to make his presence felt to those immediately around him. For the nature of Mickey Mouse has something of the calonus about it. His influence extends around the globe.

For all the things that have happened to Mickey in the short span of his existence, he might well be 70. For all the wisdom he has expressed, he might well be as old as Methuselah.

Mickey Mouse has had more honors showered upon him than many an international or historical hero. No renowned author, physician, or claim the distinction of space in the Encyclopedia Britannica. No child can claim recognition by the League of Nations.

Ever since the eventful day in 1928 when Mickey Mouse first came into that world as "Steamboat Willie" at the Colony Theatre in New York, the honors have been rolling up on both Mickey and his master—Walt Disney.

The first recognition of this recognition came, strangely enough, in the form of a medal struck off for Walt Disney by the Lieutenant-Governor of the Isle of Man. The most recent manifestation of the gold medal presented to Mr. Disney by the League of Nations a few weeks ago.

Mickey has been a subject for sculptors and painters throughout the world. He has appeared, in one way or another, in the literature of every civilized nation. Seven months of international statesmen have not gone without mention of this 7 year-old personality; his name adorns the minutes of more than one such conference. He has obtained the position from which he rules the funnyhouse of young and old, rich and poor, highbrow and lowbrow people of all stations and all countries.

Mickey's creator, and his brother, Roy Disney, founded the Disney Studios, 1923, with a capital of less than $500. His soon elaborated on the original Mickey idea by double-exposing a live character in with the animated drawing of animals.

These cartoons were produced for about two years, after which Mr. Disney hit upon the idea of Oswald, the rabbit. It was during the production of the Oswald cartoons that Mickey Mouse was first conceived. It was an uphill fight to launch his frisky little cartoon star on the screen, but once his character got the attention of the public, Mickey took not only the country but the world by storm.

Consolidated Chibougamau

Brokers report that the recent buying in Chibougamau stocks on the "Street" market has been of an excellent character. Although the stock has advanced about 10 points this week, offerings are said to be light. Indications point to a severe any fair-sized buying order at this time would cause a rise in the market—up in price. Local brokers report that the stock is becoming more popular by the day as a large number of inquiries have been received by the writers, and for information on the Mine.

Chibougamau is in the happy position of being financed by the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. This financial backing has enabled stock at 36 and 40 cents a share with the next option at $1.00 a share.

HOLLINGER

Concluding an analysis of Hollinger Consolidated Gold Mines Limited, Bongard and Company, stockbrokers, say: "Hollinger's cash at present property and the Young-Davidson has been one of expenditions at a profit", and the outlook, particularly when the management has been successful in opening lower than that being obtained from the Dome Mines Limited property, is that the enterprise will continue to earn a profit and distribute it on conditions warrant, to the shareholders in its dividends and bonuses."

Montreal, Oct. 19 (CP)—Canadian turkeys to the extent of 1,000,000 pounds have been advanced during the past week by the Canadian Turkey Co-operative Council, it was announced today. The action was taken because of plentiful supplies of turkeys in the country and the fact that the demand for turkeys is not expected to be excellent, business in the Argentine, due to the poor crop, is disrupting the 1935 production in Canada are understood to be at a satisfactory rate.

Low Priced Issues Are Being Scrutinized By Interested Traders

The rise in market values of stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange has been of somewhat proportions in recent months. It has indicated a return of confidence on the part of the average investor. The Canadian markets have only started to respond the last few days. The advance in the bank stocks is generally followed by an advance in the sound investment issues. While all this is going on the speculative trader is delving deeply into the affairs of the various corporations whose stock is selling at around the $5 mark. This sort of individual calculates that there is a better run for his money in low-priced issues as his chances for a 100 per cent profit in a year-old personality; his name adorns the minutes of more than one such conference. He has obtained the position from which he rules the funnyhouse of young and old, rich and poor, highbrow and lowbrow people of all stations and all countries.

B.C.I. SQUAD TRIMS O.S.D.

Take Third Start in The Senior Section by 23 to 10

Retaining their undefeated record in the senior section of the O. S. D. S. A. Belleville Collegiate won their third start from the O.S. D. senior squad 23 to 10.

Features of the game were the broken field running of Johnston and Bradford of the B.C.I. squad and the placement kicking of Malcolm of the O.S.D. team, who kicked two from 40 yards out, one being perfect and the other just missing by inches.

In the first half the B.C.I. team scored to gain first downs as will. Johnston carried it over for a try twice, one of these being converted. Just before half-time Malcolm of the O.S.D. grabbed up a fumble 30 yards out and raced over to put the lads from the School for the Deaf in the scoring column. He converted also with a nice placement. The half ended B.C.I. 11; O.S.D. 6.

Early in the third quarter Baker broke through for another try and soon after Derry repleaded. O.S.D. were missing their tackles. Outside wing, Major, had to be carried from the field but returned later.

O.S.D. were fighting hard deep in their own territory. They changed from an aerial attack to line plunging and Lavalle gained three first downs on nice plunges to put the ball on B. C. I. 40 part line from where Malcolm dropped one between the posts for 2 points. On a second attempt, which missed by a few inches, Hoagg rouged Milk. The O.S.D. squad showed to advantage in this quarter. They made large gains but were unable to score again.

For the B.C.I. Johnston, Baker and Derry stood out while Malcolm, Lavalle and Major were the pick of the O.S.D. squad.

Line-ups—

'Bad Man' Chief Lynx Held To Draw by Dan Petroff in Hour of Torrid Wrestling

Each Wins a Fall But Bell Stops The Bout

KATELMACH WINS

Softens Parnell Enough to Win Odd Fall of Three

Action predominated Friday night's wrestling bouts at the Belleville arena, in all three bouts presented saw an opponent at least bail the undefeated Chief Lynx. Although Dan Petroff did not actually defeat the villainous Indian, the methodical Russian held Chief Lynx to a draw after 60 minutes of...torrid wrestling during which no...ter was asked or given by either contestant. Petroff won the initial fall...much to the satisfaction of over 800 fans, but the cagey Indian returned...the fray in the second division and was the aggressor as the final bell sounded to halt hostilities and the bout was declared a draw. The semi-final bout of the evening, during which the rugged Joe Katelmach of Winnipeg, won over Walter Parnell, was decidedly the most unsuccessful slaughter ever witnessed locally, as the two grapplers ferociously attacked each other in every fair and unfair manner, with Katelmach holding the extra reserve strength that gave him the odd fall in three. Ali Hassan, the terrible Turk, proved very strong for Jack Pearl and won the initial bout of the evening. Prior to the bout Hasan gave an exhibition of his herculean strength, by tearing a deck of cards lengthwise with his bare hands, and breaking a chain around his chest, by expansion and other feats of remarkable strength.

Plenty of Action

The Main bout opened with Chief Lynx immediately displaying his villainous attack as he actually choked Dan Petroff, the 205 pound Russian. Finish of action was in evidence as both grapplers resorted to many punishing holds and resorted to rough tactics. After 27 minutes of torrid wrestling Chief Lynx attacked Petroff with a series of flying tackles and seemed certain winner when suddenly the methodical Russian bounded off the ropes and flattened the Indian with a body spread. It took the Rama referee Indian by surprise. After a brief breathing spell Chief Lynx resorted to the squared circle and ferociously attacked Petroff, who realized the Indian's every move won him the second fall, when he pinned Chief Lynx's shoulders to the mat. Petroff was forced to concede the round after 31 minutes of grappling. The third round proved interesting and the boys both seemed to have the edge at times. When the final bell sounded as Chief Lynx applied a hammer-lock. The bout was declared a draw.

In the semi-final scrap the much-hated Walter Parnell was forced to taste defeat at the hands of Joe Katelmach, the Winnipeg favorite. Parnell, still the villainous actor, opened the bout by...gnaciously attacking Katelmach. Fists, knees and elbows were seen flying in the air from all angles as Katelmach resisted but Parnell won the initial fall after 18 minutes of wrestling. The relentless Katelmach and wincing with a body press. The contestants continued hostilities outside of the ring, when Parnell kicked Katelmach. Cooler heads were separated them and despite the fact Parnell was still the aggressor, when the second round opened Katelmach eventually were Parnell down with a series of drop kicks and won the second fall with a body press in some 8.00 minutes. Parnell returned for the final round and seemed fresher. He was forcing the fight and seemed certain of victory, when he attacked Katelmach with a series of flying tackles, but suddenly like a flash from the blue Katelmach side-stepped Parnell and flattened him with a double elbow smash that left Parnell prostrate. Katelmach fell on his opponent for the third fall and victory.

Dunlop to Return

After demonstrating his herculean strength and displaying his muscular development, Ali Hassan, the Terrible Turk strongman, proved too strong for Jack Pearl and was forced to concede the only fall to the conquering hero, when the Turk applied a step-over toe hold after 12 minutes of speedy action. The wrestlers will return to the Belleville Arena next Thursday at which time Al Al and Dunlop will return to local wrestling activities versus a suitable opponent.

ALBERT COLLEGE IN SECOND PLACE

Defeat St. Mikes 20-1 to Draw Near The B. C. I. Squad

Displaying too much speed and general all round ability the Albert College football squad moved into sole possession of second place in the senior group of the Bay of Quinte interscholastic football group with a one-sided 30 to 1 victory over the youthful St. Michaels squad at the Fair Grounds yesterday afternoon.

The Reach-coached team started the necessary attack in the backfield as well as the line of scrimmage which repeatedly held off the attack of the "Saints" who went down fighting in true spirit. Behind the true and accurate kicking of McCrie, their ace punter, the Albert College squad rolled up a decisive score and were always the aggressor, despite the encouraging efforts of the Schricker-coached St. Mikes gang, who never admitted defeat until the final whistle. The game was bitterly fought and any one quarter given or asked by either squad.

Scoring Opened Early

Albert opened the scoring early in the first quarter when McCrie hoisted the pig-skin far over the St. Mikes' goal line and "Tom" Burton raced over to block an Irish kick only to have Burton take advantage and down Doyle for a safety touch, with the count standing 6 to 0. O'Neill hoisted the ball far over Albert's goal line for the only scoring point registered by the Irish. On an inside kick by Cox, Fox caught the oval and raced 25 yards for a touchdown, which was not converted. Jones hurled a beautiful forward pass to Fox as the half time whistle sounded with the score standing 9 to 1 for Albert College.

21 Points in Last Quarter

The third quarter saw numerous aerial attacks, via the forward pass route being staged by both squads to no avail and the third quarter until the final quarter, when Fox raced around right end for a touchdown, which McCrie promptly converted. With the score standing 15 to 1 and second fumble by St. Mikes saw Chant break through and fall on the ball for an Albert try, that brought the count to 20 to 1 for the victorious Albert squad.

The line-ups—

Albert College—Flying wing Burton; halves, Fox, Burgess, McCrie; quarter, Jones; snap, Clouse; insides, Weir, Claxton; middles, Glover, Miller; outsides, Chant, Hollingsworth; alternate, McIntosh, G. Clouse, Allen, MacDonald and Hodder.

St. Michaels—Flying wing Langford; halves O'Neill, R. Cox, J. Doyle; quarter, Amo; insides, Doran, Meichior; middles, Reed, Whalen; outsides, Volain, Dimminie; alternates R. Peets, Lye, McQuaid and Doran.

Referee—Hilson. Umpire, Andrews.

Hurt Forces Omaha to Retire

William Woodward's Omaha

By CHARLES "BOSKEY" AYRES

Toronto, Oct. 19.—Omaha, crack three-year-old in the barn of William Woodward, owner of the Belair stud, will not face the barrier any more this year. Hope that the king of the three-year-old division would again be seen in action this year, went to smithereens when Trainer "Sunny Jim" Fitzsimmons announced that the big outstanding son of Gallant Fox was put away, knee deep in straw, for the year.

A mysterious injury was sustained by Omaha a few days before he was to be seen under colors in the rich Travers Stakes. It was so serious that the Woodward color bearer had to decline his engagement in this important turf event.

This announcement is certainly a blow to Owner Woodward, as well as to the racing fans, as Omaha was nominated for all the rich stakes in the United States yet to be run and his absence will be a great disappointment to many race track operators, who were figuring on showing Omaha to the public over their racing strips...

Loads Money Winners.

Omaha, at the present time, is the leading money winner of the year with a total of $142,235 to his credit. He has won seven races this year, during the "Triple Crown" of racing in America—the Kentucky Derby, Preakness and Belmont Stakes—an accomplishment which stamped him as the leading three-year-old in the country hardly before the summer was in.

Omaha's last appearance was at Chicago where he captured the Arlington Stakes at Arlington Park.

How bad Omaha's injuries really are we can say as the present time, but it is to be hoped that next year the son of Spinard will return to racing and carry the famous white and red dotted silks of William Woodward to many important turf victories which we are sure Omaha can accomplish.

Ex-Canadian General Seeks Adventure on Spanish Main

Picture shows the Fionia in Halifax Harbor. At the wheel is Brigadier-General F. S. Benoit, while Mrs. others are their son, Julian, and daughter, Jeanne.

Halifax, Oct. 19.—After a long and distinguished career in the Canadian Army Brigadier-General F. S. Benoit of Ottawa turned toward the sea in retirement for contentment and perhaps adventure. He has found plenty of both.

Putting away his brilliant uniforms and brass hats the "former commander of military district No. 5 pulled on his oil-skins and a jaunty sou'wester and went sailing away to the Spanish Main with his entire family.

And now a Canadian general is piloting his sea-going family around among the West Indies isles in waters once sailed by the renowned British admirals Nelson and Hood.

Adventure early began, with a northbound wind to swift bite the lee of the Fionia, the family yacht which has the general at the helm. It took four weeks for the 38-foot beam-rigged floating home to reach Halifax from Quebec on the first leg of the journey south.

"It was not just like canoeing on a canal," Brigadier-General Benoit, who retired from the service this year, asserted on arrival in Halifax. He had brought the Fionia through a terrific storm which had caused many deaths and numerous shipwrecks along the North Atlantic seaboard.

Plenty of Adventure.

"We certainly had variety—never a dull moment," he explained in describing he had piloted the small yacht from Quebec with Mrs. Benoit and their son, Julian, and daughter, Jeanne, accompanying.

Away to the south a warmer clime and friendlier seas were beckoning and after a ten-days' stop at Halifax where eighty-year-ago Brigadier-General Benoit was district engineer officer, the Fionia spread her sails for this Spanish Main. Another daughter, Jocelyn, has joined the family.

The Fionia, their floating home, is a far stouter craft than her 38-foot length would indicate. Brigadier-General Benoit had the yacht built to his own specifications at a Quebec shipyard in the spring.

Spent Winter in South.

Modelled upon lines of a North Sea fishing vessel the yacht is unlike other Canadian according to her owner, "where nothing for inches can beat her in seaworthiness."

Possessing an unusually large beam the Fionia has a large cabin and ample sleeping accommodations. A somewhat ungainly appearance, above the water, although trim and tidy, belies her really fine lines below the water-line. A small gasoline engine is used only for arriving at and departing from harbor.

While the general sails the family yacht Mrs. Benoit cooks the meals. And the children assist in all departments. They expect to spend the winter cruising in the West Indies and to return to Canada in the spring.

ALLIANCE OFFER BY ITALY DENIED

French Premier Confers With Representatives of 3 Nations

(A. P. Copyright)

Paris, Oct. 19 —Premier Laval, caught in a three-ply crush of British, Italian and French political sentiment, had hasty discussions today with representatives of all three factions.

Officially said there was "not a word of truth" in the report Italy had offered a military alliance with France.

French authorities today completed extensive measures to cope with any emergencies which may arise from fighting near the borders of French Somaliland.

Special vigilance will be maintained against a possible large influx of Ethiopian soldiers or civilians across the frontier.

French warships are keeping close watch on the coastline while airplanes daily patrol the border.

REOPEN PROBE IN MULDOON CASE

Attorney General Will Have to Set Aside Coroner's Jury Verdict

Toronto, Oct. 19 (CP)—Inquiry into the mysterious death of William Muldoon, Smith's Falls engineer, is being reopened, it was indicated at Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck announced his department would move before the courts to have the verdict of the coroner's jury set aside and an new inquest ordered.

The application for a new inquest will be made before the weekly court at Cayuga Hall, probably today. The coroner's jury which investigated the Muldoon death returned a decision that Muldoon had come to his death from blows administered by a person or persons unknown.

Following the inquest Dr. R. S. Frankish, Ontario medico-legal expert, performed another autopsy and his report is said to have been in variance with that of the doctor who reported at the inquest Muldoon had died as a result of blows.

$5,000 REWARD NOT DISTRIBUTED

Reward Remained Intact Attorney General Says

Toronto, Oct. 19 (CP)—No part of the $5,000 reward for capture of "Sam S. Labelle" has been distributed, but it was learned definitely at Queen's Park.

At the trial of Jack Bannon in London Crown Attorney Newton announced Bannon had been paid $700 for information which led to the arrest and conviction of Labelle Melaney. But if such a payment was made it was from the $4,000 reward fund but rather is the nature of a fee paid by the police for information received.

Attorney-General Roebuck refused to discuss the payment to Bannon but it was made clear the $5,000 reward remains intact.

London Anticipates Easier Tariff Policy

London, Oct. 19—(CP Cable)—Mackenzie King's new administration will be the magnitude of his majority in the Dominion, declared the Spectator today. Relations with Great Britain promise to be at least as cordial under Mr. King as during R. B. Bennett's five years.

The Liberals will have it all their own way in the new parliament, the new statesman. "What this means in Canada is probably not a great deal. They have no very clear policy apart from opposition to Mr. Bennett's policy. There is somewhat easier tariff policy may be expected following four years of considerable interpretation of the Ottawa agreements.

Fishermen Defeated Me Says Hon. W. E. Ernst

Montreal, Oct. 19.—(CP)—On his way to Ottawa to attend the final session of parliament, the defeated Conservative Government, Fisheries Minister Ernst said he lost his seat in the west, Queens-Lunenburg in Monday's elections, passed through Montreal today.

"The fishermen defeated me," Mr. Ernst told reporters. "They say we hadn't done enough for them. We had a scheme permitting them to borrow on real estate if they wanted to build or improve their boats. But that was not enough. Other countries were subsidizing their export of salt cod. The fishermen wanted us to do the same."

Mr. Ernst, who celebrated his 58th birthday today, was accompanied by his bride of a month.

Evening Classes to Get Bigger Grant

Toronto, Oct. 19 (CP)—Upward revision of Ontario government grants for vocational evening classes was announced by Education Minister L. J. Simpson.

Pointing out government grants had been drastically reduced and "vocational advisory committees of several school boards had discontinued evening classes, Dr. Simpson said importance of the classes required they should receive greater assistance. He said evening classes for adults were very important at a time when there was so much unemployment. Dr. Simpson said the basis of government contribution would be the same as for day classes but without reduction. This will result in a considerable increase in legislative grants for night classes.

ASK DOMINION TO BEAR RELIEF

Dominion Mayors Will Seek Conference With Premiers

Toronto, Oct. 19 (CP)—The new Dominion government is to be urged by the Dominion Association of Mayors to carry the entire relief burden, Mayor Simpson said Friday. He said should the Mackenzie King administration agree to this policy, it would mean a saving of more than $4,000,000 to Toronto taxpayers.

Mayor Simpson said he had already taken steps to ask Mayor Houde of Montreal, President of the Mayors' Association, to petition Prime Minister-elect King to confer with the association during the Dominion-Provincial conference

SIX OF CREW DIE IN BOILER BLAST

Twenty Injured on Italian Liner at Alexandria, Egypt

Alexandria, Egypt, Oct. 19—(AP) —Six members of the crew were killed and 20 injured today in two boiler explosions aboard the Italian liner Ausonia. The explosions occurred as the vessel entered port after a voyage from Haifa, Palestine.

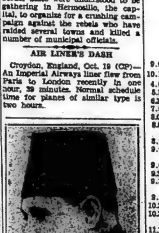
Most of the casualties were among the ship's fueling staff.

Three men met their deaths outright and three others died of their injuries aboard the British navy's hospital ship Maine, on duty in the harbor.

The explosions occurred just after British and Egyptian quarantine officials had left the Ausonia at the entrance to the harbor.

Passengers were removed safely and the vessel was beached, still blazing furiously, after a British sailor aboard a small ship cut the burning hull open with an acetylene torch despite the clouds of steam, smoke and flames rolling from the vessel.

British naval craft is the harbor assisted in the rescue and fighting the blaze on the 12,566-ton vessel, built in 1926 and had been engaged in the irregular weekly passenger service from Trieste, Italy, to Alexandria.



POPULAR UPRISING CALLED

Nogales, Sonora, Mex., Oct. 18 (A P)—Preparations for an organized drive against the Sonora rebels were being made today amid reports the insurgents had issued a manifesto urging popular uprising "against the tyranny of the present regime".

Mundo Nuevo, state and federal authorities throughout the four-power Sonora state were understood to be gathering in Hermosillo, the capital, to organize for a crushing campaign against the rebels who have raided several towns and killed a number of municipal officials.

Man, Incurably Ill, Permits Physicians To Implant Trachoma Virus in Eye

Albuquerque, N.M., Oct. 19 (AP) —A white man's sacrifice may aid the eyesight of Indians.

The white man was Clarence Brown, 30-year-old Iowan from Iowa City who risked and lost the sight of his one good eye in medical science's most valuable new information on trachoma, a dangerous disease.

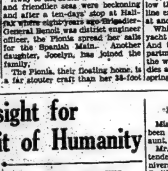
Brown, pronounced by physicians incurably ill from a malignant disorder, entered the U. S. Indian hospital at Fort Apache, Ariz., last spring and permitted physicians to implant the virus of trachoma in his remaining eye.

The American Journal of Ophthalmology says the experiments, Microbiology says the experiments, after weeks after the virus was implanted in Brown's eye he became totally blind, and the doctors' report said, trachoma is a communicable disease.

The experiment proved also the virus is small it can pass through a filter which would halt ordinary germs.

HURLED BY TRAIN FOR FORTY FEET

London, Oct. Oct. 19 (CP)—A. E. Ragsdale, R.R. 4, St. Thomas, was instantly killed yesterday afternoon by London and Port Stanley train No. 11 at stop 12, four miles north of St. Thomas.



The train was travelling north from St. Thomas to London Motorman J. W. King and Conductor Jack Kay, both of London, Ont., in charge. King saw an auto stopped on the Talbotville Concession of Yarmouth, the driver talking to a man standing beside the auto. When the auto started across the track King was able to slow down and allow the auto to cross in safety.

Then he speeded up only to see a man following the car across the tracks. This time he had no chance to avoid an accident and the man was hit and badly mangled.

Mr. Ragsdale was an elderly man and quite deaf.

Reckless Driving Charge Laid

Brantford, Oct. Oct. 19 (CP)— A charge of reckless driving has been laid against Harry L. Cullen of Hamilton whose car struck and killed Dorothy Mabel Margaret Cooper, aged 9, of Langford. The child was leaving Langford school No. 3 highway for her home when Mr. Cullen's car will be resumed on Monday, Cullen's car went into the ditch and he is still confined to a Hamilton hospital with rib fractures and torn muscles.

HOCKEYISTS BEGIN PRACTISE

Kitchener, Ont., Oct. 19 (CP)— The Toronto Maple Leafs and Syracuse Stars will put their skates on and get down to ice practice here today. It was announced after the 30-odd players had been put through their daily physical training drill at Victoria Park under direction of Major Harold Mallamyne.

The training practice today will be brief and mild. More serious ice work begins Monday.

Three Records Broken as McGill Wins Track Meet For Sixth Successive Year

University Scores 66 Points With Edwards in Star Role

VARSITY SECOND

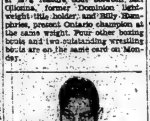
Loaring of Western Finishes First in Three Events

Toronto, Oct. 19—(CP)—McGill's senior intercollegiate track and field athletes turned spectators at the end of today's McGill-University of Toronto football struggle, satisfied they had done their share towards adding a sixth all-McGill, weekend.

The Redmen from Montreal with the colored veteran Phil Edwards, Gordon McIntyre and Murray Bourne showing the way, captured the intercollegiate track and field championship for the six a game series here yesterday with a total of 66 points. University of Toronto, perennial McGill rivals in every branch of sport, were second behind in second place with 32. Other colleges competing were University of Western Ontario who tallied 30 points, McMaster of Hamilton with 18 and Varsity with 6.

Three records were smashed. Edwards, star of two olympic games and the 1934 Canadian British Empire Games squad, set the first new mark when he ran the 880-yard run in 1:57 2-10. The old mark of 1:58 4-10 was set by Jimmy Sampson of McGill in 1931.

The second record fell when Larry O'Connor of Varsity topped the timbers over the 120-yard route in 15 seconds to share 3-10 second off the former mark set last year by long Jim Worrall, then of McGill.



The final mark to be broken was in the javelin throw when Claude Moore of McMaster University and, formerly of Ottawa Glebe Collegiate threw the spear 177 feet 10 1-4 inches. The heave smashed the old mark by nearly 15 feet.

Johnny Loaring, former Windsor High School lad and, now a student at Western, stole the high-scoring honors with his two firsts, when he captured the 100-yard dash from his schoolmate, Earl Parry who holds the century championship of Ontario then went on to snatch victory from Edwards with a last driving finish in the 440. His final victory came in the 220-yard hurdles when he nipped "Red" Record of McGill at the finish line. Parsons took the 220 dash as the two lads accounted for all the western points.

THE TOY BULLDOG

HOWARD WHEELER

The local two-fisted fighter who meets Billy Knight of the Maple Leaf A. C., Toronto, on Monday night's all-star boxing card at the Belleville Arena. Supporting Wheeler is a feature bout between Mel Gilcoma, former Dominion lightweight title holder, and Billy Hampshire, present Ontario champion at the same weight. Four other boxing bouts and two outstanding wrestling bouts are on the same card on Monday.

FREDRO MONTANEZ

Puerto Rico semi-another battler to the ring wars when 185-pound Montanez ventured into the America on a trail he hopes will lead to the world title. They Camperetti lightweight crown. He started auspiciously by whipping tough Steve Belko in a highly respected leather-carer. Fedro is shown above.

AUSTRALIAN SKILLED WIZARD TOURING CANADA

Regarded as the greatest billiards of all time, Walter Lindrum, Australian wizard of the cue, is on round across Canada, giving exhibitions with his playing partner, Clark McConachy. Lindrum arrived in San Francisco from Australia, en route to England. He is shown in the above photo shaking hands with Tom Tothill, British Columbia and Canadian champion, at Vancouver, with McConachy in the background.

GENE SARAZEN TOP FAVORITE

Stars Fell All Over Landscape in First Day of Draw

BY TOM YARBROUGH
Associated Press Sports Writer

Oklahoma City, Oct. 19—(AP)—Tumpo-ority triumphant! proe mixed new brawls and public meetings in the land of the red rattle and blackjack of today as the second round of the United P.G.A. tournament came up but minus many brilliant stars.

Stars fell all over in the opener yesterday—among them medalist Walter Hagen, nudged out of the 1933 firmament by Johnny Revolta, 1-up.

Others who whizzed to earth included Horace Hicks, Napier captain, beaten 1-up by Horton Smith, and Gene Kunes, Cleveland champion, eliminated 4 and 3 by Denny Shute, former Ft Erie open king.

However, there were left plenty of luminaries, including Gene (I need a title) Sarazen, established as (apparent favorite by this afternoon. Gene defeated George Christ, 4 and 3.

The second round of 18-hole matches today found Sarazen facing Alvin (Butch) Krueger, the Beloit, Wis., belter.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

During the past week it is estimated that the 30,000 persons who walked through the portals of the Belleville Arena, Starting with last Saturday's political meeting, followed by three night's of hilarious fun at the Rivoli Carnival and last night's wrestling show terminated the most hectic week's activities the Arena ever witnessed.

Decidedly the crowd will continue to jam their way into the Belleville sport palace on Monday night to take in the Stewart Warner A. C. boxing bouts. Promoter Clem Allen has not spared any expense to secure the right fans of the best amateur boxing ever staged in the city of Belleville, you we'll go forth, or and take in the entire district at Madoc rink. Every bout is a top-notcher from the feature attraction down to the inter-city wrestler wrestling bouts that will open the show.

Toronto promoters have striven to bring Mel Gilcoma and Billy Hampshire into the same ring at the same time, but have failed thus far. It remained to have Belleville's youthful boxing promoter, Clem Allen, out-bid the Queen City matchmakers and steal this hot right from beneath their very eyes. Gilcoma is the former Dominion lightweight titleholder, while Humphries is the present provincial lightweight champion. The bout is a natural. Six boxing bouts and two amateur wrestling bouts are on the program. Incidentally the local wrestlers to appear on the card are being trained by Irish Steve Taylor, local grappler of prominence.

Despite the fact our personal public energy No. 1, Walter Farrell, decided to take a recess out of the press reporter last night, we are still among the living and able to give the villainous Farnell the raspberry again today. When Joe Kaiserman gave him a second thrashing at the Arena last eve, it did our heart lots much good that we'd like to see the dose repeated again next week. Interested in that night's wrestling bouts were not only well attended, but pleasing to watch. All three bouts were interesting and saw action personified throughout.

At last a match for Chief Lynx, the Kama Reserve Indian, has been found in no less a personage than our old friend, Dan Petroff, the mythical Russian grappler. Petroff exchange blow for blow and smash for smash with the pugnacious Indian and battled him to a 60 minute draw fight last night's show was doubtlessly the best seen locally in quite some time as action predominated from the time All Hazan displayed his herculean strength until the main bout was over. Next week the bouts will revert back to Thursday night, however. .

Coach Les Shiels' B.C.I. senior intermediate squad continued their triumphant march through the Bay of Quinte group with a 22 to 10 victory over the O.S.D. squad yesterday, while the Albert College team came down on the long end of a 20 to 3 score registered against Coach Eddie Schrieder's youthful St. Michael's charges. Incidentally the local intermediate group by yesterday's some classy and scrappy football every Friday afternoon and is fast gaining confidence in the eyes of the Belleville sport-loving fans. As the senior group now stands B. C. I. and V. S. reads with three wins and no defeats, Coach Pete Bond has his fighting Albert squad trailing nicely in second position with two victories and one defeat. St. Mike's next while Frank Cunningham's O.S.D. squad are in the cellar at present.

The Belleville intermediate O. S. F. U. team are scheduled to play in Oshawa today, where much depends upon the ultimate outcome. A win for the Kennedy-coached Belleville squad will elevate them into a tie for first place in the Lake Shore group. Local fans are to be treated to a holiday game next Thursday, when the Lindsay Rotarians will invade the local gridiron. The Lindsay squad have only lost one game to date, that being their opening game of the season versus Peterboro. Since that time, however, Lindsay has won two and are tied with Belleville for second place today. Both today's game and next Thursday's battle on the home field mean much to the locals and the support of the sport-loving public is needed.

ONLY IMPORT LEFT

A major upheaval in Montreal football ranks saw every American player on the Winged Wheelers' roster depart save Pat Ryan, kinky-haired stalwart. He was the only remaining import of a long list which included Bill Shanahan, Bill McNamara, Carl Palombo, Carl Prendergast and Les Riddell when Wheelers met Ottawa, but Pat didn't let that affect his play and turned in a bang-up game both offensively and defensively. Ryan is shown above.

MARMORA TEAM WINS EASILY

Madoc Defeated 14 to 2 in Exhibition Tilt at Delora

Marmora, Oct. 19.—The first exhibition rugby game to be played on the sands of this area was staged between Marmora and Madoc high schools.

Marmora kicked off and downed Kincaid on Madoc's 35-yard line. The first Madoc play was a forward pass, N. O'Neill of Marmora, the star of the game, intercepted the pass at mid-field and made a touchdown after three minutes of play. Marmora converted the touchdown by a beautiful placement, making the score 6-0.

Madoc came back with their hard hitting captain and quarterback making end runs but Marmora's line was quick on the tackles throwing him for no yards and losses. The first half ended by the score of 7-0 —Marmora making one rouge point.

In the first part of the third quarter Madoc's attack was the strongest getting yards and downs on their end runs. In the height of their glory they made the one mistake that wiped them out as far as winning the game was concerned. Claire O'Neill intercepted a forward pass at mid-field. Norman O'Neill was sent through on a counter line buck and due to the great interference formed by his mates he gained his second touchdown. As before Marmora converted it putting the score at 13-0.

After this starry play Marmora's run rush clicked perfectly and they marched down the field to kick for their fourteenth and last point.

Madoc returned stronger than ever toward the end of the game scoring one point on Marmora's offside. On the next play they downed O'Neill behind the goal line for their second and last point. The game ended 14-3 for Marmora.

Stars in this game were N. O'Neill, McKeown who played under the handicap of an injured knee and Stan Pray of Marmora. Kincaid and Kellar were the standouts for the losers.

The line-ups:

Madoc — Kincaid, quarterback; Keller, flying wing; Bassett, fullback; Hawthorne, R. half; W. Rose, L. Half; Reeves, Nichols, Martin, Collins, O'Reardon, Munroe, Stewart.

Marmora—Burridge, quarterback; Lovelesa, flying wing; N. O'Neill, fullback; McKeown, R. half; W. Hart, L. half; Gray, W. Bonter, Hawes, S. Bonter, C. O'Neill, McColl, Shannon, F. Bertrand.

THEN CAME THE CRASH—Somebody is about to go boom as Hodblom of Harvard blocks the path of Morris of Holy Cross.

HAIL 100 YEARS OF SCHOOL DAYS WITH TOM BROWN

By THOMAS T. CHAMPION
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 19 (CP)—Boys of all ages from eight to eighty will be interested in a centenary which falls during the present school term—a centenary, though, which is not likely to have any formal commemoration. It is about 100 years since Tom Hughes, author of that classic story of schoolboy life, "Tom Brown's School Days," went as a "new boy" to Rugby School. Born October 20, 1822, he died March 22, 1896, after a remarkably varied career.

Bookstores still find a demand for "Tom Brown's School Days." The description of the journey to Rugby by coach, in the days when William IV. was King, before the railway was thought of, is as racy as is Dicken's account of the Pickwickians' Christmas Journey to Dingley Hall. So, too, is the account of the great fight between Tom Brown and Slogger Williams. The real secret, though, of the book's popularity probably lies in its possession of a sturdy religious element. For example, the parsimonia of Tom Brown's father:

"Shall I tell him to mind his work, and say he's sent to school to make him a good scholar? Well, but he isn't sent to school for that—at any rate not for that mainly. I don't care a straw for Greek particles, or the digamma; no more does his mother. What is he sent to school for? If he'll only turn out a brave, helpful, truthtelling Englishman, and a Christian, that's all I want."

The picture of Tom Brown is generally considered to be a self portrait. Hughes belonged to a family which had been settled on the land in Berkshire for many generations. His went to Rugby because a Queen's Counsel, a Bencher of the Middle Temple, a member of the House of Commons, and ultimately a County Court Judge.

Hughes was written at Wimbledon, where Hughes was running a house on communal lines, in company with that one-time celebrated social and religious worker, F. D. Maurice. The adversity of the communal life led him to attempt a large estate in Tennessee, but his attempt, there to put his principles into practice met with little success.

The headmaster in "Tom Brown's School Days" was Thomas Arnold—"Arnold of Rugby" as he will always be called. Notwithstanding the reputation which Arnold reared upon Lydia Stracker, who licened the boys at Rugby and their Head to the Israelites of Old and Modern Israel, Arnold's reputation is safe as the most monumental figure in the whole English school life.

Rugby holds in precedence ranks fourth among English public schools—after Eton, Harrow and Winchester. It was founded in 1567 by Lawrence Sheriff, spice importer, who employed many of the sons of Guy Fawkes. Five years before Arnold's advent to Rugby, the game of football, the whole world of sport happened at Rugby. On Nov. 26th, 1823, while playing football, caught the ball in his arms, and instead of kicking it or placing it for another of his side to kick, in accordance with the rules of the game, he ran with it.

Thus was born rugby football. Ellis' exploit is commemorated by a tablet on the Doctor's wall. A tablet on the author of "Tom Brown" is in front of the reading room. The memorial of a historic school has often been a stepping-stone to Parliament. Bench, Dr. Tait and Dr. Frederick Temple (father of the present Archbishop of York) both became Archbishops of Canterbury. It was the rugged Dr. Temple who caused a boy to write home, "Temple is a beast, but he is a just beast."

HUNTING DATES ARE ANNOUNCED

The following dates have been approved by the Department of Game and Fisheries for the hunting of partridge, pheasants and quail:

Partridge in Southern Ontario, October 24th, 25th, 26th.

English ring-necked cock pheasants, Hungarian Partridge, Quail in the Counties of Essex and Kent, in the Counties of Pelee Island), Nov. 1st, and 2nd.

English ring-necked cock pheasants and Quail in the County of Middlesex, November 1st, and 2nd.

English ring-necked cock pheasants in the Counties of Haldimand, Lincoln, Welland, Ontario, Durham and Northumberland, November 1st, and 2nd.

English ring-necked pheasants on Pelee Island, November 1st, and 2nd.

(Note: This is additional to the open season on Pelee Island October 23rd, and 24th.)

BEVERIDGE SUCCEEDS CONNELL AS MAROON NETMINDER

Whitehead, lanky Alex Connell, who tended goal for the Stanley Cup-winning Montreal Maroons last season, informed Manager Tommy Gorman he would not be available to guard Maroon nets this year. Though he has retired before only to again step into the big time with his puck-stopping wizardry, this time apparently even Gorman took it seriously. He bought Billy Beveridge from Montreal Canadiens almost as soon as the Flying Frenchmen had secured the former Ottawan from the N.H.L. as part of their proceeds from dispersal of the St. Louis Eagles. Beveridge will probably start as Maroon goalie. Connell, who is an Ottawa fireman, and Tommy Gorman are shown at top, with Goalie-elect Beveridge below. All three have been actively connected with Ottawa professional hockey in the past.

KICKING "HUCK" WELCH RETURNS TO TIGERS

Hamilton Tigers welcomed home a long lost brother this season when Hawley "Huck" Welch, he of the educated toe, returned from Montreal to his former home. Welch, a Hamilton boy, spent several seasons booting for Montreal's entry in the Big Four, but this year he does his stuff for the Tiger backfield. Along with Frank Turville he provides a real punch to the backfield of great potential kicking strength.

"Installment Marriage"

By Janet Doran

Michael took twice the dose the doctor prescribed. Judy's heart trembled, fear that it would be disastrous.

"You never had this, Judy," he said. "It isn't as easy as it looks."

After a while he relaxed slightly. Reached for Judy's hand and smiled wanly.

"You'll ever be mad at me again, Judy," he pleaded. "I can't bear to think of you driving—and you in this state—in the dark in a strange place."

The chef knocked and brought in a tray Judy had ordered. Besides the coffee pot lay the two letters, addressed to Michael.

When they were alone again, Michael picked them up.

"I'll burn them, Judy. I don't want to read them."

Judy said nothing, remembering their terrible quarrel; remembering how it had revolved around the first letter. And money.

"Drink some coffee, Michael, and you'll feel better," she said, trying to keep her hands from trembling as she held the cup toward him; trying not to utter the frantic words clamoring at her mind. Words that would destroy pride, everything, as she convinced him that nothing mattered now, but that he get well. Now that they were together again.

"After all," Michael said suddenly, stuffing the letters into his pocket, "I don't write the letters! It's not my fault."

As trailing settled a dreamy curtain of New England mist over the little hotel, Michael stirred from a brief nap, and looked across at Judy quietly handling the big chair beauty.

"Let's go back home, Sweet," he said soberly. "I don't like this temperamental appendix a bit. I need to get Doc Herrick after it. He knows how to cure me in short order."

Judy bit back the fear twisting her heart like a knife. Perhaps she could get Dr. Herrick to make him see the reason, the need for having the operation before it became more complicated, serious.

"I can drive, Michael," she began, but he laughed, gruffly.

"Quit trying to make an invalid out of me, Judy. That appendix is good for many a long day yet! All I need is a little rest, and the right medicine!" He grinned at her wryly and moved restlessly.

"By morning, I'll be able to get up; stand the drive back to town."

Judy was still silent, and he flashed her a sober glance that twisted her heart cruelly.

"Got to get back on the job in a hurry and make some money. You'll be getting some nice gray hair if I don't!"

"Michael," Judy whispered agonizedly, "don't....don't joke about such things! I can't bear it! I'll throw I want nothing in all the world but your health, your happiness!"

"That goes double, sweetheart," he said soberly, "and I can't have you worrying about money, when I can help it! I've put my foot to bed up our honeymoon with a sick spell, but I'll make it up. Just give me time."

Judy turned toward the luggage and began jerking her hat off, her tears blurring her eyes, rolling down her wan face.

"A hotel," Michael went on soberly, "is almost as bad as a boarding house to be ill in. Me for my own little shack when I'm feeling low."

Judy was silent, remembering in a tidal wave of anxiety the staggering list of time payments awaiting the their return. Payments for everything that would make that "shack" livable; spoke of home!

"Got any of that dough I gave you left, Judy?" Michael's voice was weak, oddly embarrassed-sounding. "I lost my shirt in a game last night and we'll need enough to get us out from under this hotel bill and buy gas to get home on!"

Judy's fingers closed convulsively around her little pin-money purse and terror closed close to the surface of her wide gray eyes as she thought of the bulging billfold Michael had stuffed back into his pocket after heaping his gift to her into her lap!

"Of.....of course, Michael," she said miserably. "All of it. Every penny!"

CHAPTER 16.

BACK HOME

"Pay you back, honey," Michael said, stuffing the bills into his wallet—all of them. "With interest! He grinned at her boyishly and took a little black book, tapping his breast pocket. "Once I get back on the job and get begin signing up scores of those gold-mine proposals!"

"Don't worry about it, Michael," Judy urged soberly. "Right now you're going to rest up and get well."

They drove out of the sleepy, peaceful little Maine hamlet in the heavy chill mist of early morning, and headed back toward town. It was hot, as Michael pointed out during breakfast, exactly the sort of honeymoon he had planned. It was just his luck to be pursued doggedly by mis-understandings, illness, and lack of funds.

"Don't worry, though, sweetheart," he reassured her cheerfully. "We'll have a regular one, one of these days. Say, some winter about January, we'll take time off, and grab a boat for Bermuda, and let the captain and the crew worry about the trip. You'd love the ocean, Judy; the tropics in mid-winter!"

Judy stirred faintly, and bit back the protests leaping alive, as she thought of the mountain of cold they must climb over first, to be free for any further vacations.

"Of course, Michael. When we can afford it." They drove along in silence a while, Michael's red-brown head on her shoulder. Then he straightened and looked at her.

"Judy, you better let me drive a while, Mickey! You'll tire yourself." She had to change the subject quickly, or all the doubts and anxieties would engulf her in humiliating gloom.

"Quit worrying about me, Judy. I'm tough as nails and twice as hard. Anybody'd think a little tummy ache was as bad as infantile paralysis!"

"I'm not worrying, Michael," Judy lied gaily. "I'm just thinking about all the good times you'll miss, if you overdo. Besides, we've the apartment to fix up, and you'll want to feel well enough to enjoy that."

Michael beamed. "I knew you'd fall for this home-making stunt, once you had time to get used to it, Judy. Nothing like your own little shack. Beats everything else in the world. Planning a man down to home duties makes him humble and pay for his own pinch, and the makings of a home, and it's the making of many a man."

Judy brushed easier. Perhaps he was right. Perhaps the unexpected nativity would steady Michael down; erase some of his prodigal, extravagant impulses.

When they reached town, however, Michael was spent and weary, beyond eating.

"I'll call O.D. in the morning, Judy. Good night's rest and I'll be as fit as a fiddle. I'll stick around the apartment and help you hang pictures and move stuff around."

Judy wanted to send for Dr. Herrick but Michael refused flatly.

"Wait till I've tried a good rest first."

Judy wanted to go to a hotel until morning. She was sure Michael was sicker than he'd admit.

"The place will be like a barn, Mike, darling!" she pleaded. "Wait until I've put in a good day's work fitting things up. I will. I get at least one room in shape."

"Pitz, Judy-shaw," Michael grinned wanly. "I want to feel my own roof over my head, my own walls around me. I've been a complex on hotels. And Bill Cummings said he'd move a few things there until we got settled."

They went to the apartment, and after the first startled glimpse of the gracious, lovely rooms, the high windows, overlooking the distant river, Judy had a queer feeling that Michael must have been mistaken about the rent. The place was so lovely—surely it must rent for more than that!

"Ask Bill," Michael offered, looking away guiltily, and her first direct glance, "in case you don't trust me," he added.

Judy turned from looking across the beautiful vew of river and winding road, warm, friendly lights, and sighed softly.

Michael pulled his head down and laid her cold little cheek against his rough jaw, kissed her gently, tenderly. It was great that it's so lovely, so unbelievably beautiful. Michael, that it doesn't seem possible we could afford such a place."

"I told you it was a knock-out," Michael leered cockily. "I knew you'd be crazy over it, once you saw it."

Judy had four days left of her vacation, and they promised to be crammed with activity from dawn to late at night. That first day, with Michael reclining on Bill's left-behind studio divan, the doorbell rang incessantly, and their furnishings arrived so fast it was impossible to locate them in the order of their arrival.

Michael made paper airplanes and scored them keenly, too. He made elaborate paper contraptions, which he solemnly presented to Judy as a model for all school. He kept repeating, solemnly, the words, "Model home boy am I excited." "Gosh, but I feel useless and pampered, Judy! If only there'd be a job to dig up and finish some of this swell stuff around. I'll go crazy if I keep puking in the center pride of possession!"

"You'll stay right where you are, Mike," Judy insisted with mock severity, "until you're able to sail in and help me—and then, to talk of moving furniture!"

She wiped the dusty paw locating his big chair and radio in just the right place. It was, indeed, tremendously important. The radio, he explained to Judy, as she made up the twin Jenny Lind beds, and adjusting the linen candlewick spread over them, would save them a lot of money. It would bring them shows, entertainment, concerts, and save them going out.

He did not return to the couch again. He sat in the deep chair smoking, and suddenly startled Judy a new thought.

"Hey!" he said loudly. "Hey, Mrs. Swingle, where's our card table? Did we think to include a card table in this outfit?"

Judy blinked. She was much too tired to think of anything like cards at the moment. She was tired, hot, and dirty. Hungry. She wanted a long, hot bath, a light lunch, and sleep.

"Why, no, Michael; we didn't. But we can find one later. There's a little shop near the office that has bridge tables for two-fifty. I'll see about one soon."

Michael snorted. He reached for the telephone; looked up a number. "Later, nothing!" he grumbled. "How about anybody play bridge without a card-table? And what if somebody should drop in on us unexpectedly?"

"I'd tell them to go home and leave us alone," Judy smiled wanly. "I'd tell them I was tired and dirty and hungry, and not at home yet!"

(To be continued)

Little Benny's Note Book

We was eating supper, being lam stew with dumplings, and Uncle Al bit passed his plate for some more, saying, He's really not bad, but Fanny puts a lot of green peas in hers and her dumplins are much bigger.

Him always tawking about how Aunt Fanny does everything, and pop said, it would be intriting to make the dumplings so big that there wouldn't be any room left in the stew for anything else.

In that case there wouldn't be anything but dumplings, Uncle Al bit said, and pop said, by golles I guess you're right.

Have some more mash potatoes, Aunt Fanny said to Uncle Albit said. I will thanks.

And he passed his plate again, saying, Fanny puts more cream in her mash potatoes, it makes them lighter.

Ask her to put a spoonful in her next letter, pop said, said Uncle Albit said, I'm afrald it wouldn't make very nice reeding when she saw him.

Him not thinking anything funny unless he says it himself, and pop said, When JJ used to go camping I made mash potatoes so like that I had to hold the lid over the pan while I snatched out a spoonful. Red, dry, most famous potatoes were called surprise potatoes, I used to cut them up into all kinds of odd shapes and I'd number each piece, from one to 50 with an indelible pencil. Then I'd seat them all the previous nite in a bath of salted water, and when I stopped blended with 4 tablespoonfuls of cold water, and in the morning I arranged them in a circle according to number and dusted them with cooked bacon and onions, and let them slumber till lunch time, pop said.

But where did the serprize come in? Uncle Albit said, and pop said, The serprize was that after all that I invarably served stewed tomatoes instead. You look serurised yourself just hearing about it, he said.

Well, he did, and he didn't mention Ant Fanny's cooking any more that meal.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE — By Rex Maxon (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

Tarzan, ranging far in search of food, caught at the unknown scent of Horta, the boar. The man paused, and, with a deep and silent inhalation, filled his lungs with air until his great chest expanded to the full! Already he was tasting the fruits of victory.

The red blood coursed through his veins, as every fibre of his being reacted to the exhilaration of the moment, the keen delight of the hunting beast that has scented his quarry. And then, swiftly and silently, he sped in the direction of his prey.

A vivid flash of lightning broke from the billowing black clouds above. Thunder crashed and boomed. The storm broke, and at the same instant the man launched himself downward upon the back of the unsuspecting boar, in one hand the hunting knife of his sire.

SHOULD CLARIFY MARRIAGE LAWS

Such is Plea of Justice Forcast in Annulling Marriage

Montreal, Oct. 19 (CP)— Before Roman Catholic and Protestant church authorities of the Province of Quebec today was the plea by Mr. Justice Alfred Forest, KC., to preach the Quebec Legislature to have marriage laws clarified in order to stop "scandals arising from irregular unions."

In annulling the marriage yesterday of Ruby May Coates and Joseph Rennaculi, both Roman Catholics, by Archdeacon A. P. Gower-Rees of St. George's Anglican Church, Montreal, Mr. Justice Forest said he could not accept the findings of the Supreme Court of Canada and the Privy Council which ruled as the Privy Council which ruled as the civilly binding mixed marriages before a non-Catholic clergyman.

Still less, he inferred, would a wedding between two Catholics by a non-Catholic clergyman be valid.

He held the marriage question in Quebec is based on Canon law and the "the whole economy of our laws under the French regime as well as under English domination clearly show that Canadian subjects of the Catholic faith must, to have their marriage civilly binding, have such marriage performed according to requirements of their religion.

In a case of mixed marriage performed by a non-Catholic minister, Mr. Justice Frank Curran refused all to declare the union null and void. He cited jurisprudence of the Supreme Court of Canada and the Privy Council and held if all the civil formalities were performed in such ceremonies only extraordinary circumstances should be warrant their being annulled.

Mr. Justice Forest stated to adopt the conclusions of the Privy Council in a mixed marriage case is that before him would be to violate the law and to "put the Roman Catholic religion in that persons of that faith would be obliged to do against their conscience and teachings of their church.

YOUTH STANDARDS ARE CALLED LOST

Dr. Sturtevant Tells State Nurses at Syracuse Old Molds Gone

Syracuse, Oct. 19.—Loss of standards by the youth of today was discussed by Dr. Sarah M. Sturtevant, Professor of Education at Teachers' College, Columbia University, Addressing the principals of schools of nursing, she declared:

"In craftsmanship, religion, morals, politics and business, old molds are broken. Transportation and communication have introduced hitherto unfamiliar modes and codes. Cherished ideals are challenged and familiar customs questioned as to their value.

"The uncertainty among adults has communicated itself to youth, and these heirs of change, bequeathed by science and machinery are apt to be critical and sarcastic of traditions as they apply themselves to the task of determining new standards for a new age."

The activities of the day ranged from demonstrations of nursing technique to addresses by prominent nursing and medical authorities and voting for new officers in the nursing group.

Diseases Teaching and Health

Miss Langdon spoke before a general session on "teaching as related to the health of the infant, child and adolescent." She said in part:

"We who teach, if we would have our teaching eventuate in healthful living, must look to the way in which it is done as well as to what is taught. More than one digestive upset can be traced to fear of punishment and the fine discovery Stomach-ache that prevented school attendance was as real as though it had been caused by the purported green apples instead of by a scolding teacher."

In addressing the men nurses at a round table in the City Hospital Miss Silverfarb laid special emphasis on their bedside and to the work of public health nurses. She concluded:

"The germ theory of the infectious diseases which was established by medical bacteriology some seventy-five years ago has fundamentally remained unchallenged. The development of the science of medicine is not, however, a mere matter of the contact of the germ with the human victim. Germs do vary in their virulence and infebtivity, and human beings vary in their susceptibility and resistance.

"Harmony Lane"

Choir of 200 Voices Sing Stephen Foster Classics

Copy of Battered Old Church Brings Memories to Singer

It was an opening scene in Mascot's "Harmony Lane", in which Douglass Montgomery plays the part of the father of American folk songs, Stephen Collins Foster, his production comes to the Capitol Theatre next Monday. The set was an exact reproduction of a tiny, battered little church on the outskirts of Pittsburgh. The entire Shaw Choir of over two hundred voices were in it, singing some of those early spirituals, which served a the musical inspiration for Foster's genius.

As the song and voices in this famous ensemble rise themselves during the scene, Montgomery notices that one woman was visibly affected, tears coursed down her cheeks.

He turned to Director Joseph Santley and said: "That woman is either a remarkable actress or, perhaps she is in some trouble."

Stepping over to where she sat he said, "Excuse me, but are you crying. Is there anything wrong?"

The colored woman a...swered, "I went to the actual church which this is a copy with my mother when still a young girl. Her funeral was held from its doors. I was married there, and the whole scene is so familiar, with the sound of those voices that I could not help but be touched."

The Shaw Choir, during the cour- of the picture, sings many well loved American classics which Stephen Collins Foster wrote, such as "My Old Kentucky Home", "Down Where My Love Lies Dreaming," "Oh, Susanna," "Old Black Joe," "Beautiful Dreamer," "Old Folks At Home" (Swanee River), "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground," "Camptown Races", "Lou'siar...Belle", and many others.

In addition to Douglass Montgomery, the picture includes Henrietta Vacaile, Adrienne Ames, Joseph Cawthorn, William Frawley, Lloyd Hughes, Donald Meek, Ralph Gilbert Emery, James Bush, and a cast of thousands.

"The Virginian" Leaves

AT THE BELLE

"Call of the Wild"

Gold Rush Story With Clark Gable, Loretta Young, and Jack Oakie

"Call of the Wild" is no misnomer for 20th. Century's filmization of Jack London's famous classic of the Klondyke gold rush of 1897, which began a three-day run at the Belle Theatre today, with Clark Gable, Loretta Young and Jack Oakie in the leading roles.

A story of unbridled romance which recognizes only Nature's laws, it is a literal interpretation of "the call of the wild," and Darryl Zanuck, who produced the stirring saga of the last of our frontiers, has invested the classic text with a dramatic love story.

Gable swashbuckles through the gold camps, a picturesque prospector ready to stake his fortune on the flip of a coin. His code is the code of the timber—a rough but honest variation of the "golden rule."

Into his life comes Loretta Young, as Claire Bennett, a beautiful girl, together on the trail, they begin by hating each other, but defending her code, she not understanding his, but finally they find happiness, their differences diminish and romance ensues.

Jack becomes a primitive thing with the artificial mores of civilization stripped from him. Their companion is "Buck," the huge St. Bernard in whom Jack London vested the symbolical story which the screen adaptation of Gene Fowler and Leonard Praskins amplifies.

William Wellman directed the production which was filmed on the rugged remote heights of Mount Baker, Washington.

Frank Conroy, Reginald Owen, Kathleen Burke, Sidney Toler and the dog "Buck" who made his screen debut in "Clive of India" complete their programme. Those who have succeeded in their performances, as indicated by the telephone calls and of voting, are sent on to the Major's road shows or cast in Major Bowes Amateur Theatre of the Air. The series of two-reel Bosgrah features released by RKO Radio. The current issue showing at Belle Theatre today and Tuesday, matinee daily, includes Paul Reagan, Will Rogers impersonator; Patrick and Kreiser, barnyard imitator; Patrick Dunn, baritone, and the original one-man band, Vince Mundil; the Victory Quartet; the Jersey Bhoys' Rangers and the smart dancing sextet of young boys and girls. "The Belle Lated Show" and Paul Reagan will be exhibited on the same program. Major Bowes appears throughout the film introducing each unit of the program.

Wednesday Evening Frolic

At the Belle on Wednesday evening, October 23rd, at 11.30 p.m. a Gala Frolic will be presented at the Belle, featuring the latest and best of the special pre-view or one of the new season's outstanding romantic comedies.

On the stage, Bill Gordon & Associates will be presented, offering a minutes of the most fun you ever had. The new Belle Amateur Revue will introduce new faces, new talent, truly a brand new idea in stage entertainment, and local aspirants for a career on the air or on the vaudeville stage will be welcomed and may enter by leaving their names at the box office before Wednesday evening at 11.30 p.m.

"I Live My Life." Feature

Joan Crawford brings a new kind of picture as well as a new leading man to the Belle Theatre Wednesday evening, 11.30 p.m. Frolic, with "I Live My Life," a romantic drama production, "I Live My Life." ... ry If you don't remember "I Live My Life." Regular prices will prevail for this combination show.

Cyclist Near 80 Pedals 2,000 Mls During Summer

Mr. Stuart Hoopy, former resident of this city and well known here as a frequent visitor, pedalling his bicycle still with the zeap of youth has almost completed a summer record of 2,000 miles of cycling during the present season.

Early this spring Mr. Hoopy, who is 79 years of age set this mark for himself. While the aid of a speedometer he has been patiently pedalling and calculating until now his total is almost complete.

"Only twenty more miles to go and I'll have reached this mark," declared Mr. Hoopy in Trenton this week.

Mr. Hoopy is an ardent bicycle enthusiast for many years, attributing this period's health to the regular exercise his bicycle gives him. During the summer months this means of cycling he has used up several machines and prefers the plainer and less expensive makes to the newer heavier models.

In the past he has been a frequent visitor to the editorial rooms of the Daily Ontario Intelligencer and has been the means of this paper printing a prize in a Dominion-wide contest for published stories relating to cycling.

A. HENDERSON PEACE LEADER PASSES AT 72

Died Without Knowing Dream of World Peace Was Shattered

MADE LABOR A FORCE

Won Nobel Peace Prize in 1934 Through Peace Pact Efforts

By ROGER D. GREENE

(Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 21. (AP)—Arthur Henderson, 72, is bitter as he was an implacable foe of war, died without knowing the dream of world peace already had been shattered by the booms of guns in East Africa.

Attaches of the West End Nursing Home where the President of the World Disarmament Conference died last night disclosed today that Henderson — whose fight for the crusade peace was inspired by the death of his eldest son on battle field of the Great War—had not seen a newspaper for six weeks before his passing.

Nor had he been told of the mounting European crisis for fear his shock would prove fatal.

MAN DRIVES CAR INTO LAKE AT 60 MILES PER HOUR

Seven Lives Lost Through Violence During Week End

FOUND ON TRACKS

Hugh Keenan Killed by C.N.R. Train Near Wicklow

By The Canadian Press

Seven lives were lost through violence in Ontario during the week-end. Highway accidents were responsible for three of them. One man fell to his death, another was hit by a train, another died in a farm accident, while the seventh perished when his car plunged into Lake Ontario.

Gordon Wheeler, 28, was killed when his automobile left the road on into a steam tractor drawing a threshing outfit along the highway 30 miles south of Owen Sound.

Edward Timmerman, 12, died in Hamilton hospital from injuries after he had been struck by an automobile while playing along the highway.

Joyce Irwin, 79, was fatally injured, when he stepped into the path of an automobile while walking across Bunthrop Street.

David Tufford, aged 70, was killed when he fell to the floor to the ground from a beam in his father's barn near Beaverton. He climbed to the hay loft and had started to walk out on the beam to reach a pigeon when he lost his balance and fell.

The body of Hugh Keenan, 45, was found beside the Canadian National Railways tracks near Wicklow. He was believed to have been struck by a train.

Thought to have been struck on the head by a hayloader wheel and then run over by a tractor, Gerald Gerhill, 45, was found after an all-night search in the Listowel district.

Joseph Wellington McGrath, 22, was seen to drive his car around Sunday and after a visit to a National dock at Toronto and speed at 50 to 60 miles an hour towards the lake. The car leaped 50 feet out into the bay. His body and the car were recovered two hours later.

$75,000 DAMAGE IN OLD FACTORY

Fire Lieutenant Armstrong Falls And Injures His Knee

Toronto, Oct. 21.—(CP)—Two floors of an old factory building on Abell street were gutted by a three-alarm fire today with damage estimated at $200,000. The fire today was discovered on the second floor and firemen were unable to enter the building as fierce were the flames. Ladders were raised and tons of water poured into the burning build.

About $25,000 damage was reported on the Way Staples Spring Company Ltd., premises and $10,000 on those in the Allis Chalmers Manufacturing plant. Other firms in the building reporting damage were Acme Advertising Co., Fairview Chemical Company, Opal Manufacturing Co., John Fraser and Company, Smith Pattern Works and Simplex Ironing Machine Company.

PAIR ARE THROWN CLEAR OF WRECK

Found Seriously Injured Lying Near The Road

LODDAY, Ont., Oct. 21.—(CP)—Wm. H. and Russell Paggart, 19, are still unconscious today and little hope is held for their recovery following an accident on the Trans-Palls-Rosedale Road Friday night. The brothers were found lying on the road by Earl Gilbert, 19, son of a farmer who removed them to their home on the farm.

Their car turned over in the ditch and was wrecked, both boys being thrown clear. The cause of the accident has not been definitely established but it is believed defective steering gear was responsible.

SMITHS FALLS BOY BELIEVED TAKEN

Boy Last Seen in Company With a Transient, County-wide Search

Smiths Falls, Ont., Oct. 21.—(CP)—Police today launched a wide-spread search for eight-year-old Gordon Taylor, last Friday he was kidnapped Saturday from the farm home of his grandfather, Del Graham, near Franktown. Farmers, aroused over the boy's disappearance, joined in a search of the countryside after being informed the boy had been seen last on the outskirts of Smiths Falls in company with a transient who had worked two days for Kane.

Police said they did not know the transient's name. They described him as five feet, six inches tall, dark haired with a scar on his right cheek.

CANNING FACTORY WORKERS STRIKE

Burlington, Ont., Oct. 21.—(CP)—Claiming their wages only totalled 10 and 11 cents an hour women employees of Aylmer Canners at Burlington went on strike this morning. About 300 women are involved. There are only a dozen men employees at the factory. The crowd of strikers gathered outside the plant and Chief Lee Smith of Burlington was called.

FORMER RESIDENT OF CITY, DIES

Mrs. Ellen Ley Was Critically Injured a Week Ago By Race Horse

Stratford, Oct. 21.—(CP)—Critically injured more than a week ago when struck by a race horse as she crossed the track at the old St. Mary's Fair Grounds, Mrs. Ellen Ley, 71, died in the General Hospital here today. An inquest will likely be held. Mrs. Ley is said to have been given permission by one of the attendants to cross the track. John Taylor's horse came around a bend and struck her. Mr. Taylor was also injured. Deceased had local neglegence but the charge was dismissed when Coroner Gordon Goodwin decided there was no indication of negligence.

Mrs. Ley was born in Belleville and had lived in St. Mary's for the past 35 years. She was a member of the United Church. Two sons survive.

Disease Rare in Canada Detected Among Sheep

Kingston, Oct. 21.—(CP)—A disease practically unknown in this country has been detected in a flock of sheep near Collins Bay. Dr. G.S. Booth veterinarian said Saturday. The disease prevalent in Australia is known as pulpy kidney.

Dr. Booth said it has the effect of causing death in nearly every case. It acts so quickly in most cases that the animal is dead before the disease can be detected. He described it as a bacteria infection of the squall intestines.

Parliament in England to Meet Tuesday

(By George Hambleton)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 21.—(CP Cable)—Parliament re-assembles at Westminster tomorrow but its proceedings will be brief. The real business is to be given a debate on the Hoare-Laval plan.

On Friday members will say good-bye to the Speaker. The same night Parliament will be dissolved for the election—parliament will be dissolved.

Nomination day will be Nov. 4 and take place Nov. 4, and polling on Nov. 14.

All parties are preparing manifestoes for the brief election fight. Conservatives say the issues on which the electors will be considered by the Government.

The main features of the government's appeal will probably be:

A pronise to continue the present policy of supporting League of Nations sanctions against Italy in defence program especially strengthening the naval and air forces.

A large loan to finance new defence measures is contemplated.

In home affairs a program of social reform, to include: More vigorous action by the unemployment facilities plans for land settlement and transference of workless; more unemployed to new industrial developments; co-ordination by local authorities for such municipal work as the slum clearance of old factor' sites; reorganization of the coal industry; extending the school-leaving age; the extension of unemployment insurance to "black-coated" or white collar workers and agricultural laborers; the extension of pensions and maternity services; the further development of empire migration.

$50,000 FIRE LOSS

Cap Chat, Que., Oct. 21 (CP)—A fire of incendiary origin was discovered through this Gaspe County village today following a disastrous fire yesterday, which destroyed a modern sale store, a garage, ten homes and four barns. Estimates of damage ran more than $50,000.

About 50 people were left homeless will most of their possessions destroyed. They were being sheltered in dwellings of the village of 1,100 people.

Home-Made Ferris Wheel Injures Boy

Lindsay, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP) —The primitive ferris wheel in the Dycell backyard was "temporarily closed" today and Arthur Dycell, his nine-year-old proprietor and chief engineer, was nursing a broken nose. He fell 15 feet from the top of the wheel Sunday making his daily inspection.

The youthful inventor saw a ferris wheel in operation at the Lindsay fair in September. With the aid of friends he gathered enough parts from junk yards and with some ingenuity constructed the 15 foot wheel in his backyard.

Neighborhood children for several weeks have been standing in line to get a ride on the wheel Arthur and his syndicate of friends built, and paying a penny a ride, too.

Fourth Body Found In Calabogie Fatality

Calabogie, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP)—Searchers today found the body of Oscar Bergmann of Waterloo, Ont., one of the four men drowned last Sept. 22 in a storm on Calabogie lake.

Bergmann, his brother Paul, Percy Jamieson of Glasgow Station and Alfred Legree of Renfrew were drowned when a storm capsized their boat as they were returning from a fishing trip. Bodies of three of the men were found within two days of the accident. A week's dragging for the fourth body, Oscar's body and a daily patrol was established on the lake.

The body found today was floating about three miles from the capsized where the men's boat was discovered.

War at a Glance

With the Italian Army, Adowa, Oct. 21 (CP)—A new method of exchange has appeared among natives in this area. Cartridges are now accepted in place of money as payment for purchases.

Bucharest, Rumania, Oct. 21 (AP) —The official gazette published today a decree by King Carol, setting up motion economic sanctions against Italy.

Adowa, Oct. 21 (CP)—Suppression of taxes in occupied territory has done more to win the native people's abolition of slavery, although one quarter of the people were slaves. Ras Kavas learned on a tour of the northern Ethiopian front today.

Alexandria, Egypt, Oct. 21 (AP)—One of the largest ships in Alexandria, the Casino San Stefano, has been taken over by the British Army Medical Corps for conversion into a hospital, it was learned today.

At the same time it is reported that a large staff of nurses is at present enroute from England.

About 1,000 hospital beds will be provided in the establishment.

Nairobi, Oct. 21 (CP)—All Italian vessels have been forbidden by the authorities to remain longer than 24 hours in any British East African port, it was stated today. As a result several Italian war vessels were unable to complete loading of supplies at Mombasa and must proceed to Kismayo, nearest Italian port.

Addis Abeba, Oct. 21 (CP) — A British official called "Limanovitch" still serves as a camouflage in secret throughout Haile Selassie's flight, it was learned. He goes to the front in an open car with the Emperor's flag in an open car with the Emperor's flag in his car—the target of Italian bombers. The Emperor's standard, consisting of a lion rampant, is unmistakable at night with resulting fracture of several vertebrae.

She crashed on two other occasions but escaped injury, once leaping from her burning plane at Louisburg, N.S., still wearing a neat corset to protect her back while convalescing from the previous injury.

At 31 years of age, Miss Nichols has held the one-stop trans-continental flight record, is licensed in the women's altitude record and the long distance flight record.

ON LONG FLIGHT

Warsaw, Oct. 21.— (AP)—Stanislaw Karpinski, star flier of the Polish army, took off at 6:30 a.m. today on a flight to Melbourne, Australia.

With him went Stanislaw Rogalski who designed the military type airplane "Lublin 13" supposed to average 313 miles an hour in the air.

Crown Colonies Declare Sanctions Against Italian Vessels of War

London, Oct. 21—(CP)—High authoritative sources revealed today that British crown colonies and the Anglo-Egyptian Sudan had decided to apply against Italy the neutrality rules laid down by the League convention of 1909.

It was understood the Egyptian government has made the same decision.

This means no Italian vessels of war or Italian vessels carrying provisions for arms for the Italian troops in East Africa will hereafter be permitted to enter British ports ports more than 24 hours or will be allowed to take on more than enough fuel and supplies to reach the next Italian port.

It was understood this decision already has been applied in one case when the Italian steamer Giovanni Cords, ordered by the Kenya government to sail from Mombasa within 24 hours after it arrived Friday night.

Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador to Rome, was understood to have called on Premier Mussolini to inform him of the neutrality decision.

Other sources revealed the British government had decided Great Britain would apply the same rules of neutrality even though no state of war has been declared between Italy and Ethiopia.

Defence Attempts to Show McCardell Not Author of Labatt Ransom Notes

London, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP)—Defence counsel in the murder trial of Michael McCardell, attempted to show the latter was not the author of the John S. Labatt ransom notes in the trial of Jack Bannon on charges of kidnapping and armed robbery of the wealthy London brewer, proceeded today.

Asked to spell 30 words which appeared in the notes, McCardell, confessed kidnapper, misspelled three. He said when he wrote the note he had a better speller than himself to help him spell.

Defence counsel A. S. Ferguson crossed questioned leading to show McCardell had added to his stories of the kidnapping a year ago last January.

"There wasn't any need for any one to tell me anything about the kidnapping. No one needed to coach me. I'm not ashamed I knew and regret," said McCardell.

He maintained he had not said to Labatt, "this is a kidnap," as they ceived him as the brewer was driving from Sarnia to London. "All I said was 'come out'," he declared.

McCardell said he had not seen Bannon since the day the kidnap scheme was first discussed. He said it was the last direct connection Bannon had with the kidnap scheme.

FAMOUS AVIATRIX BADLY INJURED IN PLANE CRASH

Ruth Nichol's Plane Smashes Off Wing on Tree When Landing

20 PASSENGER PLANE

Five Others Injured as Well, Machine is Destroyed by Flames

Troy, N.Y., Oct. 21 (AP)—Miss Ruth Nichols, ace airwoman of the United States, and five of her employees were injured today, when a big 20-passenger plane crashed at Troy Airport.

Miss Nichols was removed to the Samaritan Hospital in Troy where her condition was described as serious.

"We do not know the full extent of her injuries," a hospital attendant said. "She is in the operating room. She is quite badly injured, and also suffered severe burns."

Her pilot, Harry E. Hublitch of New York, also was seriously injured.

The other four apparently escaped with minor injuries. They are: Ray Brandt, Troy, mechanic; William Holt; Miss Gladys Berkhimer and Miss Rena Berkhimer, sister of Gladys.

Later it was disclosed the two passengers on the plane were also employees of Miss Nichols and the ship was built at a new airport at Petermono, N.Y., when it was forced down by engine trouble.

Couldn't Get Altitude

Paul Andrews of Troy, photographer, was one of several persons who watched the plane take off.

The ship apparently had difficulty getting altitude, he said. "It circled and came back toward the field. Then it started to be getting ready to land.

"The plane came low, but it hit an elm tree at the edge of the landing field. Its left wing crumpled and it plunged the first to the ground. It immediately burst into flames."

Miss Ruth Nichols' injury was the second of a serious nature the society aviatrix had suffered in her eventful career.

Miss Nichols fell at Saint John, N.B., in June, 1931, while attempting a transcontinental flight with refueling fracture of several vertebrae.

She crashed on two other occasions but escaped injury, once leaping from her burning ship at Louisburg, N.S., still wearing a neat corset to protect her back while convalescing from the previous injury.

At 31 years of age, Miss Nichols has held the one-stop trans-continental flight record, is licensed in the women's altitude record and the long distance flight record.

Restoration of Peace Highly Likely, Ethiop Still a Major Problem

Feeling Better Among Three Powers: Italy, France, Britain

READY FOR PEACE?

Premier Laval Given Vote of Confidence in Elections

By GEORGE HAMBLETON

Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 21.—(CP Cable)—Conversations between Britain and France are also between Britain and Italy have eased the dangerous international tension of last week.

The British Government, it is understood, regards the French Premier Laval's reply as a real advance in the event of an attack by Italy as definitely satisfactory.

Italian press attacks on Britain have suddenly ceased.

At the same time it is indicated the improved understanding with Italy may be underlined by:

1. Reduction of the Italian forces now concentrated in Libya near the border of Egypt.

2. Reduction of the British naval forces in the Mediterranean.

No definite decision however has yet been reached on either of these points.

Tensions Relaxed

While tension between Britain and Italy is relaxed, statesmen still face the main problem—the restoration of peace between Italy and Ethiopia. During his interview with correspondent Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador at Rome, made reference to the League Council Italian concession plan was discussed.

Britain and France themselves continued to emphasize the three parties now concerned in the African war must be equally concerned in the terms of any peace settlement—the League of Nations, Italy and Ethiopia.

Premier Laval's lengthy note to Britain will not be published, it was officially learned, for it is framed in interpretation of the French attitude since the beginning of the dispute and in the British view removes all misunderstanding.

Ready For Peace?

(By Andrew Sterling)

(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Asmara, Eritrea, Oct. 21—(AP)—The Italian army today officially reports that Emperor Haile Selassie is ready to sue for peace. Authorities said, however, there was no official confirmation of the report and military chiefs would proceed unchecked.

Present plans, these authorities said, call for a drive of the Italian Somaliland force northward on Gorrahei, the Ogaden capital. The capture of Gorrahei would strength-

ETHIOPIA WARNS ITALY AGAINST GHASTLY METHODS

"Unfortunate Consequences" Will Follow Use of Gas

STATEMENT MADE

Legation Says Italian Minister Has Been Misinformed

LONDON, Oct. 21.—(AP)— The Ethiopian Legation in London warned Italy in a lengthy statement today that "unfortunate consequences" would follow Italy's use of "ghastly methods" of poison gas bombs and dumdum and explosive bullets.

The legation stated Italy's use of "unfair and ultra-civilized methods of warfare," of which the Legation says it has impartial substantiation from reports sent by Ambassador Dino Grandi of Italy, "will lead to the most unfortunate consequences, quite ugly to Italy and the will of course, deserve it, but to all white peoples as well."

The whites, the statement said "will be instantly hated by all the people of Africa. Even we think, of Asia also for years to come."

Statement Released

The statement said:

"We take the opportunity hereby to inform the Italian people that they continue to use such ghastly methods against the unarmed people that, notwithstanding the order of Emperor Haile Selassie I, it will not be possible to restrain the wider and bereaved section of the Ethiopian army from retaliating in some similar savage method of Italian soldiers who may happen to fall into their hands.

"The statement began by mentioning the Italian Ambassador had taken the trouble once more to refute the charge that the Italian forces in Ethiopia have been guilty of employing poison gas and dumdum and explosive bullets, broadcast not only on the Ethiopian troops but on women, children and animals.

Incorrect Information

As to this statement, the Ethiopian Legation declares: "There is the impartial technical evidence of a Foreign Observer who substantiates the charge, and it remains to submit, that the public denial of His

Jamaica Swept By Hurricane

No Lives Lost But Banana Crops Suffer Extensive Damage

Kingston, Jamaica, Oct. 21—(CP Cable)—A hurricane swept northeastward over Jamaica today, causing one and left a trail of destruction behind as it sped up the Caribbean toward Cuba.

Telegraph communication with the island was established only partially but meagre, reports told of "extensive" damage to banana crops in the eastern and northeastern sections of the island.

No lives were reported lost and all residents of the hurricane district were warned to remain indoors.

PETERBORO SPEAKER AT WRONG MEETING

One of the most sudden stoppages of the recent federal campaign was occasioned with the appearance of T. J. Carley, K.C., as the principal speaker at a Progressive Conservative Liberal Association in Minden at one scheduled meeting which he was to have met four local speakers. Mr. Carley arrived Monday and took with him the platform party among other speakers who seemed unfamiliar to him. As proceedings opened he was seated between two other speakers after a stern determination of Mackenzie King. From the start, however, that he had wandered into the camp of the enemy by mistake, Mr. Carley left a hasty retreat through a rear door.

SUMMER HOME AT ROSSMORE BURNS

Starting from some origin unknown as yet, fire which broke out spontaneously in the summer cottage of Mr. Jack Penny, this city, at Rossmore shortly after nine o'clock last evening completely consumed the dwelling before it could be stopped could cope with the flames. It was believed by the crew that the fire's progress may have entered the camp during the night accidently falling if part of the loss will be covered by $600 insurance. Today only a heap of ashes remains to mark the once modern frame building, which had been completely equipped.

SEASONAL WORK ON FARMS BLACKENING

Caused mainly through the fact, that seasonal work on farms, orchards and other outside jobs through the district has ceased, the number of persons availing of relief figures is listed at the Canadian Relief office during the present time. The increase is a seasonal one, normally expected at about this time.

SONS OF JACOB ELECT OFFICERS

Members of the Sons of Jacob who met at the local synagogue last evening elected officers for the purpose of election of officers passed Mr. J. Berger of this city as president of the Order for the ensuing year. Other officers for the executive are: Vice President, Mr. Gillelman, Trenton; Second Vice-President, William Yarovoff, Picton and secretary-treasurer, Julius Abramsky, Belleville.

Officers of the Ladies' Auxiliary chosen were Mrs. B. Springer, president and Mrs. J. Hubert, Trenton, secretary treasurer.

The meeting which was largely attended by many of the local and district Hebrew fraternity was presided over by Mr. Lilenberg, of this city, chairman.

TOURIST BUSINESS IS STILL HEAVY

Birds of the migratory species left this district some time ago, but the tourists from south of the border are still in this district in fairly large numbers, with no indication yet of any slackening in the numbers of cars seen on the local highways, it is reported by the local office of the Chamber of Commerce. Several tourist homes within the city report business as heavy as in the peak summer period.

WOUNDS OF TRANSIENT DRESSED BY RESIDENT

Moved by the extreme plight of a tattered transient, who staggered to her back door, bruised, bleeding and bleeding, said by him to have been caused by a fall from a passing freight train in the darkness near the overhead car bridge on North Front Street, a resident of that street played nursemaid to the man past midnight and after bandaging his cuts, fed him and sent him in the general direction of the local police station. The youth, who appeared to be dazed by the accident was incoherent in speech and could give little account of himself.

HUNDREDS OF DUCKS SEEN NEAR AIRPORT

While still deaf to the fusillade of the hunters' guns, hundreds of ducks are reported to have been seen in the vicinity of the airport. Early morning hunters have been unsuccessful in their attempts to bring down the wary birds, although the sound of shots has been heard frequently.

GEORGE PEPPER WILL TRY FOR NEW RECORD

What is hoped by him to be a successful attempt to lower his own world's record of 82 miles per hour over a measured mile, George Pepper well known motorcycle enthusiast will leave Belleville next week for the international meeting to be held at Wasaga Beach. Pepper last summer established the record which he hopes will be lowered on the coming attempt. Motorcycle riders from throughout the continent are expected to attend the Ontario meet. Mr. Pepper will be accompanied from Belleville by Gord. Davies and Bill Pepper, members of the local Quinte Motorcycle Club.

DEER PLENTIFUL IN NORTHERN DISTRICTS

From reports of residents of the northern municipalities of the county, and of stage and bus drivers on regular runs out of the city, deer are plentiful in the back districts this year and have been reported more than once in the vicinity of Madoc. Many of the graceful animals have been seen browsing by the side of the main highway connecting roads lately by travellers.

R.C.M.P. CONSTABLE MOVES TO CITY

Lance Corporal J. C. McPhee of the R.C.M.P., Belleville detachment was called into Federal headquarters, Ottawa, on business today. Corporal P. V. Minchan, who has been stationed with the R.C.M.P. at Kingston for the past four years has been moved to Belleville, while Constable Hughes from the local detachment was moved into headquarters at Ottawa. Corporal Minchan became a member of a former Queen's championship football team.

SNEAK THIEVES PILFER GROCERIES

Two farmers from the surrounding district lost their weekly supply of groceries on the night after sneak thieves had looted their parked automobiles and removed the sale. Theodore Smith, R.R. No. 3, Belleville and R. E. Gilbert, R.R. No. 3, Belleville, parked their respective automobiles at the rear of a Front St. business house in preparation for their weekly supply of groceries and placing them in their motor cars. Upon their return to the parked vehicles at 10.00 p.m., however, the robbery was discovered and R. C. O. was notified of the incident but no signs or clues of the missing groceries have been found. Whether a fresh supply of groceries were procured by the two farmers before they departed for home or not, was not announced by the police, however.

CITY VOTERS' LIST NOW COMPLETED

After considerable work on the part of the enumerators, city clerk and his assistants the city voters' list for 1935 has been prepared and officially posted in the upper city hall office where the public may see it for a new proposal to receive appeals for the correcting or omission of names on the list.

The list was posted on October 19 and persons may appeal to Judge Deroche on October 31 to file appeals.

This list, it was pointed out by the City Clerk, will not be one which was used at the recent Dominion election and all tenants and property owners, who have become residents of the city, or who have changed their place of residence in the city since the first of March of this year should examine the list and make sure that their names have not been omitted.

POLICE WATCH FOR SUAVE SWINDLER

Police of Ontario towns and cities are being advised to be on the lookout for a suave swindler, who is obtaining money from storekeepers and others by issuing fraudulent cheques in the name of churches and other charitable institutions.

The latest to obtain a cheque drawn on the St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church in this city and signed with the forged name of the Rev. W. J. Walker, local pastor, has been passed.

The majority of the cheques have been written in a fleeting hand, with green ink, the writing being that evidently of a well educated person.

The Toronto head office of a Canadian bank has been responsible for the warning.

REV. FATHER LALLY VISITS IN CITY

Speaks at Various Masses at St. Michaels on Sunday

Rev. Father Thomas Lally, S.J. has been visiting in the city for a few days. Father Lally is a native of this city, and received his early education here. Later he entered the Jesuit Order and was ordained a priest. For a number of years Father Lally has been stationed at the Church of Martyrs' Shrine at Midland. His work there has made this place of devotion well known to the North American continent. During his short stay here, Father Lally friends renewed acquaintance with him.

On Sunday Father Lally spoke at the various masses at St. Michael's church. At this was Mission Sunday, the sermon dealt with this aspect of the Church's activities, namely the spreading of the Gospel. This was the object of the life and death of the Canadian martyrs. Father Lally's direct interest in the shrine of the Martyrs was the subject of his remarks. In the afternoon Father Lally addressed the Children of Mary on devotion to the Blessed Virgin.

MR. W. WOODSIDE TO TELL OF TOUR

Women's Canadian Club to Open Season with Gifted Speaker

To open the season's series of lectures the Women's Canadian Club has been very fortunate in securing as their first speaker, Mr. Wilson Woodside, who will address the club on Tuesday night in St. Thomas' Parish House on "European Journey of a Philosophic Vagabond." Mr. Woodside's travels have taken him for many miles throughout Europe and he has been keenly observant of the problems of that section. Widely known as a journalist and lecturer, Mr. Woodside offers his audience a travel talk that reveals a deep knowledge and understanding of many things.

Mr. Wilson Woodside has been connected with the Engineering Department of the University of Toronto. He has made a very careful study of the Russian problem and is considered to be an authority on that continent's affairs.

He has written many interesting articles and is a regular contributor to "Saturday Night," "The Mail Weekly", "Current History" and "Atlantic Monthly" magazine.

During the past several summers, Mr. Woodside has toured Central Europe on a bicycle, coming in "closer" contact with a considerable number of people and gaining firsthand information, which as a Canadian, he presents in an unbiased manner.

Farmer Combats Starling Nuisance

A rural resident west of this city has found if new way to end the starling nuisance in his particular section of the country and to bring relief to a government sponsored trap, during the past few weeks, he has painted the lower half of the bottles of the birds, a brilliant yellow and crimson shade. Since then, shunned by their own mates, they will not return to perch or nest in driving away the flocks, which used to damage trees and building around his farm.

MERCY APPEAL IS NOT ENTERTAINED

Guilty of Intoxication And Fifteen Day Sentence Passed

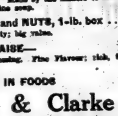
"I appeal to your great big generous heart for consideration. Give me 24 hours, you have me 24 hours, I'll get out of your town and never return," pleaded a transient giving the name as John Kent, Toronto, when he appeared before His Worship Magistrate R. J. Bullen, K.C. today charged with intoxication and vagrancy.

Kent was found guilty of the former charge with the "rap" dismissed by the magistrate. A sentence of 15 days, dating from the time of his arrest last Thursday, was imposed. Kent was arrested by P. C. Taylor last week and pleaded guilty when in charge of vagrancy in Friday's court. At the suggestion of Crown Attorney R. G. Thomson, K.C., the subsequent charge of intoxication was laid and Kent was remanded until today for trial. The accused man conducted his own defence, when being cross examined by the Crown Attorney, admitted he came into Belleville by means of stealing a ride on a C.P.R. freight train.

"Don't you know you were breaking the law, when you stole a ride on that train?" asked Crown Attorney R. G. Thomson, K.C.

"Sir, sir, but I tried walking and it's not what it's cracked up to be. You see I was in Toronto and tried to get home as soon as possible I'm tired of tramping," the vagrant explained back Kent as he was led away to the county jail, where he will serve his imposed sentence.

FIFTH REMAND ON PERJURY CHARGES



Crown Orders New Inquest But is Not Ready to Proceed

Perth, Ont., Oct. 21—(CP)—Four persons charged with perjury in connection with their evidence at an inquest into the death at Smiths Falls of William Muldoon, middle-aged locomotive engineer, appeared in court today and were remanded until April 17th next.

The four, Mr. and Mrs. Milburn Baker, John Miller and Mrs. John Gleeson were released on $10,000 bail each.

The Ontario Attorney General's Department has ordered a new inquest into the mysterious death on the basis of an autopsy said to disclose fractured vertebrae with a previous inquest verdict he had been slain.

Hull, Que., Oct 21 (CP)—Philemon Vandette, transient, was sentenced today to five years in St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary for entering a Gatineau Point Church and stealing money from three poor boxes.

POLICE COURT

A number of minor cases were disposed of in today's local police court held before Magistrate R. C. Butler K.C.

Fred LeGault, 18 year old Windsor youth who was arrested in Peterboro with two companions and in possession of Albert Reave's stolen mobile last week, appeared in the court for sentence today. LeGault having pleaded guilty in a previous court. Local authorities had been in communication With the lad's parent and the authorities at Windsor since his incarceration and he was attended to relate his incorrigible youth to the St. Johns school for boys at Toronto. Later it was discovered that LeGault was too old to be sent to that institution and arrangements to have him removed to another such school are being suggested by the authorities. In the meantime the youth was remanded to the custody of the local jail.

Two minor assault charges and a reckless driving charge were disposed of and found all accused persons guilty as charged with the minimum fines in each case being imposed and paid forwith.

"HIT AND RUN" DRIVER SOUGHT

Mrs. Hilton's Car Badly Damaged, But Motorist Fails To Stop

Local and Provincial Motorcycle Police were searching for an alleged "hit and run" driver over night and will be had failed to find the wanted motorist today. The case came to the attention of Provincial Patrolman Bert Delaney Saturday night following a telephone call from Mrs. Hilton, Catherine St., who informed the authorities that another motor car had struck her automobile from the rear on Saturday night and failed to stop. Mrs. Hilton was proceeding eastward on Highway No 2 some four miles west of Belleville, when a car overtook her in the same direction struck the Hilton car in the rear, the second driver turned out his auto lights and speeded rapidly towards Belleville. Constable Delaney was reported to have resulted to the Provincial.

Apparently blinded by the glaring headlights of an approaching motorist, the driver of the car in the case of a locally driven automobile going into the ditch and crashing into a telephone pole on highway No. 2, one mile east of Trenton at 9.30 Saturday night. Upon investigation by Motorcycle Patrolman Delaney, no injuries were reported to have been sustained by the two occupants of the automobile although two of the vehicle was badly damaged. No charges were deemed necessary.

A third minor motor accident happened in the village of Frankford, when a motor car, driven by W. J. Lynch, Front St., Belleville, collided with a large transport, driven by Wm. Locking, London, about two and one week of November. The large truck and trailer was affixed to the rear of the large transport. The Lynch car was badly damaged about the fenders and body, but no injuries were sustained by any of the occupants of either vehicle.

POLICE BLOTTER

The practice of entering local residences and ransacking the same during the absence of their owners or tenants has become quite popular in Belleville of late. On Saturday Provincial Constable Fred Jarvis was called to investigate two such breaking. While the residence of H. Henry St. was entered from their home recently, burglars gained entrance through a rear window and rifled the numerous drawers throughout the house. Apparently the sole object of the would-be burglars as nothing of value was reported missing by the owners.

On Saturday Constable Jarvis was investigating a minor case when he observed persons prowling about in a house on that Dundas St., from whom the occupants had first been removed to the hospital. Subsequent investigation revealed that an 11 year old girl and a 12 year old boy were ransacking the house in search of money, they admitted to the officer. They were taken home and given into the custody of their parents and instructed to report at the police station at their school house today.

Only nine transients appeared at the police station in quest of warm sleeping accommodation at the police station on Saturday only three appeared before the night sergeant's desk, while on the 14th six were given sleeping quarters for the night. The average for accidents was reported on Saturday night, but only fender damage resulted, the matter of damages was amicably settled between the parties concerned.

Surrender of Control Of Sea Routes to Asia Not Britain's Intention League Still Facing Critical International Situation)

TEMPORARY RELIEF

Mussolini May Try For Peace Treaty With Selassie

By Frank H. Kingsley, Associated Press Staff Writer)

London, Oct. 21 (AP)—Competent British and foreign observers took the view today that the Mediterranean crisis was merely suspended rather than settled.

Even though confirmation of Franco-British friendship and assurance to Italy by the British fleet would not set Mediterranean fears at rest, the first would go to Britain's aid in the Mediterranean in case of an unprovoked attack.

The assurances of Sir Eric Drummond, British Ambassador in Rome, to Mussolini that Britain's great fleet in the Mediterranean would not take an isolated action likewise were helpful.

British did not however indicate the slightest intention of surrendering Sir Samuel Hoare's control of the sea routes to the Asian Empire.

While it might—after the general election—be now British government is conceded to be in a position to enough end to Italian policy considered necessary.

The conference started on at Geneva will be continued on the basis of a collective League of Nations' program of sanctions for Fighting the steps of Italy's East African adventure.

By JAMES A. MILLS

Addis Ababa, Oct. 21.—A bomb thrown Mussolini may by at his Italia direct peace negotiations with Emperor Haile Selassie, using Count Lugi Vinci-Gigliucci as an intermediary, strengthened today as the Italian Ambassador hastened two days after being handed his passports.

Count Vinci-Gigliucci's attitude in continued darkness of the Ethiopian that he despert perplexed government officials.

There Ethiopian Italian soldiers constructing a road from Mount Mussa Ali to the Ethiopian border on the central front were reported blinded when they attempted to cut down the deadly euphorbia cactus, incantations of which are said to be capable of causing total blindness.

Apparently the Fascist forces had not been warned against this new menace which in South Africa sometimes is cut down only at a distance with long, pole-like scythes.

Groups of mounted Ras marched into the capital from the interior today, alongside groups of Emperor Haile Selassie's warriors.

This caused foreigners to believe the tribesmen might leave the Rases against the Italians but officials explained the beasts were intended as presents for the Emperor.

Although the tribal warriors were chafing at delay in hostilities, government officials expressed pleasure at the interlude which allowed them to rush in munitions.

Reports savage Danakil tribesmen cut off hundreds of Italians and killed or wounded 300 near Mount Mussa Ali were unconfirmed here as did reports Italian native troops, supported by bombing planes, captured two Ethiopian posts on the southern, Ogaden Pawrince front.

There were growing indications of tension here between Franco and Ethiopia.

ACT PROMPTLY ON POWER CONTRACTS

Not Slightest Doubt of Cancellation Says Hepburn

Toronto, Oct. 21.—(CP)— With the Ontario Government, in the words of Premier Hepburn, determined "to act promptly and get the business over with", the immediate fate of the Queenston power contracts was moving rapidly to a head today.

The Premier's special cabinet meeting today or tomorrow to discuss recommendations of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission for cancellation of the contracts.

Declaring he didn't think there was "the slightest doubt of cancellation," the Premier last night made the statement following an earlier announcement by Chairman T. Stewart Lyon of the Hydro Commission that all Quebec power would be flowing to present plans, be cut off from the Ontario system at midnight, Oct. 31.

"Of course," the Premier said, "our course of action depends on whether we are prepared to accept the Hydro Commission's recent recommendations, that the Legislation be proclaimed."

(The Act passed at the last session of the legislature providing for cancellation of power purchase contracts with the Beauharnois, Gatineau, Ottawa Valley and Macaren

Ontario Acts

The three-man Hydro Commission, consisting of Mr. Lyon, Attorney General Roebuck and Highways Minister Mosquito, last week recommended unanimously the Act be proclaimed. It was believed the Government's decision followed completion of a conversion system at the Chats Falls plant making it possible to do without Quebec power in Eastern Ontario.

The cancellation, Mr. Lyon said in his week-end announcement, "is in a very serious matter involving $300,000,000 and the commission and Government are treating it as such." He added on the day the contracts were declared invalid "hundreds of Italians will be in a position to supply all its essential service to the Niagara system without Quebec current.

No representations had been received from the Power Bondholders' Association, the Premier said. This body had warned the province for refunding bonds in the power companies.

BENNETT CABINET TO MEET TODAY

Routine Matters For Continuation of Government Only

Ottawa, Oct. 21—(CP)—First meeting of the Bennett cabinet since the general election probably possible the last before the government formally resigns, scheduled for this afternoon, will be largely attended. Practically all the Ministers, successful and defeated alike, will gather around the council table with Premier Bennett in the chair.

Routine matters necessary for the continued functioning of government only will be dealt with. An order-in-council will be passed accepting resignation of Hon. W. D. Euler, Canadian Minister to Washington.

Premier-elect Mackenzie King today was again assiduously engaged in preparing to take over the reigns of office and selecting from his colleagues following his victory at the polls.

The Liberal leader may assume power at the end of the week or by next Oct. 28. In any event, it will be in ample time for Mr. King with his choice of ministers prepared to accompany the Governor-General to Quebec to welcome Lord Tweedsmuir when the Governor-General designate arrives Nov. 2. Swearing in of Mr. King who incidentally will be entering the House of Prime Minister for the third time in his political career, and his cabinet will take place here before the administrator, Sir Lyman P. A. HENDERSON PEACE LEADER PASSES AT 72

The King and Queen had sent a message of solicitation during his illness and on the occasion of the prince's leaders now intent on forging Great Britain's foreign policy which he left off in 1931 when the Labor Government fell, paid him tribute as a gentle, beloved idealist who was known as "Uncle Arthur."

George Lansbury whose record as an apostle of peace is equal to that of Henderson, said, "I wish his passing might inspire statesmen of the world even at this late hour, to call a halt in the mad race of armaments." Lansbury succeeded Henderson, as chairman of the Parliamentary party in 1931.

Other tributes came from Sir Samuel Hoare, Secretary for India; Viscount Snowden, Lord Cecil, J. H. Thomas, Secretary for the Dominions, C. R. Attlee and Sir Herbert Samuel, Home Secretary.

Started as Iron Moulder

The death of Henderson, who started life as an iron moulder in Glasgow, Scotland, marks the passing of the first of a coterie of humble British workmen, who dedicated their youth to the upbuilding of British labor in the pre-war years. They made labor a powerful force in British public life during and after the war and rose to power on Labor's forward surge.

But their names began to disappear from the directorate of the party they had created by lifeless struggle. One by go were Ramsay Macdonald, Thomas and Snowden the last named in 1931 as labor leaders they were the most dominant figures in the British political arena. Then died sterling Henderson to totter,

Macdonald hurried to Buckingham Palace, resignation in hand for himself and his Labor Cabinet and cried cries of "traitor" accepted King's Commission to form a National Government.

Macdonald's about face in "going over to the enemy" drew bitter invective from his front rank labor colleagues with the exception of Thomas and Snowden who loyally stuck by him. All three summarily were expelled from the Party and cold-shouldered by their once most intimate colleagues.

Slipped Out of Council

Henderson was one of those, who cut all ties with the Macdonald trio as Labor elected him to succeed the Scot as leader of the Socialist Opposition in the House of Commons. Then, two months later, Henderson himself lost his seat in the Commons. Though later re-elected, he found himself forced to the difficult climbing of getting up his post as Labor's 'business manager' or of resigning as President of the Disarmament Conference. Deciding to devote his remaining years, in failing health, to the cause of championing peace, he too slipped out of Labor's high councils. Lansbury is the latest to depart Labor's ranks, resigning the leadership because he disagreed with official Labor support of sanctions against Italy voted by the League of Nations.

The 72-year-old statesman who less than a month ago underwent an operation, won the Nobel Peace prize in 1934. He had been afflicted with jaundice, due to a gallstone condition.

News of Henderson's death occasioned expressions of sorrow in Geneva, an attempt to revive the world disarmament conference was made last month but it was abandoned on the ground the Italo-Ethiopian conflict and other reasons made it hopeless so far as achieving anything was concerned.

Born of Humble Parents

The council of the League of Nations which appoints the President of the Conference, made no move whether to replace him.

Henderson was born in Glasgow of humble parents in 1863, he began life as a moulder's apprentice. His foresight, grasp of issues and calm judgment led him to the forefront of Labor ranks. A total abstainer all his life, he was at one time a soldier in the Salvation Army, and later an evangelist.

In 1914 at Geneva in an address to a gathering of disabled war veterans from many countries, Mr. Henderson declared: "Responsibility for the next war as "mischievous and dangerous talk by the general staff of the forces of hell".

In 1918 he was a member of the war conference of women held at the invitation of the war committee of the British Labor Organization. He also was a member of the General Committee of the League of Nations Society in Canada.

When Lloyd George became Prime Minister in 1916 Henderson was made Minister without portfolio in the War Cabinet. The following year he was a member of the British Government's mission to Russia.

He was Home Secretary in British's first Labor Government in 1924. Six years later when Labor returned to power he became Foreign Secretary. His election as chairman of the World Disarmament Conference came in 1932. Until his death he had devoted himself principally to the cause of peace.

His widow, two sons and a daughter survive.

GUMPS CREATOR KILLED IN CAR

Sidney Smith, Shortly Before Crash Had Contract Renewed

Harvard, Ill., Oct. 21 (UP)—Sydney Smith, 58, creator of the comic strip, "The Gumps", which brought him fame and fortune, was killed early Sunday in an automobile collision's half mile south of here.

Smith was driving from Chicago to his Dunmore home at Lake Geneva, Wis., where he had signed a contract Saturday for continuation of the Gump family's adventures for another five years. He was to be paid $100,000.

Ordinarily Smith drove an expensive, heavy automobile, capable of great speed, but last night he was using a light roadster. It collapsed under car and was thrown from the road against a power line pole.

Saturday afternoon Smith met with three cartoonists at a specialists at Lake Geneva to renew his $150,000-a-year contract.

Present besides Smith were Arthur Crawford and Blair Walliker of Chicago. The contract signed, he drove them to Chicago.

Smith was a lover of outdoors and in my mood because of his death. Several Smith decided to return at once to Lake Geneva last night.

He started late and stopped at the Subbling Over tavern, a roadhouse six miles south of here, where he entertained patrons by drawing pictures of Gump characters and autographing them.

He was last seen alive at the tavern, which he left about 3:30 a.m. Both machines were wrecked.

Smith was born in Bloomington. He worked on newspapers in Indianapolis, Chicago, Philadelphia, Toledo and Chicago.

He went to the Chicago Tribune in 1911 and began a comic strip entitled "Old Doc Yak" in which concerned itself with the antics of some rather strange animals who crossed in human clothing. Although revived recently as a supplement to the Gump strip, Smith abandoned "Old Doc Yak" in 1918 when he created Andy Gump, Andy's wife Min, and Him Gump, the Assistant Cashier uncle. Andy and Min had two children, Chester and Goldath.

ITALY IN BAD WAY

Stories coming out of Italy, the Brantford Expositor points out, indicate that Italy is practically a bankrupt country, but the fact is concealed under the iron rule of Mussolini. Under the rule of democracy these conditions would be revealed, but not in a land where liberty is buried. On the main streets are the big parades and the cheers but away from them the Italian people are reported to be finding out where they are financially. A recent attempt to float a loan of a billion lire was a total failure. The people, it is said, are burying their gold, silver, jewelry, and foreign holdings deep in the ground and the lira is today worth three cents. Ten per cent of the population only is said to favor war and conquest. The other ninety per cent are dragooned and regimented into silence, indifference, or fatalism by tyranny, persecution, exile, and concentration islands.

Opinion inclines to support this view which would indicate Mussolini and his Italy in a very sad plight. Liberty seems to have disappeared from the outward form and there is no doubt that at heart the Italians preserve that love of liberty they are noted for.

Italy's colonization of Libya has been a failure. Twenty years of persuasion have got only 14,000 persons to that country to take up residence. Under Italian rule it is said half a million natives have left Libya. Even Eritrea contains only 12,000 Italians.

Why does Italy want Ethiopia? the Brockville Recorder and Times asks. "It is not for purpose of colonization but chiefly for the exploitation of the rich natural resources of that country. Thus Mussolini's enterprise is shown to be one of greed, ambition and glory for the Italian nation."

YOUTH!

Lord Gorell, editor of The Cornhill Magazine, takes two pages of verse to relate his daily employments, longings, disappointments, as he sits each day "where people feed my table with their bid for fame," and each day finds the "snowdrift" the same. With tired eyes he gropes his way through basketfuls of manuscript, of which few "to printed stature rise," wishing meanwhile to see the moorlands break each morning through the dispelled mist or to watch each evening "cloud dances" on mountain slopes or to climb each night obedient to my soaring whim," to seek the stars.

As it is, he goes on to say:

The papers pile on desk and chair
And I pass judgment—here and there
Bring youth a word of cheer
And ward away
Failure's heart-cramping fear.

That "word of cheer" to youth seems most needed every day and especially this day after the gloomy report of the National Youth Administration in recent issues. With 3,000,000 "youth"—between 16 and 25—on relief and from 5,000,000 to 8,000,000 "wholly unoccupied"—that is, neither working nor attending school—the situation demands all the "cheer" that can be infused into the gloom. If the five to eight million "youth" are wholly or chiefly boys and young men, they would be fully half the boys and young men between 16 and 25 in the entire United States, the total number of boys and girls, young men and young women of these ages inclusive being about 25,000,000.

Mr. Aubrey Williams, the Federal Director, has confessed himself as not knowing where to turn or what to do. He sees no expansion of private industry to include these young people "in any time that you and I can foresee immediately." But time is the essence of our contract with youth. And the responsibility rests first of all upon the community that every boy or girl is offered every opportunity that neighbors can give, especially as individuals and through churches and schools. Even on a meagre economic basis it is possible to develop the capacities of which Dr. Compton spoke on the same day in his address that this eminent physicist and the clergy and laymen of the Religious Education Foundation were in agreement. What the Federal Government is doing in the emergency is not the ultimate American solution. It must come through the intimate relationships such as obtain in the smaller communities, through an appreciation of the "splendors of young humanity" amid the "clamant weal and woe."—New York Times.

To prove that the Dallas correspondent is up to snuff and wideawake list to the following resume of what's what and what isn't what in that great state which includes the Panhandle, the Pecos, and we have been informed, the Rio Grande, many Mexicans, more Texans, quite a few Canadians, several million horned toads, a few crusted rattlesnakes who bid the time of day with passing tourists, and rattle right along about their own business, oil unlimited, and even bootleg oil—besides other things too numerous to mention. And, so— after all that remains and preamble, the next voice you hear or see will be Dallas:

Hello, folks of Hastings and Prince Edward Counties! We envy you the nice cool fall weather and can see in fancy the many beautiful colors which tint the Oak Hills with splendor these wonderful Autumn days. Just a bit homesick, maybe now and then, so 'twere best to change the subject and talk of Texas.

Gosh, all hemlock! are WE going to have a Fair? Texas Centennial is going to be housed in a $13,000,000.00 plant, work on which started the other day when Governor James V. Color was added to the program by the presence of Ranger Tom Hickman and two of his famous Texas Rangers, with ten-gallon hats, high-heeled boots, and six-shooters prominently protruding from their belts, who kept the crowd back from the blasting zone which they patrolled on expensively-saddled mounts. Texas doesn't take a back seat from any other state, colony or country. Big things were born in Texas. Best this one if you can. Dallas newspaper displayed picture of a plant which had grown higher than a tall man's head. This giant cockscomb was grown by R. E. Shaw, at his home 3414 Harvard street, Highland Park, and the picture shows the plant much higher than the planter's head. Mr. Shaw's hobby is flowers, and this cockscomb measures six feet six inches in height while the blossoms measure nearly two feet in diameter.

A five-foot tarpon caught by ten-year-old daughter of Ted Dunlap of the Dallas News is also worth recording. Refusing help from her parents the girl played her silver king for thirty minutes and successfully landed her prize. The sons of the Big Game and Fish Hunters of Belleville would have revelled in that.

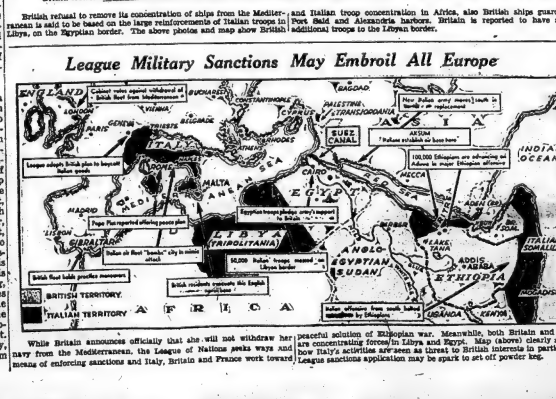
If you're wife don't behave, take a tip from Texas, here's what one he-man of the Panhandle and Points West did to keep peace and sanctity in his family, regardless. The wife of the household began stepping out with other men, contrary to the peace and happiness and conjugal bliss guaranteed by the statutes of that there state, and the husband sat up and took notice. He found his erring spouse in a cheap dance hall with a cheap escort, one of those two-cents-a-dozen guys with permanent wave, theis black hair, handlebar moustaches and the soft, smooth, salva talk for weeping wives who are not "understood" by husbands. The husband amputated the dance lizard from his wife, took her home and laid her over his knee for a good old fashioned spanking, supplemented with several good punches where it would do the most good. Then he took her to a hospital and reported to the police. The woman was asked by the police if she wished to prosecute for assault. "Oh, Heavens, no," she cried in dismay, "it was all my fault." The couple left arm in arm.

Britain Rushes Defences to Egypt as Libya Arms



British aeroplanes over the pyramids of Egypt; camel corps on the march. Great is the military preparations in Egypt and Libya as Britain rushes defences against possible attack from Italy's colony of Libya. The above striking picture show British aeroplanes flying over the famous pyramid, while a "dawn patrol" of the Egyptian camel corps is photographed at sunrise as they cast their shadows on the sand dunes.

British Naval Concentration Based on Italian Moves Near Egypt

British refusal to remove its concentration of ships from the Mediterranean is said to be based on the large reinforcements of Italian troops in Libya, on the Egyptian border. The above photos and map show British and Italian troop concentration in Africa, also British ships guarding Port Said and Alexandria harbors. Britain is reported to have sent additional troops to the Libyan border.

"Harmony Lane"

Life And Loves of Composer of "My Old Kentucky Home"

The life and loves of Stephen Collins Foster, the composer of many famous songs, such as "My Old Kentucky Home", "Way Down Upon the Swanee River" and "Old Black Joe" are vividly and sincerely depicted in the feature picture that begins a two day engagement today at the Capitol theatre.

Reports have it that "Harmony Lane" which is the title of the picture, portrays the great romance, the trials and tribulations and the great composer of folk songs with extreme tenderness. The screen story unfolds with earnestness his struggles in securing a hearing for his melodies. It likewise brings out the romances in his life that inspired the better known of his tuneful numbers.

In Douglas Montgomery, the producers of "Harmony Lane" have not only found a publishing genius but one of this humble genius. With Evelyn Venable and Adrienne Ames as the two women who screen dom inate the most desirable talent that could be secured to portray their respective roles.

Chek of Negro Singers

A remarkable group of negro singers, a talented spiritual from whom it is said Foster gleaned his immortal melodies.

The management of "Harmony Lane" will be for two days only, with an excellent program of short subjects including a comedy entitled, "Husband's Holiday" and a Fleischer Ko-Ko show Chas. Ahearn and his group of rhythmic syncopators, Dalhart Dinnerware will be given to each lady patron attending the Monday and Tuesday performances.

AT THE REGENT

Michèle Morlaye

The advance sale for the Michèle Morlaye on Wednesday evening of the stage show "Broadway Follies" is now open and the demand for tickets indicates a filled house for that performance. The management has secured a feature picture other than the regular picture to be shown, for the Michèle show. It is called "Make a Million" and is said to be a hilarious comedy based on the modern bank letter craze that sweeps the country.

Advance reports from the towns where "Broadway Follies" have been playing, speak glowingly of the quality of the entertainment that is dispensed by this talented group of vaudeville artists. Foremost in the cast is Sidney Toler, a comedienist who played for three years in the Follies Bergere of Paris.

Elmer Deakins performs on the accordian in a highly capable manner. The three Forbes Sisters wear gorgeous costumes and execute many intricate dance steps and display pleasing harmony.

Three shows daily will be given by "Broadway Follies" with the Midnite show starting at 11.30 p.m. Wednesday night.

Jack Oakie, Loretta Young and Clarke Gable, in Jack London's "Call of the Wild," at the Belle on 27 Tuesday.

AT THE BELLE

"Call of the Wild"

Refreshing Film With Clark Gable, Loretta Young and Jack Oakie In Lead

A picture that rates the raves of every movie fan in Belleville and district, and collected a lot from them on Saturday night when it began its three day run at the Belle Theatre is the filmization of "The Call of the Wild" the immortal Jack London classic of the Yukon gold rush.

Rich in rugged drama and clean fun, the picture exerts a powerful appeal for every member of the family.... the youngsters and their dads won't have to be told that they're all thrilled to this most human of Jack London's tales of the love story, beautifully played by Clark Gable and Loretta Young, will hearts the feminine contingent of a grand time.

Jack Oakie contributes the comedy and keeps the audience howling there's a new dog star..... a huge, soft-eyed St. Bernard named Buck .... who makes its screen debut in "Call of the Wild" and looks like the logical contender for the canine cinema crown.

Gable and Oakie

The film, which was shot amid the majestic beauty of sub-zero Mt. Baker, Washington, was adapted by Gene Fowler and Leonard Praskins, and the team has done a brilliant piece of work. Gable is ideally cast as a swash-buckling prospector who sets out with his buddy, Shorty Hoollihan, (Jack Oakie) to find a "real claim". On the trail they rescue the beautiful Claire Blake (Loretta Young) from wolves and learn that her husband has been lost searching for the same claim, which has been discovered by his now dead father.

The trio locate the rich claim, but Smith, a villainous prospector who had found the lost Blake and sought him to lead him to the riches, surprises them and takes their gold and their canoe, but drowns in the rapids weighted down with his stolen bounty.

The unexpected return of Claire's husband offers a climax to Thornton's code "Take-what-you-want" but he finally agrees to let her go. Throughout the story, the "Call of the Wild" which torments the dog, Buck, of memories of the time when he was a wolf and mates him wavers between his love for his master and his yearning for the wolf-mate who calls to him, is particularly skilled the conflict in Thornton's soul.

"Call of the Wild" emerges the most refreshing and enjoyable entertainment in many seasons. Major Bowes' Amateur Night of the Air, now the screen's newest hit, and Ben Belle latest News Flashes complete an exceptional program of varied screen entertainment. The entire program will be repeated again on night and Tuesday, matinee and evening.

Tweed—Rev. R. R. Nicholson was at Wellman's Corners on Thursday evening. He delivered an illustrated Bird Lecture at the Orange Hall under the auspices of Wellman's public school of which Miss Grace Dayman is the teacher.

The Young People's Society of Tweed United Church met on Monday evening. The meeting was under the Missionary Department with Miss Grace Reeve in charge. The theme discussed at the meeting was "Friendliness Towards Those in Other Lands". Miss Isabelle Gordon B. A. the President of the Y. P. S. told a very interesting story entitled "The Wheat Field." A story "The Girl in Green" read by Miss Lois Ketcheson was of particular interest to the members of the society, as it was written by Miss Marion Cron, daughter of a former pastor of Tweed United Church, and now a missionary in China. Another reading by (Cyril Scott)—Enid Connor—Story "Onay Joe"—Dorothy Barnett. Poem "He gathers them in"—Eleanor Davidson.

The leaders of the River band, Nikolenko Timoveva Golub and Nikolai Sleshchinsky, were officers under General Petlura, White Russian leader, and had been carrying on counter-revolutionary activities since 1921, according to witnesses at their trial. Early in their career they successfully incited Jewish uprisings in the Kiev district, it was testified, and in recent years their methodically disrupted the work on collective farms.

Last Spring they organized the band of guilar players and wandered from collective to collective staging their songs of counter-revolution and urging the workers to destroy crops, overwork their horses and destroy the farm machinery. They were caught in the act on count and a library of counter-revolutionary literature.

Other news of counter-revolutionary activities today includes an account in the newspaper Pravda asserting that one Mike Bogatiryov, the brother of Gregory Bogatiryov who was a leader in the Don Cossack uprising, worked his way into the Communist party and was executed only recently. It is charged he went into the Don Cossack country in 1931 and urged the peasants to throw their grain into wells. It is also charged he had been corresponding with his brother, now living abroad. His punishment has been capitalism from Russia.

"Old Men" Were Impressed

Kiev, U. S. S. R., Oct. 19— Two leaders of a band of wandering musicians who for years had entertained the peasants on collective farms, were sentenced to death as counter-revolutionaries.

After treating the farmers to songs which praised the Soviet regime they would suggest that they destroy their crops and implements and refuse to work because the Soviet regime would soon be overthrown. Their advice impressed chiefly "old men and backward peasants" who carried it to other farms in the district.

Tweed Fair Held in 1921, Tichenko Tishkovets Golub, one of the musicians, was hailed by Petlura "as to rise against the Bolshevik in the village of Nikolai-Dubechnya in Kiev Province. Then he seized a small river steamer and made his way to Kiev.

The sentence ordered the confiscation of all the band's property, including the musical instruments. Unless an appeal is granted, the execution will take place seventy-two hours after imposition of the death sentence.

HALLOWAY W. M. S.

The Halloway W.M.S. held an open meeting at the church on Thursday, October 17th at 2.30 p.m. A good number present. Mrs. H. Townsend in the chair. Advice to the Lovelorn

By Beatrice Fairfax

Edith's Like Their Food and Told Them So.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I knew him for two years before I brought him to our house for a meal. He's one, of those wise cracking fellows who turns everything into a joke. My mother is a Southern woman and a stickler for good manners.

At supper he made fun of everything that was set before him. Said the biscuits were tough, wondered are my mother's child pride) and then the chicken salad was queer and he wouldn't come again. All this he did in a spirit of fun, laughing loudly at his own jokes. In the meantime, but no one laughed with him. The more I writhed and cried about the food, the more it seemed like a funeral round the table.

After he had gone home, mother and father both said they never wished him to come to the house again, and that I married him if he would be the same. I could always count on new years plans. I know he comes from very plain people, has had few advantages, and don't get me wrong, I don't want to break with him. What would you suggest?

Lenny.

The poor young man was only trying to be amusing and the life of the party, not knowing what he did was unspeakably. undebred. Tell him as gently as you know how that his remarks about a difference of tastes are to be avoided. And then get him to write a little note of apology to your mother, telling her that the supper was delicious and that he was only trying to be funny.

Declines to Visit His Home

Dear Miss Fairfax:

For some time I've been going with a girl, and although we are not engaged as yet, we think a great deal of each other. I've invited her to come to my home and meet my parents any time, but she always refuses, saying it isn't proper to go to a fellow's house, is she right?

M.

It would be entirely proper for the young lady to go and your home and meet your parents. Even the most straight-laced girl could not think to refuse. Tell her, if that's why there is a mother and father to chaperone her. Don't keep her from going to a bachelor apartment but if she refuses to go further, I hope she changes her mind.

Correct Manners

NICKNAME

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My name at present is Josephine Brown. However, all through High School the students have always known me as "Jo", and the most friendly teachers did, too. I'm going to enter college very soon and I wonder if it would be correct to register in my classes as "Jo" and also to tell my friends that that is my name.

J.

The question of names is such a personal one that no one else couldn't have a very helpful point of view about it. But it seems to me that you would be wise to register your formal name of Josephine Brown in college, and let your short, crisp nickname of Jo take care of itself on occasions. In fact, for instance, you would be expected to register by your formal name of Josephine Brown, and the authorities would look approvingly on your registering for a nickname.

Josephine is such a charming name—I've known such especially delightful people who had this name—that I don't want to discard it. I do advise you not to discard it, and decidedly, for it is true that we often live through phases of not liking our names, and then we come back to it with a new devotion wondering why we "made those" of it. But if you want to try your nickname, there is the added point of view that it is customary for the nickname of Joseph—and this too might apply to Josephine.

SEATS AT TABLE

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please write and tell me if there should be any set form for placing guests at the dinner table in a party that is to be given at a hotel? The mother of the groom-to-be is giving a dinner for her sister-in-law in order for them to meet the bride-to-be and

Perfume Is Cosmetic Queen

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

Frequently somebody writes in to ask about psychoanalysis. Although the peak of popularity of this new psychology seems to the layman is concerned—is held by many authorities thereon to have passed, there can be no question of the fact that its appeal to actual interest in human nature and its orders continues to widen. This is because more and more of cases now understandable in the light of psychiatry, were completely baffling before.

What is more, certain neurotic states of mind, functional nervous disorders with obsessing fears, compelling ideas, devastating convictions of inferiority and guilt—these yield to psychoanalytical technique where electricity, baths, and drugs have failed.

Dr. Sigmund Freud, of Vienna, is the inventor of the psychoanalytic theories and the father of the whole movement. Some of the theories he originated have probably be modified as time goes on. But he and what has psychoanalysis taught us? What benefit has been derived from the researches of thousands of human minds? Even from the individual help received—how many distressing nervous symptoms—what new lights have been thrown upon—the mechanisms and workings of human personality.

In the first place, if analysis has taught us anything at all, it has demonstrated the fallacy of the old unconscious selves really are.

Then, and perhaps most important of all, it has demonstrated the power of the unconscious mind—the reservoir of dreams unmistakably reveal these childish reactions. And it is these childish stirrings, in contact with the world as it is, that cause not only nervous suffering but much of the failure, disappointment and unhappiness that is met with at every turn.

In addition, psychoanalysis has made another, perhaps equally great contribution. It has given a new point of view to every study of the mind. Psychoanalysis has influenced, rather than resulted. Psychoanalysis has emphasized the need of inquiring why a person does this and that, instead of being satisfied merely with recording the fact that he does act that way.

WHY and HOW are constant questions in the psychoanalytic approach. Only when you know why and how a thing happens can you hope to cope with the situation adequately and successfully.

The interpretation which the analyst gives to dreams and to the points of attack of those who do not believe in it. They are safe to accept the doctrine that all dreams contain a vital element and that this distorted dream symbols really is so important a meaning as far as unconscious thinking and repressions are concerned. Those who actually undergo a psychoanalysis are, however, soon convinced.

She selects perfume to conform to her personality

By HELEN FOLLETT

PERFUME IS the queen of cosmetics, the aristocrats of them all. Buy a single ounce of perfume for one little dollar and you'll feel like an heiress to millions.

It's a notion of the high moguls of dress and fashion that blondes should wear delicate scents, delicate scents like jasmine, lily of the valley or violets. These pale floral fragrances suit the golden halo and the innocence complexion. Brunettes can get away with florested odors that have more substance, richer notes. Take the case of offered the public rose by using perfumes that are strong enough to work on the streets.

The out-of-door gal who skates in the winter, sails boats and plays tennis in the summer should stick to the woody odors. Sandalwood is one of them that carry exhilarating notes. Under these there are romantic scents that suit her type.

When standing, the weight of the body should not be thrown upon the heels or the balls, but upon the ball of the foot. There should be an inward curve at the small of the back, chest should be lifted, arms hang naturally and easily, tummy pulled in and head held erect. Stooped figure is corrected by regard for carriage.

Don't hanger with notes. If they are located where clothing irritates them, go to a medical man who is doctor. Popular books on the subject has means of doing away with them. Many polka dots, however, that are safe. The work is done according to scientific principle.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Hint Hint

Drinking is really an art. Most people should learn how and what to drink. Popular books on the subject are available in all public libraries. Everyone should be acquainted with the effects of alcohol, and, in particular, with the effects of various wines and spirituous liquors.

Livestock

Toronto, Oct. 21 (CP)—Lambs led the way with a flurry in 25-cent highers quoting at the close on Toronto livestock market today. Cattle movement was very dull on all classes while calves and sheep sold steady and hogs were unsettled.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 4,800; calves, 1,000; hogs, 350; sheep and lambs, 1,500.

The cattle included 2,300 westerns. A few butcher cows sold steady at $2.50 to $3.50 and bologna bulls steady at $1.75 but otherwise there were no killer offerings of any kind of good steckers made $4.50 to $5.00.

Lambs were firm to 26 cents high-er at $7.00 to $7.25 for good ewes and wethers and at $5.00 to $6.25 for other grades. Sheep and calves quoted steady, the former at $2.50 to $3.50 for good, light ewes, the latter at $8.50 to $9.00 for choice, $8.00 for common and $4.00 to $4.50 for most grassers. A few top calves made $9.50.

Hogs, as usual, opened unsettled with packers' bids lower at $9.00 f.o.b. $9.00 for packers and $8.00 off car.

Receipts reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 4,860; calves, 1,000; hogs, 350; sheep and lambs, 1,500.

RESTORATION OF PEACE

on the Italian position already improved by the seizure of the fortress of Dagnorcel last Friday.

Today, however, Generalissimo Grassiani's forces had already advanced 60 miles beyond their original lines, according to this report, and were farther into Ethiopia than the northern army.

Capture Important

The complete possession of the rich bases such as those in the Dessie region was said by military authorities to be one of the highest importance.

The region has been the centre of Ethiopian resistance and if Italian forces can establish a foothold in the otherwise desert region.

Dessie is the railway movement. It was stated, the Italians took and occupied the towns of Dessie and Scievli which, like the stronghold of Dagnorcel are along the Webbe Chiebeli River.

Military authorities said General Graziani now was expected to take Gorrahei, on the Way to the Harar region.

Note of Confidence
(By Richard O. Maswick, Associated Press Staff Writer)

Paris, Oct. 21 (AP)—Premier Laval was reported in unofficial circles today to have received suggestions from Benito Mussolini for settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian issue.

The Premier was said by these circles to have left for London with the British parliament this week before submitting the suggestions to London.

Officials declined to comment on the report although they said: "The greatest problem now seems to be to get Britain and France to accept Italian terms."

Premier Laval held a virtual vote of confidence to proceed in his treacherous diplomatic tasks.

After winning a large secret and a double victory in the Senatorial elections, Premier Laval received a shower of editorial congratulations on his peace-making methods.

A member of his staff, however, said he failed to see how that would help restore peace between Italy's campaign of conquest. This author-ity was reported to be Pierre Laval, who also was a hard one, particularly if he submitted to London a suggestion for an Italian mandate over the Ethiopian lowlands with economic and administrative control over the rest of the country.

Officials generally agreed the atmosphere had been cleared of distrust for 10 days of negotiations before the deadline set by the League of Nations for economic and financial sanctions.

ETHIOPIA WARNS ITALY

Excellency, the Ambassador, is based on the following grounds:

The Legation's statement ended "humbly and earnestly" begging the Italian Ambassador "instead of troubling to deny what is true, kindly to be so good as to advise his people to fight fairly if they must fight a brave, unarmed people."

The statement refers to the Ethiopians as "savages" who only know fighting bravely with ordinary weapons and as man to man and who "respect their women, children and animals."

Board Room Gossip

As Supplied to Eggar and Crawford By Financial Service

Sladacona. — Development work has reached a point where more than enough ore is assured for steady feeding of an initial 100-ton mill unit, according to M. D. Kennedy, mine manager.

Mining Market.—Liberal victory last week is construed as optimistic development for the mining industry and mining market. Liberal party in announcing definite policy in taxation and uniform mining policy throughout country in view of establishing confidence in order that foreign capital may be attracted.

Macassa.—New development on 3,-400-foot level is of encouraging importance. Still drifting in ore of better than mine average grade over better than drift widths. Possibilities important.

Cody Lake.—The management reports that the new mill is treating approximately 140 tons daily and is getting a good extraction.

Wayside.—The 100-ton mill now being erected is expected to be ready for operation early in November.

The Canadian markets last week acted in line with general expectations. It had been anticipated by many that the Liberal victory would prevail immediately after the election and this would be followed by gains in a number of preferreds, particularly General Steel Ware, Dominion Tar, Canada Malting and in such common issues as Consolidated Smelters, National Breweries, Noranda, Royalite, etc.

While it is perhaps too much to expect that a new era of prosperity in business in the United States is to be avoided this year, it does seem that the coming fall will be much smaller than normal for the reason that business generally had enjoyed support in the increasingly large expenditures of relief funds. Looking further ahead, there is very good indication that a soldiers bonus payment of two billion dollars will be ordered early in the coming session of Congress, which should afford added stimulus to the spring rise of stocks. Later on the bill for all these things will have to be met, but by the meantime business will benefit and this will be reflected in stock prices.

Thus there's no indication that the bear market of recent months has been reversed, and no change in investor-policy is called for. Some of the issues listed below are to be found among representatives of the investment group, and call for special appreciation the best opportunities appear to remain in the heavy goods industries.

The buying of Canadian Celanese common of late has been of an extended character. The directors of this company are scheduled to meet on November 2nd, when the important question of dividend on the junior issue will be discussed. The Street is hoping that the directors will act at the rate of $1.00 or $1.50 a share per annum. Current earnings are running close to $4.00 a share on the basis of Financial Service learns from an informed source.

For the first time in months conservative commission houses have been willing to buy certain Canadian common stocks this week. There is to be better than fair trade in an-dicator on the outlook.

WALL STREET FINANCIAL

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—Influential favorites, led by the motors, started to new highs for the 1938 year or longer in today's stock market.

An avalanche of buying orders swamped the ticker tape during the final hour, crowding sales of 1 to 2 or more points were numerous.

The buying Canadian stocks generally prevailed in McIntyre, Canadian Pacific and International Nickel. On the Toronto exchange 1,000 advanced more than a point. Dominion Gov-ernment bonds were firm and narrow. Canadian funds held unchanged at 98 3-32 bid.

Among the principal share gainers were Chrysler, General Motors, Packard, Nash, Hudson, Studebaker, Western Union, National Dairies, American Commercial Alcohol, National Distillers, American Tobacco "B", Lorillard, Du Pont, Columbian Carbon and Union Carbide. Most of the rails and utilities were firm. Metals, oils, coppers and steels and coppers eased.

TORONTO INDUSTRIALS

Toronto, October 31.—(CP)—The first hour of trading today was the heaviest in several months with the leaders of the Oils, Liquor-ettes and Metals groups featured with heavy action in Ford A, Massey Harris and Union Gas. Higher prices were showing this afternoon although many issues were off.

Gains ranged up to more than a point were showing in the Liquors with weaker conditions in the Oils. All the oils traded actively for gains of a point or more. Modest advances were boarded in the Steel and Coal-mining shares, with exception of the foods. The Toronto Elevator issue advanced 3 to 4 points each.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Oct. 31 (CP)—Action in the Mining Section was a bit lop-sided with some of the secondary golds steaming along strongly on heavy trading and other groups, such as Base Metals and Metals lagging back and displaying a heavy undertone. Silvers were down for a time but they improved moderately in the early afternoon.

Featuring the golds were Central Patricia, Macassa, and McKenzie. Macassa set the pace for the whole list with a gain of 3 points in large blocks at 83 and higher.

Base Metals were depressed by weakness of copper, the London quotation closed little changed at 11 shillings per ton. Noranda was off 1-4 and in considerable supply.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, Oct. 31.—(AP)—The stock market moved along at an active pace with a firm tone during late trading today.

Early leaders with gains of 1 to 2 points showed little change at the close. While additional strength came to the surface from several new quarters, including Textiles and Chemicals.

Near the beginning of the final hour, shares showing gains of 1-2 to nearly 2 points included General Motors, Chrysler, Hudson, Packard, Studebaker, Sears, Montgomery Ward, Northern American Commercial Alcohol, National Distillers, Columbian Carbon, Celanese, Loews, Columbian Carbon, Monsanto Chemical, Western Union, Consolidated Gas and International Telephone. Some of the Steels and Rails showed fractional advances approximating 2,500,000 shares.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

Montreal, Oct. 31.—Exports of butter and eggs were heavy last week from the port of Montreal. Butter shipments totalled 97,946 boxes, compared with 38,511 in the preceding year. Egg exports totalled 1,683 cases, against 1,015 cases in the preceding week. Cheese exports totalled 29,471 boxes, against 27,747 in the preceding week, and 41,853 in the corresponding week last year. For the season to date butter exports are 1,703,968 boxes, against 1,661,4 year ago, while cheese exports are now 494,187 boxes,—compared with 540,168 at this time last year.

Receipts, with comparisons, were pooled at the Board of Trade as follows:

	Eggs	Butter	Cheese
	Cases	Boxes	Boxes
Last week	7,530	23,520	23,724
Week ago	8,107	24,696	23,280
Year ago	8,107	6,476	30,370

As regards prices butter and eggs were higher; cheese was easier; poultries were steady, while on the provision market hams were advanced and geese declined.

The butter market generally averaged 24½c to 24¾c per pound for No. 1 cartons or prints. Small lots to the retail trade were quoted by jobbers at 26c for solids and 26c for prints.

The cheese market was 19½c to 19¾c for No. 1 colored and 19c to 19¼c for No. 1 Quebecs, for current arrivals.

On the egg market graded shipments, good fresh stock, in cartons or 1-cl. lots were quoted 34-34½c, 32c for A-medium, 30c-31c for A-pullets, 26c-28½c for B, and 21½c to 22c for C.

Argos Top Heavy Favorites To Win Big Four Crown Scoring Fifth Straight Win

Frank Turville, Hamilton, Out For Season With Broken Collar Bone

VARSITY WINS

Defeat McGill, While Queens Takes Fall Out of Western

(By Elmer Dolson)
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

One of the great football players of the last decade, long-gassed Frank Turville, kicking and running halfback of Hamilton Tigers, left the East's gridiron scene somewhat clarified today. By having his collar-bone broken Saturday, Turville installed Toronto Argonauts as big-money favorites to win the big four title.

In the midst of one of his big days against Queen's Golden Gaels, the long-limbed hewyer was carried from the battle ground early in the third period. The seriousness of his injury was discovered later. They won't carry Turville from another field because that was undoubtedly his last game.

He kicked three field goals from placement and converted a touchdown during his final volley in football, and those things are what the Tigers scored, A 32-13 victory over the roughriders. The win left the Hornets in second place, but still two points behind Argos, who ran their winning streak to five with a 14-7 triumph over the Wheelers at Hamilton.

The effect of Turville's injury in what was to have been his last campaign anyway was that Lou Hayman's dashing talent conquerors of the Tigers this season, found themselves in a stronger position than ever. They will be the favorites today even if Turville was sound and healthy, but with Frank on the sidelines they seem headed to be the big four to halt the Queen's dynasty.

Elowitz Injured

Ottawa's chief threat, Abe Elowitz, was also injured in the third period of the Tiger-Roughrider tangle. Abe had kicked a field goal and thrown a forward pass for a touchdown before he left the game but the Ottawa flying wing was not seriously damaged and will keep on leading Rough-Riders.

The Saturday bashing did nothing to forestall what looked from later in the Intercollegiate and O.R.F.U. battles. University of Toronto downed McGill 11-7 before a crowd of 18,000 at Toronto to take the Intercollegiate leadership, but the margin of victory was so slight, that the Indians have every chance to upset the Blues, when the teams meet for the second time in Montreal.

The other college contender, Queen's, scored a 16-7 victory over the Western Mustangs in London. It was so close that the Queen's players had to kick three singles in the fourth quarter to keep the front of Bill Skeates's team, fighting hard to avert a third straight defeat.

Balmy Beach Beachers, undefeated Toronto force, walloped Hamilton Civic 24-2 in Toronto to set the stage for a Thanksgiving Day contest with Sarnia Imperials that will find the O.R.F.U. providing one of 1935's highlight struggles. The Beaches proved beyond any doubt their qualifications to challenge Sarnia.

Beaten 1-0 in their first meeting with the Canadian championship Sarnia, Beaches were confident they could step briskly past the Cubs and then topple the title-holders in their return engagement in Toronto.

Beaches, featured by a 50-yard field goals against Cubs and the Beachers tallied three touchdowns.

The Game in Toronto

The day's finest contest was played between McGill and Toronto. After building up an 11-1 lead in three periods through a field by Marks-to-Joe Connelly forward pass for one touchdown and a "giff" on end major score, the Blues barely were able to fend off the Redmen in the final stanza.

Led by Andy Anton, burly second-string halfback, who proved an accomplice for seven of McGill's 16 first downs; and Herb Westman, star kicking half, the Redmen scored one touchdown and were on the verge of getting another. Anton went over for the Major score after Westman had made a successful rouge-and-a-kick, then Lazera passed to a lineman.

A. A. U. OF C. PUT IN HOLE

Asks 12 Months Period For Pros And Amateurs to Straighten Out Tangle

Toronto, Oct. 21.—(CP)—The Amateur Athletic Union of Canada today was faced by a rather drastic suggestion from the Central Ontario branch that for a twelve month period amateurs and professionals be allowed to mingle in competitive sports.

The aim of the resolution passed at the branch's annual meeting here saturday is to "expose the amateur athlete receiving compensation for his services and to restore the confidence in the existing among those who participate in games for the pleasure of playing."

The next assembly of the A.A.U. of Canada is scheduled for Nov. 21-23 at Halifax.

The resolution calculated to throw the spotlight on professionals was sponsored by Charles R. Hippisley, hon. Olympic and A.A.U. official, and M. F. F. Kelley, president of the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association. After an hour's debate the resolution was passed with one dissension.

A clause calling for elimination of the word amateur from the A.A.U. of C. was dropped. A clause, however, stipulating it be loaned to Athletes for registration purposes as formerly, not only as amateurs but as professionals, was left in.

A resolution also was passed calling for abolition of the dual interprovincial championship of the A.A.U., and asking that the central and south-western provincial organizations merge into one Ontario branch of the A.A.U.

C. V. "Clem Allen.

"Little Dempsey"

The popular Belleville boxing promoter who is staging tonight's boxing show at the Belleville Arena, augmented by two outstanding amateur wrestling bouts by good measure, Matchmaker Allen has procured the best available boxing talent in Toronto and matched them against suitable opponents from his own Stewart Warner A.C. stable while as a feature bout Mr. Allen is presenting Mel Oliveria, former lightweight champion of Canada, versus Billy Humphries, present Ontario lightweight champion. The card is truly a metropolitan show at popular prices.

STELLA WALSH RETURNS HOME

Established Five New World's Records While Abroad

Halifax, Oct. 21 (CP)—Back from a summer's campaign in Europe with five new world's records to her list of honors, Stella Walsh said she planned to hang up her running shoes in Cleveland for the winter and not put them on again time to train for the Olympic games.

The 24-year-old Polish-American runner was in port for a few hours this morning on the new motorship Pilsudski which arrived her 14 hours overdue after a rough cruising and sailed later for New York.

New records claimed by Miss Stella as a result of her summer's work on the continent were: 200 metres, 23.6, at Warsaw; 200 metres, 30.2, at Casimdia; 300 metres, 39.6, at Poznan; 400 metres, 57.4, at Bydgoszcz, and 500 metres, 1 minute 17.6 seconds, at Warsaw.

Besides the records—Canadian, Polish, American, Japanese and world—she possesses three crowns of merit bestowed on her by the Polish Government.

Detroit Teams Ready for Start Of Ice Season

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 21.—(CP)—Unlike some managers, Jack Adams of the Detroit Cubs had no problems to day as to the complement of his team. Red Wings and Olympics for the National and International, this after only a week's ice practice.

Only Herbie Lewis, Marty Barry, Smith, who learned his hockey in Toronto, would be a goal, bulwarked by defensemen Ebbie Goodfellow, Scotty Bowman, Hucko McDonald and Doug Young.

The attacking divisions consist of Marty Barry, Larry Aurie and Herbie Lewis on the first line; Pat Kelly, Hec Kilrea and Gordon Pettinger on the second and Sid Howe, Johnny Sorrell and Eddie Wiseman on the third line.

Barry, Kelly and Kilrea are newcomers to this year's squad. Barry is a standout performer in Boston in exchange for Cooney Weiland, Kelly was with St. Louis Eagles' last year and Kilrea came from Ottawa.

Five rookies have clinched berths with the Ox. Walter Broda of Winnipeg is slated for goal, while Johnny Sheriff, Ronnie Hudson, Carl Liscombe and Don Deacon are the Aber amateurs, who have made the grade.

Sheriff is from the London University of Michigan, Hudson was a member of Halifax Wolverines, Allan Cup champions of Canada, Liscombe was leading scorer of the Ontario Hockey Association while with Hamilton Seniors last season and Deacon hails from Prince Albert, Sask.

Sherf and Hudson will work with Captain Wally Kilrea. Liscombe with Connie Kling and Bud Brunetteau and Deacon with Wilf Starr and Lorne Duguid. Carl Beetto, Yip Foster, Burr Williams and Orville Roulston are the defencemen.

Animals Head for Game Preserves As Canadian Hunting Season Opens

The hunting season is opening throughout Canada, and the forest denizens are scurrying for cover. Top, wapiti or elk, numerous in Alberta and British Columbia. Below, a young bull moose in for a swim.

By the animal wrokkers system, big game in Canadian national parks where hunting is not allowed (except by camera), have notified animals on the outside of the safety of the preserves. Elk recently saw full grown bulls and cows of the wapiti or elk family made a hazardous trip of 100 miles to reach the safety of Jasper National Park in the Rocky mountains in the border of Alberta and British Columbia provinces. Their path was not straight and narrow. It led through the mountains, and meant the crossing of two mountain passes, one of 6,500 feet, and the other of 7,500 feet above sea level. No mean task for these lusty animals.

This is but one of numerous notes which have been taken by travellers to show that some of the best hunting is likely to be on the borders of game preserves. Animals are continually flocking into these preserves in Canada attenying over thousands of square miles, peoperly of good hunting ranche are inviting. Not only elk, but mountain sheep and goats can be found near the parks in Western Canada, while moose, deer, bear and caribou can be bagged in most of the hunting districts of the Dominion. Game preserves, both national and provincial, are scattered from coast to coast. Most are within rail or motor reach, and a few will entail canoe trips to reach.

UPSETS MARKED U. S. FOOTBALL

Army Breaks Jinx to Win From Harvard 13-0

By ALAN GOULD

(Associated Press Sports Editor)

New York, Oct. 21 (AP)—A succession of shocking form reversals left the United States football ball world somewhat dizzy today. Favorites were toppled from coast to coast in Saturday's spectacular gridiron show.

Realest upset that first-class football no longer is controlled by a college's size, came in Minneapolis location.

Michigan State, previously picked as a possible rose bowl candidate was the victim of perhaps the biggest upset, handed by Georgia Tech's Golden Tornadoes 20-0.

Another national title contender, Rice Institute of Houston, Texas, was overthrown by Southern Methodist 19-0 and Temple College of Texas taking the spotlight from Rice's all-America back, Bill Wallace, Duke, doted to Fordham 6-0 and over Georgia Tech was knocked over by Bill Hennessey's Georgia Tech pupils 6-0, while Georgia eliminated North Carolina State from the ranks of the undefeated 7-0.

Yale's versatile outfit, led by Ike Williard sophomore star, Monday spiked the Navy's aerial guns and scored an exciting 14-7 victory before the day's biggest crowd, 60,000 at New Haven. Army, uncovering a new backfield star in Monk Meyer, shook off the Harvard jinx at West Point, emerged with a convincing 13-0 victory and pointed the way to the East's outstanding battle of unbeaten teams next Saturday when the cadets invade the Yale bowl.

BEST PLAYER AWARD TO HANK GREENBERG

Philadelphia, Oct. 21.—(AP)— To Hank Greenberg of New York's Bronx has come the honor of being selected as the Baseball League's most valuable baseball player of 1935.

The battle star of the world champion Detroit Tigers was the unanimous choice of baseball representatives of the Baseball Writers Association of America who participated in the selection.

The big first baseman, kept out of most of the world series games by an injury, polled 80 points with Wes Ferrell, Red Sox twirler, who chalked up 25 victories during the campaign, second with 61 points.

Joe Vosmik, hard hitting Cleveland outfielder was third with 39 points, Buddy Myer, Washington second baseman, ranked next.

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

If the amateur wrestlers prove sufficiently interesting during tonight's Stewart Warner A.C. boxing and wrestling show at the Belleville Arena, a full night of amateur wrestling will be presented in Belleville at some later date. In the meantime, however, the Manager Bill Crawford teasers of his boxers' training period over the week end and reported all his scrappers to be right for the going tonight. Including the Palmateer brothers, who will, the show, there will be only be four local scrappers on tonight's card. Father meets Jack Haven, Wheeler is slated to tangle with Billy Rogers, Mark Bicknell takes on Pee-Wee Pease and Bobby Cook meets Fred Hughes. The main attraction of the night, however, is a metropolitan bout as it brings together Mel Oliveira and Billy Humphries, both of Toronto and champions in their own right.

Both St. James A.C. and Maple Leaf A.C. promoters in Toronto have repeatedly tried to sign Gilmour and Hemphries for a bout in the Maple Leaf Gardens, but without success. It remained to have Belleville's popular Matchmaker, Clem Allen, steal the Queen City boy's thunder right from beneath their eyes. Promoter Allen has established a fine connection in Toronto and Western Ontario due to the fact that his boxing and wrestling cards are very much in demand there days. When Clem Allen comes out fist-footedly states he has the best wrestling card ever staged in Eastern Ontario he apparently knows what he is talking about for the show will literally appear on tonight's card at the Arena and the fans themselves they are the cream of the crop and plenty of action is expected. If the sport fans want excitement, drop around to the Arena tonight.

Thursday is Thanksgiving Day and a gala wrestling card is being arranged by the local promoters for that night. Already it has been signed as has Joe Kastelnach, but the names of their opponents are as yet undecided. The promoters are trying to get Al Bundy or Dunlop for a match with the Indian Chief, while Kastelnach may be matched with Jack Haven. The two rude Turk strongman, Irish Steve Casey and Jack Haven, Belleville favorite, the Italian youth who defeated Jack Haven and has since signed on the dotted line. Efforts are being negotiated to produce Angelo for Taylor.

The Belleville Rugby Football Association are getting out a large number of applications for membership programmes which will be ready for distribution on Thanksgiving Day, when the local Dr. Kennedy-coached squad meet the Hamilton Tech boys in a regular Lake Shore group O.R.F.U. game at the Fair Grounds.

Paul Runyan Now Favorite

By TOM YARBROUGH

Associated Press Sports Writer

Oklahoma City, Oct. 21—AP)—Dapper Paul Runyan of White Plains, N.Y., a brown [sp] bag cocked jaunty atop the [illegible] that wears the crown of professional goldom, loomed seriously today as a repeater for the United State P.G.A. title.

But the diminutive New Yorker, who proved little golfers and big scorers don't necessarily go together, faced a real test today in Blond Al Zimmerman of Portland, Ore., dark-horse of the fairways in a tournament filled with upsets.

Runyan finished only one stroke over par on the rugged Twin Hills layout yesterday as he piled up an impressive 3 and 2 victory over Tony Manero of Greenburg, N.C.

Three other well-known golfers, who entered the fourth round were Johnny Revolta of Milwaukee, who accomplished the dizzable feat of eliminating Walter Hagen; Horton Smith, the "Atmosur Pipe", who birdied Denny Shute out of the running and Tommy Armour, who blasted out his fellow Chicagoan, Ky Laffoon.

Thursday afternoon. These performances will be passed among the patrons of the game and carry a wealth of football information. The program is a 25 page pamphlet and not only carries the rules of the game but also useful hints that should prove interesting reading to even the more experienced and football-minded fans. Incidentally the book dropped Saturday from 10c to 5c Ontario by the score of 5 to 2 and therefore must take the Lindsay spend his camp or things will be looking somewhat drastic for the Fry-Kennedy outfit. The leads were considerably handicapped Thursday as the Belleville players were injured last week during practice, but they made a creditable showing and the Lake Shore Belleville Devils just the same. A win on Thursday will elevate the locals into second position in a tie with Hamilton.

While the local squad was absorbing a 3 to 2 defeat in the Motor City the Peterboro' Orfuns scrambled a pep by defeating the Oshawa squad 9 to 3 in the Summer town. On the holiday the Orfuns journey to Peterboro, while Belleville takes on Hamilton at home. Providing the Little-Kick Ottawa take a fall out of the Lake Shore Devils, will the league assume a more cheerful atmosphere locally. Coach Kennedy and his charges returned home Saturday to stay their game in Oshawa was the first seen thus far this season in the Lake Shore group. Both squads played an excellent defensive game throughout, all points being of the single nature. The game developed into a punting duel, Ralph Wallis, who boots 'em for Oshawa, and Lloyd Bloor, Orfunsite. Wallis all of this was going on both lines of scrimmage were full, but a rather singular incident occurred, when both squads reverted to aerial attacks via the forward pass route, which netted them substantial gains per yards, but no major scoring resulted. Jimmie Andrew's interception, good for a touchdown and 40 yard run was one of the highlights of a real hard-fought football game.

Argonauts and Sarnia, the class of their respective football loops, while in the senior intermediate O.R.F.U. field Balmy Beach rugged with Varsity at present the class of the O.Q.F.U. field for converted Varsity attack on Saturday in the lane of 11 to 7 while Queen's were kept busy as they won over Western 4 to 1.

Rugby fans of the fans this week, boxing tonight, O.R.F.U. game Thursday afternoon and pro wrestling Thursday night, Friday saw a full of intermediate football, while on Saturday the O.Q.F.U. saw Queen Cobourg with a possibility of the championship. Final is finals being played at the Arena on Saturday night. Some fun, eh?

INTS. DEFEATED BY OSHAWA 3-2 IN TIGHT GAME

Belleville Had Chance to Win in Last Few Minutes

RIGBY STANDOUT

Folwell Had Slight Edge Over Follis in Kicking Duel

Oshawa, Oct. 21—(CP)—Oshawa Blue Devils strengthened their hole on first place in the Central Ontario intermediate grouping of the O.R.F.U. when they defeated Belleville 3-2 in an exciting, hard-fought contest before a large crowd here Saturday.

There was little to choose between the squads with Belleville having a slight edge in the kicking exchange, while they also completed more forward passes than Oshawa. They were not as consistent however, as the latter cashed at in opportune moments throwing away several chances to win. Folwell booted for all three Oshawa points while Folwell accounted for both of the Quinte team's singles.

The most exciting part of the game was near the end when Belleville became desperate, Folwell throwing a forward to Rigby that went for 30 yards and following it with another heave which Clarke received, going into Oshawa's 25 yards and putting them in a position to tie up the game. Mays however, brought the ball back over the line and when Belleville elected to return Bills' kick, Folwell returned it pourly, Oshawa recovering to put them out of danger.

Rigby was the standout for the losers, as were Folwell and Anton while Payne, Mays and Bills also turned in strong games for Oshawa. Teams:

Belleville—Flying wing, Johnson; halves, Folwell, Shriner and Hilton; quarter, Anderson; flying wing, Knowles; middles, White and Morgan; middles, Rigby and Burden; outside, Lee and Black; subs Munnings, Wilson, Black Bardell, Kelly, Skelcher and Forester.

Oshawa—Flying wing, K. Cushinan; halves, Mays, Payne and Bills; quarter, Hare; snap, Gray; insides, Palmer and Brown; middles, Bigley and Cutler; outsides, McDonald and Salter; subs Barnes, Morrison, Anderson, Kashul, Bagnell, Armour, Pollett, L. Brown, Lewis and Bloor.

Referee Bobby Armstrong. Umpire—R. Day. Head linesman—J. Creamer.

1936 AUTO PLATES FOR NEW MODELS

Purchasers of New Cars at Motor Show to Have New Markers

Toronto, Oct. 21—With 1936 model motor cars making their debut before the Canadian public in the first Fall display of the National Motor Show, to be held here next month, the new car buyer was faced with the humiliation of driving off his new car with old license plates until the Department of Highways met the situation half way.

According to an announcement by Hon. T. B. McQuesten, minister of highways, the motorist who purchases his new car during or following the show will be able to secure his 1936 license plates at once. With the Motor Show and the new models presented two months ahead of the customary date, the plates will be distributed to the strange sight of cars being driven about in March with 1936 license plates.

"Installment Marriage"

by

Janet Doran.

Michael finished her a gasp of chagrin. Then he studied her smiling admission and began talking.

"Honey!" he said. This is Michael swearing. Yes. I forgot to get a bridge-table in this lay-out, and we went out right away. You can? Yes, I take one. Thanks."

Michael, Judy protested, "you're crazy! They'll send you a hundred dollar table if you don't ask them about price and make! Besides we can get a good one in a few days, at that little shop downtown."

"But I want now, honey. I need it to figure on," he explained, "and we haven't a thing except one table in the kitchen cabinet shelf. I want to dope out some sales campaign. And I don't want to have one kicking around, in case anybody came around for any of our few bonds of bridge."

He slammed up the check, and got up. "I'm going down to the delicatessen and get some stuff for supper. What do you need, Judy?"

Judy made out a list of grocery needs, and he started off whistling. A short while later the man from Hines delivered an arnotta little walnut and inlaid bridge table, with four folding chairs of leather and standard steel.

Judy picked up the price tag, and almost ran after the man to call him back and order him to take it right back. The tag read $19.95.

Michael came in, whistling gayly, and his arms were full of tall brown paper bags filled with packages.

"But, Michael, I didn't order all that!" Judy protested, and then grinned.

"Yeah, I saw extras," he explained, "in case anyone dropped in."

Judy was washing her face with hands that shook with weariness and fresh anxiety when the door bell shrilled. She heard Michael open the door, and the little special ment rang with excited happy shouts.

"Surprise!" the crowd yelled boisterously. "We came to surprise the newlyweds." It was Michael's gang, from his office. They rushed in with little exception of the fact that the place was obviously still unsettled, still in the wild state of arranging and furnishing.

Judy stared at her disordered, dishevelled hair, at her tired eyes, and pale face in the mirror. Her fingers loosened, her soiled apron unstedily, and something like a sob broke in her throat, and she picked up a comb and ran it frantically through her hair.

As she did so, she was struggling desperately with weariness that screamed through every protesting nerve, trying frantically to be polite, to not show her despair, as the tense group around the card table moved, while ever the stacks of chips, and made sort tense bids after brief, charged pauses.

Michael laughed a great deal. He was very happy, very excited.

Chapter II

STRANGE TELEPHONE CALL

Michael was gone when Judy finally opened her eyes, sighed, and stared around the disheveled room. Her head ached dully, and her face felt taut and stretched, as if it were swollen. The room smelled faintly, still, of that decadent odor that places closed for any length of time have, though the window was open.

There was a tinge of moth-balls, blended with furniture polish, and the baleful smell of new furniture, to add to that odor. And each to other, a different strange smell.

She reached for her cigarette, dropped on the davenport, and slipped on worn mules. The kitchen was a mess of, the windows looked light. And, with amazing sensitized, the little odor of bacon and empty plates and coffee butterfly and-table brought her wide awake, and she got up and went to the face.

She remembered now. The party last night. Michael's friends, and fellow-workers from the insurance office. The card game.

She ran uneasily fingers through her tumbled hair, and her face was weak. Was it an eternity ago, or only last night, that she had sat up there, hour after hour, listening to their careless jokes, their wise allusions, their hilarious amusement, while every nerve in her tired, numb, aching body begged her to stop, stop, stop, keeping her out of her comfortable bed?

She remembered the endless sandwiches she had made, with the things Michael had brought in the big paper bags. She remembered pushing aside dishes stood for decoration, and watching them ignored, as cigarettes were stubbed out on the edges of tables, chairs, stands.

On the radio, beautiful and shrieking and now, a dead cigarette butt still rested, like a tube, between the picked it up, and saw a deep, inching groove burned deeply into the shining finish.

Then she remembered. Shorty had teased her about being bashful, as he turned the radio to get a dance orchestra's midnight program, and Michael had insisted she go to bed.

"Just some is no place for my girl," he said with lordly superiority over the bachelor group. "You're tired, dear; get some sleep."

There had been no bottles there then. Simply glasses of ginger-ale. She must have got the others later. After she had gone to bed. After she had got through trotting from kitchenette to card table, to kitchenette for more food.

She remembered that Shorty had tried to dance with her several times. It had embarrassed her, and after Michael had teased her into being a good sport.

"Why be a crab, Judy?" he asked in a high humor. "Who wants to see a frosty face on a party?"

Then it was two, and she could stand it no longer. When they were busy over their game, she slipped away, and once in the bleared shuttering darkness of her room pulled her clothes off, with shaking, weary hands, and crept into bed.

She could not bear to look at the disordered living-room, at the hours of painstaking labor it would require to restore it to the point she had approached last night.

In the kitchenette, the table, sink, and cabinets littered with glasses, plates, dishes, upwashed, and liberally garnished with cigarette stubs.

Judy flinched, and then hurried blindly to the cabinet and grabbed the percolator. While coffee bubbled, she washed the dishes in cold water, and ran a comb through her hair.

Even after she had had several cups of hot, strong coffee, Judy could not help thinking of the cool, ordered perfection of her office, and it was with a definite sense of guilt that she banished the thought that in two more days she would be back again at work.

She found a fresh linen smock, a pair of old, comforting shoes, and began on the living-room. In this she became a collection of papers and junk that she knew must have come from the sale. Michael had said yesterday must go to the cleaners.

Judy started to empty it into the trash-can in the kitchen, when two envelopes, hastily ripped open, caught her eye. The letter inside had robbed of her hotel in Miami. The letters he had said he was going to burn! That he did not want to read!

Judy emptied the basket hastily, and hurried back to work in near panic. She would not be snoopy. She would not be a prying wife. This was Michael's home, as much as hers! It was his place to entertain his friends, bring people in. It was why he wanted a home so passionately.

But her soft mouth was a straight sober line as she cleaned and swept and dusted, flung the windows wide to the morning air. Then she sat down in her chair a tiny fear beginning to grow. A fear that perhaps Michael's interpretation of home was not the same as hers. Home to him meant people about, friends, laughter, talk, excitement, and cards. To her it simply a place to be with him. To do for him, serve him, make him comfortable and happy.

She was eating a bowl of dry cereal and milk, and munching a peach for her luncheon, when the cleaners' delivery truck brought Michael's suit.

"The boss says can you pay something on the back bill, Mrs. Swayne?" The man held out the box containing Michael's clothes very much as if he was going to let her have them until the bill was paid.

"Why . . . yes, sure," Judy said uneasily. Mr. Swayne isn't here, but I can pay it for him."

She did her purse, and didn't remember until she opened it that she had scarcely any money left. She had given it all to Michael to pay their back bills, and he had gone and off to get back to town.

Two dollars for this, Miss, and something like old, crisp bills, and gave him four dollars, and had less than a dollar left, when she put the paid slip and receipt for the pressed on Michael's desk, count up on the shelf over the sink, and decided she'd have to get some from her husband when he got back until she had a week's salary once more.

At four, she went to the store around the corner, to get a little thing for dinner. "Something easy to make," she told Mr. Stewart. "I'm not a very good cook as yet!"

"A steak, perhaps?" he suggested understandingly, "or some chops? We have veal cutlets, too, Mrs. Swayne."

"Some chops," Judy decided, "six and potatoes, to bake." She had enough left to buy some ice-cream and a cake and fresh rolls.

At five, she was still struggling with the chops, which simply would not brown, when Michael came home. He was in a gay and fresh role.

"Hello, darling!" he said, and started them in a cold skillet, and curled his arm around her, and kissed her cheek. "Hello, honey, and she left the telephone rang, and she left the chops to despair, hoping it was Michael.

"Mr. Swayne there? Mr. Michael Swayne?" a man's voice was indescribably beautiful. Soft and caressing and cultured-sounding. Judy knew it couldn't be Michael's friends, on their honeymoon. She was sure already as if the woman had told her so.

"No," she said faintly. "He hasn't got back from his office yet."

"Oh, well; thank you! They thought he'd be home. This is Mrs. called there!"

Judy turned back to the kitchen and wept. She knew she was crying over the frying-pan, but it was a desolate sort of sorrow to lavish on six innocent-looking chops.

The door banged in the front hall, and Michael came noisily in. "Hi, Judy! Surprise!" he shouted. "I brought a steak, and all the fixings. We'll celebrate!"

Judy clung to him, sobbing hysterically.

"M-M-Michael," she wept burrowing her small nose into his rough coat, "I'm so g-g-glad you c-c-came! I tried to cook some chops for dinner, and they spoiled, and . . . everything's all wrong!" She let her tongue in a lick of time, to keep from saying, "And some woman called up for you, and a cleaner came chunning for a bill, and I gave him my last dime!" Michael had said he was sick of hearing about money. He was fed up with it. She must never forget. She would never forget.

Michael chuckled. He patted her shoulder, and kissed her gently. He swung her up onto the kitchen sink-shelf, and imprisoned both hands in his big fist.

"Well," he admonished her gently, "three shakes, while I lose this hat and coat, and climb into an apron, and Pappia'll show you how a steak can be cooked as is a steak!"

He whistled gayly, as he scrubbed the gummed iron skillet, and put in plenty of clean, crisp fat for the burner until it turned blue and smoked. He talked as he performed magic rites with suet cut from the edge of the thick steak.

"Better wash your face in cold water, Sweet. We're stepping out tonight, after we eat. Cleaned up this trip, and we're top o' the world again!"

He slapped the steak into the smoking pan, and watched it expertly.

"Know what important day it's next week? Know what I did? Just wait till you see what old Michael brings his austere bride for her birthday!"

Judy's soft face flamed, she forgot the potatoes in the oven, the steak, Michael was lifting out, rich brown, and dripping.

"Michael, I'd rather we got out of debt first," she began, and he shouted with laughter.

"Budget hound," he teased, "and scads of 'em. Loads of 'em! Car, telephone, gas, light, AND an important something for my girl's birthday!"

Judy rescued the potatoes, set the table in a blaze of excitement. Remembered the ice-cream in the refrigerator.

"Somebody telephoned for you, just before you got home," she said, eating hungrily. "A woman. She didn't leave her name."

"A woman?" Michael laid down his knife carefully. "What did she sound like, Judy? What did she want, insurance?"

"She sounded like blue chiffon velvet, and crushed roses and strawberries and cream," Judy said obediently, and to the last, "I don't know, Michael."

Michael made a sound like a smothered curse, and began eating again, scowling ferociously.

Chapter III

A BIRTHDAY PRESENT

Judy's fears of the days that followed, that she was back on her job again, kept her busy from nine to five. So busy she could not worry about the countless little anxieties nagging at her peaceful mind.

The celebration, Michael had insisted upon, their next to last night of their vacation-honeymoon, Michael's prodigal extravagance. Spaghetti that would make covered every installment payment they owed. Installments that would be due all too soon. Within a few more days!

"Please, Michael," she had pleaded, "don't want such expensive flowers. I'd be much happier with something simple!"

"Simple, brown orchids," Michael had ignored her protests gayly, "and a filmy ribbon to hold them!" He beckoned waiters, ordered expensive wine, free prodigality, until finally Judy's worried anxiety silenced his high humor.

"Smatter, Judy? Aren't you having a good time? Why the frown face?"

"Michael, we simply can't afford such extravagance," she began anxiously. "Remember, we're now working people! And we have dozens of time payments to face in a few days, too! If you throw it away on nonsense, it will only embarrass you later on!"

"There's plenty more, Judy, right where this came from!" Michael insisted. "What I can do today, I can do double tomorrow . . . as soon as I get going—shift into high. All I need is a break, better times, and I'll show you how to coin money!"

"But now, Michael," Judy said soberly, "let's say enough to meet our installments! when they come due. There'll be other times to celebrate. It isn't as if we couldn't step out any time you feel like it."

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE (Metropolitan Newspaper Feature Service)

The weight of Tarzan's body crushed the boar to the earth, and before it could struggle to its feet again, the keen blade had severed its jugular vein. As life blood gushing from the wound, the bear sought to rise and turn to fight.

But the steel threw of the ape-man dragged it down, and an instant later, with a convulsive shudder, Horta died. Leaping to his feet, Tarman placed a foot upon the carcass of his kill, and raising his face to the heavens, gave voice to the victory cry of the bul-ape.

Faintly to the ears of marching men came the hideous scream. The blacks in the party halted. "What the devil was that?" demanded Evert. "It was the cry of a bull-ape who has made a kill," said Kilembo, "or" "Or what?" demanded Evert.

Kilembo looked fearfully in the direction from which the sound had come. "Let us get away from it here," he said. Again the lightnin flashed and the thunder crashed, and as the torrential rain deluged them, the party staggered on in the direction of the barrier cliffs of Opar . . .

ROSLIN

Roslin, Oct. 21. — The annual Deanery conference of Hastings-Deanery was held in St. Paul's Anglican church, Roslin, on Friday, October 18. At the communion service in the church in the forenoon Rev. Edmund Harris, of Foxboro, preached the sermon, taking as his text "Of them can these bones live, and I answered, O Lord God, thou knowest." Ezekiel 37:3.

Words of hope, comfort, spiritual help and encouragement, resounded in these inspiring words. Impressions have come in every direction to Mrs. Harris that this was his trials. Canon Swayne spoke of the recent synods where the subject of finance was the finance. This was not our Lord's way. God only knows what the world needs, knows what will revive the world and God only knows how. People need faith in God, not the glory of God in our minds.

Women's Auxiliaries engaged in important work. As W. A. members do we put the organization before the church, the speaker urged all to support their church first, and remember that we are an auxiliary to the church, not first, and to try to realize the purpose and object of the W. A. to the church.

How many members can repeat the members' prayer?

Rector Rev. Edmund Dorcas work as the northern part of our own Deanery, hard to realize just what conditions existed in that field.

Be ready to contribute to God's work, carry in your minds the source from which our strength comes, remember we are not here for ourselves but God, and only as you work with God will your work prosper.

After the offertory Mrs. Ms of Shirley sang a solo, Mrs. (Dr.) Alger played her accompaniment.

Rev. F. C. Besser was celebrant at the communion service, there were 97 communicants. Rev. Grant of Marmora, and Rev. McDonald of Stirling also assisted. Luncheon was served in the Parish Hall which was decorated with autumn leaves and flags.

Mrs. George Clark of Tweed was in charge of the business session of the afternoon. Hymn 518 was sung. Mrs. Clapsadle gave an address of welcome to which Mrs. W. G. Hope (deputy of Belleville responded.

Mrs. Clark thanked all who helped with her work in the Deanery.

Hymn 300 was sung and the minutes of the annual Deanery meeting and also the financial report for the past year were read by the secretary.

Mrs. McNaughtin of Kingston brought words of greeting.

The reports from the branches showed members present from Bancroft, Gosford, Shirley, Tweed, Foxboro, Rawdon, Bonarlaw, Stirling, Tweed centre, been-and Roslin and Roslin.

Mrs. G. Abbott of Kingston spoke of her work with the Juniors and Little Helpers of which there are 30,000 Little Helpers and nearly 18,000 Juniors in the Dominion.

Mrs. Abbott urged that the Juniors be educated to be all round church workers as from them must come our W. A. workers of tomorrow.

Mrs. P. H. Hoyck, literature secretary, spoke of her department and was proud of the fact that it was the only self-supporting one in the Dominion. From it came the honor of being the first to have the curios shown.

At this time Mrs. Ellis sang a solo, "Abide With Me".

Mrs. George Clark of Tweed was re-elected Deanery secretary.

Mrs. Breen on behalf of Rawdon W. A. extended an invitation to the Deanery to hold their next conference there and this was accepted.

The offertory was collected as follows: $18.00 to the Dorcas work and $5.80 to the Sunday school by post.

The service in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday afternoon was in charge of the services in Railway Street Church, Belleville, on Sunday evening.

WOOLER

Wooler—On Tuesday afternoon, Mrs. P. L. Terrill was the guest speaker at a missionary meeting held in the United Church, Cold Springs. Over one hundred ladies were present and the church was beautifully decorated with marigolds and asters. A "Peace" Pageant was beautifully given by five members of the auxiliary.

Vocal and piano solos were enjoyed and at the close dainty refreshments were served in the Sunday School rooms.

The Women's Institute was held on Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. C. Herrington.

Miss Jean Lorrain of Miss Jim Dunfield spent Saturday evening with Mildred McColl and Miss Hall.

Mrs. G. Richardson of Toronto, is spending the winter with Mrs. Spry and her mother, Mrs. E. Howe.

RAWDON

Rawdon—On Thursday evening October 17 a gala event was held in the Orange Hall in Rawdon sponsored by Miss Grace Dayman teacher of S.S. No. 8, Wellamsa. The hall was decorated with children's art and a large number were in attendance.

Councillor Carl Clancy, Secretary Treasurer of the School Board acted as an excellent chairman and briefly addressed the gathering. The first number was a welcome recitation by Doris Hunt and the Junior choir followed with a chorus "Little Sir Echo" Maurice Clancy dressed in pyjamas sang "Little Jimmie's Prayer".

Perhaps the most amusing feature of the programme was the public speaking when the pupils from second class up each spoke a few minutes on a subject of their own choosing. Leala Linn, fifth class chose as her subject "When grandfather was a boy".

Mr. Everett Maybee delighted with the accordion selections, and Dorothy Hinds recited "Pete and Mr. James Watson sang "The Farmer and His Friends". Mrs. Lloyd Cregre Watson gave the violin accompaniments.

Two of the junior pupils Gerald Clancy and Allan Heagle each gave a recitation. The school rendered another chorus "Crooked Spectacles". The IV class pupils as follows Iona Hinds and Alma Johnson both on the subject "Mothers" and "My mother was a Girl." Gerald Jackson "A Boss Fifty". Donald Mir "Most Interesting Book I have ever read"; Roy Sharp "My Ambition in Life"; Donald Walker "How I Spent My Summer Holidays".

Three pupils of S.S. No. 17 with Miss P. Cook as teacher were included on the programme Bobbie Armstrong gave a harmonica solo, Rayburn and Garnet Thain also contributed a musical number.

RAWDON

Rawdon—On Thursday evening October 17 a gala event was held in the Orange Hall in Rawdon sponsored by Miss Grace Dayman teacher of S.S. No. 8, Wellamsa. The hall was decorated with children's art and a large number were in attendance.

Councillor Carl Clancy, Secretary Treasurer of the School Board acted as an excellent chairman and briefly addressed the gathering. The first number was a welcome recitation by Doris Hunt and the Junior choir followed with a chorus "Little Sir Echo" Maurice Clancy dressed in pyjamas sang "Little Jimmie's Prayer".

Perhaps the most amusing feature of the programme was the public speaking when the pupils from second class up each spoke a few minutes on a subject of their own choosing. Leala Linn, fifth class chose as her subject "When grandfather was a boy".

Mr. Everett Maybee delighted with the accordion selections, and Dorothy Hinds recited "Pete and Mr. James Watson sang "The Farmer and His Friends". Mrs. Lloyd Cregre Watson gave the violin accompaniments.

Two of the junior pupils Gerald Clancy and Allan Heagle each gave a recitation. The school rendered another chorus "Crooked Spectacles". The IV class pupils as follows Iona Hinds and Alma Johnson both on the subject "Mothers" and "My mother was a Girl." Gerald Jackson "A Boss Fifty". Donald Mir "Most Interesting Book I have ever read"; Roy Sharp "My Ambition in Life"; Donald Walker "How I Spent My Summer Holidays".

Three pupils of S.S. No. 17 with Miss P. Cook as teacher were included on the programme Bobbie Armstrong gave a harmonica solo, Rayburn and Garnet Thain also contributed a musical number.

The Sr. III pupils Jim Watson and Helen Johnson each chose as their subject "A Day At the Fair."

The school delighted with another chorus "The Land of Glad Tomorrow."

Mr. Aubrey Todd of Wellmans who teaches school at Campbellford was present and gave a brief address. Two of his pupils Gladys and Brice Edmunds rendered a violin duet.

The Jr. III pupils each chose as follows, Charles Maybee "A Day at the Fair" and Ted Bolton "How I Spent My Summer Holidays" and the second class Dorothy Hinds and Mary Pollock each chose "How To Keep House for Mother" and Gerald Clancy "Pan Pan".

There was no judging for the speaking but the teacher Miss Dayman provided a basket of fruit in the form of a lovely picture in memory of this special event.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin of Brighton Public School Inspector was present and he distributed the pictures and then gave a brief address along educational lines and told of the aims of the Department to improve school conditions for farm children.

A number of the children called on their fine programme and were heartily applauded.

Rev. R.R. Nicholson of Tweed showed a portion of his lantern slides which was most interesting.

The close Miss Dayman tendered her thanks to all who had helped to make the evening such a success and the sum realized was $16.90 and after the Gov. Tax and other expenses are paid the balance will be used for school equipments.

Mrs. Thomas McMullen represented Bethel at the Sunday school convention held in Stirling and others who attended were Mr. and Mrs. Elliott Tucker, Mr. Eric Cagle, Mr. and Mrs. John Farrell and Doris; Mrs. S. J. Elliott, Misses Ella and Blanche McMullen.

Bethel Keenig People

On Friday evening a group of Bethel Young People motored to Scugog Island near Port Perry, where they took the responsibility of providing the entertainment for the large audience which gathered in the Scugog Island United Church for their annual anniversary gather. The young people left Stirling at noon and arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ross Robin about 4 before tea. The program which was under the direction of Miss Mildred Elliott was of the variety type and was greatly enjoyed by the very large audience. Mr. H. Morrow and Mr. W. Warren each took a car load of young people assisted on the program were. Misses Mildred and Doris Elliott, Marjorie Hagerman, Blanche McMullen and Miss Irene Hall, Messrs. Hayden, Max Spence, Scott, and Mr. Eric Chapell. Miss Dorothy Jobin of Frankford, Arthur Duncan of Stirling were also in the group. The program consisted of solos, duets, quartettes readings, and instrumental numbers and several short and humorous addresses from the visiting ministers of the neighbouring churches.

Several of the members of St. Andrew's Young People's Guild motored to Belleville on Friday evening (Sixth), when they attended the annual rally of Presbyterian, Methodist and Young People's Societies of Kingston Presbytery, which took place in St. Andrew's Church parlours with representatives present from Young People's Societies in Trenton, Cobourg, Madoc, Burnbrae, Stirling, Foxboro. Among those present from the Stirling Society were—Mr. James Johnston, President; Miss Ida Johnston, vice president; Mr. Roy Juby, treasurer; Mrs. Lorna Johnston, Mr. Harold Baker, Miss Ines Elgie and Rev. J. A. Eolfend.

Personals

Mr. Rorke Ferguson, newly elected member of parliament for the Hastings-Peterboro riding, accompanied by Mrs. Ferguson and their daughter Jean, motored to Stirling on Saturday afternoon.

Misses Betty and Dorothy Bullis spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Scott Wellman's Corners.

Miss Laura Mason has returned to her home in Springbrook after spending a few days at the home of Mr. and Mrs. George Mason.

St. Paul's United Church, Stirling, celebrated their anniversary on Sunday, Oct. 20th, when the auditorium was filled to capacity with members and visiting friends from near and far. The special speaker for the occasion was Rev. J. R. Wade, B.A., D.D., of Queen's University, Kingston. This was Dr. Wade's second visit to the Stirling Church, having ministered to the people of St. Paul's church on the occasion of the Jubilee celebration a year. His message at that time was so interesting and inspiring that all associated with the congregation were delighted to hear him again. Weeks of tedious rehearsals on the part of the fine choir of twenty-two voices under the capable direction of Mr. G. L. Clute were climaxed in a very worthy contribution on their part to these interesting services. In the morning the choir offered, "Great and Marvelous" (Turner) and "Come Holy Spirit", (Gabriel). In the evening their anthems were "I Love the Lord" (Mosher) and "In the Cross of Christ I Glory", (Yoickman). Mrs. Bubbie, Miss Betty Conley, and Mr. G. L. Clute were responsible for the solo work in the choral numbers which were given in a very fine manner and earned a great deal of praise from all who attended the services.

Took Dodd's as Last Resource

"My husband was nearly crazy with his backache," writes Mrs. G. Lapointe of 1476 Dundas St., Toronto. "I applied mustard plasters, and he finished, he got no ease. An old friend advised us to get Dodd's Kidney Pills and give them a trial. My husband laughed. We thought that if plasters did no good, nothing else would. However, I bought a box and you must believe me that before it was half gone, my husband's pain went too!" 3-3

IRISH STATESMAN BARON CARSON DIES SUDDENLY

Had Been in Failing Health For Several Weeks

HAD STORMY CAREER

Foe of Home Rule Bill He Organized Armed Resistance in Ulster

Minster, Kent, England, Oct. 22 (AP)—Baron Carson, noted Irish statesman, former First Lord of the Admiralty and member of the War Cabinet without portfolio in 1917-18, died today at his Cave Court home. He was 81 years old.

Opponent of Break

A native Jr Dublin but a bitter opponent to any break between Ireland and England, Baron Carson had been in failing health for several weeks, suffering chronic hydrostatic leukemia.

It was his second serious illness in 3 months. He had recovered from bronchial pneumonia in July.

Lord Carson, whose political and legal career were as stormy as any in recent history appeared better when he awoke this morning but died suddenly and peacefully a short time later with a nurse and butler and other members of his family at the bedside.

Known as "the man with a hundred sidelocks," devised in writing and often bitter battles in Parliament and Court, Lord Carson had been before since 1892.

His last public appearance that Year was at the unveiling of his statute before the Northern Ireland Ireland Parliament Building, just outside Belfast.

Sovereign Garment and Pedal Cassock Wore

Lord Carson's coat of mailes he wore during his long championing of Ulster's cause in the Anglo-Irish controversy.

Did Not Resent Nickname

Baron Carson of Duncairn did not resent even the "rebel" nickname and once said:

"If I am a rebel, why doesn't the Government arrest me? I am prepared to be shot for my pains."

His activities had brought him into the treason for while he was fighting the Irish Home Rule Bill of 1911, he was also organizing resistance in Ulster. With open revolution looming in Northern Ireland in 1914, however, the Great War brought his volunteers into action on the continent.

One of Lord Carson's most famous cases came in 1895 when he defended the Marquess of Queensberry against a charge of criminal libel brought by the author, Oscar Wilde.

The wartime Prime Minister David Lloyd George, who Lord Carson helped overthrow in 1916, "a great guy" was himself one of the first to pay tribute to the memory of the Irish peer.

"He was one of the most remarkable figures of his time," said Lloyd George.

JAMAICA SWEPT BY HURRICANE

No Lives Lost But Banana Crops Suffer Extensive Damage

Kingston, Jamaica, Oct. 21 (CP Cable)—A hurricane swept northward today across Jamaica's eastern section, and left a path of destruction behind as it sped up the Caribbean toward Cuba.

Telegraph communication with the wind-shaken area was crippled but meagre reports told of "extensive damage to banana crops in the eastern and south-eastern parts of the island.

No lives were reported lost and all residents of the hurricane district appeared safe in their homes. They were seriously inconvenienced though as electric lines blocked almost all highways.

Refuse to Pay Taxes to Riverside If Cow is Allowed to Remain

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 22 (CP) — Pete Nowaki has been given until tomorrow by Riverside town council to get rid of his cow, bruin of contention for some months. If he fails to do so a court summons will be issued, charging him with keeping a public nuisance.

This action was decided at last night's meeting of council when all members but one voted against Nowaki's neighbors they would refuse to pay taxes if the bovine was permitted to remain. When a sunk proceeded to bunk in Pete's hay stack tonight started. It was the color created by the skunk which at the last reckoning refusing to pay their taxes until cow, haystack and skunks were ousted.

School Register Secures Pension

Buffalo, N.Y., Oct. 22 (CP) —A child's name written into the attendance records of a Buffalo school more than 61 years ago may mean a pension for a Brooklyn woman 67, Adam Gottschalk estimates.

She appealed to Dr. Ernest C. Hartwell, superintendent of schools, saying the school records seemed her only hope. Soon after she was refused an old-age pension because she had no birth record. She said she went to school in Buffalo in the '80s.

Now you will treat this request as you would one from your own mother," Hartwell told Mrs. Hartwell did just that. After searching two old attendance books carrying her name and age were found and the superintendent lost no time in sending her the facts.

War at a Glance

Rome, Oct. 22 (AP)—The government announced today an Italian army bombing plane crashed at Dvsio, Milano Province, last Friday, killing the pilot, Sergeant Villafi Letterio, recalled for training.

London, Oct. 22 (CP-Havas) — A request, Catholics say prayers and perform masses in his behalf was made to Catholic leaders throughout the world by Pope Pius XI today, it was learned here. The request was believed to portend an important personal move for world peace by the Pontiff in the near future. The Pope's request was telegraphed and cabled from the Holy See to heads of the worldwide Catholic organization "the apostolic duty of prayer," which has millions of members throughout the world. It is the first time such an appeal has been addressed to the organization.

Asmara, Eritrea, Oct. 22 (AP)—Ethiopian chieftains beyond the present front line of the Italian army presented themselves today to the three northern headquarters of Adigrat, Entiacio and Adowa and made their submission.

By these acts of allegiance territory was added today beyond the the army row held by the Fascist forces came under nominal Italian control although the troops had not yet actually occupied it.

Valetta, Malta, Oct. 22 (CP-Havas)—Malta the first time since the Great War Great Britain is to use West African squadrons to reinforce the defences of another colony, it was announced today.

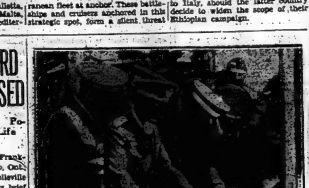
Addis Ababa, Oct. 22 (AP)—Prince Ismail Daud, relative of King Fauid of Egypt, arrived here today with an Egyptian Red Cross unit, the country's contribution to war-afflicted Ethiopia.

With the Prince were five doctors, three chemists and numerous assistants. They brought a hundred cases of medicines.

New York, Oct. 22 (AP)— The League of Nations was analyzed as an instrument of war—not of peace —by J. L. Moreno, M.D., psychiatrist and director of group psychotherapy, in a prepared address today before the Department of Psychology, New York University.

Dr. Moreno suggested a new method of analysis by which he said the League could hope to prevent the next war by timely and wise intervention on a lasting basis. This is by fact finding done by scientific, the science of human interrelations.

"The prevention and abolishing of war," he said, "cannot come from substitutes such as the League of Nations as it is now constituted. The League doesn't treat the causes of war, and it is in itself an instrument of war.



"War has to be treated as its roots when it is emerging, in an early stage."

Services Private for Duke of Buccleuch

Dalkeith, Scotland, Oct. 22 (CP-Havas)—The late Duke of Buccleuch whose daughter next month will marry the Duke of Gloucester, third son of the King, was buried today. The Duke died Saturday at the age of 71.

The funeral were private in accordance with the wishes of the late Duke's African daughter to reinforce the defences of another colony, it was announced today.

THE CAPITULATION OF RAS GEUSSA

The formal surrender of Ras Hail Sellassie Guguu, quondam son-in-law of Emperor Haili Sellassie of Ethiopia, is pictured in this radiophoto. As Italian officers and priests looked on, Ras Guguu bowed in obeisance to General Emilio de Bono (centre, bearded), and offered his services, as well as those of 15,000 followers. (Italy (though Addis Ababa says figure exaggerated). Following his formal surrender, the Ethiopian chieftain, a little dazed, was ridden in state through the streets of Adigrat, and then taken into a barber shop, hurried to the perfumery counter and purchased gifts of fragrant essences for his many fair friends of the back-country native. While Ethiopia seethed over the treason of the bad boy, former member of the Emperor's family, Italy announced that they would place Ras Guguu on a puppet throne, to rule over the north section of Ethiopia, already under Italian control as a result of the fighting in that region.

PARTY PRECEDED WOMAN'S DEATH POLICE ARE TOLD

Jockey Saunders, Who Rode Omaha in Kentucky Derby Wanted

ALLEGEDLY RUN OVER

Informant Says Afraid to Tell For Fear of Being Killed

Baltimore, Oct. 22—(AP)—While police in various sections of the east were searching for Jockey Willie Saunders in connection with a Louisville, Ky., slaying case, the Calgary, Alta., rider today was registered in a local hotel.

He could not be found, however, when headquarter detectives arrived to search the hotel room. It was believed he was en route back to Louisville.

The jockey arrived here late yesterday afternoon and registered with a companion, E. Danehauer, Lately, he talked with D. B. Bradley by telephone and was advised by the latter to return to Louisville.

Headley, a nephew of Hal Price Headley, to whom Saunders is under contract, verified the conversation.

Headley said,

"I advised him to go back and see what it's all about. He's a good kid. He has always been honest about it when I told him the police wanted to question him. He didn't run away thing at all."

Saunders, who drove Omaha to a win in the 1935 Kentucky Derby, was sought by Kentucky authorities after his photo was identified as that of one of two men who accompanied Mrs. Evelyn Elwood the night she her mangled body was found in the road near Louisville.

Detective Sergt. Charles Dorsey

Saunders and his booking agent, R. Whitney, were questioned here.

ROARING GALE SWEEPING CUBA

Havana, Oct. 22 (AP)—A roaring hurricane swept the eastern tip of Cuba and Western Haiti today after lashing Jamaica, the Grand Cayman Islands and reducing Santiago to debris.

Brief reports from Santiago said the only means of communication with the city of 70,000 was by radio and wireless.

One lift was known lost since the storm roared in from the south Caribbean shortly before midnight Sunday. Seven persons suffered injuries received when a wall fell on her. Her husband, Pedro Perez, was grazed injured.

Reports were lacking from Port-au-Prince, Haiti.

The damage or the number of injured in Santiago and Guantanamo, where the hurricane apparently centered, could not be determined. The gale was described as being strong enough to knock a walking man down.

Alleges Bannon Asked Reduction Of Kidnap Charge

London, Ont., Oct. 22—(CP)—Jack Bannon, on trial for the kidnapping and armed robbery of John S. Leslie asked in a private hearing the charge be reduced to conspiracy on the ground he would have saved guilty, Sergeant Ted Weeks of the R.C.M.P. testified in court today.

Weeks said between June 30 and the conversations he had with the former beer runner, the Mounties said to Crown Attorney Newton: "He wanted me to use my influence with you to have the charge reduced to conspiracy and he would plead guilty to it and he would be sentenced to——"

"Not that," interrupted Mr. Justice Roach said.

Weeks said he transmitted Bannon's request to Mr. Newton who stated the charges of kidnapping and armed robbery would have to stand.

Sergt. Weeks said Bannon gave police information he would have of Michael McCardell in a Hammond, Ind. jail. McCardell later confessed the abduction of the London brewer a year ago last August.

The officer said it was directly through efforts of the accused, and Russell Knowles, Detroit gangster serving a 15-year penitentiary term for his alleged participation in the crime, had given himself up.

Fidelity to the League As a Member Pledged By Sir Samuel Hoare

Pleads Earnestly at Opening of Parliament For Peace

PRAISES ANTHONY EDEN

Speaks of Solidarity of British Support of League's Policy

By GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Oct. 23 —(CP Cable)— Facing a crowded house packed over the banishment of a battle at the polls, Sir Samuel Hoare, Foreign Secretary, this afternoon again declared Britain's fidelity to the League of Nations Covenant, but made no reference to her full duty as a member of the League. But she will take isolated action.

Sir Samuel stressed there never had been between Anthony Eden, the League and the League's Council, no difference of opinion.

"With great ability," Sir Samuel declared, "Eden has done his utmost to carry out our policy and the government has been giving him their full support."

Makes Plea For Peace

Sir Samuel made an earnest plea to Italy to conclude a peace honorable alike to the League, Italy and Ethiopia.

"There is still a breathing space" Sir Samuel urged, "before economic pressure can be applied. Can it not be used for another attempt at such a settlement? Italy is still a member of the League. I welcome this fact. Cannot the League still have chance be used so as to make it unnecessary to proceed since the unprecedented step of economic action against a fellow member, an old friend and a former ally?"

Sir Samuel spoke of the solidarity of British support for the government's League policy, but in this support limited to the United Kingdom alone. "Amid all these disquieting conditions the greatest source of comfort and encouragement to those of us who have been faced with them, has been the unanimity of the great British Empire, in particular the impressive unanimity of the great Dominions.

Let those prophets of misfortune, who foresee only the disruption or decay and dissolution, observe this fact of overwhelming importance. In one of the most critical situations that has faced us at any time during the past seventeen years the Dominions, acting as co-equals, forming their own judgments, and taking their own interests, their own obligations, have, it may be said, definitely reached almost the same conclusion that we reached. We have acted in the knowledge of the Dominions, acting as co-equals, forming their own judgments, and taking their own interests, their own obligations, have, it may be said, definitely reached almost the same conclusion that we reached. We have acted in the knowledge of their support, the necessity of trial and they have the same outlook upon the principles of international conduct."

Future Menaced

"I do not know whether there is hope or not for what I am urging. In the moments of such crisis as that at stake, much greater than the local merits or the African controversy."

The whole future of European civilization, Sir Samuel said up to the present conflict, saying the British were praying that the present conflict now will be spiked and a way speedily found to end the hateful controversy.

Re-emphasizing the need of finding an honorable settlement "within the framework of the League",

Driver of Race Horse Freed in Accident Case

Stratford, Oct. 22.—(CP)—Coroner Dr. T. J. McInnes of St. Marys opened an inquest yesterday into the death of Mrs. Ellen Ley, from injuries received when she was struck by a car driven by Harry Ley, and but adjourned the hearing until Friday.

A criminal negligence charge against John Taylor of Aylmer, driver of the horse which struck Mrs. Ley down as she crossed the race track at Windsor Driving Park, Attorney W. R. Goodwin, who held there was no negligence on the part of Mr. Taylor." A draft of the light gully pierced the woman's face and she died today in hospital.

AUTOPSY ORDERED

Brantford, Ont., Oct. 22 (CP) — An autopsy has been ordered following the death of Joseph Frank Sloan, 57, who died during the night in the Brantford General Hospital. A chloroform bottle was found by police near a house where he had been lying at the house.

MARINES ENFORCE MARTIAL LAW AS RIOTS CONTINUE

Three Rioters Killed in Bloody Hand-to-hand Fighting

HOMES, STORES, LOOTED

Governor Freed After Promise to Meet Representatives

Kingstown, St. Vincent, Oct. 22 (CP Cable)—Rioting burst out anew on this West Indian island today even as armed marines from a British warship enforced a martial law declaration after three rioters had been fatally wounded.

Inside the capital town where the bristling bayonets of the marines held unruly negroes in check, the disturbances flared at Byeral Hill and Camden Park. No casualties were reported immediately.

Tension tightened in Kingstown with the new outbreaks. Fear was held the negro laborers subdued by guards after bloody hand-to-hand fighting through the streets, might seek revenge against the Whites.

Governor's Car Smashed

Three rioters were killed when a series of battles with police. Eight of their companions, including two women were injured. Twenty-two police had been injured in the wild, club-swinging fights that raged through Kingstown yesterday after a mass demonstration of laborers before Government Secretary Grier.

The Governor's car was smashed with those of a Supreme Court Judge and the Island's Attorney-General. Homes and stores were looted. Appeals before police guns subdued the infuriated negroes. The Governor himself was harmed

City and District News

POURING CEMENT FOR FOUNDATIONS

Cement workers employed by the Patterson Construction Company of the city, are engaged this week in pouring the first cement for the foundations of the new Armouries extension at the east side which will be used as storerooms and to house the local Salvation Army band. Stone masons are employed in shaping the special stone which is being received from Toronto for basework. The remaining work will be of brick.

HIGH WINDS WHIP BAY INTO FURY

High winds direct from the south which whipped the lake into frothing combers on Tuesday afternoon sent water levels of the Bay of Quinte and harbor up at least six inches and caused hundreds of ducks into local marshes where they weathered the gale. Hunters ambushed in blinds found shooting difficult owing to the constant motion of the birds.

RELIEF FIGURES IN TOWNSHIPS DECLINE

Relief figures in townships of the county are at a fairly low level at the present time, it is learned from reports from several Reeves of the various municipalities. Most of the townships report none receiving aid, while others have reported only three and four. Seasonal work and bumper harvest this year is given as the reason for the drop.

MAJORITY OF TREES STRIPPED OF FOLIAGE

Belleville's streets have begun to take on a winter appearance during the past day or so as the leaves of high winds which have stripped the majority of the trees of their autumn foliage, already loosened by earlier frosts, flower beds around public and private buildings from which have long since ceased to bloom have been given their winter's protective covering of leaves adding the last touch to the fall effect.

BOUNTY FOR WOLF PELTS ON DECLINE

Fine weather and an abundance of smaller game in the woods this season has resulted in keeping the wolves of Hastings County far in the north and out of the boundaries of the county as indicated at the office of the county treasurer, James Haggerty. It is reported that up to the present time this summer not one pelt has been submitted to the local office for the bounty. Sheep killing has also noticeably decreased in the county, it was stated.

CARRIER PIGEON IS FOUND NEAR BRIDGE

Evidently exhausted in flight and killed when it fell to the pavement, a dead carrier pigeon was picked up from the road near the upper bridge by two youths early last evening. The bird bore an aluminum band with the numerals X-2387, not identified as coming from any local loft by one well known local fancier.

SPECIAL STRIPPING NOW BEING PLACED

Long a source of annoyance and discomfort to the workers of the executive offices of the upper quarters of the city hall building, winter's chilly gales which for years have been whining in through the gaping cracks around the windows are now being stopped by workmen sealing the sash with special stripping. During heavy winds it was not unusual to have papers blown from nearby desks by the draughts, even on days when the windows closed, it was stated by one of the chief executives.

BANDSMEN COMPLETE QUARTERS IN HALL

In a perfectly appointed band room, created by their own efforts in the old gymnasium of No. 3 Fire Hall, bandsmen of the Belleville Midwinter Band" who completed most of the work on their new quarters ago last evening, will commence their regular weekly practice nights this evening.

Perfectly lighted by overhead reflectors which cast a minimum of shadow, papered in soft brown and white, finished by a fine oak air furnace, and equipped with even a gas range for harried leaders, the new band room is the last word in comfort and one of the most up-to-date of any Ontario city.

Under Bandmaster L. A. Jobson, individual members have worked hard on the transformation of the rooms which were recently granted for their use by city council. They required only a few working hours of outside assistance.

MILK BOTTLES SEIZED AFTER COMPLAINT

Ten quarts and three pint bottles of milk were confiscated by Provincial Constable John Kelly early today as a Sidney milk dealer drove into town. The confiscation came following complaints received by the O.P.P. in relationship to the using of other dealer's bottles for the purpose of trafficking milk. The bottles seized this morning were taken from a local dealer, Walter Waldron, third concession of Sidney, and lodged in the Provincial Police headquarters at district No. 3 at Belleville. Constable Kelly later announced the matter would be presented to Provincial police officials during the meantime further investigations will follow.

DISTRICT IN FOR SPELL OF FINE WEATHER

This district is in for a long spell of continued fair weather. To prove his belief, Mr. Frank Maybarn, local resident, points out that the mosquito netting, still attached to the open and the foods haven't holed up yet although away past their season.

DANGER IN COVERING SELF WITH LEAVES

Safety leaders of the city, including teachers of local classrooms are pointing to the danger of small children covering themselves up with piles of leaves found in city curbsides in front of their homes. Many times a year children are smothered by cave-ins which occur over the leaves, with drivers unaware that some child may be underneath the pile.

RESULTS OF CAMPAIGN MOST SATISFACTORY

Enthused over the results of the membership drive now being conducted by the local Chamber of Commerce, it was announced today by Manager J. O. Hertly that results are more than satisfactory.

"This present campaign is about the most successful one we have yet had," it was added.

FIREMEN PUT OUT BLAZE IN FEATHER BED

Although firemen who returned to the hall at midnight from a call north of the city limits shortly after nine o'clock last evening, looked as if they had been caught in a blizzard of large white snowflakes, and pedestrians wondered at their appearance, the answer was given simply by Fire Chief Lynch this morning.

"It was a bed—a big feather bed that caught fire in a small house. Our men couldn't do much with the water pumps so we took it out and shook it up a bit.

"I'd say about $50 damage was done to the building."

YOUNG CONSERVATIVES HOLD SOCIAL MEET

Evidence that the Conservative party of this city is still functioning was given last evening at a special meeting called by the local Young Front Street clubrooms proved far too small to hold the large attendance which turned out. The meeting, presided over by Mr. R. D. Arnott, President of the Young Men's Club was devoted purely to informal discussion and chat, by members.

ROMEO, SMALL TERRIER TAKES PAL'S PLACE

Romeo, Belleville's wire-haired singing terrier, who gained this city fame and advertisement over the years through his ability to chime in dulcet tones every daylight hour on the market square, when the town clock tolled the hours, has long since passed to his rest, but a second, smaller edition of terrier has appeared in the lower section of the town to take his place.

For the past day or so the present unnamed part wire-haired has appeared near the city hall, lifting his voice in time with the bell striking off the hours.

Romeo's tones though mellow, were penetrating. He was the despair at times of workers in the city hall and nearby offices. Travellers had come to know him well. Once an august and sedate tribunal of army pensions offices adjourned a morning session in the council chambers to file down to the street and observe and hear the performance of Romeo.

But the new singing terrier's voice is sweet and low. It will hardly be heard above the grind of passing traffic.

SERVICE CLUB ROTARY GUESTS
Splendid Meeting Held at Quinte Hotel Monday Evening
A joint meeting of the Kiwanis Club, Chamber of Commerce, Kinsmen Club, Y.M.C.A. and the Rotary Club as hosts was held in the main dining room of the Quinte Hotel and attended by more than 150 from these service organizations, Monday evening.
Bert Boyce as president of the Rotary Club and also the Chamber of Commerce presided over the meeting in his usual capable style. Dr. Holbrook of Hamilton Sanatorium for Tuberculosis was the principal speaker, being introduced by E. V. Lacy and appreciation for the splendid address being given by F. C. MacLaurin.
Bergeaud-Farmes appointed for the evening were: Phil McFee for Kiwanis; Jack Norris for Chamber of Commerce; Ken Gubbins for Rotary; Norm Edwards for Y's Men.
Seated at the head table were the presidents of the various societies attending, with Colonel Cliff Barrager, president of Kiwanis, Keith Scott of Kinmen, Dr. Jack Marshall of Y Men and Bert Boyce acting in a dual capacity. J. Arnold Thompson was a most efficient song leader and each club in turn sang their club song to receive the praise from other members. Of interest was the fact that Kiwanis are the function of two winners of cars at the recent Kiwanis drawing, Miss Eileen Proulx of South Presqu'ile, Ontario, and her husband, Oliver Proulx, who sold the ticket and J. A. Crate of Bradford, Ontario with his business partner, H. R. Scarrow, who sold the winning ticket. The keys of the car was presented to Mrs. Proulx by Frank Domenico, general chairman of the campaign and carnival, while Oco. A. Lee his assistant presented the key to Mr. Crate. Both made brief reply and thanked the Kiwanis Club for their fine generosity stating that when purchasing the tickets they had no hope of winning.
Proulx admitted, that he did not know her husband had purchased the ticket but was glad to have the car in her name, while Mr. Crate admitted it was the first time he ever won in a contest. Mr. Proulx and Mr. Scarrow were given credit for selling the winning tickets.
Then Cliff Barrager of the Kiwanis Club, thanked Bert Boyce and the Rotary Club for the invitation to be their guests and also for the kindness shown to the club in the recent Carnival. Bert Boyce was sure anything could be accomplished in Belleville after the fine success the Kiwanians had made of their campaign. "It only requires a lot of hard work said the Rotary Head. The musical programme for the evening was a delight as are all programs given in connection with Belleville functions members of the Broadway Follies, who are appearing at the Capitol theatre very generously gave of their ability to further the fine evening. The Kelly sisters, Julie, Margaret and "Peppers" three numbers with Charles Daniels at the piano, M. Carnarro, the manager of the troupe, introduced the entertainers. There are 25 in the troupe, who will appear here for the next two days. Harold Harper delighted with two solos "I Love Life" and "The Vagabond," while Reg. Wardle and Albert Bergeaud rendered a duet for trombone and cornet duet. The entertainers were cordially thanked by the presiding officer.
A summary of the address of Dr. Holbrook is given in another column.

POLICE BLOTTER
An East Hill resident complained to the police of the theft of money from milk bottles this morning. On numerous occasions money has been left in milk bottles for the purchase of milk, it was stated, but was removed during the night. The matter is being thoroughly investigated and a close watch placed on the offenders, if apprehended.
One lone inebriate and ten weary transients occupied the cell block at the police station last night, all being liberated this morning. The lone drunk was instructed to appear in Friday's local police court, however.
Plainclothes Constable Fred Laird following his investigations of a recent burglary on Henry street, apprehended four youthful teenaged lads and after considerable questioning they admitted breaking and entering the Henry street, residence and stealing some tools and a .32 calibre revolver. All of these articles were returned to their rightful owners, while the lads were given a severe reprimand.

What might have been a more serious motor accident happened at the intersection of Front and Bridge streets at 8.30 a.m. today. P.C. Evans was on patrol duty at the time and having stopped to carry on investigation found two automobiles approaching according to the officer, Orval Laudry, Prince Edward County, was proceeding easterly on Bridge street when a motor car driven by Norris Gibson, Robin's Mills, entered the Laudry car broadside at the intersection. Mr. Gibson was proceeding south on Front street and apparently did not observe the oncoming Laudry car until it was too late to avoid the accident. Both cars were badly damaged by the collision, but fortunately none of the occupants sustained serious injuries, although the latter's car was badly bruised. The wet slippery pavements added materially to the cause of the accident, however.

SQUIRRELS NEED NOT BE AFRAID

Not Expected Hunters Here Will Take Advantage of Open Season

Convicted on charges of causing wilful damage to field crops and appearing in the greater numbers in the woods, the fields and even the streets of this city in greater numbers this year than for several years past during which strict game laws prevailed, the bushy tailed squirrels, the greys and the reds have been sentenced to be shot by the hunting crowd of local district hunters during the two days of October 24 and 25.
But, it is expected that few hunters of this city will avail particulars in any extensive hunt. Real sportsmen declare it would be the height of folly to shoot them in a barrel to hunt down and slaughter the beady tails which have grown so tame and trusting during these past years of consideration. In the event even the nimble creatures have become so unafraid it is said that they run to the hunter approached.
Farm owners, town and rural dwellers have not taken kindly to the idea of having their grounds tramped over, mostly they declare by bands of younger men, armed for the most part with .32 calibre rifles and probably prone to pop at anything that moves. Older hunters will scorn the humble sport of squirrel chasing in preference to larger game, they point out that only the flesh of the larger black squirrel is liable to be palatable and that the pelts are practically valueless to furriers.

V. O. N. PERFORM A GREAT SERVICE TO NEEDY FOLK

717 More Calls Made This Year Than Same Period in 1934

ASSISTANT REQUIRED

Car Used by Nurses Averages Forty Miles Per Day

They sit at the bedside of mothers who walk in the valley of the shadow, during the dark night until a tiny spark of life is ushered into a new world working often unassisted and single handed, not once but many times a week.

Working in relays they manage to catch a hurried lunch, a few hours rest, restful insertions at night and day by telephones at bedside and office desk.

New lives are brought into the world; old lives, their earthly chores done, slowly waver and snuff out. Bed-ridden mothers with frightened heeds from their bosoms quickly but patiently with thankful eyes. Strong worshingers, stien on relief through months of idleness lie helpless in bed. Under these circumstances, toxins are manipulated with deft hands. The whole gamut of human emotions, light and dark trials and often utter hopeless, pass daily and weekly parade before them. Lives are snatched from the jaws of death at the great beyond through their experience and patience. Pay matters little when there is work to be done. Often as not the patient cannot afford to pay, but that is not necessary for some needed medicine.

Thus was the work of the blue uniformed nurses of the Belleville Victorian Order brought home to the members of the Rotary Board of Trade at their regular session last evening. The utter inability of the two permanent nurses of the staff to handle the ever increasing amount of work in homes throughout the city was pointed out by Miss Hessie Soward, nurse in charge, and the address by Nurse Webster has attempted heroically to carry on.

Unanimous was the decision of members after hearing the report to appoint a third nurse as assistant when needed. The motion, made by Rotary president, Reg. Moncrief was seconded by Mrs. Roblin.

A total of 69 calls were answered by the nurses during the month of September, chairman and president of the local Order, Mrs. F. Holland was told at the meeting last evening.

Up to the end of last month 717 more calls had been answered than for the same period during 1934.

As one instance of the territory covered, the car used by the nurses on city visits only averaged up to 40 miles per day.

HOLLOWAY ST. Y. P. S.

The regular meeting of the Holloway Young People's Society was held last evening with the president, Mr. Charles Drayn, in the chair.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved. Regrets were expressed when Mr. Gordon Lockhart resigned as third vice president, in charge of citizenship. Mr. Jack Langabeer was elected to hold this office.

An impromptu program was quickly arranged. Miss Isabelle Bryan'ell favoured with a piano solo. An amusing number was given by the Agony quartette, consisting of Miss Kelly, "Lightning" Meldrum, "Bun" Cunningham and Mr. Thurlow with "Lightning" assisting at the piano.

An enjoyable solo was rendered by Mr. Charles Drayn. Minute social talks were given next by Mr. and Mrs. Norwood.

Dr. H. J. Holbrook Addresses Men's Clubs on Tuberculosis

Hamilton Sanitarium Chief Tells of Experiences Treating Dread Disease

Local Company Develops Ideal Food For Intestinal T. B. Cases

A large number of Belleville citizens gathered in the dining room of the Hotel Quinte Monday evening were given a close-up of the ravages of tuberculosis in Canada and the steps being taken to combat this plague. The gathering was composed of members of the Chamber of Commerce, Kiwanis, Kinsmen and Ye Men 'Ships, assembled as the guests of Belleville Rotary Club. The speaker was Dr. Harold J. Holbrook, chief of the Hamilton Sanitarium for tuberculosis and he brought a message of inspiration and cheer to every citizen of Belleville and surrounding district. Dr. Holbrook was introduced to the meeting by E. V. Illsley, a friend of Dr. Holbrook of many years standing. Mr. Illsley told of the many good qualities of Dr. Holbrook, as a citizen and as a professional man—and his life long study of tuberculosis and his travels abroad to study new methods of treatment and developments in public health activities.

In view of the unemployment advanced by Hon. Dr. Faulkner that there should be a sanitarium for the treatment of tuberculosis in Hastings county, Dr. Holbrook told the story of the Hamilton Sanitarium since its inception of the initial opposition to the establishment of such an institution near the city for fear the germs would come down and work havoc among the unprotected citizenry etc. No such menace has been experienced and the citizens now would not hear of the sanitarium being removed from the vicinity of Hamilton. In the first place the sanitarium means much to Hamilton in terms of health for the death rate from tuberculosis in the city has been reduced to a minimum. Then there is the commercial aspect, the sanitarium is a civic asset, providing the expenditure of many dollars yearly on capital account, much money on commodities and supplies, and a sizeable sum in wages. The doctors of the sanitarium visit the city frequently and afternoons a week and assist the local doctors. The sanitarium does not compete with local doctors but assists them as much as possible.

Dr. Holbrook spoke of the courage of patients in cheerfully submitting to the different forms of treatment, various necessary operations, and their eager desire to win back to health and usefulness to citizens.

No other province or state has the advanced socialistic legislation that Ontario has, said Dr. Holbrook, citing Workman's Compensation, Mother's Allowance, etc. With the health of the citizens looked after and his or her old age provided for citizens of Ontario are certainly possessed of the best things in life, the main purpose of life.

Keep People Well

The trend in modern medicine was not to emphasize acute diseases but to devote more and more attention to chronic diseases, hence the principle of the new future would strive it keep people well, and people would go as a matter of course for a yearly check up to the doctor.

Value To Community

Speaking of the commercial value of the sanitarium to the community Dr. Holbrook gave some illuminating figures as to the value of the sanitarium with which he is connected to the city of Hamilton in the 29 years since its inception.

The capital investment stands at $1,319,143.70.

Last year $34,915.87 was spent on capital investment.

Provisions and supplies entailed expenditure last year of $261,809.93.

Wages account last year was $199,711.25.

The government had contributed $200,000; Hamilton city $233,000, citizens $1,067,000.

The functions of a sanitarium were threefold:

1. To aid in preventing the spread of tuberculosis.

2. To cure all curable cases.

3. To establish the cures as effective members of society.

Advanced Lung Treatment

By a number of charts Dr. Holbrook explained modern methods of treating lung ailments in all the various varieties. He spoke of pneumatic T.B. and its menace to human life.

Incidentally Dr. Holbrook mentioned that in searching for some better food for patients with intestinal T. B. a food had been developed by the Johnson-Johnson Company at Belleville which was meeting requirements better than any hitherto used.

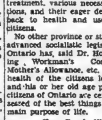
Education entered largely into the Treatment of T. B. patients at Hamilton sanitarium with the view to helping the ailing to function healthfully and to develop a desire for useful citizenship.

Hastings T. B. Record

In 1933 Hastings had 37 deaths from T.B. a rate of 6.3 a high rate compared to other counties, equal to 61 per 100,000. Hamilton had less than three deaths per 100,000, a rate of any city in the province.

Showing by means of comparative charts of cities and counties in Ontario, Belleville and Hastings were placed well up in the table headed bit one chart showing fifth place in over forty counties listed.

Hastings Sanitarium?



As to the proposed establishment of a T.B. sanitarium in Hastings county, Dr. Holbrook gave the following figures as to the advantages from the health standpoint as well as to civic asset, and also as to the best means of organizing and establishing such an institution with the assistance of the government. He pointed out the fact that there were several T. B. sanitariums in Western Ontario and Northern Ontario, but only one in Eastern Ontario, the Lady Grey Hospital at Ottawa. He favored a group of public spirited citizens getting together and making the organization of a sanitarium a hobby — the preliminary foundation could be laid. With a T. B. sanitarium in Hastings patients would be saved the long trip to Hamilton and would be nearer their homes and the latter situated in every way.

Dr. Holbrook's talk was very interesting and enlightening and the appreciation of the large gathering was voiced by Dr. J. C. MacLaurin, Principal of Belleville Collegiate and Vice-President of Belleville Rotary Club.

PILOT OF PLANE CRASH VICTIM

Troy, N.Y., Oct. 22—(AP)—Federal state investigators sought to determine today why a giant air liner crashed, killing the pilot and critically injuring Merrill Nichols, air feminine pilot.

Capt. Harry Hublits, 42 veteran flier, died last night in a hospital of burns and injuries suffered when the 20-passenger plane fell.

Miss Nichols is in a hospital with severe injuries but physicians said she has a "better than even" chance to recover.

Four of her employees—two men and two women—were treated for less severe burns and last night, carried out a double wedding originally planned as a sky wedding over New City.

Capt. Hublits was at the controls of the plane, owned by Clarence Chamberlain, trans-Atlantic flier, when it took off for New York.

Toronto, Oct. 22—It was rumored yesterday at Queen's Park that the Hepburn Government had reversed its announced policy with regard to the maintenance of Cawdry Park as official home of the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario, and would contribute on a moderate scale to the upkeep of the place until the term of office of the present incumbent, Hon. Dr. Herbert A. Bruce expires in October, 1937.

CANADIAN FESTIVALS OF LONG AGO

In view of the advent of Thanksgiving Day in Canada fixed this year for Thursday, 24th October, it is interesting to remember that in Canada national thanksgiving for harvest dates back to remote ages. Long before the white man came to Canada, certain days were set apart for public acknowledgment to the Great Spirit for abundant crops. The aboriginal native of Canada, like the Israelites and other ancient peoples, did not crowd their public thanksgiving into one day, nor did they confine it to one season. Besides the main thanksgiving in late fall or early winter for all crops of the year, there were public ceremonies for thanks for the rising of the maple, for the ripening of fruits and berries, and for the planting and reaping of corn.

The Huron and Iroquian nations had at least six major thanksgiving festivals throughout the year, culminating in the one of general appeal. There was a festival of seven days when the corn was planted; another of seven days when the corn was green; a third festival of four days when the corn was harvested, and, a fourth, the great mid-winter festival of general thanksgiving. Certain chosen officials were in charge. They levied contributions of food from each household; they fixed the dates of the ceremonies, and chose the orators to open the proceedings with an appeal to the Great Spirit and a prayer of gratitude to the three sister goddesses, Corn, Beans, and Squash.

The Ojibway nation celebrated their "midewiwin" in the season of ripening fruits and berries, while on the Pacific Coast in what is now British Columbia, the coming of the salmon was celebrated in a feast of thanksgiving.

With the wheat ripening early in Palestine, the Israelites celebrated the feast of Pentecost as their harvest festival, and Moses was commanded to appoint and proclaim the days of thanksgiving.

"Three times thou shalt keep a feast unto Me in the year. Thou shalt keep the feast of unleavened bread (seven days) . . and the feast of harvest, the first fruits of thy labours which thou hast sown in the field, and the feast of ingathering which is in the end of the year, when thou hast gathered in thy labours out of the field. Three times in the year, all thy males shall appear before the Lord God."

In ancient Britain the Druids celebrated their thanksgiving for harvest on the 1st of November, and in later years in Britain in pre-Reformation times, Lammas Day (August 1, Old Style) was observed as the beginning of the harvest thanksgiving, and each member of the church presenting a loaf made of the new wheat. The Pilgrim Fathers after their first harvest at Plymouth in 1621 set a day apart for thanksgiving. It was not until 1680 in the Massachusetts colony that the festival became an annual one. Connecticut having previously established the annual observance as early as 1647. In the United States, President Abraham Lincoln appointed the fourth Thursday of November 1864 as thanksgiving day and since that time each succeeding president has adopted the same date. In Canada, with the arrival of the French colonists prior to the founding of New England further south, the observance of harvest thanksgiving was celebrated according to the rubrics of the church, and in recent years the day of national thanksgiving in Canada has been named by the Dominion Parliament.

SYNTHETIC GASOLINE

Ramsay MacDonald, former Premier of Great Britain, and a member of the Cabinet, last week formally opened a plant at Billingham, England, for the manufacture of gasoline from coal, air and water by the Bergius process.

The process of conversion of coal into oil and motor fuel is simple, according to scientists. All fuels consist of carbon and hydrogen, but the proportion of hydrogen is higher than in coal, and therefore oil contains less oxygen than coal. All the chemist does is to juggle the hydrogen and oxygen atoms.

But it has taken five million dollars to overcome technical difficulties alone, Imperial Chemical Industries having spent that much money. The work which takes nature millions of years in the making of petroleum must be done in so many minutes by scientists dangerously high temperatures being required.

According to report it will cost seven pence to make a gallon in this manner. The wholesale price of the imported product at the mouth of the Thames ranges between two and a half and four pence. To protect the manufacturing of synthetic gasoline, a high duty on gas must be maintained, and the excise tax remitted in favor of the manufacturer of synthetic gasoline. This means a highly subsidized industry and the British coal mines companies look to it with much favor. A similar situation appears in Germany.

Treating coal so as to add hydrogen to it dates back to the days of Marcelin Berthelot, in 1913 Prof. Bergius received his first patents. The Great War was one of the factors which made possible its development as an industry, along with the growing nationalism of today the rising tariff walls in all parts of the world and the fear that some day something might happen which would cut off the supply of petroleum in the event of war and the unrest in the coal and other industries. A New York Times writer remarks, "This was simply a highly artificial combination of circumstances, chemical engineering was enabled to create an industry for which ordinarily there would be no economic excuse."

THE IDEALISTS

Their toil was not for fame, our men of science
Whom now the world so gratefully acclaims.
Little they dreamed their native halls of learning
Would echo and re-echo with their names,
In lowly faith and patience long they wrought,
That good, perchance, might blossom from their thought.

The good achieved is their reward—gold, plaudits,
But overflow of Honor's brimming cup,
To them that spend in service, larger bounty
For larger service will be measured up.
'Tis thus that man attains to angels' bliss.
Has Heaven a greater blessedness than this?

O, for a dream like theirs, a splendid vision
To beckon through the change and chance of years!
O, for as large a faith, as true a courage,
As bright a hope to triumph over fears!
For thus are won the strongholds of desire,
When star-led mortals mightily aspire.

MANHATTANESE

STRANGE BEDFELLOWS HAVE BEEN PRODUCED BY "RELIEF"—seven years ago a prosperous young sculptor of New York City was given a $25,000 commission to do a monument for a public park of some dead hero, philanthropist, or somepin. Since then he has hit the skids and bumped the bottom boards of adversity. Last week he was offered a relief job—his first assignment was to wash the statue which he had been paid $25,000 to produce.

Life sure has some queer quirks, and that story is vouched for by Walter Winchell, Broadway's best news sleuth, who also tells of a taxi driver who stopped and held up traffic on W. 49th Street while he picked up a wounded pigeon which he placed among the flowers of Rockfeller Plaza.

x x

Here is Walter's definition of Manhattan, otherwise known as New York City, which those familiar with the big city will find very apt:

Manhattan Geography: Manhattan is entirely surrounded by water. But it doesn't touch a drop of it. On the North it has the Bronx, which has the Bronx Ex-press, so people can get out of it quickly. At the South end is The Battery, where all ships come in—except those that downand-outers wait and wait and wait for. On the East, the Big Island is separated from Brooklyn by the East River, but some darn "Tunnels" and "Bridges" built it over. On the West, Manhattan is bounded by the Hudson, last refuge for those bound Nowhere. Broadway (the main artery) runs from the Big to its toe and is overun with heels. Broadway is neither a mountainous region nor on the level. Manhattan's climate is temperate, its habits intemperate. Chief industries are the production of gas and oil. It is the third largest borough in Greater New York, with a population of four million pickers-ers. The capital of Manhattan are in the other guy's pocket. The chief centers of Manhattan are: Times Square, also known as Piker's Peak; Union Square, which still retains a spark of the United States; and Columbus Circle, named after the discoverer (of America) whose honor is considered second every 12th of Oct. 1936 when various factions of Italians break each other's conks and cause riots. There are several ways of reaching New Jersey, but The Holland Tunnel was built so New Yorkers could go there without being seen.

x x

THEN THERE WAS THE DRUNK WHO CAME POUNDING DOWN BROADWAY one fine a.m. on a tall, strong-looking horse. Cop asked him 'what for?'—drunk said he was looking for a milk wagon from which he had borrowed the horse at midnight—couldn't find it and didn't know what to do with the horse —hated to leave a pal out the Sidewalks of New York at dawn, with not a blade of grass in sight, and even the night clubs closed.

PARTY PRECEDED WOMAN'S DEATH POLICE ARE TOLD

Baltimore late yesterday and registered as a child.

Louisville police were informed Saunders, Sandusco, and a third man, known to acquaintances here only as "The Dago" left Louisville early Sunday in an automobile.

Officers were checking up to determine whether "The Dago" fitted the description of the second man they wanted in the case.

The party was celebrating the day-ing was related to police by Mrs. Agatha Mackison, who identified for a photograph of Saunders as that of Mrs. Silvinski's companion on the Saturday night party.

Mrs. Mackison was quoted by Detective Capt. William A. Cellyn as saying she, Mrs. Silvinski, the two men she knew only as "Jimmie Smith" and "Tommy Dago" first saw Jimmie" she identified from a photograph of Saunders. "Tommy," she said, spoke Italian. Both spent money freely and talked fluently about racing.

"Jimmie" and Mrs. Silvinski quarreled, Mrs. Mackison's statement related; he knocked her down and later a fight over the quarrel in the car and ordered her out.

Claims Woman Struck Once

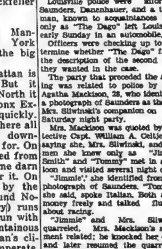
"She walked around in front of the car," Mrs. Mackison's statement to police related. "Tommy,' the man she knew only as Tommy, stood on the gas and ran over Evelyn. We kept going for several miles and turned. As we came back we saw Evelyn lying on the road. We ran over her again. As I felt the wheels pass over her body I screamed.

"What's the matter with you?' Tommy asked. 'We didn't hit anything; maybe a cat.'

"All ran a little while longer they stopped and got out and inspected the car. I think they found blood on it. Then we started again.

"Jimmie' said 'step on it. I think the law's after us.' They took me to my home.

"I don't remember this,' they told me. 'You ain't seen nothing, you don't know nothing; you don't know anything and you're lucky you're alive!'"



Mrs. Mackison said she hesitated about telling police because she was afraid. Mrs. Silvinski, she said, was driving an automobile with New York license plates.

Sensational Saturday ...

Washington, Oct. 22.—(AP)—Rayburn's Washington Merry-Go-Round, Associated Press today he last saw Mrs. Peggy Hopkins Joyce when she sought in connection with a Louisville, Ky., slaying at the railroad station in Louisville late Saturday afternoon.

Workman said the two jockeys left the Churchill Downs racetrack together and Saunders drove him to a train which he boarded for Washington.

Workman, whose home is in Washington, rode yesterday at the Laurel, Md., track.

in by the mob in front of the courthouse and freed only after a promise to meet their representatives.

Plantations Looted

By the time the warship had arrived last night from nearby Grenada, the rioters had looted Kingstown into Georgetown and Chateaubelair. Plantations along the roads between the towns were looted as the shouting crowd milled along, threatening the growers with sticks stones and iron bars.

Resistance was offered at only one plantation. Barricading himself in his home Captain C. O. Hazell poured a volley of rifle fire into the mob. Beaten off, the rioters carried away a badly wounded constable.

But they marched into the home of Justice O. C. Williams, smashed and went on to the home of Attorney-General O. C. Ross' residence. Mrs. Williams, ill in bed, also was robbed and several dry goods and grocery stores were wrecked after much stock had been carried off.

Police Overcome

Police attempting to check the rioters were overcome time and again. Only the appointment of numerous volunteer special constables gave them enough strength to control the demonstrators when it appeared they were in sufficient enough need to attempt to burn the town.

Labor troubles have been brewing for months, complicated by numerous small outbreaks and with racial tension strained to the breaking point by the Italo-Ethiopian war. Only a few minor incidents were needed yesterday to work the mob into a frenzy.

There was fear for a time personal violence might be directed against the white race. Anxious

ELECTION BET IS PAID IN THIS CITY

Pedestrians along Front street yesterday afternoon smiled and put it down to a delayed election bet when they observed a robust young man striding along the city's main street tied to a heavy wood, rolling of stockings and tennis shoes. The attire was topped by a straw hat while pants cuffs were rolled up only visible attire observed was a bathing suit.

Tweed—Twirling two-bit, 180-run ball Sunday (Dewey) Smith of Collingwood, defeated Hagerville, in the second game of the Intermediate "B" finals of the O.B.A.A. to bring Collingwood their first amateur championship. Smith struck out 18 of the heavy-hitting Hagerville squad to bring his total in the remarkable figure of 355 for the season. Deverde Smith, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Smith, 10-mar residents of Tweed. His baseball career has been followed with interest by his Tweed friends, who congratulate him on his fine year's success in intermediate ball.

Rev. R. H. Nicholson conducted anniversary services at the Belleville appointment of the Trenton circuit on Sunday October 21st. Rev. Mr. Lackey of Trenton occupied the pulpit both morning and evening at Tweed United Church.

A number of boys belonging to Mrs. C. Kleinsteiber's Sunday School class enjoyed a picnic on Saturday afternoon in a near-by woods. They played various games which whetted their appetites for supper which was eaten in the woods.

An interesting wedding was solemnized in Toronto, October 19th, when Rev. Mr. Marshall pastor of Oakwood United Church united in marriage Mrs. Mildeline Kindred Fawcett of Toronto and Mr. Archie S. Turnbull of New Westminster, B.C. The bride, the elder daughter of Mrs. T. P. Lancaster of Havelock, was given in marriage by Mr. T. P. Lancaster, her stepfather. Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast was served in the Royal York Hotel, where a number of relatives and close friends gathered to extend congratulations. Mr. and Mrs. Turnbull will reside at Hampton Manaloa, Toronto. Mr. Turnbull is accountant with the Campbell Construction Co. of Toronto and is at the present time engaged on a road contract at Algonquin Park.

Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Allen and Mr. and Mrs. Harry Myles of Tweed, attended the Turnbull-Fawcett wedding in Toronto.

The organization meeting of Tweed Branch No. 647 of the Royal Veterans of Canada was held in their rooms on Friday evening, October 18th. There was a fair attendance of veterans, Plans were discussed for the fall and winter activities. The veterans planned to attend Divine Service at Tweed United Church on Sunday, November 10th. On Armistice Day, Monday, November 11th, a special service will be held at Tweed Memorial Park. The officers elected for the coming year were:

President—O. F. Bowby.

The October meeting of the W.A. of St. James' Anglican Church was held at the home of Mrs. Geo. Dowdell of Rungsford. The meeting was presided over by Mrs. M. Wallace, the president. Rev. Swayne read the Scripture lesson and offered prayer. A report of the Deanship Annual Convention held a few weeks ago in Ottawa showed a flourishing condition with a considerable increase in membership. The programme committee composed of Mrs. J. Leffman and Mrs. W. Leal took charge of the meeting. The letter read a paper "How to Pray for Missions". A delightful solo by Mrs. Swayne followed. The opening chapter of the Study Book "The Jew and the Firmament" was given by Mrs. Fred Mitchell. The concluding number, a paper entitled "Motion of Conference," was given by Mrs. Leffman. Lunch was served by the ladies of the Rungsford organization. A vote of thanks was tendered those who had provided the entertainment and the lunch.

Tweed Public Library Board met on Saturday evening. A committee composed of Messrs. T. E. Moffat, W. E. Spackman and S. H. Conner was named to wait on the Council relative to the annual municipal grant. Mrs. A. B. Allen was appointed member of the Library Board to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Mrs. McFayne, who had moved from Tweed a short time ago.

QUEENSBORO

Queensboro, Oct. 22—One of Queensboro's old landmarks has disappeared in the removal of the former Methodist Church during the past week. Mr. Frank Alexander purchased the building and, had it taken down. He is taking the lumber and timbers which are in remarkably good condition to Bowmanville for building purposes. The church was built over sixty years ago and housed an active congregation in bygone days. Some of those who remain feel a keen regret at the loss of the sanctuary where they attended many crowded meetings.

Mrs. James Rousebom has been visiting relatives in Belleville.

Mrs. H. Green and Miss Jessie Wright guests of Mr. and Mrs. McKinnon at Hazard's on Thursday.

The Y.P.S. held their weekly meeting on Tuesday evening in the church. The meeting was in charge of Mrs. Rosier, and the program was under the leadership of Miss Mabel Sager.

Mrs. D. Chopin of Toronto, has been spending the past week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. Tuck-ey.

Mrs. Thos. Tanner of Picton spent the week end with her daughter, Mrs. Alex. Bishops.

Mr. Jas. Delyea has been spending a few days in Quebec.

The annual convention of the Religious Education Council for Middlesex and Hastings will be held in the United Church, Queensboro on the afternoon and evening of Friday, Oct. 18th when representatives were present from the seven schools in the district.

The afternoon session was opened at two p.m. with a short devotional period conducted by Rev. J. C. Lowrie of Queensboro. Mr. Fred Rollins, president then took charge.

Some time was spent with the reports of the achievements of the various department superintendents in the past year. There was a very interesting round table conference to deal with the difficulties encountered in the working of the various departments under the direction of Rev. R. H. Elliott of South Cayuga, provincial representative of the central governing body at Toronto.

At the close of the afternoon session the delegates met to the messages for the splendid supper arranged by the ladies of Queensboro Church.

At 7.30 p.m. the evening session of the conference was opened with a devotional period conducted by Rev. W. Fletcher of Eldorado. The following officers were elected for the coming year.

Hon. President: Mr. H. Rollins of Cooper.

Little Benny's Note Book

Uncle Albi is still at our house on account of not taking any hint about going home, and he was saying supper, being stake under conversation, and Uncle Albi was discussions remind me of a clever one that little Benny told me today. That's a smart little dickins if I do say so myself, for my own boy.

You must miss him a lot, I imagine you can hardly wait for the next moment when you find yourself in a homebound train, pop said.

Uncle Albi not saying, and ma said, Mr. Bird Skrebit say about onions, Albi? and Uncle Albi said, yes, he said he didn't care why onions make people cry, and Fanny told him because they have strong, as little Hersh up and says, Well they dont make me cry, so that shows I'm stronger than an onion haw haw. He's always coming across with something like that. It's a card, I mean he's really a clever one. One time he was watching me sharpening a pencil and he said, If you cut your finger will you quit using the pencil and give it to me, haw haw haw is that a hot one or is that a hot one? Uncle Albi said.

Speeking of hot ones have anoth-er potato, pop said, wich Uncle Albi didn't on account of just having took another one and still having it, saying, Speaking of hot ones, by the way, reminds me of a par-ticullir hot one that Herbi got off the very day I left home.

Speeking of hot ones reminds me of one I got off myself when I was 4 years old, or possibly 5 or 6 anyway not more than 7 or 8, I'm sure I wasn't in my teens yet, pop said, It seems there was a board at the back gate and my mother was always sending me there, to barly the grocer, and I piped up and said, Suppose it's the butcher?

I fale to see where the hot part comes in, Uncle Albi said, and pop said, Funale it out, constirate on it.

Wich Uncle Albi did, shaking his head as if he still couldn't see anything smart, and he forgot to tell the other one about little Herbi, prompted being pop's main ideer.

SEMITIC SPORTS BEAR BRUNT OF NAZI OFFENSIVE

Jewish Athletes in Germany Allowed Little Freedom

BOYCOTTED

Allowed to Use Few Public Sport Fields

(Note—This is the first of two stories describing conditions in Germany as they affect Jewish Athletes and directly or indirectly, their chances of competing in the Olympics.)

(By A. D. Sheffard)

(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Berlin, Oct. 22.—(AP) A sweeping Nazi clean-up campaign and the approach of the 1936 Olympics thrown a sharp light on the position of Jewish Athletes in Germany.

Jews are being virtually ejected from the social, cultural, economic, and professional fields, while strong-arm methods by Jews themselves call intimidation and disorganization, are brought to bear against semitic sports organizations.

A pledge was given the International Olympic Committee no one in Germany would be denied in any free athletic participation or in competition to qualify for Olympic games here and in Garmisch-Partenkirchen next year.

Jewish athletes, however, declare their clubs are suffering from boycotts by gym Associations and the regulations of Nazi officials.

There are about 56,000 members of Jewish Athletic organizations in Germany, About 30,000 of them belong to the Jewish Gymnastic Union, founded in 1897, and the rest of the sports associations of the National Union of Jewish front soldiers, founded in 1933. . . .

Not Allowed Fields

In only a few German cities, however, may Jews now use public Athletic Fields. To build and maintain their own grounds is a seemingly impossible because of the cost.

Consequently, many Jewish sportsmen have been forced to play in country fields and streets where no facilities are available for many contests such as several track events.

Nearly all schools are closed to private hands and are not open to Jews, swimming also is almost impossible because nearly every municipality has refused registration of swimming use of pools, beaches and resorts by Jews.

The Makkabi and front soldiers leagues are responsible to the federal sports leader Hans von Tschammer Und Osten, who has issued these regulations:

The formation and continuation of a Jewish sport club are permitted only, when no other sport club police order involving "state considerations."

The Clubs must be connected with a recognized Workers' Society.

Athletic organizations responsible to Von Tschammer and Osten must, or deemed desirable, look after the interests of the Jewish Association.

The use of public and private pools, halls, courts, tracks and fields is limited by the wishes and plans of schools, the Athletic Society of the National League of Exercise and like organizations.

Jewish organizations need not contribute to funds of the League.

LITTLE SARATOGA OPENS SATURDAY

Six Day Race Meet at Dufferin Park in Heart of Toronto

Toronto, Oct. 22—With the close of the Long Branch running race meeting on Thursday, October 24th, the Toronto turf scene shifts to Dufferin Park, where the final race meeting of the Canadian turf season of 1935 gets under way on Saturday, October 26th. All the horses participating in the Long Branch sport will take part in the Dufferin meeting, in addition to a number of others that have been resting up the past few weeks or are being imported from across the line.

A half-mile track and situated in the heart of Toronto, Dufferin Park has an appeal all of its own and each year out it has attracted capacity crowds, so much so that it is generally regarded as the most interesting race track in the world everything considered. For the coming season, however, the line on week days will be 1.45 p.m. while it will be 1.30 p.m., on Saturdays, so that the placing of races between the last race and darkness.

Fields in Dufferin Park are limited to eight and it is a rare occasion when a race does not go to the full quota. Tom Clark is the starter and he will use the starting gate as in the past. Judging in general use at Ontario tracks, Infield wagering Leader of the Dufferin sport especially as on week days, there is no admission fee to infield for the last two races of the program.

Under the rules that usually attracts a large handle at this half-mile track, will be on the first and second races, instead of the last one and third as was the case in the spring meeting. All Ontario combination wagering will be used, including the Straight-Double, the triple combine, for a dollar first and a dollar second and the handle may again be the biggest of the season, as was the case in the spring. During the Dufferin meeting, in London, Kenilworth Park in Windsor and Long Branch in Toronto, belongs to the Ontario which is sufficient guarantee for the protection pertaining to the successful conduct. Each of a race meeting is being attended to.

Blackburne Under $5,000 Bond To Appear on Nov. 19

CLEVER RING MASTER

Challenge For Title Had Implicit Confidence in Blackburne

(By Charles Dunkley, Associated Press Sports Writer)

Blackburn was at liberty under bond of $5,000 today on a charge of assault with intent to kill growing out of a shooting affray with another negro Sunday night. His hearing was set for Nov. 19, pending the outcome of the critical condition of Enoch Houser, 38, one of the participants, who was shot by Blackburn and his enemy blazed away at each other on the line.

Louis, who regards Blackburn as the man responsible for his present ranking as the leading heavyweight contender, is worried over the situation. Louis, in his own mind, believes that Blackburn, indirectly, made him what he is today.

Louis Believed Blackburn

Every prediction Blackburn made for Louis had been fulfilled. If Blackburn told Louis he could whip his opponent in three rounds, the Detroit boomer, with supreme confidence, went out and did that very thing. Louis refused to make a move either in the ring or contemplated one without what Blackburn gave his approval.

Fourteen months ago, Blackburn, himself a former great fighter, took charge of Louis' training and developed him from a $50.00 fighter to the greatest box office attraction in the game today. He augmented with Louis in the gymnasium teaching him his own trade.

Much of Blackburn's great reputation as a ring general was instilled into the 21-year-old heavyweight prodigy.

Thirty years ago, Blackburn, now 59 years old, was one of the great lightweights. He was known then, from the lights to the heavyweights as a ring general. He appeared to weighed. One of his standout victories over heavyweight was a round decision over John Willis of Chicago, a strapping 200 pounder, then regarded as a stumbling block for heavyweight challengers.

Zimmerman Puts Paul Runyan Out

Oklahoma City, Oct. 22 (AP)—Youth met youth and age met age today as semi-finalists squared off in the tournament of the United States' Professional Golfers' Association.

And tomorrow the twain shall meet!

Matched after four bitterly-fought quarter-final matches, their respective choices between the four seekers after the title.

The youngsters within reach of the coveted crown are Henry Zimmerman, Portland, Ore., new to such high ground, and a Milwaukee curlytread whose rise in golf has been of a sky-rocket nature, Johnny Revolta, sole surviving member of the Ryder Cup team.

The men of experience, in the other bracket, were the rapidly graying but yet alarming Tommy Armour and Al Watrous who has flirted with major championships on many occasions but never quite hooked one.

Zimmerman could lay heavy claim to the honors, for he defeated his little king of 1934, Paul Runyan, in a brilliant exhibition yesterday. But it was his attempted, heroic, who disposed of the redskiller, Walter Hagen.

Revolta had his hands full for a time yesterday in handing Eddie Schultz, Troy, N.Y., but finally got the deadly Marsman down 4 to 2.

Armour was carried three extra holes for his one-up victory over Dudley.

In defeating Horton Smith, Watrous remained steady in the face of a sparkling series of birdies.

Zimmerman, tall, red-locks lan than par in eliminating Runyan.

'Kid' Corn-Mark Storms Bout Steals Show Staged by Allen For Stewart - Warner A.C.

Crowd is Small And Stayaways Missed Fine Contests

WHEELER GETS NOD

Humphries Carries Glionna For Five Rounds to Win Easily

Although no knockouts were in evidence, fast moving boxing bouts were presented at the Belleville Arena before a mere handful of fans spectators last evening, when a preliminary scrap between Mark Storms, local mittster, and Kid Corn of Toronto, no only stole the entire show, but saw the local lad's stock rise early marque of leather and win a most popular decision in a combined boxing and wrestling show presented by the Stewart Warner Boxing Club of this city. Going to please the scattered crowd were the Wheeler-Hughes affair, that saw the local mittster pound out a clean-cut victory over his more experienced foe and the Fisher-Raven bout, that saw the more experienced Toronto fighter out-point, the local lad over the five round route.

Easily Defended Crown

In the main bout Billy Humphries defended lightweight championship, experienced little difficulty in defending his provincial crown when he pounded out a five round decision over wee-Italian Mel Glionna. Referee was advertised as the feature attraction bout of the card, but lived long enough to see the Storms-Corn affair easily steal the show. Two amateur wrestling bouts were added to the evening's performance as was a four round draw between the two Palmatier kiddies who pounds out a fancy youthful exponents of the art of fisticuffs thrilled the crowd with their skillity to hit hard and also absorb punishment under fire. Their efforts were greatly applauded.

The Corn-Storms fight at 115 pounds was the more experienced Toronto fighter endeavour to rush the youthful Storms opponent and put into effect the methodical Storms weathered that initial attack, of fists and leather to come back and prove the aggressor for the greater part of the bout. Storms' left hook to Corn at long range with stinging overhand rights to the head and body combined with a left hook eventually wore the Toronto scrapper down. Refereed Joe Stevens scored round with two heavy blows to Corn's head and two to the Corn retaliated but was met with an avalanche of fists coming from Storms' left and right hands and third round with clean hard body punching. Corn also showed the Storms' ability to take the tired Storms practically at his mercy, when the final gong sounded, but Storms' previous advantage carried him to a decision, that proved popular with the fans. This was a torrid battle, no quarter being asked or given as the local lad stood toe to toe at close and slugged matters to a finish.

Wheeler Mixed Chance

In the Wheeler-Hughes scrap the local mittster experimented and tried hard for a knockout, but the shifty Hughes kept out of harms way for the most part, content to lose in the latter rounds and missed by a mere margin. Referee Joe Stevens had Hughes all but draped over the bemp. In the initial round Wheeler drew blood from Hughes' mouth as he hurled lefts and rights at the Belleville lad's head and body with methodical precision. In the second canto Hughes shifted his attack to Wheeler's body, remembering his reverse in Toronto recently, but the local boy weathered the storm and retaliated with a similar attack, that left Hughes on the defensive for the remainder of the bout. Wheeler left Hughes groggy and all but counted out as he unmercifully pounded Hughes about the ring in the final round.

Mixes the services of at least five of their regulars the Belleville Intermediates into Oshawa and held the powerful Blue Devils to a 3 to 3 score on Saturday, demonstrating, that the locals have plenty of fight and will at least go down fighting in the last defense, if and has to be the case, Coach Dr. Kennedy has gained confidence in his charges and believes, that the majority of the squad's bad luck is over and that they should be able to be clear sailing in the future. Thursday night the Belleville squad is practically everything to the local team, as a defeat practically eliminates them from the league. Just one reason why the holiday game should pack in the largest crowd to have ever seen locally. "Rusty" Kingland does the penalty for the Oshawa squad, but will face some stiff kicking opposition in our own Jimmie Fulwell, who will command Friday's exchange of punts last Saturday. Jimmie, a former Lindsay boy, comes to town highly heralded as the Rotarians' ace punter and kicker and who has been scouted for his share of the Lindsay scouting this far this season. Weather permitting the S.R.O. sign should be hung out at the Fair Grounds on Saturday for the Lindsay-Belleville game.

Representing the O.B.A.A., President Bill Smith of Kitchener opened the mingling of professionalism, that of one sport with amateurs of another, when the Central Ontario Branch of the A.A.U. of C. met in Toronto on Saturday, but Mr. Smith was very much in the minority when the motion was passed as read. Although the Central Ontario Body dealt cautiously with the contentious question, with a majority vote favoring the mingling of amateurs and professionals, of different sports however, be given a one year's trial. The golden adopted by the Central Ontario Body be forwarded to the A.A.U. of C. to be considered at their annual meeting in December.

As the majority of amateur ruling bodies throughout the Dominion have already stamped their approval on this question, doubtlessly the recommendation will be tried for once at least The idea is quite simple, for instance a professional hockey player like Charlie Conacher would be permitted to play amateur basebaall, lacrosse or any amateur sport in autumn athletic activity. This may go hard on pro punksters, who desire to play amateur football, but would be forced into fall training in the middle of the rugby season. The idea is quite feasible and should assist in the stimulating of amateur sport throughout the Dominion.

The wrestling bout that local fans have been waiting for, and also demanding, has finally been arranged, that is, when Indian Jamieson, contract to meet Howard Anderson, better known as Chief Lynx of the Mohawk Indian tribesmen of local wrestling circles, on Thursday night at the Arena. Chief Lynx has never tasted defeat in a local ring, but came within an ace of losing the decision last week, when Dan Pavelo, the Russian Lion, held him to a draw. Now the promoters have procured Dunlop for a match with the pugnacious Indian and feel that they have the outstanding bout of the current season. Popular demand has been responsible to bring these two super-strongmen together in the same ring in a bout that should attract the largest wrestling crowd ever to jam its way into the Belleville Arena. As supporting bouts Jim Pavlos , the Greek wrestler, meets Joe Conkie, while Irish Steve Taylor, local exponent of the grappling game, will take on Johnnie Conkie on Thursday night.

Down-hearted and disappointed Middlemount fans were proclaimed he was through and all washed up as a promising boxing bonds in Belleville in the future, "I tried my level best to give the local fans the best matches possible, but when I carefully booking is not wanted in Belleville" stated Chris as he announced his retirement from the game after observing the spitting of fans. That attended last night's Stewart Warner A. C. boxing show at the Arena, Groups of gathered around Promoter Allen and acknowledged tried to reason with the local sports writer, but the damage had been done and stepping from the ring was a poor night to present a sports card, activity in Belleville. The local promoter took last night's financial reverse much harder than he would permit to show. After talking the situation over with the Toronto boxing and wrestling fans, he could not sympathize with Middlemarker Allen, as the Queen City idolizers assured us that last night's show was equally as good as the majority staged in Toronto. Perhaps if a new boxing bouts that embraced local talents only were staged, the Toronto would relish an inter-city show at some future date.

Getting back to last night's show, however, there is little doubt but that the Storms-Corn bout stole the show. Corn, a fast and clever slow winner, opened ferociously and literally swept the ring, forcing Storms to retreat, off his feed, but the local lad, with a cool head and two good fists, weathered the storm and actually pounded out a well-earned victory in the five round affair of all present. The bout was decidedly the best on the card. The Fisher-Raven bout was another that pleased, but Raven proved the more finished boxer, while Fisher showed the mark. The next bout in line was the Wheeler-Hughes scrap. Neatly matched in weight and height, the two, Wheeler and Hughes had the opportunity of witnessing a real knockout of the night, but ever-anxious to please his fans, Wheeler, from the start, forced the issue. The Glionna-Humphries affair was the latter, which in Dominion standards, merely the slipping Glionna, threughout, Humphries displayed the skills of their professional brethren, while the latter unwisely tried to slug it out with his more experienced opponent and deserved a better decision than was afforded.

The Store That Sets the Pace in Men's Wear

In Hockey Training Camps

(By The Canadian Press)

Most hockey teams slip into the training grind by easy stages after a strictly summer life, following sessions of physical training. But Tommy Gorman, manager of the world champion Montreal Maroons, believes the place to train is on the ice.

o o o o

Maroons hardly had time to well off their train legs before Gorman had them on skates for a three-day scrimmage session at Winnipeg yesterday, the last two full days of camp and the rest periods were just long enough for a deep breathing exercise.

o o o o

Gorman figures on a workout of that sort every day until the season opens in a little more than two weeks. He has most of his players on the job at Winnipeg, Cy Wentworth and Dave Trottier are expected in a few days and Herbie Cain and Stew Evans will be along as soon as they have signed contracts.

o o o o

Maroons were the last club to start training. Chicago Black Hawks have been at it for a week, Champigny, Ill., and Clem Loughlin still back in Toronto, hardly expects to take the places of Lolo Couture and Bill Kendall, traded this summer.

o o o o

Although Toronto Leafs went in for a lot of preliminary training, Coach Dick Irvin agrees with Gorman that actual play is a great conditioner. Leafs are breaking camp at Kitchener Friday to go on the road for a series of exhibition games with the first in Hamilton Friday.

o o o o

Boston Bruins also are planning an exhibition tour, to start next Monday. With 41 players in camp at Saint John, Bruins and Cubs in baseball training yesterday with a light skating session, Coach Art Ross predicted his squads today and will get around to the regular stage Thursday.

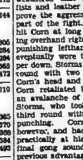
o o o o

Bruins expected to pick a star or two from the ranks of holdouts and one or two more of bonefide and no do, Montreal Canadiens in training at Quebec. Sylvio Mantha is the holdout, but the sights into the youngsters Canadiens are depending on for an improved defence.

o o o o

Manitha is holding Leonard Mondou at centre on one line, flanked by Jerry Goldsworthy and George Mantha. Pete Lepine centres another combination, working with Victor Lorchelli and Lionel Rumpel, former pet Quebec Beavers, Johnny Gagnon and Aurel Joliat make up either side of Paul Haines on a third line.

o o o o



Manitha, though, went through a snappy workout yesterday, 3 trying out a brand new defense combination in Jules Boulanger, Lorimer Brain, and Art Lesseur, who has come from Providence Reds, to work on the first defense himself with Wally Kilrea.

o o o o

New York Americans got their first heavy work Sunday yesterday, Manager Red Dutton called for the restriction on body checks and the defencemen took the opportunity at hand it out to the forwards.

o o o o

Dutton had just about decided to keep intact the young line of Art Chapman, Pennoy Schriner and Lloyd Gross. With Chapman and Schriner the pivots, the trio formed America's scoring threat last season. Jim Conkie of Toronto, Steve Taylor of Belleville meets

CURRENT SPORT

DAY BY DAY

Although last Saturday's reverse at Oshawa dropped the local O. R. F. U. football squad into fourth place, a win for the Kennedy-coached aggregation over Lindsay Thursday will elevate them into a possible tie for second place along with the occupants of the second berth today, Cobourg. Coach Dunlop, who piloted the Lindsay Collegiate team so capably for those few years back, is at the helm of the Scugog River boys again this season and has taken into the fold a band of youthful and fighting pigskin chasers, most of whom learned the rudiments of the game, while playing under Coach Breese and for their school team. Safely perched on the second rung of the group ladder the locals have the best chance of any fraction for a regular scheduled game here on Thanksgiving Day after-noon. Victory for the local red and blue clad aggregation, however, will doubtlessly change the entire situation in the Lake Ontario group standing, that is providing the Peterboro Orioles can turn the trick and down the lofty Oshawa Blue Devils.

Minus the services of at least five of their regulars the Belleville Intermediates into Oshawa and held the powerful Blue Devils to a 3 to 3 score on Saturday, demonstrating, that the locals have plenty of fight and will at least go down fighting in the last defense, if and has to be the case, Coach Dr. Kennedy has gained confidence in his charges and believes, that the majority of the squad's bad luck is over and that they should be able to be clear sailing in the future. Local Police Arrest Youth in Stolen Car

Apprehended in possession of a motor car reported to have been stolen last night, Roy Dellne, 24 year old Trenton youth, was arrested by Provincial Police as he drove the car into Belleville at noon today. A passenger in the car, James Street giving no address, was held as a material witness by police authorities.

The information regarding the whereabouts of the stolen car was received by police the noon hour today with the result that Constable Ross and McDiarmid, Provincial Motorcycle Patrolman Bert Delaney captured and stopped the vehicle on the Dundas road three miles into the city. The stolen car was a new Dodge sedan and was taken from Ottawa at midnight last night. Trenton, it is reported by the police, the driver of the vehicle, sold an automobile heater and a tire, title to which he had in his name, using the money to defray expenses.

Street, a transient informed the police he was picked up by Delaine east of Kingston early today when he hailed a ride. He is being held as a material witness. Both were remanded to the custody of the county jail for a week.

The cabinet minister said he rejoiced Great Britain, during the present tense days, enjoyed not only authority of British public opinion but the unbroken solidarity of its empire with "the impressive unanimity of the great Dominions."

Don't Realize Sincerity

"Some of the British friends have been surprised by the depth and fervency of your expressions of opinion," Hoare remarked. "They failed to understand our belief in the League as an instrument not only for stopping war but also for promoting peace.

"They didn't realize the sincerity of our hope and faith in the new order of international morality of which the League is the keystone. They failed, also, to understand the sense of unity toward the League's bridge between Great Britain and Europe and of that bridge is gravely weakened and broken, co-operation between us and the continent becomes difficult and dangerous."

Pointing out the controversy raised an issue between the League and one of its most powerful members, Sir Samuel said:

"There is a real temptation to throw up the task as hopeless. Some there be in Europe who have tended to succumb.

"There was a cry on the continent early in the controversy 'Sanctions or decline!' We say now: 'World peace or destruction!'"

Bound to Have Enemies

The British Empire, he said, is bound to have enemies and critics who are jealous of the British position, want to make trouble in Europe and "embroil us with our friends."

"It is such as these," he declared, "who are trying to make it appear, that Great Britain and France only use the League for selfish ends and is bent on mobilizing its machinery for the humiliation of Italy."

Such men, he declared, "are doing their best to kindle a conflagration in Europe and to destroy the League itself."

Answering other critics, who said Great Britain had been timid and slow to act, Sir Samuel declared the government made representations to Italy in the Ethiopian conflict "at the end of last year and "from then onward we never stopped warning Italy of the gravity of the issues."

FIDELITY TO THE LEAGUE

Sir Samuel stated he had never adopted an extreme partisan attitude declaring: "I believe that more than outside Italy, I was the first public man to remind the world of Italy's claim for expansion and economic security."

He said he had already pledged Great Britain to the investigation of colonial raw materials and declared: "Samuel Motorcycle Patrolman Bert Delaney captured and stopped the vehicle on the Dundas road three into the city. Wall Street Financial

New York, Oct. 22.—(AP)— The stock market encountered profit taking on a wholesale basis today while various groups of rails and utilities more than managed to hold their own, some of the latter in substantial favorites backed up appreciably.

Mining Dominion stocks, Molsons and International Nickel eased while Canadian Pacific ruled about even. On the curb, Ethran Walker yielded more than a point but Lake Shore, Hollinger and Hormaravold bonds were narrow.

Foreign exchanges held unchanged at 96 9-16 cents.

Sterling shows gainers of fractions to around 2 points were U.S. Steel, Bethlehem, American Rolling Mill, Chrysler, Union Pacific, Santa Fe, Consolidated Gas, North American, Public Service, Columbia Carbon Continental Can, Caterpillar Tractor, International Nickel, Johns Manville and American Can. On the losing side Du Pont yielding 2, General and Commercial Credit 2 each, General Foods 1 and General Motors, Case and Johns-Manville less than a point each.

NEW YORK CLOSE

New York, Oct. 22—(AP)—Profits taking ruled in the late afternoon of the recent leaders to around 3 points and a few issues to around 5 points, the Steels, Rails, Utilities and those lately succeeded in backing the list.

The market boiled in the first hour, but turnover quickly fell off, sharps, the largest volume for the opening period since February, 1934, selling and commission house favorites as Chrysler, Du Pont, Johns-Manville, Case, Warren Brothers and Johns-Manville. Weakness in the Commercial Credit issue also yielded about 4 each with American Telephone, Douglas Aircraft, Eastman Kodak and General Foods were off fractions to a point or more.

Liquidation dried up in the afternoon, but the late tone was highly irregular. Transfers approximated 2,700,000 shares.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Oct. 22.—(CP)—While waiting for the New York market to make up its mind, Toronto industrial listings today drifted lower in spots, helped along by profit taking sales. Base metals and golders turned down, led by Walker, Consumers Gas, up to a half point developed in the ofin.

The proposal of the Hiram Walker Co. that there be a $2,000,000 bond issue ahead of the common stock, a plan not favorably regarded by the market with bullish enthusiasm, and Ford A held common ranged 1-2 and registered only mild recovery in the afternoon. Canadian Pacific, Ford A and B held a point gain and banks, foods and consumer issues slightly firm.

TORONTO MINES

Toronto, Oct. 22 (CP)—Profit taking in the gold war in evidence with selling more general in the secondary group on Toronto Mining Market today. Advances, though not under the weight of offerings and moderate recessions were noted for McKenzie, Central Patricia, God's Lake and Armiheld. Senior golds held most of the active issues showing gains at early afternoon.

Further weakness for metal prices on the London market caused selling of the Base Metal shares and, with the exception of Noranda, the group worked lower. Hudson Bay at 7 3-4 was down 1-4 and Hollinger ease came out for Sudbury Basin. Sherritt and Base Metals Corporation. Silvers also were moderately weak.

Board Room Gossip

As supplied to Hiscox and Crawford by Financial Service.

Dome.

The company reported earnings before depreciation equal to 83.50 for the first 9 months of the current year, which indicates that for the entire year would equal $4.67 a share. Depreciation Reserve write-off takes an equivalent of $2.50 cents a share, so that net income available for dividends would be equal to $4.67 for the year 1935. This would compare with $4.81 a share as reported for the year 1934.

As usually happens, the rise that got under way in the last two sessions was accompanied and a large number of sharp gains were recorded in the Toronto Stock Exchange new highs. The local list has been behind the New York board as the rule there has not been fully reflected in Canadian securities for various reasons. Even the announcement that the Quebec power contracts would be definitely cancelled at the end of this month did not have a dampening effect on the market with the exception of one issue, of the particular stocks affected.

The new high in Steel of Canada is explained by the fact that the common has approximately $11 of arrears and dividends accumulating, benefitting from the railway equipment orders recently placed and the strong financial position, excellent management and leadership in the industry where the expectation of a continued progress as this country marches on to recovery.

The strength in the oil stocks is a related recognition of the improvement these companies have experienced in the past year. The sharp increase in automobile production in 1935, with prospects very bright for 1936, coupled with the improved lines have brought about a higher demand for gasoline and oilplan at any time in the last few years. Canadian oil stocks have also proven attractive from the viewpoint of yield.

The best reason to account for now receiving aggressive sponsorship is because that many issues are selling at factor entirely lacking up to now.

Produce Prices on Montreal Market

The local wholesale egg market continued to display a firm undertone again yesterday, the scarcity of fresh arrivals of top grades again showing through.

There is a fair demand for these lines and yesterday Grade A large were sold at 30 cents and Grade AB at 28 cents. Pullets also moved higher buying quoted at 30 cents to 31 cents per dozen.

While B and C grades were quieter the tone was firm. Grade B large sold at 26 to 26 1-2 cents and the latter at 21 to 22 1-2 cents, according to size.

Jobbers price for small lots were unchanged but higher prices on top grades were expected to be the tomorrow's selling.

Monday's prices ruled as follows: grade A large 40 cents; Grade A medium 38 cents; grade A pullets 25 cents grade B large 26 cents; grade B medium 26 cents; grade C 23 cents large.

The butter market was quiet with prices showing a somewhat easier tone due to the slack demand. Grade A-1 was quoted at 34 1-4 to 34 1-2 cents for fine sales quantities.

The cheese market is quiet with current quotations unchanged. Nominally the October make was quoted at 21 1-2 to 21 3-4 cents per pound for No. 1 Ontario, while Quebec's were 21 1-2 cents per pound.

September make of Ontario cheese held steady at nominally 23 cents per pound.

GRAIN

Winnipeg, Oct. 22.—(CP)—Wheat prices rallied here today on decisively trading on Winnipeg grain exchange, with a sharp upward movement being the chief bearish factor.

Values near mid-session were 3-4 -7-8 cent under yesterday's close. October at 89 1-4, November and December 89 1-4 and May at 93 cents.

HOGS

Toronto, Oct. 22. (CP) — Three cents registered lower prices today from reporting hog markets. Stratford and Kitchener both dropped 15 cents while London showed a loss of 10 cents.

Prices

Peterboro, $8.35; Hull $8.60; Chatham $8.50; London $8.25; Stratford $8.25; Brantford $8.60; Kitchener $8.25.

'SALADA' TEA

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Dear Mrs. Beeckman

1. How long should we stay when visiting relatives out of our own city if the time is not specified?

2. When we are asked what we would like to do, would it be proper to answer by saying, "It don't matter" or say, outright what we would like to do?

3. Should we help with the household duties?

4. If certain foods served do not agree with us, what is the proper thing to do?

5. Should we write a thank-you note upon arriving home? If so, should it be written immediately.

6. Is it necessary for us to invite the host or hostess for a visit in return?

Adela and Helen

1. How long we should stay when we go to visit relatives is a question for decision to put with the list of things he couldn't figure out.... "the way of a man and maid, the way of a ship at sea", the "way of a serpent on a rock", and so forth. It's always so much better if the time or a visit is definitely given in before we go — this is just where wise and accustomed hostesses do, even when they have said, "stay as long as you like." But if this isn't done, we need a stitch sense added to stitch sense a bell for us so that we may leave before the welcome is the slightest frayed. Need I say that the hostess will love us more tenderly and heartily if we stay "not too long" than one rather than a too-heavy meal?

And don't let your relatives' "Oh don't go" fool you. Borne with "Oh go — and go. Then next time you'll be welcomed as the flowers in May.

2. If what you would like to do is obviously convenient and appropriate, by all means make the suggestion. Your hostess will love you for making suggestions. Saying "It doesn't matter" or the continual "What would you like to do?" doesn't help her a bit, and is a jumping thing to say. If you two girls are going a-visiting together, you can make it very easy for your hostess by saying something like, "Mother has rather than a too-heavy meal?

3. If there is no service in this home where you are visiting, you should be spanked if you don't help with the household duties. Take care of your room most carefully, and help them with the other duties—and don't let go on this cooperation.

4. First, since I take it you're young ladies, get over this idea, as much as you are possibly able, that you much coddle your self in the belief that certain foods don't agree with you. Almost always this is a figment of the imagination. A mature-thinking person is the one who is finicky about foods — or least one who talks about it. Even if stuffed green peppers are anathema to you, serve yourself to a small portion of them and eat the rest of the home-dinner menu. Then unobtrusively don't eat much about them when they are on your plate. But don't talk about them and what they do or don't do to you. Manners are what you do to make other people happy and comfortable, and complaining that the hostess' foods don't agree with you won't make her blissfully happy.

5. Yes, the very first minute you can after you arrive home you sagh write a bread-and-butter letter to your hostess, the very best and most articulate letter you know how to write. Thank her for her hospitality and goodness to you in general, and then say gracious words of appreciation about specific things your hostess planned for your happiness. And it's a generous to send a hostess gift with your letter.

6. It's pleasant to receive a formal call of course. If your family can invite your hostess and host to visit you, that all depends on circumstances.

Winning The Stepchild Is Task

Expert Offers Advice For The Treatment of Mate's Children

By LISA CHENELLE

When Florrie's new mother kissed her, Florrie didn't kiss back. She turned the other cheek, in a cold resigned manner.

"Why," said father, beaming, "is your new mamma."

Florrie surveyed her new mamma coldly and refused to acknowledge the relationship by look, gesture or word.

Why should she acknowledge it? Father, perhaps, had a right to marry again. This woman he had chosen satisfied him, took the place of Florrie's mother for him. But why would she take the place of Florrie's mother to Florrie?

Eventually, maybe she would. Although it is said, sentimentally and half-truthfully, that no one can take the place of a mother, it is not always true. Sometimes they can, foolish, stupid mothers, there are neurotic, over-indulgent mothers, and their children might be better off in the hands of almost any stepmother.

Popular prejudice and sentiment notwithstanding, there are many good stepmothers, and very well meaning ones. The maternal instinct is strong in many women, many a childless second wife anticipates the acquisition of her stepchildren as much as she does that of her husband. This is especially true if the children are little. The adolescent stepchild, of course, is a much more difficult proposition.

Th. younger the child, the easier the problem. Except in the case of a child who, where confusion is created, that is necessary, tact and patience are required. Even the most normal child will resent a new parent at first, and the wise one will not thrust them previously as individuals.

Tact and Patience

Unless the circumstances are very unusual, no step-parent can expect to be loved at once by those he step-children. They must win their way slowly, employing considerable tact and patience, and they must not become unduly impatient. For though the task is difficult, it is seldom an impossible one. Only very maladjusted or emotionally children are naturally or incurably antagonistic.

But in their fogherent way they demand that their loyalties be respected. Father has no right to ask them to call his new wife "mother" immediately, and she has no right to expect it. Later, if she wins the children's affection, they may call her "mother" voluntarily, but it should never be demanded of them.

A stepmother makes a great mistake if she starts life in her new home by ordering the children about, caressing them or scolding them, as if they were her own.

Instead, she should leave them alone as much as possible in the beginning. And when she must pay attention to them, let her ask their help and their advice. The quickest way to win a child, as it is an adult, is to refer to him, to make him feel needed.

This does also, not to make the children feel you are coming between them and their real parent. And never complain about them to him, or tattle on them!

Control Of Freckles Urged

Elizabeth Lee
Who has freckles, but still retains her beauty

By HELEN FOLLETT

What about freckles? Are they blemishes or little golden dots that make the countenance look young and piquant? All gals are not of the same mind about them.

Well, we'll say this much. If you have them are you going to start a fight against them, you are in for a 100-year war. That is, if they become a part of your normal skin tissue. There is a certain pigment in the skin that will create these and it will color with winds blow or when the sun gets in its fiercest work.

Strong bleaches—we do not recommend them — will remove the upper layer of skin, revealing a fresh, new one. But the new one is not immune to the valleys paths dots. So, what then?

Control of pigmentation is to keep them under control as much as possible. That is done by cleaning the skin twice a day, morning and night, by using a mild bleach made by combining equal portions of peroxide and lemon juice before the nightly cleansing, by selecting a complexion powder that is fairly heavy, has an oily base. The powder acts as a protective film that keeps air and sunlight cannot penetrate.

The skin at the outer corners of the finger nails gives more trouble than anything else in the matter of skin. It should behoove every woman to help along this weekly treatment by giving the cuticle about ten days the proper attention.

Scour the fingers with soap suds and a brush. With the towel push the flesh away from the nails. Gently. Rum an orange wood stick under the nail caves around the base of the nail. Then stick nail into cuticle cream, say prayers and go to bedy.

More Beauty should be ours by virtue of the very flattering hats worn this season. An afternoon hat of black satin felt has a squared-off brim front and back. It is banded and bound with black ostrich and it has an ostrich plume in retro that curves around the crown and over the coiffure in back.

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Back into bonnets go smart young things as fashion decrees. Not a hat raiser strongly. A good model is of black felt with a buckle belting ribbon quite forming tabs on either side. The hat is finished by a short veil.

There's always room for a good-looking, wearable afternoon frock. A useful model has a detachable vestee of white crepe and silver metal cloth. The cuff's button on the skirt and small emotions finish it and provide sleeve trimming when the cuffs are not worn.

Tote bag almost any bag and you will see how smart it is. A new bag is of black antelope in a round shape with tiny gilt link chains radiating from a centre ring of gilt links.

Nothing like leather must be the motto of the designer who created a stunning evening gown of black crushed velvet leather. The frock is supported on one shoulder only by trailing bit made of white patent leather flowers.

Style scouts always appear at the smart cocktail affairs. A lovely informal ensemble is of silver metallized taffeta, the short jacket collarless and with long sleeves of stitching on coat and skirt and hem emphasizing the flare.

A dull day will be made bright by a coat of cherry red suede cloth trimmed with cuff applications of gray squirrel arranged in scarf collar and sleeve sections. The skirt

Bright lights will shine down on the dark days of the winter this winter. A new evening coat of ermine is given an orange liner with dropped armhole sleeves. The skins are marked in horizontal stripes, and there is a collar of mink and a mink stripe down the side closing.

Day or night there is use for a dark model. Deep cape-color of black broadtail banded with silver fox. Tails can be worn on daytime or afternoon frocks, day coats and evening coats.

A MODERN MORAL FOR AN ANCIENT PROVERB

NO MATTER how fussy your complexion may be, you'll find it is taken to Lifebuoy. Its lather penetrates deep into pores, gently urges out clogged wastes. According to scientific skin tests, it is more than 20% milder than many so-called "beauty soaps" used by complexions!

A protection we all need!

Bathing with Lifebuoy leaves one cool and gracefully fresh and clean — but too! For Lifebuoy purifies, deodorizes as it cleans. Its clean scent quickly zooms away.

HEALTH and PSYCHOLOGY

By Louis E. Bisch, M.D., Ph.D.

Famous Authority on Health and Psychology

Copyright, 1935, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

How many of us really think clearly and effectively? Too often and too much are we swayed in our judgment by what we read and by what we hear. The modern do we "chew and digest" what goes into our minds, separating and labeling the wheat from the chaff.

Naturally, the "line of least resistance," is to accept ideas unerringly without further fuss and bother. Is there any wonder, then, that we have been in such a state of confusion?

Instead of an orderly and systematic mind, their mental processes become cloudy, and often their inner become contradictory. Even worse than that, the failure to think clearly can actually produce symptoms of nervous disorder.

It is small wonder, when you come to consider it, that only a comparatively few men and women do practically all the thinking for entire world. This is scarcely an exaggeration. It is the ideal delegate others to do the big jobs, to settle political matters, make the laws, represent us at foreign conferences tables. We are quick to criticize when results seem to go wrong. But do we ever think what we would have done in similar or better similar circumstances?

Take theology, for instance. How many have accepted their souls to find out what they really believe? Many go through the forms and rituals of some particular religious group. They do the "duty service" required. But what, deep down, do they feel?

Every individual ought at least to be settled in his mind as to his religious creed. In fact, every one should take a stand—and know why he takes that stand.

The mind is like the sponge. It absorbs everything—the important as well as the trivial. Everything therefore, that goes into the mind influences in some way.

Now we cannot always avoid what enters via our eyes and ears. The environment and the circumstances in which we happen to be placed cannot always be controlled by us. In other words, we cannot be selective as to what to admit or do not want to admit into our thoughts. But we can, on the other hand, be critical of what does get inside.

We can review what we have stored up in the manner that a storekeeper periodically takes an inventory of the goods on his shelf and in his cellar, thus getting rid of our reasoning and other intellectual faculties goes a long way toward clear and definite thinking. It helps us to label and classify, harmonize everything stored in definite end.

Everyone would profit, in fact, if each night he reserved a half hour for weighing and considering the experiences and impressions of the day. In this way we would soon stop believing everything or, as some do, disbelieving everything.

Thinking in itself is excellent mental exercise. Secondly, it soon becomes good fun. Lastly, it is directly beneficial to yourself and to all your doings.

Dr. Bisch's Daily Diet Hint

Children get their tasks their lunch to school should be sure to have a warm meal at night. During cold or wet weather they should also have at least one hot dish at lunch time. Care must be taken that the evening meal is not too heavy. It is also good practice for children to eat on coming home from school.

MELROSE W.M.S.

The regular meeting of the Melrose W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. C. Jeffrey on Wednesday, Oct. 16th at 2.30 p.m. President in charge, with thirteen members and three visitors present.

Meeting opened with a hymn, followed by call to worship and prayer by the president. Minutes of previous meeting were read and approved. Business was discussed. A letter was read by secretary Mrs. A. Mickford from Mrs. E. Farnsworth, secretary of Christian Stewardship and Finance.

Readings were given by Peace and Temperance secretaries.

Solo was sung by Mrs. S. Anderson then took charge. Report of the Secretary Mrs. Jeffrey. Mrs. Pearce was given.

Duet by Mrs. Simpkins and Mrs. Jeffrey "All Life's Way." A chapter from the Study Book was given by Mrs. DeMille.

The offering was then received. Meeting closed by all repeating the Watchword. A delicious lunch was served by the hostess and group.

Cold weather is just the thing for that new three-piece tweed suit. A new model has a buttoned jacket and skirt in a rust and dark green tweed mixture. The matching cape has a high, farfisi collar and shoulder yoke of beaver.

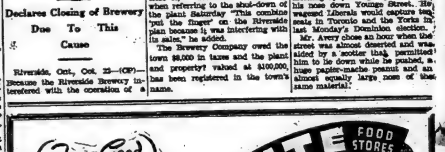
Women Over Forty

Need have no fear

The much talked of change
Which occurs at about this time of life
Is too greatly emphasized as a danger period.
True there is for a time a strain on the nervous system.
There may be high nervous tension
And a disposition to be irritable and moody.
It is a time to avoid excitement and over fatigue.
And too much excitement and over fatigue.
It is essential that the blood be kept rich
And the nervous system fully nourished.
For this reason Dr. Chase's Nerve Food
Is of almost priceless value at this time.
You need have no fear for the future,
For to the great majority of women
The later years are the happiest of their lives.
It is surprising the number of women
Who attribute the safe passing of this period
And the good health and happiness
Of succeeding years to the use of this nerve food.

RIVERSIDE REEVE CHARGES COMBINE

Declares Closing of Brewery Due To This Cause



Riverside, Oct. 22.—(CP)—Reeve Ernest Riverside Brewery in interfered with the cessation of a beer combine in Ontario, it was the Conservation Board, in 1930, to 30 men out of work, Reeve Leonard Hebert stated at the Riverside council meeting last night.

"I maintain that the combine which had the monopoly of the sale of beer in this Province saw fit to close it," declared Reeve Hebert when referring to the shut-down of the plant Saturday. "This combine put the finger on the Riverside plan because it was interfering with its sales," he added.

The Brewery Company owned the town $8,000 in taxes and the plant and property valued at $100,000 has been registered in the town's name.

Liberal Member Pays His Election Bet

Toronto, Oct. 22.—(CP)—Fred L. Anwyl, Liberal M.L.A., for Lincoln, paid an election bet early this morning by pushing a wheelbarrow with his nose down Yonge Street. He wagered Liberals would capture two Conservative seats in Monday's election. But last Monday's Dominion election, Mr. Anwyl's party won the first seat.

LACK OF WATER HAMPERS ITALY

Wells Dug in War Area Yield Water Fit Only For Washing

SUEZ, Oct. 22—Italy's most formidable foe at present in the war area is lack of water. Many wells recently dug along the coast and in the hills give water only fit for washing, as it is slightly salty. Therefore, every troopship going to East Africa from Italy has to carry as much water as possible for drinking, according to the New York Times.

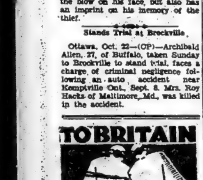
Possibly the Italians also presents great difficulty, while the Ethiopians are not hampered in the same way since they can exist on berries and herbs carried in their pockets, and are able to go a long time without water.

Two Italian ships anchored off Massawa are solely employed in making fresh water, which is then used for ill soldiers. An unexpected difficulty confronts the Italians from elephantiasis which has broken out among the troops. It consists of a swelling of the leg from the calf downward, but the disease yields easily to treatment.

Behind the front line, as the Italian troops advance, is another army consisting of 35,000 engineers and workmen armed with rifles and continually working. They were ordered not to use their rifles unless attacked, but many petitioned General de Bono to be allowed to fight instead of making roads. They were told, however, that road-making also was a way forward glory and that the Italian Army could not march to victory without roads to march on. Nightly the troops amuse themselves with gramaphones and singing parties.

In spite of denials of the use of poison gas, consignments of it have now arrived in Eritrea. It is emphatically declared, however, that it will only be used in self defense and not for attack.

An Italian military representative has arrived in Suez from Eritrea in order to negotiate with oil refineries here for the sale of gasoline to the Italian air force in East Africa. At present the amount of gasoline and oil in Eritrea are very limited. The Italians are experiencing difficulty replacing them as the Suez refineries refuse credit.



It is now impossible to hire a single lorry in Suez since even old chassis and engines have been bought up by the Italians for service in Eritrea. Lorries arriving continuously by tanks from Cairo and Alexandria are immediately shipped to Massawa.

STRUCK BY CHICKEN THIEF

Lindsay, Oct. 22.—When Jabez Mulcock, Logie Street, heard dogs making a commotion in the vicinity of his chicken coop Monday night, he investigated. When he looked into the hen-house door he was staggered by a blow to the face and before he recovered the thief had departed. He had not the slightest of the blow on his face, but also has an imprint on his memory of the thief.

Diesel Train Cuts Chicago-Los Angeles Time 15 Hours

CHICAGO, Oct. 22.—Unheralded, a train rolled quietly into the Dearborn Street station late last night to hang up a new speed record. Powered by a 3,600-horsepower Diesel locomotive, the Santa Fe train of nine stainless steel passenger cars came to a halt 39 hours 34 minutes from Los Angeles, states the New York Times.

The train had cut fifteen hours from the time of the Santa Fe's Chief, fastest regular train between the two cities, according to E. J. Biedson, president of the road.

The ride of the "Santa Fe Valley Society," who made the trip in 1905 and set a record which stood unchallenged thirty years, had been shortened by 9 hours 30 minutes.

The record of 39 hours and 57 minutes set up recently by the Union Pacific's light streamliner had been lowered by twenty-three minutes.

Railroad men attached particular significance to the train's passage as no advance arrangements had been made for a speed test. The train was returned to the yards for a second of two routine test runs. According to W. K. Etter, vice president, one of a number of officials aboard, no hint that "the chief" was going to be used in self defense and not for attack.

An Italian military representative has arrived in Suez from Eritrea in order to negotiate with oil refineries here for the sale of gasoline to the Italian air force in East Africa. At present the amount of gasoline and oil in Eritrea are very limited. The Italians are experiencing difficulty replacing them as the Suez refineries refuse credit.

CITY PICK-UPS

Down at Uncle Bill's Thanksgiving will be celebrated appropriately this year, as it has in past years, with due and proper ceremony. The date may have been changed through act of Parliament and the season may perhaps be warmer with less lang of Autumn in the air, but the fat turkey will be in the oven and "the fixin's" on the table.

There are plenty of Uncle Bill's, or Aunt Susan's or Aunt Libby's in this section and as before, memory will go back to the earlier days of happy or even happier events connected with that historical date. It was a day of family reunions at the loaded tables, of chats by the fireplace, of following of evening's meet and a heartfelt day of praise and thanksgiving for a bountiful year and the favors given. The frost was on the pumpkin, shocks of corn nestled in the breeze in the open fields and sumac bushes by the old rail fence had taken on their fall tinge of red and purple; garden patches lay withered and blackened and over all seemed the afternoon sun which seemed more red than warm.

The farm house had never seemed cheerier, its interior never more spotless and gleaming from its thorough scrubbing and polishing in preparation for the return to the home fireside of "the folks." Like the prodigal son, the sons and daughters of the more modern era were returning if only for the day. Even old Shep seemed the air of big doings; his capers grew more frolicsome, his old sedateness gave way to foolish play.

There was a throwback to the dinner to younger eyes was the fact that so many aunts and uncles had been invited and that parts of the table was a bit cramped for the generous array of the great feature the choicer cuts from the fat turkey. The fowl was being carved off by the head of the table and placed on the warm plates. Sometimes there was the hint that "the children might wait". Perish the thought! For waiting, when that stomache were empty was a thing that would have tried the patience of any Job.

Even if one had to wait there was always lots to be had. Not only in the cheery kitchen, but below in the cellar were the fruits of a bountiful harvest lay in splendid array. There were the barrels of Greenings and Baldwins and Spies, and all the wonder bin where was the sauerkraut in the making, and in others the pickles for which the cucumbers had been transformed, graded and cleaned. There were the jarred or put into "one, up and tallied in brine, and the bacon, home-cured, and the strings of dried apples festooned from the rafters. And on the shelves the bunches of sage and celery and "yarbs" mixed with the hundreds of sealers of fruits and many packets and salads. In the corner, the huge cider barrel, but not "worked" enough yet to let you sip.

Between the cellar and the kitchen one will live prosperous at Uncle Bill's. If even only for the day—the day which will be only too short, too full and replete to ask any more than just a day.

Life goes on around the city in the same smooth way, except children now hissing Benito Mussolini and his marching armies in the news reels of the local theatre. And cheering the appearance in celluloid of Hall Selassie and his white shirted warriors. Fighting tackle half price in the windows of stores which still show it. A man canvassing the streets of the residential sections with a small black valise offering to treat sick canaries for busy house wives. Idlers at the local docks have changed their position from the west side exposure to the south now where they lie through the day idly gazing at the seagulls. Cormorants raising up the scattered leaves and piling them against the sides of the house and the flower gardens. One old timer advises plenty of leaves for manure during the winter on the beds, the second one says, no. Municipal leaves only are used. Two candidates for the chief office yet mentioned. And fewer new elderly bands appearing on the wooden blanket specials and Hallowe'en false faces in the stores. Shorter days and overshoes just around the corner. Harvest moons at evening services and the younger set getting down to the first of the season's serious dancing.

Ibn Saud Marries New Wife by Proxy

CAIRO, Egypt, Oct. 22.—King Ibn Saud of Saudi Arabia, has married by proxy, today at Damascus, according to a message to the Egyptian Gazette from there. The bride was the daughter of Sheikh Nawaf El Shaalan of Damascus.

A delegation of forty prominent Arabian chieftains from the Saudian Kingdom attended the ceremony as representatives of the absent bridegroom. The marriage further strengthens the King's influence in Northern Hedjaz.

King Ibn Saud, head of the Wahabi sect, the strictest of the Moslems, is permitted to have four wives, a number he has never exceeded, although the strictest wives and replaced them many times. Divorce is easy, as he is required by law to that a Moslem should not go to his wife: "Thou art divorced" or "I divorce thee," and shall return part of the wife's dowry.

Court Denies Appeal Of Township Treasurer

Toronto, Oct. 22—(CP)—Appeal of Thomas M. Sweetman, sentenced by Magistrate Makins of Stratford of theft and fraud in respect of the monies of the township of which he was treasurer was dismissed in judgment today by the Ontario Court of Appeal.

Sweetman was sentenced to 15 months determinate and two years on one day indeterminate.

The court took a commonsensical view of the matter, stating the appellant is a bad man of business and there were other circumstances which entitled him to consideration. He had made complete restitution.

"The case therefore is one for executive clemency", says the judgment.

Sweedon is 75 years old, and was reeve of the township of Elma for 33 years.

OPERATED "STILL"; FINED $100

Kingston, Oct. 22—(CP)— Robert Loyst, Sr., of Arden, who had previously pleaded guilty to a charge of "unlawfully operating an unlicensed distillery apparatus," was fined $100 and costs Monday by Magistrate Ambrose Shea. The alternative was three months in jail.

GOEBEL PLANS SPANNING U. S. FOR 2 RECORDS

Famous Pilot To Try Cross-Country Hops in Few Weeks

Fort Wayne, Ind.—Col. Art Goebel, absent from the records of speed flyers for several years, plans to attempt a come-back. He announced plans here for an assault on two trans-continental air records within a few weeks.

The famous pilot, who made aviation history in 1927-28, plans to fly a special built low-wing Lockheed plane in an effort to smash the east-west mark. Goebel hopes to take the air again in an assault on Col. Roscoe Turner's record of 10 hours, 2 minutes, 31 seconds for the eastward crossing.

Both flights will be started late at night so that with good luck they will reach his destination in the daytime.

Flew to Honolulu in 1927

Goebel has been the author of many pages of aviation history. In 1927 he made a record-breaking flight between San Francisco and Honolulu. The next year saw him as holder of the west to east record—and again aiming at—when he hopped across the continent in 15 hours. This record was shattered two years later. He again made the headlines in 1932 when he set a non-stop speed mark from Mexico City to Kansas City. He discussed his plans for his proposed invasion of the world of speed, Goebel said:

"I have made my calculations carefully, am confident that with suitable wind and weather conditions, I can lower the present records. My flights will be made at an altitude of over 15,000 feet, as high as I can go without the aid of oxygen."

To Use New Fuel

"I will use the recently-developed high-octane polymerized fuel which Howard Hughes used when he set a new speed record a year or so ago. Tests have proved that it is ideal for my purposes because it is especially suited to high-altitude flying."

"My ship, only recently completed, will be ready for the flights as soon as I install extra gas tanks which will have a total capacity of 650 gallons."

"I hope to average at least 275 miles per hour on my transcontinental adventures. Only poor luck can keep me from breaking both of the existing records."

Wants to Fly World Non-Stop

Another plan was announced by the noted pilot.

"It is another ambition," said Goebel, "is to make a non-stop flight around the world. With proper flying equipment, and more fuel, my dream could be turned into a reality."

"Such a venture," he continued would entail an expenditure of better than $150,000 and would require week of training and testing equipment to avoid unduly hazardous grind."

"It would be necessary to have six refueling ships, two at three selected bases along the route, to supply gasoline and oil and food for the pilot."

NEW HOPE HOTEL ROBBED

Port Hope, Ont., Oct. 22 (CP) — The Ontario Hotel here was robbed of a sum estimated at $225. The money was taken from a desk in a bedroom in which the son of the proprietor, Frank Lowe, was sleeping at the time. He was not aroused. Two men were observed near the entrance to the proprietor's apartments earlier.

FIRST OF THE NEW GENERAL MOTORS CARS TO MAKE DEBUT

Modern styling and flashing performance are characteristics of the four series of 1936 McLaughlin-Buicks just announced by General Motors of Canada, Limited. New streamlined Turret-Top bodies by Fisher, further progress in engine design, and exceptional riding comfort are noteworthy features. Above, right, is a six-passenger sedan of the Series Forty-Eight. The built-in trunk is found on all the McLaughlin-Buick sedans for 1936. Below, right, a rumble seat sport coupe in the Series Forty-Four. In the circle, a view of the driving compartment of the Series Forty-Eight, showing the hand-brake in its new location under the dash. Below, left, the graceful lines of the front end. The circular shield medallion which is the new McLaughlin-Buick emblem is also shown.

"Installment Marriage"

by

Janet Doran

"Well, I won't feel like it very often if you're going to wet blanket me on every occasion," Ted Ivy tried to spend a nickel, Judy!" Michael became sulky, helped, and Judy subsided. It was useless to try to check him in this mood. He was on a jag, an emotional jag, and his mental cocktail was snooty slipping through his fingers like flashing quicksilver. It went to his brain like wine, and he soared to never, prankier heights as he spent such amounts.

They got home from their celebration at half-past two, and Michael was still hilarious over the best party he had had in years. It was, he insisted, almost like not having married.

Judy had been very quiet, very subdued. She had watched the installments due so soon, and the ominous flatness of Michael's spent wallet. She would have to go to the bank and draw some from her savings. She had never done this, during her single days. She had always managed to budget her income to cover her needs without debts, without digging into her savings.

The third day of her first week back at work was her birthday, and Judy hoped Michael would forget all about it. She wanted to put back the amount she had had to draw from her account, when her first paycheck came through, and if he decided to remember again, it would mean that he would be broke once more, and she would have to borrow more from the savings account, instead of repay.

At night, Ted Hoyt, the company's chief consulting engineer, stopped at her desk with a handsome box, a package that was very heavy, quite bulky.

"Can the firm offer the company bride a little birthday gift?" he asked, his blue eyes very grave, as he saw the worried lines of anxiety etched deeply into her forehead, about her soft mouth, "Token of our esteem, and all that."

Judy hesitated an instant. Michael might not like it. He might not want her to accept presents from anyone, now that they were married. Not even from the company!

"After all," Ted said gravely, "you've been with us ever since you started out in the business world, Judy. You came here from business college, and you're really a member of the family."

Judy flashed him a shy smile. It was true. Thanks to Ted's loyal support, his honest, sturdy championing, she had covered the rough spots until she was sure of her job, competent to move upward, step by step, to the position she now held. She never felt that Ted was a stranger. From the first, they had been "Judy" and "Ted"; from the first, they had been friends, buddies, though the chief consulting engineer was 19 years his senior, and looked 35 of his 40-odd years.

Ted had had the little desk-frame plate made for her. And when she came back, after her marriage, she had found "Judith Swayne" on the little tag, not Mrs. Michael Swayne. She had wondered about it briefly. Then decided it was business ethics to let her use her maiden name.

Ted's intent, searching eyes on her face, his grave concern, confused Judy, and she turned to the package with trembling fingers and untied the heavy cord. Packed carefully, in excelsior, was the chaste, gleaming model of a great bridge, its sweeping head built a year ago. The Shelby Mountain Bridge, spanning one of the biggest rivers in the East.

Of white, gleaming clay, it was complete in every minute detail: the tiny posts, chased delicately, the railings and beams blending with the lofty, proud original that had won one of the big civic prizes of the year for beauty and value and worth to the countryside.

"Why," Judy gazed unbelievingly, "why it's beautiful! It's the Shelby Mountain model! Ted! How . . . what . . . why did you give it to me?"

Ted stuffed his pipe and lighted it carefully, grinning soberly down at her.

"Thought you said, once, you'd like it?" He stuffed his tobacco pouch away and turned to go. "Seems to me you thought it was almost good enough for a fireplace mantel, if I remember rightly."

"But, Ted," Judy protested, "I didn't mean . . . why this is priceless! This bridge won the Agassiz Award last year. That makes this model a museum piece!"

"Well, if you don't want it," Ted teased her gently.

"Want it!" Judy's soft face flamed with wild-rose color. "It's the most beautiful thing I ever owned, Ted! I'm . . . I simply can't think what to say! But thank you . . . I thank you as very much!" Her soft fingers caressed the shining model, traced the intricate carvings, the beautiful, flawless Greek design of simple grace, and a lump came into her throat and for a moment her eyes blurred.

"Don't take it so serious," Ted said gruffly, "it's just a little trinket. Not many of the lads around here would appreciate anything like that! I'm glad you like it."

He was gone. Judy picked up her precious gift and started home in a daze.

Michael was home ahead of her, and had dinner almost ready. He was very mysterious, very tantalizing about it all, and Judy forgot her financial worries momentarily, in the contagious excitement.

"In the bedroom," he said, waving a spoon like a baton, "is something from the five and dime for Mrs. Michael Swayne. Maybe you'd like to look?"

Judy laid her precious bridge model down on the living room table and fled to the bedroom. Spread out, fan-wise, so that every gleaming dark fold showed to best advantage, lay a costly, luxurious looking raccoon coat.

"Michael!" her eyes filled with tears, and she bit her lower lip lest he see her crying. "Michael, you darling, where did you get it? How? It must have cost a small fortune!"

Gently, he disengaged her hands from around his neck, and picked up the coat.

"Try it on," he urged, "I wasn't sure of the size, so I took your summer coat along for them to go by."

Judy felt the rich, soft touch of the heavy silk lining, and pulled the soft, deep fur collar up about her throat. Her eyes were like twin stars, her smile radiant, as she held the coat together in a gesture, rapturously possessive.

"It's so beautiful, Michael. Only of course we simply can't afford anything so expensive! But I adore you for wanting me to have it, just the same."

"It's bought, and there's no returning it, Judy, so cut the economy dime, and let's see what we have to eat, for our banquet."

Judy slipped the coat off, laid it back on the bed. On the table, partly set, was a tall, square box that she guessed instantly, contained ortolan. Beside it, another box, long and slim, said "stockings."

Judy rushed open the kitchen door, her heart nearly bursting with excitement. Michael was busy, taking up the most delicious smelling food, simply radiating pride and satisfaction.

"Didn't I tell you I could cook, Mrs. Swayne? Nothing like a handy husband around, huh?"

Judy kissed him, nearly upsetting the grilled chops, and hurried to get a pitcher of water. On the shelf, over the sink, was a stack of letters that all said plainly "Bills." One was marked "Hasen's Furniture Store"; another, "Linwood Grocery"; a third, "All-Ways Cleaners."

She was pouring the water when Michael spoke from the living-room. His voice was so sharp, so brusque, it startled her, and she spilled water on the fresh cloth and all over Michael's plate.

"Who," Michael said grimly, "gave you this doo-dad, Judy? This bridge model?"

"The company," she explained quickly, setting down the pitcher to hurry into the living room, "isn't it beautiful, Mike? I'm crazy about it!"

"Oh!" Michael said slowly, holding out a tiny card she had not noticed, in the package. "It says 'May the sun always shine brighter for you, Judy—from Ted.' He paused, and drew a slow, careful breath. "It says on this model, it's signed by E. S. Hoyt, Judy. Since when has Consulting Engineer Hoyt been the Myrick Construction Company, Judy?"

She was absolutely still, paralyzed with the towering picture of guilt Michael had hurled up before her. She twisted shaking, icy fingers together; smoothed her hands, palms flat, down her apron, and stared at him in complete misery.

"Hoyt used to take you places before we started going around, didn't he, Judy? He was a bit smitch you?"

It couldn't be Michael's voice, Judy's bitter, lashing her with fury. Not in this pleasant, lovely room that had been made together. Not on her birthday night!

CHAPTER 13.

MAD JEALOUSY

Judy pushed an unsteady hand through her tumbled hair. Her eyes swept the pleasant room, the table, with its candles shining, raccoon coat spread out on her bed, beyond the little table, close by, with the blue box and the long package, and the chaste, lovely little bridge model that Ted had made! Michael is angry! Finally they came to rest on his face.

"Michael," she said slowly, wonderingly, "I didn't think you'd mind. It's like I told you, a trifle, of course. I'll explain that you don't want me to accept it."

"You'll do nothing of the sort!" Michael blazed. "Make me a laughing stock for the crowd of stuffed shirts? Make me ridiculous before all your friends? Never, do you hear? That would be considerate of you, Judith! It began tranquil up and down the room in his old banter-like pace to keep up his raging temper.

"I forbid you to do anything of the sort, do you hear?"

Judy crumbled a bit of excelsior in tense, brittle fingers, and slow wonder began to dawn in her mind, as she watched Michael's mental temper. He was trying to be mad at her! He was deliberately working himself into a tantrum!

"Then I'll destroy it, Michael, and tell the office I can't accept birthday gifts from them!"

Michael's fingers closed and un-closed violently, as if they itched to do violent things. He breathed slow and hard and glared at Judy, a tiny while line creeping in around his mouth. A white line of anger.

"If . . . if I can't give you enough birthday presents to satisfy you, Judy, you have but to remind me of it! I merely did my best!"

"Michael," Judy could not be angry with him now. Not with this gnawing fear tearing at her heart. The fear that he was trying to make a towering case against her, to justify something he might do himself some day, that was unworthy! "Michael, you simply can't build up such a ridiculous pattern in your mind, and expect me to accept it as a true picture of myself! I don't want that bridge model, it hurts you to have me take it from the company. And I'm more than happy over the things you gave me. They're much too extensive . . . more than we can afford right now!"

"Pattern." Michael shouted. "picture in my mind! Judy, do you mean to stand there and tell me that I merely imagine you accepted a birthday present from an old sweetheart of yours, when we're married scarcely two months?" He waved his hands impotently, then threw himself, petulantly, through his hair, and then flung them up in a gesture of hopelessness. "You need to grow up, Judy!"

He stalked out to the kitchen, banged the oven door open and took out the platter of chops, the bowl of buttered peas, and stamped into the dining room, slamming them down on the table with a clatter.

He yanked out his chair, threw himself on it, and began to serve himself, savagely.

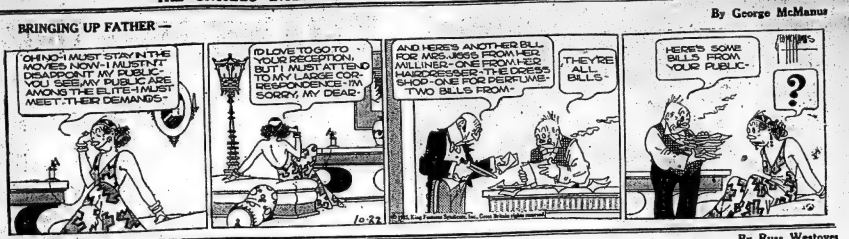
Judy stood still for a long moment, thinking. Michael's last words had started a startling train of thought. She remembered something a married office girl had told her, long ago. "You have to bargain in marriage, Judy. You never get anywhere by trying to do all the petting up, all the giving up! You have to play hard to get, in certain men understand, and even the best of them, are sinners of sorts!"

Judy was eating in stony silence, ignoring her as if she did not exist. Judy went into the kitchen, and opened the trash can. It had not been emptied. She wiped her mouth, and back again, methodically disposing of everything before her. Without knowing it she knew what it was she ate, so intense were her thoughts, her controlled, taut waiting for Michael's reaction.

Michael ate with infuriating deliberation. He helped himself to more browned potatoes, more peas. He broke a roll, buttered it, and ate with apparent relish. He finished eating, and carried his dishes to the kitchen.

Judy finished putting away the food, folding the table, tidying the room, he was in the bedroom, changing. She sat down on the edge of the bed, her cold fingers straying to the silken fur of the coat, moving softly, wistfully, down the shining, dark pile or the fur.

It came to her in slow, painful jets of agony that even his anger, his furious temper, would be preferable this cold, icy, methodical preparation for she knew not what.



He picked up his topcoat, and hat, flung his silk scarf about his neck, and turned to the door, Judy fought clear of the numbing, chill mantle of apprehension humming out all thought, all feeling.

TARZAN THE INVINCIBLE

Cold and wet, Le of Opar crouched beneath a great tree that only partially protected her almost naked body from the fury of the storm, and in the dense undergrowth a few yards from her a tawny carnivore lay watching her with unblinking eyes.

The storm, titanic in its brief fury, passed on; leaving the deep worn trail a tiny torrent of muddy water, and La, thoroughly chilled, bestirred herself. That trail must lead somewhere, and in her heart she hoped that this one would lead to Tarzan.

She came at last to a clearing into which the unbroken rays of the warm sun poured without interruption. She made her way to the center of it with the intention of basking in the sun until she should be thoroughly dried and warmed.

As she seated herself she saw a movement at the edge of the clearing ahead of her. An instant later a great leopard bounded into view. The beast paused an instant at the sight of the woman. Then it crouched and with twitching tail wormed forward.

NINE-YEAR-OLD GORDON TAYLOR GLAD TO BE HOME

Found Sitting Beside Road With Transient Henry Moore

TRANSIENT CHARGED

Boy Says He Was Coaxed To Leave Grandfather

Smiths Falls, Ont., Oct. 22—(CP)—After spending the night in the cells, the 38-year-old transient Basil Henry Moore knows also as Mireau, whose disappearance with nine-year-old Gordon Taylor caused a wide-spread search, will appear in court today.

He was placed behind the bars on a charge of theft after the boy had been located with him last night, nine miles from Brockville. The two were sitting side by side on the road eating apples. The charge is for stealing a watch from Del Kane, Frankford farmer and grandfather of the fair-haired youngster from whose farm the pair disappeared Saturday after Moore had worked there for two days. It was hot known early last night whether or not a further charge would be sworn out against Moore.

The two had spent the time since Saturday trudging along the roads begging food at the farm houses and sleeping by the roadside or in a barn. A gun, an automobile and a buggy in turn had given them lifts.

Moore on his arrest is reported to have told police the boy had left willingly with him and he had intended "taking the boy to Boston, where he would have a good home and where he (Moore) had a sister residing." The man was said to refuse to question by police and made no further statement, it was stated.

"I felt bad, when I thought of my granny and my dog Dick but I thought I could make good excuse after me and bring me home," little Gordon said last night as he hungrily devoured his first substantial meal in several days at the home of neighbors and relatives. All he had to eat earlier in the day was bread and doughnuts handed by the man and a farmhouse, Gordon said.

The boy said: "I did not want to go but he (Moore) coaxed and coaxed. His pal on the other side put me in a bag and took me by the hand and started out."

On Saturday night Moore put two boys over him and he slept by the fence. On Sunday they had a couple of meals of bread, meat and tea, which the man got from the houses the boy stated. Sunday night they slept in a barn.

When the boy was handed to his father at the police station here he wept. Then he asked for "granny" (the transient's name), but he told later how glad he was to be back home.

POWER COMPANIES ONTARIO CABINET HOLD INTERVIEW

Quebec Cabinet Ministers Will Also be Present

300 MILLION AT STAKE

Premier Hepburn Says There is No Doubt of Cancellation

Toronto, Oct. 22.—(CP)—The fast moving drama of Quebec power and Ontario politics swept to a close today on the Provincial Cabinet, prepared to meet representatives from power companies and two Quebec Cabinet ministers in a conference to be followed by a special cabinet session to discuss the Hydro-Electric Power Commissions' unanimous recommendation for cancellation of the power purchase contracts between the province and four companies.

Dominant issue at the last session of the legislature, when the Government introduced a bill to terminate contracts with Beauharnois, Gatineau, Montreal Power and Ottawa Valley companies, the power commission into the municipal field during the summers federal election campaigning but was pushed to the fore last week by the Hydro Commission's recommendation.

The latest development came last night, when Premier Hepburn announced he had completed the telegraphed request of the Beauharnois, Ottawa Valley and Montreal-Quebec companies for the interview. He had been informed Gatineau representatives were in Montreal or Toronto should the conference be extended.

Immediately the Premier communicated with Premier Duplessis of Quebec with the result two Quebec Cabinet Ministers entrained for Toronto to be present at the conference.

Effective When Proclaimed

The Power Bill passed at the last session provides that before arranging for its becoming effective when proclaimed by the Lieutenant-Governor Proclamation has not been made till the Hydro Commission last week urged it take place immediately and at the same time assured the government it could provide sufficient power to meet demands without depending on energy from Quebec.

"This was followed by the weekend announcement of Hydro Chairman T. Stewart Lyon, K.C., that owing to present arrangements of the Commission all Quebec Power—60,000 horse-power in all—would be cut off from the Ontario system at midnight, Oct. 31.

"It is a very serious matter indeed," declared Mr. Lyon of the Commission and Government are treating it as such," he said.

In a later statement Premier Hepburn declared: "Our course of action will depend on whether are prepared to accept the Hydro Commission's recent recommendation that the legislation be proclaimed. We don't think there is any significant doubt of cancellation. We're going to act promptly and get this business over with."

PEACE OF EUROPE HANGS IN BALANCE

Settlement Depends on Further Victories of Italians

By GEORGE JORDAN

(Associated Press Foreign Staff)

Rome, Oct. 22 (AP)—An Italo-British understanding has seemingly secure the peace of Europe hung in the balance today.

A peaceful settlement of the Italo-Ethiopian conflict appeared dependent on the success of Premier Benito Mussolini's legions to push on victoriously to the capital of Emperor Haile Selassie to possible acceptance of conditions which might be agreed on in European diplomatic negotiations.

Rain-soaked Italian troops handled guns and ammunition forward through the mud of the Southern front, preparatory to a drive on the strategic Ethiopian post of Gorrahei.

Italian press dispatches from Asmara, Eritrea, told of Italian settlement and machine gunners pursuing fleeing Ethiopian soldiers after the Fascist forces blasted their way into Dagmerai, Sciavele and Burodei.

The Italians are now within easy approach to Gorrahei, their next objective before the strategic city of Harar, where they would be in a position to cut the Addis Ababa-Djibouti Railway.

Mussolini calmly continued his preparations for the eventuality and waited for the British to show whether or not they were ready to sacrifice powerful army from Italy's North African possesion of Libya, controlling Egypt.

OTHER KIDNAPS ARE REVEALED

Sergt. Weekes Tells Court of Story Told Him by Bannon

London, Oct. 22 (CP)—Detective Sergeant Ted Weekes, Royal Canadian Mounted Police officer, who last month left Kingsmere Park in Labelle since the day the brewer was abducted a year ago May last Aug., still remains his place in the witness stand today against the fifth suspect in the abduction.

The relationship of John Basil Bannon and the part he played in the investigation into the kidnap were told by the Sergeant yesterday as Bannons trial on charges of kidnapping and armed robbery resumed after a week-end recess.

During his testimony Sergeant Weekes said Bannon had told him "what had taken place" in three other Ontario Kidnappings but the names of the victims were not revealed.

Yesterday the officer said Bannon told him one of the three objectives who had been kidnapped was "the man who put John Labatt on the spot" but he did not say whether Bannon had said who the man was.

Damaging Testimony

Bannon, the officer said, claimed he persuaded David Meisner to give himself up in Detroit. The accused complained he was without funds and sought money which he said had been promised him for his work.

With Bannon and Alex Colvin, Labatt representative, Sergeant Weekes went to Chicago to contact "Three-fingered Abe," author of the $150,000 ransom letter. They received several telephone calls from a man supposed to be "abe" and arrangements were made to deliver $10,000.

Then, a dummy package instead of the cash, Sergeant Weekes, Bannon and the United States agents went to an hotel. Bannon offered to take the package to "abe" saying he would hand him the money and a U. S. agent could "blast his head off."

LIBERAL STRENGTH NOW 170 SEATS

Official Figures Show Straight Instead of Brown Elected

TORONTO, Oct. 22.—(CP)—Liberal strength in the Ontario legislature, elected parliament today stood at 170 members instead of the previously announced 169, while the Conservative total dropped from 41 to 40 following release of official figures in York West by Returning Officer Marsh Magwood yesterday. J. W. Straight, Liberal, held a 34-vote majority over Peter J. Brown, Conservative, who was announced the winner election night.

After a 12-hour ballot count the Returning Officer said last night the ballots from an 11-vote margin with which Brown had been credited before the official recovery returning in one poll had been Straight's official vote was 8,187 and Brown's 8,153, he said.

With the Returning Officer's finding was an announcement of Mrs. Brown's counsel, Leopold Macaulay, Conservative, that Minister of Highways, it. was "almost certain" a recount would be sought.

Present standing by parties: Liberal, 170; Conservative, 40; Social-Democratic, 7; C.C.F., 5; Independent-Liberal, 4; Liberal-Progressive 3; Reconstructionist, 1; Independent-Conservative, 1; Independent-Labor 1; Total 240.

Out of the woods and into the wardrobe comes the lumber jacket. A dinner dress has a slim, flared skirt of black velvet and a lumberjacket blouse of pink and gold metallic cloth. The jacket has a belted waist and is buttoned with tiny pearl buttons.

GAMEDUCKSFACED WITH EXTINCTION

Conservation Methods Must Be Rigidly Applied Says Biologist

Toronto, Oct. 22.—(CP)—Sir typet of game ducks in North America are threatened with extinction unless conservation methods are more rigidly enforced and natural sanctuaries of the birds established, Harry C. Oberholser, senior biologist of the Bureau of Biological Investigation, said here Monday. Mr. Oberholser was in the city opening session of American Ornithologists' Union convention.

Addressing redhead, canvas back, Gadwell, ruddy, and buffler ducks, Mr. Oberholser said: "Contributing causes to their rapidly diminishing numbers are the scarcity of ten or their feeding grounds by drainage from ships and manufacturing plants, drought and destruction of their eggs by crows.

BIGAMY CHARGE ON AT COBOURG

Murder Charge at Assize Will Likely Open Wednesday

"Anna Karenina"

Garbo, Fredric March in Film of Rare Beauty

Greta Garbo's twentieth picture for the American public, "Anna Karenina," which comes to the Belle Theatre tomorrow (Wednesday), for seven days, mailing only, can safely be acclaimed her greatest picture.

For this outstanding picture, Garbo has been surrounded by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with her finest supporting cast, her most superb settings and a story, one of the world's greatest, that has been transferred faithfully from the printed page to the screen.

March in Dashing Here

As Count Vronsky, the dashing young officer who wins Garbo's love and tears her away from her husband (Basil Rathbone) and her little son (Freddie Bartholomew), Fredric March turns in one of his finest performances.

As Karenin, the husband, Rathbone presents the perfect portrayal of Murdstone in "David Copperfield" which brought him to the forefront of featured players.

Others in the cast who win honorable mention are Maureen O'Sullivan, May Roscoe, Reginald Owen, Phoebe Foster, Gyles Isham, Reginald Denny, Sue Collins and Reginald Denny.

"Anna Karenina" is the sixth picture that Clarence Brown has directed for Garbo, and is stands out as the finest achievement of his directorial career.

Settings Stands Out

Many of the scenes are among the loveliest ever brought to the screen

The ballroom scene, the grand Moscow ballroom scene where Garbo dances with Mature, and the Russian ballet, directed by Mme. Margarete Wallman, the famous Viennese Choreograph.

The settings designed by Cedric Gibbons, place this art director at the top of his profession, and the photography by William Daniels, who has photographed all of Garbo's pictures, should win for him the Academy Award.

Jean's Happiest Hit

The most entertaining picture to date this year comes to the Belle Theatre tomorrow (Wednesday morning at 11.30 p.m. for a special preview where Jean Crawford and Brian Aherne are co-starred in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer happy hit, "I Live My Life."

Directed by that master, W. S. Van Dyke, it is right rests at humor drama and brilliant photography. The supporting cast includes such experts as Frank Morgan, Aline Macmahon, Eric Blore, Fred Keating, Sterling Holloway, Reeds Hooper and others.

It's one of the six gayest pictures of the year and will be presented with a smart musical comedy "Cure It

AT THE CAPITOL

"Harmony Lane"

Douglass Montgomery and Evelyn Venable Star in Outstanding Film

The immortal melodies of a great American composer, who died penniless, are again heard and heart-tugging profoundly unfolded, with the showing of the feature picture, "Harmony Lane" now playing the Capitol Theatre for first two days of this week.

"Harmony Lane" is the life story of Stephen Collins Foster, who, years ago travelled throughout the Southland, and picked up the darkies' melody and rhythm that immortalized him from the dark lands of Africa, from whence they were imported into North America. Douglass Montgomery, as Foster, is the background of this splendid production, that gives that popular screen favorite, Douglass Montgomery, his finest performance.

As Karenin, the husband, Rathbone presents the perfect portrayal of Murdstone in "David Copperfield" which brought him to the forefront of featured players.

Others in the cast who win honorable mention are Maureen O'Sullivan, May Roscoe, Reginald Owen, Phoebe Foster, Gyles Isham, Reginald Denny, Sue Collins and Reginald Denny.

CABINET MAKING IS PROGRESSING

Ottawa, Oct. 22 (CP)—The new Cabinet with Premier-elect Mackenzie King at the helm will hardly be ready for its first Friday or Saturday. While there had been a remote possibility that the Liberal ministry might take over tomorrow, this was considered improbable today. Even if they do, Thursday or Friday is the transition will not occur on that day.

Today Premier-elect King was continuing his preliminary work on new power. He probably will confer in the course of the day with one or two additional lieutenants. But from the Liberal leader there will be no intimation of the cabinet ministers until the swearing in ceremony takes place. Neither will there be any announcements of policy until the new administration is in the saddle.

Doomsday in Conference

Hon. Charles Dunning, former Minister of Finance, whose name has been mentioned for his old portfolio, had a conference with Mr. King this yesterday. Other callers at Laurier House were Hon. T. A. Crerar, Mr. King's Cabinet colleague before the 1921 election and a former Member of the Union Cabinet, and Senator Raoul Dandurand, Government leader in the Senate and a former Minister without portfolio.

After conferring with Mr. King last week, Premier J. G. Gardiner, of Saskatchewan, has returned to Regina and his name has been mentioned as a Cabinet possibility. Considered almost a certainty to be Minister of Justice again, Hon. Ernest Lapointe, has had discussions with Mr. King last week.

Without any announcement forthcoming Hon. Bennett Gladstone Hill a three-hour sitting yesterday. Premier Bennett stated resignation of Hon. W. D. Herridge, Canadian Minister to Washington, would be accepted as of a date, which will enable Mr. Herridge to finish his office affairs at Washington. Another meeting of Cabinet is on the agenda for today.

CRACK TROOPS OF SELASSIE LEAVE

Make Desayo Nerve Centre of Defence Against Italians

By JAMES A. MILLS

By The Associated Press

Addis Ababa, Oct. 22.—Eight thousand crack troops of Ethiopia's Imperial Guard marched off lightheartedly to the northeast today to make Desayo the nerve centre of Emperor Haile Selassie's line of defence against the Italians.

Desayo, one the central mission in the heart of the empire, Ethiopian Capital, is the junction of roads and southern armies plan to join for a final drive against Addis Ababa.

The Emperor still awaited full reports of an Italian breakthrough in the northern front and capture by the Italians yesterday of the Ethiopian post of Dagemerai and Sciavoli on the Webbe Shibeli River.

Government officials said they were not inclined to treat seriously the Italian claims of these latest victories dashed once and for all the hopes of Premier Mussolini, of the capture of the Fascist forces under General Rodolfo Graziani from the Ethiopian Somaliland.

The Italian advance from the south nevertheless would lead directly up the Webbe Shibeli River valley to the strategic city of Harar, the Addis Ababa-Djibouti railway and the troop concentration point of Desayo.

As the 8,000 men of Ethiopia's only crack regiment took the Desayo road, mothers and children who bade farewell to the khaki-clad warriors from the summit of Mount Entoto trudged silently back to the capital, wondering whether the men ever would return to squat in their favorite bazars again.

Buck Swims Ashore At Lake Erie Beach

Port Erie, Ont., Oct. 22.—(CP)—Workmen at Crystal Beach dock looked on Lake Erie yesterday and saw a four-point buck deer swimming to shore from the general direction of Dunkirk, N.Y., 22 miles across the lake. The buck came out of the water near the Buffalo Canoe Club wharf at Point Abino and disappeared quickly into the bush. Two weeks ago a doe swam in from the Erie Beach area, 11 miles distant, in search of exhaustion two hours after crashing landed.

Treasure of Cocos Island Again Sought by Canadian Expedition

By A. F. ROBERTS

VANCOUVER, Oct. 21.—Tales of the discovery of 123 ancient coins buried in the sands of Cocos Island in a spot remote from the areas searched by other expeditions have led another Vancouver party to outfit for a cruise to the famed Central American spot where pirate treasure allegedly lies buried.

The ketch Windward, which scyred her time in the rum-running trade, has been outfitted and will be on her way south shortly with the owner, Erskine "Slim" Nichols and a crew of five men. They have information obtained from Rod Delaney, soldier of fortune, who swaggered into Vancouver recently with a story of having found some of the treasure on Cocos.

Has Concession From Ford.

With Nichols will be Al Munro of Toronto, one of the backers of the expedition; Godfrey Wenman of Victoria, who was member of the all-Canadian rugby team which toured Japan last year, "Carbolic" Baker, a free lance, and a representative of the Cocos Island Treasure Limited which financed Col. J. E. Leckie's expedition in the silver years in 1932. The company still has concessions from the Peruvian government in connection with the island.

Cocos Island is not the single objective of the party. One of the crew possesses a chart of remote Revilla Gigedo Island, off the coast of the state of Colima, Mexico. On the way southward it is intended to call at this island for a short time, and seek another treasure which is believed there. No previous expedition has yet sought treasure on the particular island.

Seaworthy Craft.

The Windward is a staunch seagoing ketch, built five years ago for the rum trade. In recent years she has been lying in Coal Harbor, awaiting charter. She is 54 feet long, has a beam of 15 feet, and a depth of 9 feet. The vessel has a 25 horsepower auxiliary engine, but it is the intention of her owner to sail her southward under sail as much as possible. The cruise to Cocos is expected to take about six weeks.

The Windward expedition is only one of many which have set out from British Columbia in quest of the fabulous treasure alleged to have been stolen from the city of Lima, Peru, and hidden on Cocos by Spanish freebooters.

Many Expeditions.

In 1925 Winchester, the rifle king, financed an expedition from Victoria in the steamer Rina Edwards, under command of the late Captain Simon McKenzie. In 1927 Frank Munsey, the magazine and newspaper publisher, financed a Victoria expedition in the schooner Casco, under Captain Hackett. The same skipper sustained the Munsey loss in 1929 in the schooner Blakeley. This was financed by James Dunsmuir, former premier and lieutenant-governor of British Columbia.

Recent expeditions were those of the steamer Gunnet in 1925 under Captain Charles Eddington and that of the Silver Wave expedition of 1927. None of the countless treasure quests has been known to return with any booty.

All former treasure hunters have been pursued by an insatiable jinx, but the Windward crew believe that they have an excellent chance to evade it. If they find Cocos Island too tough for them, they are going on an eight-months' pleasure cruise through the South Sea Islands.

Cooperage Mill at Haliburton Burns

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 21.—(CP)—Damage estimated at $50,000 was caused by fire which broke out at the plant of the International Cooperage Company at Eagle Lake, north of the village at Haliburton, early today. The plant was razed.

The fire apparently started in a kiln and a fan which runs day and night is thought to have swept the flames through the building. There were 35 men employed at the plant.

COURTHOUSE SURROUNDED

Kingstown, St. Vincent, B.W.I., Oct. 21.—(CP Cable)—A menacing crowd armed with clubs and stones surrounded the Governor of the Windward Islands outside the Courthouse here today and demanded a hearing on workmen's problems.

Police dispersed the mob after it had quieted with the Governor's announcement he would grant an interview to its representatives on the question of minimum wages, workmen's compensation and customs duties.

Egerton W.M.S.

The October meeting of the Egerton W.M.S. was held Friday afternoon, October 18, at the home of Mrs. George Clarke.

The president, Mrs. H. Clarke, opened the meeting with "Stand Up for Jesus" after which Mrs. George Clarke led in prayer.

The Scripture lesson, fourth chapter of John, verses 24-41 were read by the president. A hymn. Letters were read by Mrs. Russell Stapley and Mrs. R. Chambers dealing with different departments of the W.M.S. work.

Readings were given by Mrs. C. Pilchett and Miss Bernice Cooke.

Plans were made to hold an open meeting at the church in November.

Lillie Gladys Clarke took up the collection.

Hymn 629 was sung and the meeting closed with prayer by Mrs. R. Chambers.

The members then presented Mrs. George Clarke with a lovely potted plant as Friday was Mrs. Clarke's birthday.

The ladies then served a dainty lunch and much merriment was enjoyed over the novelties found in the birthday cake.

London Men Organize New Aircraft Company

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 21 (CP)—Provided with facilities which should allow production within two days, a group of London business men have received a charter for an airplane manufacturing company.

The factory site has already been chosen and those interested say tools and machine equipment are all ready and completion of business negotiations is all that is now necessary.

Better Grade Poultry Necessary To Retain British Export Mart

Ottawa, Oct. 21.—Department of Agriculture officials said today Canada must pay more attention to producing better grades of poultry for export if it wishes to retain the British market. They added the quantity of exported poultry has been of the two lowest commercial grades, selected B and C.

The poultry service of the live stock branch issued figures showing Canadian exports of dressed poultry to the British Isles during the first nine months of the year totalled 1-331,165 pounds, as compared with 832,000 pounds in the corresponding period of 1934 and 4,375 pounds the first nine months of 1933.

The report reveals from Great Britain indicate that better grades than selected B and C must be shipped if the market is to be held, and that more attention must be paid to production of milkfed A and B grades.

PULLET SETS EGG RECORD

Victoria, Oct. 21.—A Rhode Island hen entered in the Vancouver Island egg-laying contest at the Dominion Experimental Station at Saanichton has set a Canadian record for her class and is continuing toward a world mark.

The pullet, Redcroft Four-N, owned by J. Burgess of Qualicum Beach, has passed the Canadian record of 310 eggs, and reached a total of 324. She has until Oct. 31 to complete her full year and beat the world record for Rhode Island hens, believed to be 330 eggs laid by a hen in a Connecticut contest several years ago.

The world's record for all hens of 357 eggs in 365 days, equalled in 1933 by the White Leghorn Derreen 10-U at Agassiz, B.C., Dominion Experimental Farm, is not endangered, by the attempt at a new Rhode Island record.

CONCERNED FOR WIFE, CHILDREN PORTSMITH SAYS

Did Not Intend to Shoot Says Accused in Own Behalf

BORROWED GUN

Witness Says Victim Threatened Him With Harm

Cobourg, Ont., Oct. 22 (CP)—The fate of Ralph Portsmith, 35-year-old Bethany farmer, was testified in the hands of the jury at 1.46 p.m. this afternoon when evidence was concluded at Portsmith's murder trial. He is accused of shooting to death Noel Gordon Blake, also a farmer of Baltimore with the farmer's wife.

Cobourg, Oct. 22.—(CP)—"I did not intend to shoot him. I did not wish the man any harm. It was only for my wife and children I was concerned," Ralph Portsmith, 35-year-old Bethany farmer, testified on his own behalf today at his trial on a charge of murdering Noel Blake, his former hired man.

Blake was shot to death in a woodshed at the Portsmith farm on the 9th concession of Percy Township, Northumberland County, early in MAY. He himself had been farming for two months on the Portsmith farm after being employed at the factory at night. Blake left the Portsmith home June 4.

"That morning," Portsmith testified, "my wife came to me crying with Blake right behind her. My wife told me that she had asked wrong with Blake and that he was now threatening her. I told him that he hadn't been acting right and that charged him. I tried to get it straightened out. I told Blake and my wife to see Constable Ousey and talk it over."

"I told Carey that for my children's sake I would forget it, the Blake children would be the fall of the dock tightly.

Blake shook his fist and swore at him when ordered off the farm, Portsmith said.

"You—I'll get your wife and you, too," he shouted at me," said Portsmith, who described how the gun went off, killing Blake, when he had been found in the woodshed.

Afraid that Blake might work home harm to get his wife to send a note with their son, Alan, to a neighbour's for a gun.

Later one of the children told him Blake was climbing in a bedroom window. After that he fired man went towards the woodshed.

Unidentified Man Found at Tamworth

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 22.—(CP)—Body of unidentified man of about 50 years of age, apparently a foreigner, was found today in Salmon Lake, near Tamworth, about 35 miles west of here, by Ernest Shaw. It was estimated the body had been in water two weeks. Clothing on the body and papers in fact the pockets were turned inside out indicated possibility of foul play. It was learned one of men working on Canadian Construction Company's job near Kaladar, some miles north of Tamworth, had been missing for several days.

Provincial Officer Barrett of Napanee is conducting investigations.

War at a Glance

Rome, Oct. 23 (CP)—Priests should maintain from any statement likely to intensify difficulties caused by the Italian-Ethiopian war, Cardinal Carlo Minoretti, Archbishop of Genoa, said today in a letter to priests in his diocese.

"We do not desire," the letter said, "that colonial expansion should become European war. For this reason we should refrain from any expression or any judgment which might irritate minds.

"We must forget a return of mutual aid and confidence so that all Italians will feel themselves bound together in the love of peace and justice."

Adowa, Ethiopia, Tuesday, Oct. 22, (Delayed by Intercensor)—Following a formal proclamation of religious liberty and equal religious rights in this area conquered by Italy was proclaimed in notices posted on the streets of Adowa today, according to communities today.

Italian military authorities said the Moslems had hitherto suffered certain religious handicaps such as incapacity to own land.

Addis Ababa, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Italian consular agents enroute from Mogalio were expected today to arrive at nearby Adigrat Friday and to leave Ethiopia with the Italian minister, Luigi Vinci-Gigliucci, who had insisted he must remain until the last Italian has been accounted for.

Asmara, Eritrea, Oct. 23 (AP)—The Italian engineering corps has paved one of the roads it has constructed in Ethiopia with marble.

Surveying is build a road between the old Eritrea-Ethiopia frontier and the northern Ethiopian town of Macallo, the engineers came upon a marble deposit and used fragments of it to pave the road. A deposit of quarts was also found.

(By The Associated Press)

London—Sir Samuel Hoare's packet speech in the House of Commons today served the talk of peace conference.

Rome—Officials felt Sir Samuel's statement that any expansion should be banished from Italy the dread of a European war.

Paris—Premier Pierre Laval sought Mussolini's minimum terms for ending his invasion of Ethiopia.

Geneva—Any peace in East Africa will be based on League principles, both the League and Emperor Haile Selassie.

Addis Ababa—The Emperor is highly pleased with the British statement and with reaction to it.

On the Fronts—The Italian Army of the North under General Emilio Bono, Commander-in-Chief, Italo-Ethiopian War, prepared to begin the drive into the interior of Ethiopia were "advanced".

Unidentified Man Found at Tamworth

Kingston, Ont., Oct. 22.—(CP)—Body of unidentified man of about 50 years of age, apparently a foreigner, was found today in Salmon Lake, near Tamworth, about 35 miles west of here, by Ernest Shaw. It was estimated the body had been in water two weeks. Clothing on the body and papers in fact the pockets were turned inside out indicated possibility of foul play. It was learned one of men working on Canadian Construction Company's job near Kaladar, some miles north of Tamworth, had been missing for several days.

Provincial Officer Barrett of Napanee is conducting investigations.

CRISIS REACHES DELICATE STAGE

Premier Pasha States He Cannot Discuss Matters

(By Albert W. Wilson)
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

Cairo, Egypt, Oct. 23.—(AP)—Both Egypt's internal political situation and the International crisis as it affects the Kingdom, lying on Italy's route to Ethiopia, reached their most delicate stage today, as Premier Tewfik Nessim Pasha asserted.

Tewfik man of Turkish blood, who virtually rules Egypt without a constitution or parliament but under the firm guidance of Great Britain, said in an interview:

"I cannot discuss this matter of defence, nor of politics, except to say that they (reports of Italian military activity beyond Egypt's borders) are incorrect.

"That matter has been greatly exaggerated."

Concerning uneasiness in Egyptian political quarters over whether he has obtained private assurances from Great Britain in return for co-operation with Britain in the present International situation, Nessim said:

"You must not take seriously the political press but it cannot fail about these questions at this time."

The Premier appeared slightly settled when asked if he had any intention of giving up the reins of the government, as reported in certain sections of the Egyptian press.

"I have no intention of resigning," he said.

COMMISSIONER OF GIRL GUIDES ATTENDS RALLY

Mrs. W. N. Ponton, Divisional Commissioner of Girl Guides attended the annual meeting of the Trenton District on Saturday. At request of the District Commissioner, Mrs. W. N. Ponton, and Miss Esther Moncrief, Lieut., of Belleville, Mrs. Ponton attended the annual meeting of the Peterborough Lady Guides, the district Girl Guides, and the organization meeting of the Peterborough Cadet Rangers on Tuesday, Oct. 22. Mrs. Ponton addressed the meeting on the "Meaning of Guiding and the Organization and Duties of the Local Council" and Miss Moncrief gave practical suggestions and help in the organization of the Cadet Rangers.

Mrs. Ponton reports that they were most hospitably entertained by Mrs. Rogers, acting Commissioner of Peterborough and the Local Council.

BUTTER EXPORTS HEAVIER

Ottawa, Oct. 23.—A substantial gain was shown in the exports of Canadian butter during September when it amounted to 230,200 pounds, valued at $40,211, compared with 93,700 pounds, worth $7,200 in September, 1934, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today. The United Kingdom was the best customer, taking 189,800 pounds, at $37,-336.

TEACHERS URGED TO CREATE GOOD CLASS SPIRIT

Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner Heard at Teacher's Convention

OFFICERS ELECTED

Herb Walkom, Point Anne, Named President For Year

"Grave responsibility rests on the teacher to inculcate high principles, not merely in the imparting of knowledge but in the training of character, both in creating in the class room an atmosphere, which will reflect the development of a happy normal child, equipped to face the responsibilities of life," said the Honorable Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Minister of Education, addressing the annual convention of the Teachers' Institute of South Hastings held in the Collegiate School auditorium, Belleville, on Tuesday.

Introduced by Inspector

Dr. Faulkner was presented to the audience by Inspector W. J. Deacon, public school inspector of South Hastings who welcomed this opportunity of paying tribute to a great friend. While appreciating the address delivered by Dr. Faulkner as the "first citizen of Hastings" the first citizen of Ontario, he had many things in the Provincial government, and the best citizen of the whole community the people of this district could wish for, additionally thanks to him as "Dr. Bert."

Dr. Faulkner, whose appearance was the signal for great applause from the audience, thanked Mr. Deacon and the inspectors for the greetings extended him. He referred to the high place of standing as inspector and teacher, one who has received a high semblance.

KINGSFORD-SMITH ON QUICK FLIGHT TO AUSTRALIA

Has Hopes of Breaking Scott-Black Record by Several Hours

USES LOCKHEED PLANE

Limited Gas Supply Precludes Possibility of Extra Long Hops

By BURDETTE JOHNS
Associated Press Staff Writer.

London, Oct. 23 (AP)—Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith, hard-bitten flier from down under, who has conquered both the Atlantic and Pacific, took off from Lympne aerodrome today for a quick three-day flight to Australia.

"Smithy," still weak after a nasty shake-up from a week-end fall, did not aim to break any records but hoped to demonstrate the feasibility of a mail service between England and Australia.

He headed for Marseille, Bay of Marseille, Cairo, Baghdad, Singapore, Port Darwin and Melbourne. Kingsford-Smith and his co-pilot P. T. Pethybridge, were flying a speedy 550 horsepower (Lockheed Altair) plane carrying only 116 gallons of petrol. Air Ministry calculations, excluding any possibility of extra hops.

Kingsford-Smith, if all goes well, will have no difficulty in breaking the record for a mail flight to Australia hop. His last trip over 12,000 miles took him 10 days, 4 hours and 47 minutes.

The present Record is 2 Days

A year ago C. W. A. Scott and Capt. Tom Campbell Black covered the record for the route to two days, 22 hours and 18 seconds in the Royal Aircraft Factory S.E.5a.

Kingsford-Smith had been in England for a fortnight, most of his time spent in conferring in the office of Air Ministry officials with the framework of the proposed service. The plan is to have a fortnightly service and not for setting records.

Frankly admitting Great Britain was running risks for peace in the present "record-breaking" era, Sir Baldwin said he was convinced, however, Parliament and the country were behind the government in its policy and a greater measure of confidence was necessary to meet the risks inherent in the situation.

"We, in this country," he said, "that there are risks of peace," Baldwin said, "but we cannot remedy deficiencies."

Parliament can not prove that power." Baldwin declared, "I will leave this policy or peace to the electorate at the next worth running, remembering that the government is responsible for the safety of every man, woman and child.

"Without this country," he said

JOINT DEANERIES TO MEET AT PICTON

A meeting of the joint deaneries of Hastings and Prince Edward is being held at Wellington today. Those attending from Belleville will be the Rev. A. Beauchamp Payne, Rev. C. O. Wright, rector of Christ Church, the Rev. T. H. E. Hall, incumbent of St. Thomas', Thurlow, and Padre at the Airport and the Rev. A. L. Geen, who is secretary-treasurer of the deaneries.

At the close of the session the clergy will go to Picton to attend a supper and meeting of the Anglican Laymens' Association of the joint deaneries which will be held in the parish house of the Church of St. Mary Magdalene at 7 o'clock.

The Rev. C. O. Wrinten, rector of Picton is the Rural Dean of Prince Edward and the Rev. A. B. Caldwell, rector of Marmora, is the Rural Dean of Hastings.

CHURCH SERVICES FOR THANKSGIVING DAY

Tomorrow having been proclaimed by the Government to be observed as a day of general thanksgiving throughout the Dominion, the following services will be held in Belleville: At St. Andrew's Presbyterian church, matins will be conducted at 10.30 o'clock, at Christ Church there will be a choral celebration c. the Holy Communion at 10.30 o'clock, and in the chapel at St. Thomas' Parish church there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion at 10 o'clock.

No services will be held in the United Churches owing to the convention and services having been conducted at Bridge Street United Church Tuesday and Wednesday of 12 week.

DR. FRED HARVEY CHILD SPECIALIST

An addition to the ranks of Belleville's medical fraternity is added this week with the arrival on the city at Dr. Fred Harvey, a native of Toronto, where he graduated with the degree from the Toronto Sick Children's Hospital. Dr. Harvey will be a child specialist, who has had many years experience in Canada and the United States in the treatment of children's diseases. His practical studies work included five years in New York and Philadelphia. While in Belleville he will be associated with Dr. G. H. Stobie.

MYRIADS OF TINY FLIES SWARM CITY

Myriads of tiny flies swarmed through the streets of the city on Wednesday, settling on the warm sides and even breathing apparatus, the midgets were more numerous in the south end of the city. Record rains followed by warmer weather have brought forth the flies in countless millions, point out local entomologists. Today's lower temperatures will probably kill them all.

ONLY FEW CASES OF INFLUENZA

Rumours, that citizens of Belleville were being subjected to a wave of influenza at the present time were squelched today by Dr. G. S. Cronk, M.O.H. for this city. "There may be a few cases of it here and there but the condition has by no means reached an epidemic stage," he declared.

"Just a few cases of an old time, old-fashioned cold," confirmed a second fellow physician of the city.

"People are bound to get them about now. They put their 'hearts' on during the recent chilly spell look them off again a few days ago and caught a chill. Now they're probably putting them on again. Nothing serious."

FILL COMPLETED IN FEW DAYS

Work on the new dock extension at the mouth of the city, carried on for past weeks is expected to be finished within a day or so. Thousands of yards of stone and earth hauled by continuous strings of trucks have created a smooth surface fill reaching from the new pier parallel to the old one, to the bay shore many yards distant. The fill has perhaps been the largest undertaken in the city. Hundreds of many yards of reclaimed land will prove ample space for the erection of numerous warehouses and docks for storage purposes later.

PERCH ARE BITING SO SAY FISHERMEN

Perch are biting. And, taking advantage of the recent warm spell, a part of the city's fishing fraternity have been getting in some profitable evening angling at the lower docks and wharves during the past several days and evenings. A few mud cats are being caught after nightfall.

YOUTHS FROLIC IN CHILLY BAY WATER

Three unidentified youths apparently sought to enter the lists of the last of the season's outdoor bathing splashes and frolicked in the harbor at the south end of Victoria Park for a brief period yesterday afternoon. Although temperatures rose to near summer levels where the land is concerned, the local bay has already taken on the first chill of winter.

JUST FALSE ALARM AS GAS EXPLOSION OCCURS

Geo. Papadakis, restaurant owner of this city was becoming slightly dazed this week after his friends fire last Sunday night or thirtieth time congratulated him on his good luck in winning a new automobile in an outside lottery. Now he has found out the reason. Recently he received a telegram advising him "a car" was on the way. The car was a car of potatoes consigned to him. Some one had seen the telegram.

CANADA GEESE ABSENT THIS YEAR

Wild Canada geese are as scarce in the section this season as they'll ever be, old timers in the local district mournfully point out. The birds have apparently deserted favorite haunts which in past years could be expected to harbor fairly large flocks, and only a lone pair or two are seen. During his early trips in his allotted territory as far north as Marmora and Lennox-Addington counties on the east, district game inspector Jos. Weymark of this city, has sighted only a few geese at occasional points, he stated today.

HOLIDAY HUNTERS TO OBEY RULES

Warning that hunters who wish to engage in partridge shooting during the next three days comprising June 24, 25 and 26 of this month must comply fully with regulations governing hunting bag limit was given today by Mr. Jos. Weymark, district game inspector. Bag limit according to four per day was also pointed out.

The day squirrel shoot will be October 24 and 25 and will be also subject to the same rules of the game protection act, he warns.

Parked Truck Backs Up Parked Car is Hit

A rather peculiar motor accident happened on Pinnacle street on Monday night, when a parked truck rolled backwards and collided with a parked car directly behind it. The car, an automobile owned and parked by Dr. E. A. Carleton, Belleville vet, was parked near the intersection of Pinnacle and Bridge and directly behind a parked truck owned by W. C. Blackadder, of Toronto. In some unknown manner the truck commenced to roll backwards and struck the front of the Carleton car, damaging the amount of $50 was reported. The radiator, headlights and fenders were badly damaged during the impact. The matter of damages was amicably settled upon the arrival of P. C. Alcock, who investigated. Purely accidental was the report submitted.

SEEN LOITERING NEAR SCENE OF ROBBERY

Ontario Provincial Police today are searching Eastern Ontario for a robber, who burglarized a Bowmanville haberdashery last night and made a quantity of wearing apparel. The search commenced when the robbery was discovered and reported to Provincial Constable Smith, and the hunt for the bandit had headed eastward. A description of a man seen loitering in the vicinity of the robbery was obtained by the authorities. The burglar stole a leather coat, a windbreaker, one pair of shoes, shirts, socks, gloves and other articles of wearing apparel. Authorities are of the opinion that the robber left 1 wmanville on a night train and was headed eastward.

POST OFFICE HOURS FOR THANKSGIVING

Thursday being "Thanksgiving Day" the post office will observe the following hours. The public lobby will be open from 8.00 a.m. to 6 p.m. with General Delivery, Registration and Postage stamp wickets will be closed all day, along with Money Order and Savings Bank wickets. No letter carrier delivery will be made, but there will be a collection of mail both morning and afternoon. All mail posted at the office up to 12 o'clock noon will be despatched as usual.

TAKE ROY DELINE TO OTTAWA FOR TRIAL

Ottawa police today escorted the Provincial Police here they would be in Belleville this afternoon to take Roy Deline, 24 year old Trenton youth, who was apprehended in possession of an automobile reported stolen at Ottawa on Monday night. Deline and a passenger fit the alleged stolen car were held in custody in Belleville following their apprehension yesterday. Provincial Police today announced, that they had discovered where Deline had sold the heater, spare tire, tube and rim from the reported stolen car. Inspector Frank Gardner stated this morning that charges of receiving stolen goods would be laid against the persons accepting the accessories from the stolen car. It is alleged the driver of the automobile sold the heater ar l fully equipped spare wheel in exchange for gasoline, while another received a tire.

LANCE CORP. McPHEE RETURNS FROM OTTAWA

Following a two day course of instruction at headquarters in Ottawa Lance Corporal J. G. McPhee of the R.C.M.P. returned to the city yesterday to assume his usual duties in charge of the local detachment. In the meantime Constable P. V. Monahan, previously stationed at Picton, reported for duty at the local R.C.M.P. office taking over the duties of Constable Wm. Johnson, who was recently transferred to headquarters at Ottawa.

B.Y.P.U. RALLY TO BE HELD IN CITY

The annual fall rally of the Baptist Young People's Societies of the Peterboro Association will be held on Thanksgiving Day at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church of this city. There will be afternoon and evening sessions. In the evening Rev. Hector Lang of Park Road Baptist Church, Toronto, will be the main speaker. It is expected that approximately two hundred delegates will attend the banquet between the afternoon and evening sessions. Churches from Picton, Campbellford, Northern, Oshawa, Bowmanville and Norwood will be represented.

CROOKSTON PAIR WEDDED 60 YEARS

Crookston, Oct. 23.—The small village of Crookston on October 13, 1935, celebrated the diamond wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mullett.

They were completely taken by surprise on the evening of October 11, when their neighbours and friends gathered at their home to extend their best wishes to the bride and groom of sixty years. They were presented with a pair of kid slippers, for which they returned many thanks.

On Sunday 13th., relatives from Belwood, Wartrous, Belleville, Thomasburg and Moira to the number of forty had dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Mullett, and they received many lovely presents.

In the year 1875, Fanny Mullett was married to Sarah Jane Lancaster, at the home of her father, Mr. Mat. Lancaster, by the late Rev. Mr. Whitecomb of Thomasburg. Mr. John Mullett, brother of the groom acting as groomsman and Miss Ellen Blair as bridesmaid. About from guests were present at the wedding of sixty years ago and the first wedding of Fanny Mullett in the community where "presents were given the bride."

On the evening following the wedding a reception was held at the home of the groom's father, Mr. James Mullett of Moira. They resided in Madoc for three years Mr. Mullett working as carpenter in the seam and door factory.

In the year 1879 they returned to Moira to the Mullett homestead, where they resided for thirty-five years and where their family of three children were born. Charvene who now resides on the old homestead at Moira; Cecil (Mrs. Reid) and Harry of Crookston.

In the year 1913 they moved from Moira to the home they now occupy at Crookston and everyone wishes that they both may be spared to celebrate many more wedding anniversaries.

SANG HERE AT GRIFFIN'S THEATRE IN YEAR 1916

War Removes Young Frenchman From Grand Opera

A visitor to Belleville this week who has pleasant recollections of a previous visit is Lt. Lawrence, who in 1916 was tenor soloist with a travelling co mpany which played at Griffin's Theatre here. McCamerara recalls his reception when singing in "The Bohemian Girl" here. The hearts was packed to the doors by a very appreciative audience. As a result of the audience's approval of his solo efforts in the opera, Mr. Cameron sang "The Last Rose Of Summer," and so pleased the audience that several recalls resulted.

One of the highlights in history Mr. Cameron recalls as an engagement with the Metropolitan Opera Company in New York City, and the subsequent of a bright musical future. The war changed all this, however. Shortly after his departure in Belleville in 1916 he received his recall to France as a reservist and before long he was taking part in the great struggle for his beloved la Belle France, the land of his fathers. As a result of wounds and gas in the war his musical career as a singer was ended. He returned was ruined, and he is now operating with his concert party, "Broadway Follies" which is appearing at the Capitol Theatre Wednesday and Thursday of this week, en route to Ottawa for an extended engagement.

Obituary

LEONARD ANDERSON

The death occurred at the Belleville General Hospital on Tuesday of Leonard Anderson, the five months old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Anderson, 27 1-2 McAnany Street.

EDWARD LEE (Perth)

A highly esteemed and well-known resident of Perth in the person of Edward A. Lee, tailor of this city, died at his home early today after a long illness. Mr. Lee had been suffered a stroke on Thursday of last week and because of his advanced age could not withstand the shock. He was born in Perth 81 years ago being a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Lee and except a short residence in the state of Michigan, has resided almost entirely in Perth. He followed the occupation of painter and decorator until his retirement some years ago. Surviving are his wife and one son, George Lee, also of Perth. Other members of the family have been buried within a short space of time, their mother having died but six weeks ago, a member of the Catholic church, he always to mourn his loss, four sons, George A. Lee of this city, Joseph of St. Catharines; William and Raymond at home; and one sister, Mrs. Mary Ann Lee.

The funeral will likely be held on Friday (today) from his late home in Perth today to attend the obsequies.

MRS. D. HULBERT OSSER (Warkworth)

Mrs. Eneta Newcomb Osser, wife of D. Hulbert Osser, died at Warkworth on Tuesday, Oct. 22. The funeral will take place on Thursday

POLICE COURT

Charged with the theft of a large quantity of brass from his employers, Edward N. Lowe, of this city was arrested Tuesday afternoon by Constables Ernest and Fred Izard. Lowe appeared before Magistrate E. J. Butler today and was remanded in custody until Friday's police court.

According to information related by local police Lowe was employed by the Pratt Manufacturing Co. of Belleville, from where he allegedly stole the brass in question. He is also charged with receiving ten dollars for the entire lot. A statement admitting the theft was voluntarily given to the police, it was announced later today.

Following complaints received in regard to the breaking and entering of homes in Belleville while the occupants were absent from home, three local youths being questioned Tuesday at the police station, following the laying of charges. Three charges of breaking, entering and theft were laid against the three youths all of whom are minors. The cases will be heard in a special Juvenile Court, to be held at the Court House on Saturday.

His Worship, Magistrate E. J. Butler, presided at the weekly police court in Picton Wednesday.

POLICE BLOTTER

P. C. Evans reported to his superiors the fact that Coleman St. is being used as the proverbial race track, by motorists at all hours. Last evening the officer in question tried to stop a speeding motorcyclist, at that point, but without avail as the driver accelerated his machine and sped away. The license number of the motor-bike was not secured, however, and charges will most likely follow.

The wholesale theft of chickens was reported to the Provincial Police this morning, when a farmer residing on the sixth concession at Sidney reported the loss of a flock of his most valued birds. Previous to the report a similar robbery have been received by the O.P.P. and following last night's raid on the chicken coop the authorities stated that certain definite clues of a valuable nature had been left by the chicken thieves. The case is being followed closely and further developments are expected hourly.

Last night's heavy down pour of rain drove a number of transients to the police station seeking a dry, warm night's lodging. All were released this morning.

BUREAU IS KNOWN HERE AND ABROAD

The fame of Belleville's Dominion Entomological laboratory, which will be one of the finest, if not the finest laboratory in the world for the study of methods of eradication or control of insect pests here and abroad following the completion of the new addition now being constructed on East Dundas street, has already reached remote points in Europe, Mr. A. B. Baird, chief of the local laboratory has been advised by Dr. Arthur Gibson, Ottawa, Chief Dominion Entomologist.

Dr. Gibson was here Monday in Belleville during which time he made a thorough inspection of the local plant, has just returned to Canada, after an extended trip to Europe during which time he visited many countries making a first hand study of conditions in entomological centres. His trip included Spain, Belgium, France, England and many other countries. In Spain and in England he addressed the Entomological Congress, paying particular attention to the work being carried on in this country, with reference also to Belleville, one of the chief centres of study for insect pests in the Dominion.

Dr. Gibson complimented the local staff of entomologists for the work accomplished here during the past several year for the insect pests has been given the rest of Canada through the culture of many beneficial parasitic species, which have been sent from here by the million.

PREMIER-ELECT TO ASSUME OFFICE LATE WEDNESDAY

Inauguration Ceremony Expected to Take Place About Four

CABINET CHOSEN

Only Conjectures as to Personnel But Dunning Sure Minister

Ottawa, Oct. 23 (CP)—William Lyon Mackenzie King, political power in Canada for 26 years, was expected to be sworn in as Prime Minister for the third time before 1935. He will succeed Richard Bedford Bennett whose Conservative administration was defeated in the general elections on the days ago.

Only last-minute difficulties could stop the Government-in-pitch and the announcements of the new Liberal Cabinet. The two political leaders conferred for a few minutes last night, Mr. King advising Mr. Bennett he was ready to take over the Government.

The inauguration ceremony was not expected before 4 p.m. E.S.T. because a meeting of the Bennett administration called for three o'clock. It will be the last meeting of the outgoing Government.

Sir Lyman Duff, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, will swear in the new administration. It will be the first time since Confederation a Canadian has officiated at an inauguration, the Governor-General, Lord Tweedsmuir not having sailed from England in time.

Not Accepted at Once

The first step in the ceremony will be for Mr. Bennett to tender his resignation to the Chief Justice and advise him to call on Mr. King to form a Government. The new Premier-designate will not be accepted immediately because the Government of the country must go on. The Chief Justice will summon Mr. King and receive his acceptance to be sent to an administration. With the assurance, the Liberal leader will present his list of Cabinet colleagues.

Only then will Mr. Bennett's resignation be accepted, Mr. King being sworn in office immediately afterward. This leaves no vacancy in the succession to Premier. As Mr. Bennett steps out, Mr. King steps in.

Members of the Liberal Cabinet will take their oaths after the new Prime Minister and the members of Mr. Bennett's administration will not tender resignations. The change in Government authority will be quite automatic, when the new man takes his oath of office.

The new Prime Minister was chosen head of the Liberal Party in 1919 at a convention in Ottawa after the death of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. He had been a member of the House off and on since 1908 and before that had been Deputy Minister of Labor. He became Prime Minister in 1921 and again in 1926 after defeat of the Meighen shadow government.

Large Majority

The new Premier will have the largest House majority in Canadian history. In the general election 179 official Liberals and sided-with-four Independent Liberals and two Liberal-Progressives. On the other side of the green-carpeted aisle will be 40 Conservatives; 17 Social Creditors; eight C.C.F.; five Reconstructionist; one Independent Conservative; one Independent and one U.F.O.-Labor. The King Government's over-all majority will be 93, provided it receives support from the Independent Liberals and Liberal-Progressives.

Meanwhile, there was great speculation in Ottawa over the Cabinet list. Only one man, who knows anything about it was the new Prime Minister and he refused to say anything. It was understood Hon. Charles Dunning, on the political sidelines since 1930, would return to the Finance Department, a seat being found for him in Ontario or Quebec.

Hon. Ernest Lapointe, Liberal Chief of Quebec, was considered a certainty for the cabinet as well as Hon. T. A. Crerar for Manitoba; Hon. Ian Mackenzie for British Columbia; Hon. W. D. Euler, Hon. J. G. Elliott and Norman Rogers for Ontario. Two other Quebec ministers were expected to be Hon. Fernand Rinfret and Hon. P. J. A. Cardin and possibly Hon. Cray from Ontario.

The New Cabinet

The Cabinet line-up today was as follows:

Prime Minister and Secretary of State for External Affairs—Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King.

Minister of Finance—Hon. Charles Dunning.

Minister of Justice — Hon. Ernest Lapointe.

Minister of Trade and Commerce—Hon. C. H. Cahan.

Minister of National Revenue—J. L. Ilsley.

Minister of Labor—Norman McLeod Rogers.

DOUBTS IF SHEBA WAS IN ETHIOPIA

Toronto Professor Wears Emperor's Ring And Has Seen Much of His Gold

Toronto, Oct. 22 (CP)—A ring of beaten gold presented to him by the Emperor of Abyssinia himself, is worn by Dr. S. A. Mercer, Professor of Egyptology and Semitic Language at the University of Toronto.

Dr. Mercer did believe that the ancient treasure trove of the Queen of Sheba was an object of the Italian invasion.

"The Queen of Sheba was never in Ethiopia," he said. "Ethiopia used to be called the land of Kush and it was there that Egypt got all its gold. There is lots of gold in Ethiopia still. The Italians may have discovered the remains of some of the old gold mines worked by the Egyptians."

Dr. Mercer has visited Ethiopia several times and has seen very much lumped-gold all the gold in sight. Not only gold plates and other utensils, but even the chairs and tables in the homes of the rich are made of gold.

Father's Hope of Finding Lost Baby Fades as Criminal Tells His Story

Detroit, Oct. 23—(AP)—The hope that kept William Greaiver steadfast in his 42-months' search for his baby son, given by mistake to an unknown character who called at the hospital in 1933, faded and all but died in Recorder's Court today.

Alphonse Viemnimck, the man who received the Greaiver baby 12 years ago in the belief he was receiving the infant born to his unmarried daughter, sullenly related his story he gave the Greaivers, only to a couple from Pennsylvania.

Judge Thomas Cotter had agreed to question Viemnimck once more before sentencing him for his latest crime, a sex offense against a four-year-old girl for which he was convicted last week.

At one point the judge shouted at the 58-year-old prisoner:

"You buried that baby, didn't you?"

Viemnimck shook his head, telling again his story he gave the Infant. In the belief it was his daughter's, to a couple he met in a saloon and whose name he did not bother to ask.

"My wife died when the baby was born," Greaiver said. "That was a terrible blow. I took her home to Toronto to bury her and when I returned to Detroit I kept thinking that the baby would comfort me—that I would always have with me the memory of my wife in that baby."

When I went to claim my son, a nurse handed me a baby and I looked just sonn. I knew I wasn't my baby.

"I spent every cent trying to find my son. It was hopeless. Viemnimck was stubborn. He wouldn't tell anything that would help locate the child. But I thought maybe it was possible he did give the baby to somebody. Now if he should say he did something else I don't know what I'd do but I must know."

REV. MR. MARSHALL IS RE-APPOINTED

Despite Vigorous Opposition From Delegates at Baptist Rally

Windsor, Ont., Oct. 23—(CP)—Despite the vigorous opposition of several of the delegates, re-appointment of Rev. L. H. Marshall of Leicester, England, to the chair of Christian Theology at McMaster University, Hamilton, has been made by the 47th Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec.

Rev. A. U. Russell, Niagara Falls, and Rev. G. V. Orchard, Toronto, led the group of eight dissentients who voted against the resolution supporting the report of Prof. Marshall's appointment at last night's sessions.

Carpenters will receive an hourly wage rate of 90 cents and plasterers 95 cents an hour for a maximum five day weeks. For overtime carpenters will receive one and one half for the first hour and double time for every hour after that. Plasterers will be paid one and a half for the first hour.

Hods for common laborers engaged in building and construction work was set at 50 cents an hour for a maximum working week of 40 hours.

PLEADS GUILTY TO ABDUCTION

Trassient, Henry Moore, Also Admits Theft Charge

Perth, Ont., Oct. 23—(CP)—Basil Henry Moore, 23-year-old transient today pleaded guilty to a charge he abducted nine-year-old Gordon Taylor from the Frankfown farm home of his grandfather, Jacob Rink. He also pleaded guilty to a charge of theft and was remanded for investigation.

Moore and the boy were found last night in Brockville, Ont., some beside the road, more than two days after they vanished from Kane's farm while the elderly man was absent in Belleville.

Moore described himself as a Canadian, a Great War veteran, married and a former plumber by trade.

He is alleged to have stolen a watch, $1.50 in cash and a pair of gum rubber boots from Kane's home.

Hurricane Sweeps Over Cuba, Killing Three

Santiago, Cuba, Oct. 22 (AP)—Three persons were reported dead and four injured today as the hurricane which swept northward from Jamaica struck this city of 90,000 force.

The city's streets were littered with debris making automobile traffic impossible while the phone and torrential rains prevented search for further possible victims who, it was feared, might be buried in ruins.

Many buildings collapsed and the roofs of a hospital and the electric power plant were torn away leaving the city without electricity and forcing newspapers to suspend publication. Broad and principal streets were

PERPETUUS MODEL

Montreal, Oct. 23—(CP)—A model railway engine, complete in every detail, actually burning coal and propelled by steam, capable of pulling from six to ten ordinary-load trains, is the property of George Stevenson, resident of Montreal, who built it valued at $3,000.

Mr. Stevenson built this miniature locomotive entirely by hand in his spare time, using his cellar as a workshop. The engine, which took two-and-one-half years to complete, was designed after the "Prince" type of English locomotives, to which the name Diamond "Flying Scot" belongs.

Engine and tender together are five feet, nine inches in length and weight 150 pounds. The locomotive is 13 inches in height and carries nine pints of water for use as steam. The steam is raised in eight minutes and pressure is set at 120 pounds a square inch.

George Stevenson, a native of Birmingham, England came to Canada 15 years ago. He is a fireman mechanic by trade and spends his spare time building engines. He stated he is a descendant of the author, Robert Louis Stevenson.

OBTAINS SHELF OF TINY BOOKS

Montrealer to Present Seven Minute Volumes to McGill Museum

Montreal, Oct. 23—(CP)—A three-inch shelf containing seven volumes containing 1,000 pages of material has been placed side by side in their specially constructed case by H. S. Scadell of Montreal.

Each of the seven minute volumes in the set is a perfect book in every way, beautifully bound in Morocco leather by a famous London binder. They stand barely an inch high and each is just three-quarters of an inch across. The books are completely printed on fine paper, with several hundred pages in each. Although the type is almost microscopic in size it can be read with the naked eye and stands out sharply when examined by magnifying glass.

The miniature library contains an English dictionary, said to be the smallest in the world, a copy also a book of English, Irish and Scottish songs complete with music and finely-engraved illustrations. Another volume contains Burns' poems, while a booklet labelled "Golden Thoughts" and "Merry Thoughts" contains extracts from the philosophers and humorists of the ages. There is also completed an English-French dictionary and a copy of the Koran, printed in Arabic.

Though the age of the books is unknown, it is believed they date back more than a century. They were picked up in various places and apparently at different times. Mr. Scadell obtained the set from an Englishman who had found them by chance in an English town and subsequently sold them to another who did not realize or appreciate their worth.

The present owner is planning to present them to the museum of McGill University, Montreal, where they will be the smallest volumes in the exhibit of miniature books.

PELEE ISLAND LIKE WAR FRONT

Hunters Pour in For Two Days' Pheasant Shoot

Pelee Island, Ont., Oct. 23.—(CP) —Gunfire blasted the usual quiet of this little island in Lake Erie off the southwest coast of Ontario today as hunters from various points in the province stalked through fields and across farmland to open the two-day fall pheasant hunt.

Tuesday, Opening Day Powers' one and only hotel with the break of dawn, was crowded as sportsmen diligently hunted the handsome birds. Yesterday a day in the bag limit.

The township of Pelee taxes each hunter $3 and the revenue so derived is used for the maintenance of the game preserves of the island for damage to their cows, chickens, hogs and sheep.

NEW STAINLESS STEEL USE

Sheffield, England—(CP)—A new use for stainless steel has been found for the new reservoir for the Derwent Valley, near Sheffield, the bed of the River Derwent at a point where the old weir stands being lined with stainless to prevent the channel from becoming choked by vegetable growth and moss.

FIRED RIFLE TO FRIGHTEN VICTIM

Officer's Testimony in Murder Trial at Cobourg

Cobourg, Oct. 23 (CP)—The case of Portsmith, Bethany farmer, charged with the fatal shooting of Mrs. Mary Blake, Harwood widow, is expected to be given to the jury some time today.

As his trial on a charge of murder opened yesterday Provincial Constable W. C. Carey quoted Portsmith as saying he fired his rifle to frighten Blake, not to destroy. The bullet struck Blake in the forehead as he crouched in a woodshed on the farm.

The officer said Mrs. Portsmith told him she had been intimate with the farmhand and Blake had threatened to tell her husband unless she went away with him. Portsmith learned of this and ordered Blake off his farm, the officer said.

Constable Carey said the officer said he sent his young son to a neighboring farm to borrow a rifle. "He got a loose board, he found Blake hiding under the floor of the shed," Portsmith told the officer his gun. Even then, it was only by frightening him away the officer said he accused related.

Constable Carey also borrowed gun. Portsmith remarked he wanted 'it to try and get Blake to leave the farm," the police officer said. The rifle, told the court.

Rev. Arthur Thompson of Bethany, said Portsmith remarked he had shot Blake without meaning to do so.

On June 4 Portsmith took Blake and Mrs. Portsmith to the Provincial Police office in Cobourg, where Mrs. Portsmith admitted improper relations with Blake, Constable Carey said. The police advised them to settle whatever wages were due Blake and discharge him.

Obituary

LATE MRS. CHRISTINA TURNER (Contributed)

After an illness extending over two years, Christina Melissa Cunningslings widow of the late Reuben Turner passed away at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. M. Scott in Unity, Mrs. Turner had been a semi-invalid for the past two years, having suffered a stroke from which she never recovered, although able to be up around the house occasionally.

The deceased was born on March 18th, 1864, at Hastings County, near Belleville, Ontario, and was married to Reuben Jones Turner on December 31st, 1872. The family came west in 1912, taking up residence in Unity where Mr. Turner predeceased her. In 1921, Mr. Turner passed away, leaving his wife and one daughter, Mrs. J. M. Scott to mourn his loss.

Funeral services were held in the United Church on Tuesday last, October 15th, and attended by a large number of old neighbours and friends who came to pay their last respects to a pioneer resident and friend. Rev. Jas. Dougan, pastor of the United Church, was in charge of the service and delivered an impressive sermon; eulogizing the deceased and also mentioned another life of good works and examples, Interment took place in Pleasant View Cemetery at Unity, a large concourse of mourners following the remains to the graveside. The pallbearers were: R. C. Loughridge, D. H. Kennedy, A. L. Smith, Alan Sirrs, Fred Silver and H. E. Hamilton, all friends of the deceased. Many beautiful floral tributes banked the casket, offering sympathy and esteem from a host of friends.

The late Mrs. Turner was an active worker in church organizations, being especially prominent in missionary work. She was a member of the local United Church, being a faithful attendant while health permitted.

During her long illness Mrs. Turner retained a keen interest in life, her cheerful disposition and bright outlook through a long life doing much to offset the daily troubles and cares of existence.

Relatives and friends from outside points present for the funeral were: Mrs. Argue of Hanna, Alberta; Ruby Scott from Saskatoon; Muriel Scott from Baldwinton, and Mr. and Mrs. H. S. McMillan of Hughenden, Alberta.

THANKSGIVING NEARS

That time of year has come when Thanksgiving draws near. Thanks to the Federal election it is somewhat late and thrown back farther into the year than it has been for some years. There must be a touch of late autumn to make Thanksgiving possess that flavor and atmosphere which are required to make the season felt in the hearts of men and women, boys and girls. A complete season must have past, the garners and barns must be full, and the song of plenty be heard in the land, while the touch of frost is on the pumpkin, before there can be the true Thanksgiving. It must come at the turn of the season when winter is not yet here and autumn has not quite departed.

Thanksgiving accordingly can become a time of gratitude, when man feels his debt for the bounties of nature and the riches of Providence, and the ability to enjoy life and make thankfulness.

Canadians have reason to be grateful that they have been established in so happy a land, in the working out of world events, there is a great and fertile land north of the Great Lakes and the Forty-Ninth Parallel, just as there is another happy and fertile land south of it, and these two lands are peaceful lands, whose main object is to develop so that millions may live and enjoy life in these "promised" places with their wealth of fields and waters and rocks makes them so blessed. Here men and women may rear their children in the fear of God and love of neighbors in the field, the mine, the lakes and in the industries, a truly happy land. In such a land there can never be the spirit of revolution for there is no cause. Those who follow the Scriptural admonition of labor, secure their reward. The only revolution can be the peaceful movement which brings change in society and without disruption and turmoil and distress.
